The little circle of boys and girls, who come into my shanty and muddle up my bird pictures, spill my ink, borrow the only pencil I own, drag out all my nature books and generally wind up the show by dragging me out too, to force me to tell them stories, under pain of coaxing me all day, are here again.

They first of all took down my bird pictures from the shelf, then wanted to know why the goldfinches get engaged early in the season and have such a long engagement, and do not get married until most of the other birds are free from family cares and a good many of them on the way south.

"If I were a young Goldfinch lady," says my little girl friend Ruth, "I wouldn't hang around all summer waiting on any handsome bird, just to get married late and have all the worries when society otherwise would be flocking to parties, enjoying life, on the way south, and here would be me, a worn and weary mother, working like mad to fill up five little ones with insects and bugs, and my fancy yellow and black husband galavanting off to the fall fairs, where all the other birds are seeing things. No, siree, not for me! I would change things around in the Goldfinch outfit, if I had to be one. What makes them be so late in nesting, haven't they any common sense?"

So, what can I do? Especially when all the other lads and lassies agree that Ruth has made it quite clear that I am running this nature thing all wrong, and would be better engaged holding a fall meeting, to persuade the male Goldfinches to forget their fine looks for a while and give their sweethearts a better chance in the scheme of things domestic.

So I have to scratch my head and find some arguments to show that the goldfinches know more about it than we do. And here is what Ruth agrees to be reasonable common sense: The male goldfinch is a conceited dandy, so his wife nests late, when she may depend on him to settle down, especially as the thistles by that time have manufactured nice soft down for a nest lining, and since most conceited men are lazy, all the weeds are going to seed, and it is not hard to find food, even if he might refuse to help.

"That's just it," says Ruth, "She has the brains and he the looks."

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU CAN FIX LENGTH OF YOUR DAYS.

Once in a while some friend "kids" me about writing articles for the press. I don't mind, but it is interesting to study the reactions of people to this particular thing.

A few days ago one of the great newspapers carried an editorial from which the following is a quotation:

"The British Ministry seems unduly excited over the question whether or not a member of the Cabinet should be permitted to so lower the dignity of the politician as to write for the papers. It has been made a live issue by foolish criticism directed at Lord Birkenhead, who has been supplementing his official salary of $25,000 by writing for the press for $60,000. It is not charged that he has written on official or political matters. The offense seems to lie in writing at all.

"It is common knowledge that for a century most of the leading politicians and ministers of Europe have written for the press, on politics and governmental policies, albeit concealing their identity. But there has always been a disposition to look upon the work of a writer as beneath the dignity of a politician—which is not a little amusing. . . . Lord Birkenhead could easily do more undignified things than writing, even for the press, which is more potent than the politicians."

Who can doubt that the greatest moral force in the world to-day is the press? The time was when the pulpit and the platform moulded the thoughts of the people. It is no criticism of the preacher and the orator to say that their views do not begin to reach the multitudes covered by the newspapers.

To be able to help a single human sufferer is a joy, but to carry the gospel of good health to millions every day is a privilege immeasurable.

If the tariff is important to industry; if the rate of taxation is vital to business; if a war in Arabia is worthy of consideration; if the open door in China deserves discussion—if all these things which have very little significance to the average individual are to be written about, is it not of equal importance, to put it no stronger, to write about health and the prolongation of life?

Simple eating, lots of sleep, the avoidance of undue fatigue, sunlight, fresh air, regular exercise—to preach these to the people and to broadcast their importance to newspaper readers everywhere will, in the last analysis, do more good to more persons than all the speeches in all the parliamentary bodies of the whole world.

Your length of days is within your own hands. You can determine for yourself what your physical life and end shall be. That is a message which should give thought to persons who receive it. It has a direct, personal appeal to every heart. If it is heeded, the world is bettered economically and every household is made happier. Blessings on the press!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

A generally unfavorable and obstructed state of affairs must be read from this day's astral activities. Under these portents it may be difficult to make more than a limited success in business and new ventures are under an ominous sign. Those in the employment of others also may find things annoying and troublesome, hence should be on guard againsto ffending those in authority. Disputes and litigation should be avoided in business or domestic affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are under a sign read as troublesome and obstructing during the ensuing year. Quarrels, litigation and new enterprises should be shunned, and those in employment should be careful. In the home, too, and in love affairs, there may be crosses. A child born on this day may be inclined to be obstinate, impetuos and quarrelsome and also sarcastic. It should be given training and discipline at an early stage in infancy.

Walter Sheridan was a pioneer of the town and county. He was born in 1796, in the county of Carlow, Ireland. The exact date of his migration to Canada is not known, but it has been ascertained that he was appointed as the first Clerk of the united counties of Peterborough and Victoria in 1850, which office he held until the separation of the two counties in 1858 in accordanec with the result of a vote on the question. Sheridan continued as Clerk and Treasurer of the County of Peterborough until failing health led him to give up the office of Clerk in 1867 and that of Treasurer 3 years later.

For many years Sheridan was a member of the Peterborough School Board. He also sat on the original Board of Trustees of the Methodist cemetery and filled the offices of Recorder and Secretary. He died in 1875.

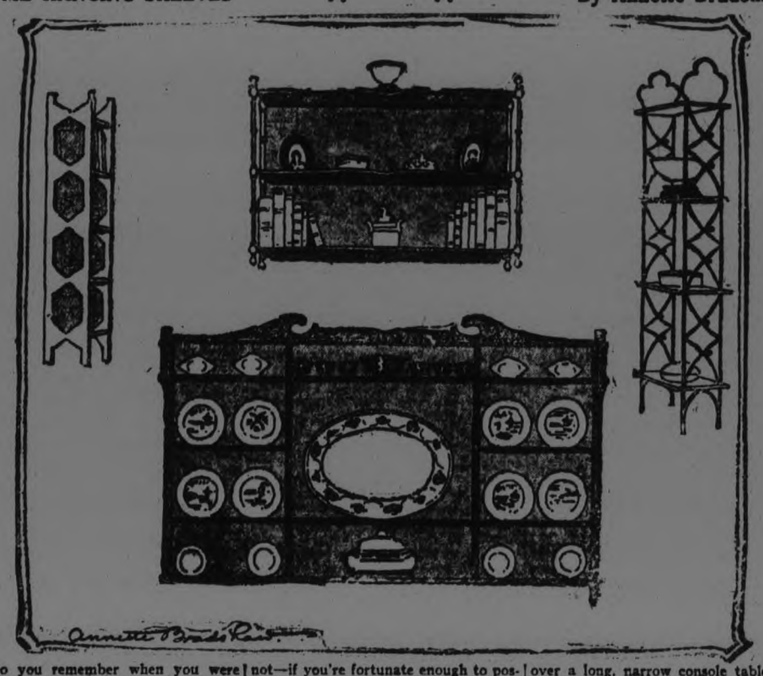
SOME HANGING SHELVES

By Annette Bradshaw



Do you remember when you were a kiddie and used to go to Grandmother's home and were simply fascinated by the quaint hanging shelves, with their quainter bric-a-brac ornaments? And how delighted you were when you could arrange the Dresden china figures and the vases and cups and saucers which constituted the decorations on the "what-not" in the corner of the parlor?

And now that the wheel of fashion has swung around to those days, you can enjoy fixing up your own hanging shelves and arranging your own what-not—if you're fortunate enough to possess one. Drag them down from the attic if you've stored them there. Give them a fresh coat of paint and be the envied of envied among your friends. For they are now THE latest word!

A few which I have seen in my quests among the antique shops are shown above. The little one in the upper left-hand corner is one of a pair. Just the thing to hang in the narrow place each side of the fireplace. These were painted canary yellow with forget-me-not decorations.

The small one in the center was hung over a long, narrow console table. It was most adorable and gay with its colorings of coral and gold.

The one in the right-hand side of the drawing stood in a dark corner and made a light spot with its framework of burnished copper and glass shelves.

The larger set of shelves at the bottom of the drawing was used in a dining room. Hung on the dark side of the room, it made a bright spot with its gay plaque and dishes of Italian ware. The set of bowls were of warm yellow glass, which glowed warmly against the black background of the shelves.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE CHATS ABOUT A CHARMING DAYTIME FROCK.

Yesterday I had an odd request from one of our most discriminating customers. She came in the morning, looking fresh and very determined, and hardly waiting for my greeting said, "I want a very simple afternoon frock that is not a straight-line dress and yet gives that impression. Straight-line dresses are all very well in their way, but I really think they are not artistic."

My mind raced frantically over the stock and I had a sudden inspiration. I summoned Gaby in one breath and said to her in the next, "You mean that the straight-line dress is too unsophisticated?"

"Exactly that. My husband says that they have no imagination and I must find something that will give him quite a different impression."

I smiled and was inwardly pleased at the treat I had in store for her. Gaby came in looking like my idea of the very thing that was wanted.

"My goodness!" said the customer, forgetting to be difficult. "How did you find what I wanted so quickly?"

"Because we haven't another dress in the house that so exactly fits your description. For one thing, this is the new oak shade of brown, and for another the flounce extending all the way around the back is one of our favorite new ideas. I knew you would like it because it gives the slender line without being straight."

Gaby obligingly pirouetted at this moment. "Oh," said the customer, very nicely catching the idea that I hoped she would, "it gives the new back flare that some friends of mine were discussing over the bridge table only yesterday."

"Do you like the deep cream lace in the collars and cuffs," I questioned, privately thinking them perfect, "or would you rather have them ecru crepe of the same material?"

She hesitated, so I rushed on: "Lace does give a richness that can hardly be achieved otherwise, and, in addition to that, lace always gives an effect that is truly feminine."

My customer smiled. "And my husband does love femininity. That little touch of brown velvet ribbon at the throat would hardly look so well with a less dainty material, would it?"

I privately blessed the husband who knew so many fine points about the proper appearance of a really chic woman, so I said, "You will have all the comfort of a simply constructed garment and will have the pleasure of the subtle touches which distinguish severe models from those which knowingly accentuate feminine charm."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens. I went out with a boy who I thought a lot of several times. He broke a date on me and never tried to explain why. I have met him but we have not been talking to each other since. Please tell me how I can get him back?

WONDERING.

WONDERING: Do you really think he is worth getting back? I don't. The sort of young man who will break a date and make no explanation is either trying to get rid of you without telling you so in plain English, or else he thinks you are easy enough to stand any sort of treatment. This doesn't mean that you have to act in an unfriendly way toward him. You can be casually friendly, but let him do the coming, at least, until he makes some explanation. If you are a young girl in your 'teens, you need not confine your attention surely, to one young man, particularly if he disappoints you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl twenty years old and am engaged to a young man whom I expect to marry within the next two months.

I have always liked another young man, and even though I am going to be married to the first young man, the very thought of the second still thrills me to the depths of my soul.

What should I do? Shall I marry the first young man or break off with him and take the chance of marrying the second when he has not even proposed?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: The only solution I can see, Brown Eyes, is for you to have a frank talk with your fiance. Tell him how you feel, and if he agrees that it would be best to break the engagement that would be the wisest thing for you to do. However, make sure first that you do not love him. This might only be a passing fancy for the other man, and surely you must have cared for your fiance or you would not have promised to marry him. However, were I in your place, I should tell my fiance how I felt and leave the decision to him.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

BOOTLEGGING RING HAS BEEN BROKEN

Evidence Was Secured To Convict 27 Men of Conspiracy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. —(Candian Press). — Prohibition officials here claim to-day to have broken up what they describe as "biggest bootlegging ring in the country, an international organization in which a number of Canadians are alleged to have had a part. They declare this ring was permitted to operate for five months while a reziment of Federal officers obtained evidence on which they hope to convict 27 men of conspiracy to violate the dry laws.

The raiders yesterday invaded two office buildings simultaneously in the theatrical district and arrested 13 men. Warrants for 14 more remain to be served. The ring doing business in the guise of real estate firm, operated in Canada and the United States.

IN THE KITCHEN

CONSERVING THE LATE PEACHES.

The following recipes call for the best flavored and most perfect fruit obtainable for their success. Fresh rubbers on the freshly scalded and drained jars insure protection for the conserve. Turn the jars upside down to cool, which always sends the fruit to the top, and tighten the covers when cold.

Peach Jam.

Pare, stone and cut up the peaches, allowing a pint of sugar to each quart of the fruit. Place in a preserve kettle and let melt together until the juice is well started, then heat slowly, and as the mass boils gently stir with a wooden spoon. Skim carefully and cook until a little of the syrup, tried on a cold plate, begins to jell softly. Do not cook too hard or it will not be nice and will have a leathery texture, which is not inviting.

Savory Peaches.

Select choice peaches, ripe but firm, and peel them. Pack the peaches in quart jars, filling each one as full as possible with granulated sugar. Fill and shake them down solid and fill to the very brim. Then put on the rubbers, screw down the tops as tightly as possible. Do the fars up in dark blue paper and store in a very dark, dry place for about three monhts, or until the holidays. The peaches make a cordial syrup for themselves that makes them delightful for serving with ice cream or in a pudding sauce.

French Peach Ice Cream.

Pare, stone and cut fine enough peaches to make a full quart, put into a saucepan with a pint and a half of sugar, melt, skim, and cook for a few minutes; then set to cool. When cold add a quart of heavy cream and freeze. Open the freezer, add a stiffly beaten white of egg and a teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring. Freeze, stand an hour to ripen and serve.

PRESENTATION TO BANDSMAN

Bob Hendry Was Recipient of Present From Caledonian Band.

TO BE MARRIED.

Following the regular practice last evening of the Caledonian Pipe Band, the members, about a dozen in number, adjourned to Robert French's confectionery parlors at 332 George Street, and after lunch was served, a presentation of a silver tea service was made to one of the band members, Robert Hendry, whose marriage to Miss Mabel Northcott of Bewdley takes place next week. The presenation was made by Pipe Major John Smith, and the address read by R. French. Mr. Hendry acknowledged the gift and address in suitable terms. The address follows:

Well, Bob.—It is with pleasure that we have gathered here this evening to express our sentiments toward you and our good wishes for your future welfare as a Benedict.

Occasions such as a wedding are as a rule taken advantage of by one's friends to express their appreciation and friendship and at the same time cement the bonds of friendship still closer.

Your approaching wedding has given the members of the Caledonian Pipe Band the opportunity to express the good-will and high esteem by which we value your friendship.

Our high regard for a good pal has prompted the band to bestow on you this small token by which in the future during your pipe dreams in your new home you may recall the many pleasant hours spent with the lads in the Band. We trust in the future our relations will be more congenial than ever, if that be possible. In closing, let us extend to you, Bob, and to your future wife, the best and warmest wishes of the Band. May your future be happy healthy and prosperous.

Signed on behalf of the Band.

WEDDING BELLS.

SANDERS—TAMBLIN.

A pretty wedding took place at eight o'clock last evening at the home of Mrs. Agnes Tamblin, 56 Victoria avenue, when her granddaughter, Prudence, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Tamblin, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Harold Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Sanders, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. McLeod, pastor of Park street Baptist church, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the bridal party.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. George Strain, of North Monaghan, entered the drawing room, which was decorated with an arch of asters, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. R. Bugg. She wore a pretty gown of poudre blue georgette, heavily beaded, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses. She also wore the gift of the bridegroom, a gold wrist watch.

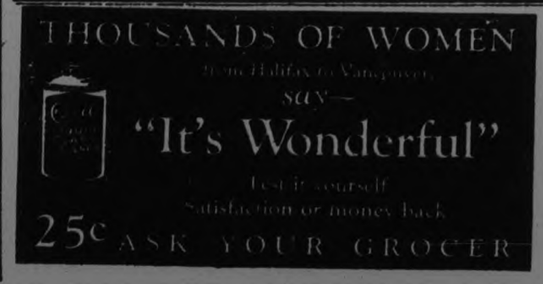
The bridesmaid, Miss Olive Sanders, wore mauve crepe and carried a bouquet of white asters.

Mr. John H. Tamblin acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to about fifty guests. The table, centered with the wedding cake, was arranged with asters, cosmos and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders will reside at 536 Patterson street.

The young people received many useful and beautiful gifts, including a handsome chair from the employees of the Peterboro Milk Products Company, where the bridegroom is employed.



WOOL HAS GIVEN WAY TO SILK IN CLOTHES OF AVERAGE WOMAN

Fairy Princess Once Only One Clothed in Silken Garments.

COTTON GOES, TOO

New Vogue May Have Adverse Effect on Women's Health.

The Fairy Princess in the old nursery tale always wore a silken gown. That was one portion of her costume that never changed. And it was a part that appealed to the childish imagination.

Time was when a small maiden on the way to school wore cotton and wool, just the same as her mother. She had serviceable stockings of cashmere, a good thick petticoat under her small dress and underwear that was purchased for its warmth and its wearing qualities. But not onw. The school girl wears a duplicate of her mothers's costume, and that ,as everyone knows, has its main requisite in its appearance.

Why are women turning more to silk fabrics, both for outer and under wear, and losing interest in the wool that used to keep them warm? It's probably fro the same reason that men and women alike are riding in automobiles, instead of walking, are spending there evenings at the movies rather than at home, and are using electric machines in their homes to do the work that used to be done by hands. It's just another sign of the times, these luxurious times when John Hodge, as well as Launcelot DeVere has a motor for his holiday jaunts a radio that brings him music from far-away lands, electricity for his servant, and the marts of the world at his beck and call.

So Mrs. John Hodge, whether she really can afford it or not, goes in silg, like her husband who, whether he can afford it or not, buys a new motor car every year. It may not be the sort of silk that used to be in vogue for best dresses, the sort that "stood alone," but it is soft, pliable Italian silk that crushes in the fingers and gives such a luxurious feeling to the owner. It is prssibly this feeling that is its strongest attraction for the woman who wears it.

Silk is claimed by its admirers to be just as economical as wool, but of course, it is just the very fine wool that comes high. The woman who sees silk combinations advertised at five and six dollars each will not credit the statement that silk is just as cheap for herselg or her family, and she will remember the comfort of fleecy woolen things on chilly days. One advantage the silk appears to have is that it is very easily laundered.

As for cotton, that is another story. There are many women who wear a heavy grade of cotton undergarment all year round, never changing the weight, but they are in the minority.

Sign of Jazz Age.

This liking for silk undergarments extends even to the youthful members of the family, and is another sign of the "jazz" age. The juniors want silk stockings and they get them. In these days when the youngsters go to formal evening parties and wear formal evening things, with fourteenyear old girls appearing in backless and sleeveless frocks, they want light underthings and they want the best, so they buy silk. "Older women buy wollens still, but the majority of the women and young people want silk," says a purveyor of women's undergarments, who ascribes a falling off in sales also to the fact that many women make their own underwear, finding lengths of washable crepes and dimities very easily run up on the machines.

The sheer blouses that were all the rage some seasons back are blamed by oen observer for the present vogue for inadequate underwear. These blouses were so transparent that it was impossible to wear high-necked or long-sleeved underwear with them and consequently the modern woman cut out the necks and the sleeves and a generous portion of what remained of the scissored garment, so as to allow the bystander to get as much benefit as possible from the openwork blouse. So with the short skirts and the transparent hose and the clinging dresses that allow the wearing of only the thinnest and lightest materials beneath them.

The niroads which nueritis has made of late years on the health of women has its cause, it is claimed, in this wearing of inadequate underthings. The woman of fashion may assert that she is quite comfortable when she dons a sleeveless and neckless, "Opera style" vest or a step in, a pair of bloomers knee-length an elastic belt gossamer stockings and a dress that pauses at the knee, the neck bone and the shoulder line, but the people who come habitually from Missouria assume a doubtful expression and say it can't be done, and that if the ladv persists in this reckless course of paring her attire to the bare essentials, she is going to suffer for it in the long run.

A noted physician has made the assertion that if women will but keep their throats and ankles warm and carefully covered they will be well, but they don't do either of these things. However, some of them are beginning to see light, evidently. "I used to wear sleeveless light underwear, but I'm through," said one woman who purchased twenty five dollars' worth of sensible woolen things in a local store the other day. Probably a touch of early rheumatism or an extra twinge or so of nueritis caused this woman to sit down and think awhile, but it may be a long day before the majority of her sisters go back to long-sleeved and ankle-lengthed garments.

Like so many other vagaries of womankind, this habit of doing with the least possible amount of underwear has its genesis in the demands of fashion. When to be in style, a lady has to face the problem of looking as slim as possible, and to get herself into a dress that is sleeveless and neckless and without much material below the knee, then she begins to think about dispensing with under things. And after all, there was bound to be a revulsion of feeling some time against the old-style outfit, with a heavy dress that was lined and interlined and stiched carefully all along its many gores, with a hem sweeping the dust from the ground, a tight belt that constricted the waist, tight sleeves that sent the blood to the wrists and a boned collar that screwed into the owner's tortured neck.

PIRATES WIN NATIONAL PENNANT AFTER MIGHTY PITCHERS' BATTLE WHILE ST. LOUIS DOWNS GIANTS

Phillies Filled Sacks in Ninth —Double-Play Killed.

BOSTON TOOK TWO

St. Louis Cards Won Double-Header From New York.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—The National League pennant, emblematic of supremacy in the senior baseball circuit was clinched yesterday by the Pittsburgh Pirates. A double chance to win the flag faced the Pirates—a defeat for New York or a victory for Pittsburgh. And both chances were good, for the Giants went down to defeat in St. Louis while the Pirates were winning a thrilling game from Philadelphia, 2 to 1. Only a few thousand fans braved chilly breezes to witness the game this afternoon. It was a mighty struggle between pitchers, with the Pirates holding the advantage up to the ninth inning. Philadelphia put up a game fight. In the final session, the visitors succeeded in crowding the bases with one man out. Huber lifted a fly to short left field. The fleet Wright got under it, and his perfect heave to the plate doubled Durning. The game was won, and the flag was assured Pittsburgh. Score:

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press)—Chicago made a clean sweep of the three game series with Brooklyn yesterday by winning 2 to 1. The Robins' losing streak was extended to ten games. Score:

L. Brown, Cantrell and Taylor; Cooper and Hartnett.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—The remaining 1925 National League pennant hopes of the New York Giants faded out yesterday, when they lost a double-header to the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 0, and 8 to 2. The first defeat automatically clinched the flag for Pittsburgh. Scores:

First Game:

EIGHT SURVIVE.

Duncan Played Remarkable Golf Against Whitcombe on Soggy Course.

MOOR PARK, England, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The eight survivors after the second and third rounds of the professionals' match play tournament here are George Duncan George Cadd, H. C. Jolly and Tom Trapp, of Shirley Park, in the upper half, and Arthur Compston, Abe Mitchell, B. L. Holland and W. B. Smith, of Hadley Wood, in the lower half.

Duncan played brilliant golf over the soggy course today. He defeated C. A. Whitcombe, 7 up and 6 to play. He was four strokes under even fours for the 12 holes played.

That football has reached the stage where its code of rules is adequate and satisfatcory seems to be indicated by the fact that the rule-makers have found it necessary to make no important changes this year.

HAGEN MEETS DIEGEL.

Kerrigan Set Record For Section of Course With 32.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Although much mediocre golf was displayed in second round matches of the professional golf championships at Olympia Fields yesterday, Tom Kerrigan, of New York, set a record of 32 for the first nine of No. 3 course, and with a total of 69 on that links, defeated Dan Williams, of New York. Williams shot a 71, which was second best score of the day.

The defending champion, Walter Hagen, obtained the easiest victory as his opponent, Mike Brady, of New York, took 40 on the out nine of No. 4 course in the morning and 41 on the first half of No. 3, allowing Hagen to win, 7 and 6. Hagen, as a result of his victory yesterday, will clash to-day in the third round with Leo Diegel, of New York, who had to score par over No. 3 course in the afternoon to win from Bobby Cruikshank, of Oklahoma City, 2 and 1.

CRAB INVASION AT SUNSET.

REGLA, Cuba, Sept. 24.—(Associated Press).—Land crabs in great numbers invade this city every evening shortly after sunset, crawling through the streets in the lower section of town in search of scraps of garbage on which to feed. As a result, the affected sections have the appearance of a childless municipality. Authorities are unable to explain their presence.

BORROWED VALISE TO CARRY STAKES

Turfman's Ptolemy Won Race Paying Million Francs.

PAID 6 TO 1

PARIS, Sept. 24. — (Canadian Press).—Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, noted British turfman, had to borrow a valise yesterday to bring back to Paris his winnings, amounting to over one million francs, when his three-year-old Ptolemy won the Gold Cup race at the Maisons Lafitte course. The big black son of Teddy out of Macedonia, which was a favorite for this year's English Derby, came through with a victory which no one except those connected with his stable expected.

As a result he was neglected in the betting and paid 6 to 1. Captain Cohn wagered 200,000 francs, and his winnings were paid him mostly in small bills.

BAN OFFENSIVE FILM TITLES.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—(Associated Press).—Cinema proprietors and film producers have been warned by the central committee of German Film Industries against the employment of obscene or offensive film titles. It is claimed that often such offensive designations are used for harmless films as a sensational medium for attracting a certain type of public.

FEATURE PLAYS

The Pirates' win yesterday which, coupled with New York's double defeat by the Cardinals, assured them of the coveted flag, came only after a spirited pitchers' duel. The final put out was a fast double of a short outfield fly which caught the runner flat-footed at the plate.

Boston nicked Cincinnati for two wins yesterday, placing them within striking distance of fifth place, two meagre points separating them from Brooklyn.

The last encounter ran twelve innings before a decision could be attained.

Ehmke, Boston-American hurler, retired when one of his speedy offerings hit Haney, Detroit third sacker on the head, a slight concussion resulted.

Braxton, Yankee rookie, handed a defeat to the Sox, in which Ruth lent assistance by driving in a quartette of New York runs. His double cleared the bases in the fifth.

The Athletics gave ample proof that they were still in the game when they handed two decisive blows to St. Louis. Home runs were the great scoring factors.

ANNIVERSARY WAS WELL CELEBRATED

Special Services Were Held —Proceeds of Fowl Supper Good.

NORHAM, Sept. 24.—The anniversary services at Mount Olivet United Church on Sunday, September 20, and the fowl supper the following Monday evening were a splendid success. The proceeds of the occasion amounted to almost $100. Rev. E. O. Seymour, of Havelock, who preached twice on Sunday to large congregations was much appreciated. His afternoon address based on the life of Moses was taken from Hebrews, chapter 11 and verses 24 and 25. His evening text was Deut. chapter 32, verses 11 and 12.

The local choir with Mrs. Eldred Cameron at the organ furnished special music for both services. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, house plants and maple branches.

The fowl supper on Monday evening was well patronized by people from Warkworth, Norham, Wooler, Codrington and Orland. Under shelter of the shed tables were spread laden with roast chicken and duck, chicken pie, cold meats, salads, layer cakes, tarts, pies, etc. Then came the following program which was given in the church. TRADITION SHATTERED.

Leipsic University Has Appointed a Professor of Calisthenics.

LEIPSIC, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—The first German professorship for calisthenics has been conferred by the Leipsic University on Dr. Herman Altrock who has been an instructor of gymnastics at the Berlin Stadium. His appointment virtually revolutionizes the time-honored tradition of a thousand years, that universities were solely intended for mental education. For the new professor of calisthenics is not a mere appendix, but a fully accredited member of the faculty.

Attendance figures for the world's series passed the 200,000 mark for the first time in 1912, when a total of 252,237 persons paid to see the eight games between the Giants and the Red Sox.

TROUSERS WILL BE FULL SAY TAILORS

Do Not in Any Way Compare to Oxford Bags.

LONDON, Sept. 24. — (United Press). — "A little on the loose side" is the way fashionable tailors here are making trousers for fall orders.

They are however emphatic in saying that the new styles do not in any way compare with Oxford bags, which having been taken up by London's East Side, are now held in low esteem by Savile Row.

In colors for men's clothes, tans verging on the sand-shades, and blues dull and rich, with a decided green cast are, as they say, "all to the good."

Meanwhile the fashionable tailors of Bond Street and Savile Row are all agog over the action of a rich American in ordering a genuine vicuna lounge suit costing 47 guineas ($235). Real vicuna hair is so expensive that it is sold by the weight, like gold and silver, and should not be confused with vicuna-cloth which is a trade name for a product of wool and Llama's hair.

The vicuna is a South American wild animal which must be killed to obtain its hair. To obtain sufficient material for the suit it was necessary to make a special order for the hair, and then to have it especially woven by a Yorkshire house.

MANY PRIZES FOR PRESTON CHILDREN

Made Trip to Westbrook in Spite of Threatening Weather.

Early Tuesday morning of last week, the three Preston brothers and their little sister, Rhea, started off bravely with their waggon load of livestock followed by their two drivers for the annual school fair, in Westwood. Although the weather did not look very promising they had long looked forward for the fair and during their mid-summer holidays had worked faithfully with their farm pets.

Marvyn carried off first prize in the boys driving contest in a competition of four. He also won first prize for the best trained and halter broken colt; first prize for the best halter broken and trained calf in a competition of five, with his pure bred jersey; second prize for the best lamb, and fourth prize with his pen of chicks, while little Miss Rhea at the age of eight years recieved the honor of carrying off first prize in the girls driving contest. Rhea intended driving her little black shetland pony, "Jack", but when she saw what she had to compete with she changed and drove her brother's driver, "Tony" and handled him like a girl twice her age, cutting the figure eight and backing straight between the judges. She also received second on her sweet corn in the hall.

THIRD GAME HERE IF IT IS NEEDED

Kingston and Oslers Play Off in Peterboro if Ponies Win To-day.

In the event of Kingston beating the Oslers to-day in the second game of the O. B. A. A. Senior play off and thus tieing up the series, the third game will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday. Mr. A. C. Kimmel of Peterborough, the O. B. A. A. convenor for this district was responsible for having Peterborough selected for the play off, should one be necessary, despite keen opposition from Belleville and Oshawa.

SPORT GOSSIP

"The cool days should have the effect on ball players of keeping them near their own firesides in the town in which they now reside but it is acting just the contrary and if one believes the reports going around the C.O.B.L. there will be many strange faces on the different teams when they line up for the first game on or about the 24th of May. Toots Ward, the catcher and third baseman of the Oshawa team, is going back to where he learned baseball, Peterboro, but the Lift Lock crew is getting no prize. He was a fair hitter this year because there was no pitching, and his fielding at no time was anything to write home about. Ansaldo, the boy who was with Peterboro two years ago, will again cavort around short, and to say the least he was a sweet ball player. He could hit and field, and above all he knew baseball, and with the fans around the circuit he was very popular. Lefty Lennox is slated to take Frankie Whitehouse's place in the Northern city, as Frankie has got the big head and thinks he can take Al. Thoma' job or fill his shoes down in Baltimore. Mr. Whitehouse has a long way to go yet to be as good as Jack Williams was, and he was not ready for the big time even when he went, and to-day he is back pitching semi-pro ball in Niagara Falls. Oshawa is very liable to drop baseball next year if the old gang is still in charge but from a reliable source it has been learned that a new association will be formed in the Motor City with a brand new set of officers. Chuck Reeves, the manager, bought all the rule books that could be found in Oshawa and there was a lot he didn't know when the season closed. As for Belleville there will be many changes with sufficient new blood added to make all the other entrants step to town. Two juni s of last year are ready, Latchford and Palmer, and there will be a couple of pitchers and an infielder added to the roster. Again it looks like a big year in the C.O.B.L.

Speculations were rife in Western Ontario as to where Dutch Keeling, former Owen Sound star, and Ted Graham of the Stratford Indians, would hang their hats for the winter game of hockey, but they were all set at rest yesterday when both boys registered at the Western University of London and will be available for the senior O.H.A. team this year. Stratford was sure that the two would be in the western town but the action of yesterday set all the rumors at rest. London will have a very smart team this winter with Moore in goal, Starking, Graham, Walkem and Yip Foster on the defence and Lowery, McPherson, Leamy and Keeling forwards.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The idea of pivoting becomes such an all-important factor with many golfers that they easily fall into the habit of starting the club away from the ball with a pivot — that is, by immediately twisting the entire body to the right. The club is started away with the hands. The body doesn't push it away. When the start of the back swing is with a twist of the body it indicates that all sense of control of the club in the hands is lost. The pivot should develop naturally, and the chances are there is less of it than the player thinks who is so concerned about getting it. Start the club in the hands—keep it in the hands and then, as the hands sweep it back, the shoulders will naturally turn with it. The turning will be mostly above the waist, where it belongs, if the head is held still. The shoulders turn—away from the ball, not down toward the ground—until the left shoulder at the top of the back swing, points to the ball.

OBITUARY.

HARILAOS ECONOMOPOULOS.

Mrs. Louis Yeotes, 205 Brock Street, received a cable on Tuesday, advising her of the sudden death of her father, Colonel Harilaos Economopoulos, at the age of sixty-five years. The late Colonel Economopoulos was a colonel in the Greek Army, and had been a soldier from his eighteenth year. He was active in the Turco-Greco War of 1897, in the Balkan troubles in 1912, when he was appointed a commissioner by the Greek Government to investigate irregularities in the disposition of army funds, and also in the Great War.

Besides Mrs. Yeotes, who has many friends in the city, the deceased is survived by a son and daughter in Toronto, both of whom resided for some time in Peterboro, and his wife and another son and daughter in Tripolis, near Corinth, the residence of the deceased, where the funeral, attended by many officers high in command in the Greek forces, was held.

MARION SHEVLIN.

The death occurred at ten o'clock on evening at her home, of Marion Shevlin, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Shevlin, 229 King Street. The deceased, who was thirty-three years of age, had been ill for many years. The death of her brother, Reginald, three months ago, was a severe blow to a constitution weakened by disease, and she passed away very quietly last night, after a long period of suffering, borne with uncomplaining fortitude and patience.

Survivors are her sorrowing parents, one brother, John Alphonsus, and five sisters, Mrs. W. J. O'Brien, Cecile and Lilyan of Toronto, Norah and Antoinette at home.

The funeral will be held to-morrow (Friday) morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, where the funeral Mass will be said at nine o'clock, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

With the nomination last night of E. A. Peck to carry the Conservative banner, and the naming by the Liberals to-night of their choice, the lists are cleared for the political jousts. The campaign will be under way immediately, and in fact both parties are well organized in city and country.

VOTERS MUST ENROLL.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

LILLIAN GISH IN "ROMOLA" COMING HERE NEXT WEEK.

Lillian Gish will be seen at the Capitol Theatre next week in her latest picture, "Romola," a film version of the famous novel by George Eliot. It is a Henry King production for Inspiration, and is released through Metro-Goldwyn.

Dorothy Gish plays one of the principal roles, it being the first picture in which the two sisters have appeared together since "Orphans of the Storm." Others in the cast include Ronald Colman, who played opposite the star in "The White Sister," William H. Powell, Charles Lane, and Herbert Grimwood, besides a number of distinguished Italian actors. The picture was made at Florence, Italy, the actual locale of the story.

TEARLE STARS WITH BARBARA LA MARR.

Supported By Notable Cast in "The Heart of a Siren."

Another musical comedy favorite has forsaken the footlights for the screen. He is Clifton Webb who, until recently, was one of Broadway's most popular comedians.

Webb has an important role in "The Heart of a Siren," in which Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle are co-featured. First National will present the picture at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

Prior to his entry into motion pictures, Webb appeared in support of Ina Claire in "Polly With a Past," Francine Larrimore in "Parasites" and in other stage plays both on Broadway and in London and Paris.

His initial picture experience was with Richard Barthelmess in "New Toys."

"The Heart of a Siren" is an adaptation from the stage success, "Hail and Farewell," in which Florence Reed starred. It was produced by Sawyer-Lubin under direction of Phil Rosen.

AT THE ROYAL.

Francois and his Wonder Show at the Royal To-night, and every Matinee and Night this week.

The much advertised Francois, the mysterius Parisian of blindfold drive fame will be at the Royal to-day and the rest of this week with his mystery show.

Coming highly recommended from a tour in the U. S., this is his second engagement in Canada.

He has surrounded himself with a company of clever performers.

His own exhibition of mind reading and telepathy will baffle all beholders. Resista, a 75 pound little lady, defies all the strongest men to lift her. Miss Braithwaite, dramatic soprano, James Esplin, Scotch comedian, and Miss Decker, hypnotic demonstration. The prices for this engagement will be matinees, 10 and 25c; evenings, 25 and 35c.

"ROARING ADVENTURE."

Jack Hoxie's Next Universal Western Vehicle.

"A Roaring Adventure" is coming to the Royal Theatre to-day with dashing Jack Hoxie as star. The picture is a Universal Western and is said to live up to its title with a vengeance.

Hoxie will be seen in a new role, that of an Easterner in the West, and instead of the big hat, chaps and other regalia of the cowboy, will wear a cap, riding breeches and puttees, but that does not interfere with his riding nor with his ability to fight his way out of tight places.

"A Roaring Adventure" tells a thrilling story of the efforts to break up a band of cattle rustlers. Hoxie, as Duffy Burns son of the owner of a big ranch, comes to visit his father and learns that things are far from being as they should be. He determines to get a job on the ranch where he is not known, and solve the mystery.

From then on romance and adventure are his portion and he escapes many perils before the mystery is solved and the cattle rustlers brought to justice.

There are several big scenes, including a desperate fight between the cattle rustlers and a sheriff's posse. There is also a sensational rescue of a girl from the back of a run-a-way horse.

The supporting cast includes Mary McAllister, Marin Sais, Francis Ford, J. Gordon Russell, Jack Pratt and Margaret Smith, a tiny child, who makes a success of her first appearance on the screen.

Clifford Smith, who has directed Hoxie in all his recent pictures, took the company to a picturesque location in the Sierra Nevada Mountains to make this one.

AT THE GRAND

LOVELY "BLOSSOM TIME" COMING

There is a very rare treat in store for playgoers of this city in the announcement that the Messrs. Shubert will present the enchanting operetta "Blossom Time," at the Grand Opera House, October 3rd, direct from its remarkable triumphs in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia.

The story of "Blossom Time" deals with the love of Franz Schubert. The scenes are laid in Old Vienna and the story is told in three acts. The original theme of this story was discovered in a half-fiction and half-biological life of Schubert, which was published shortly after his death. This material was worked over into a musical comedy by Willner and Reichert. Miss Dorothy Donnelly has entirely re-written the Viennese book and has supplied a new set of lyrics. It is altogether a charming love story that has been used in this incident of Schubert's life in Old Vienna.

Schubert is already famous, but at the time is sadly in need of food and his friends watch over him that they may supply this deficiency when it occurs. The first act occurs at an outdoor restaurant in the famous Prater Park in May, 1826. At this restaurant there gathers three little maids: Mitzi, Fritzi and Kitzi. They are famous over Vienna for their prettiness and charm. Schubert falls in love with Mitzi. There is some doubt as to the girl's love; whether it is real love or admiration for the composer's great abilities. Schubert has many other friends, the Baron von Schober, a prima donna named Bellebrun and various other people who enter his life. The prima donna thinks Franz Schober has fallen in love with Mitzi and she hopes to separate them. She gives a very bad report of the character of "P.S." as she refers to the Baron, and whom Mitzi takes to be her admirer, Franz Schubert. Schober actually falls in love with Mitzi and his love is reciprocated. She sings him a song that Schubert has dedicated to her. Poor Schubert is too good a fellow to resent his friend's luck and he loves Mitzi too much not to rejoice in her happiness, and so takes refuge in his music.

YOUNG ADAMS COMPANY SCORE HEAVILY.

Closing Night.

Last night was the closing of a most successful engagement by the popular Yong Adams Company, Play Vaudeville and Players all making a big hit with the large audience. Mr. Young was loudly applauded when he announced the possibility of a return engagement, which will be some time in November, following closely on the heels of the election, when new plays will be given. The Young Adams Company have made a most favorable impression in Peterboro, and will no doubt be well patronized on their return.

AT THE REGENT

THOMPSON BACK AFTER BREAKING LEG, IN THAT DEVIL QUEMADO.

A new picture starring Fred Thompson is enough to draw crowds to any movie palace; and the Regent Theatre is sure to have packed houses on Thursday when "That Devil Quemado" is shown for the first time locally. The production is the first which this popular western star has made since he broke his leg doing a leap to the back of a wheel horse on a hurtling stage coach some months ago, and his return to the screen will be welcomed by tens of thousands of Thompson fans. Silver King, his gorgeous horse plays a prominent part in "That Devil Quemado;" indeed his role is said to be the most exciting that this equine luminary has ever played. Del Andrews directed the production. Gloria Hope plays the leading role delightfully. All of the cast, which includes Nola Luxford, Albert Priscoe, Bryon Douglas, Joseph Bell, Alan Roscoe, and Robert Cantiero, are excellent.

Back on the screen after a long enforced layoff due to a broken leg which he sustained in one of his daring stunts before the camera, Fred Thompson appears in his new picture, "That Devil Quemado," at the Regent Theatre on Thursday, when the production begins a three days' engagement. The star and his four-legged co-star, Silver King, are the outstanding features of this border story by Marvin Wilhite, and their popularity can but be increased by the production; for both are cast in roles articularly suited to their capabilities. "Quemado" is a picturesque devil-may-care cavalier who will dash into every feminine heart just as he dashes in and out of the rapid-fire situations of this thrilling tale. Gloria Hope in the leading feminine role, is a delightfully fiery and aristocratic heroine and the direction of the picture shows a skilled hand which is not surprising when it is known that Del Andrews, who whipped "The Galloping Fish" as well as "The Hottentot" into shape, was behind the megaphone. Nola Luxford, Alan Roscoe, Albert Priscoe, Byron Douglas, Joseph Bell and Robert Cantiere are the other principals in the picture.

WEDDING BELLS.

DUNN—SHEA.

Our Lady of Lourdes Church was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning when Florence, daughter of the late Michael and Mrs. Maria Shea, became the bride of Percy A. Dunn, son of Mr. Francis J. Dunn. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. Dollard, while at the offertory of the Mass and during the signing of the register, Mr. Joseph O'Meara sang. Miss Phyllis Leatherdale was at the organ. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Michael J. Shea of Sudbury, wore a smart costume of blonde crepe with velvet hat to match and shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Celia Chevlin, as bridesmaid, was in orchid crepe with black picture hat and carried Columbia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Reginald Meade. Following the ceremony the wedding breakfast took place at the home of Mrs. J. D. O'Brien, 1019 Mount Pleasant Road. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dunn left on a honeymoon trip to Buffalo, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, returning to Toronto by way of Montreal. They will made their new home at 14 Parkview Avenue.—Toronto Globe.

HAMILTON—DODSON

A quiet but pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in St. John's Church at 10.30 this morning, when Doris eldest daughter of Mr. George Dodson, became the bride of Mr. Jack Hamilton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hamilton. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, vicar of the church.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, looked charming in an ensemble suit of one of the new shades of navy blue. She wore a pansy purple hat with a peasant blouse and stockings to match with black suede shoes. She also wore the groom's gift, which was a gray squirrel choker and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Miss Marjorie Dodson, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a rust-colored coat which was fur trimmed. She also wore a pansy purple hat with stockings to match. The gift to the bridesmaid from the groom was a pansy purple silk scarf. She carried a bouquet of carnations and asters. Mr. George Panter, a cousin of the groom, was best man. His gift from the groom was a set of gold cuff-links. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton left on the noon train for Detroit and Toronto. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough. They received many beautiful and useful gifts from their friends.

WILLIAMS—MINIGGLO.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Wednesday morning, when Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Minicglo of North Monaghan, became the bride of Thomas Williams, of Ruddlish, Stockport, England. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. O'Brien.

The bride wore a pretty gown of French blue with cream lace and corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Attendance was Miss Mary Ritchie and Mr. A. Williams.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to the bridal party at the home of Mrs. Thorpe on Rose Avenue. The table, presided over by Mrs. Pickle, of Brookwood Avenue, was decorated with asters.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who will reside at 118 Adaline Avenue, received many beautiful gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a bar pin, to the bridesmaid a gold bangle, and to the best man a fountain pen.

Varied Trend In Prices With Many Shares Sold

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—With transactions totalling 102,165 shares, trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was active this morning. Argonaut, under heavy sales, declined 2¾ points to 23, and Hattie Preferred also dropped fractionally to 3 3-4. Wright Hargreaves was 15 points higher at 500, and Lake Shore also advanced 10 points to 700. Hollinger was 15 points higher at 15.35, and Premier and Keeley each declined four points to 230 and 154 respectively. Teck Hughes was stronger at 188, an advance of two points, with Castle Trethewey and Capital one point higher at 115 and 31 respectively. Kirkland Lake and Vipond declined one point to 37¼ and 117 respectively. McKinley Darragh was fractionally lower at 19 3-4.

December Wheat Under 1.46 With Other Grains Weak

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—All future deliveries of wheat dropped to below $1.50 a bushel today, with December under $1.45 for the first time in many weeks. There was much selling out to stop losses on part of holders, and as a rule the commission houses were also on the selling side. Selling was largely based on continued piling up of supplies in Canada and on apparent indifference of European buyers. Chicago opening prices, 1-4c to 1 1-8c lower, December 146 1-4 to 146 3-4, and May 149 7-8 to 150 1-4, were followed by an additional affl that took December down to 145 1-2 and May 146 1-4.

Corn, oats and rye each established a new all around low price record for the season. Only scattered buying of any of the three cereals was in evidence. After opening unchange to 1 1-2c lower, December 79 to 79 3-8, the corn market suffered a general decline, December touching 78 5-8.

Oats started at 1-8c off to a shade advance, December 40 to 40 1-8 Later, all months showed considerable losses. Despite an advance in hog values, the provision market was responsive to the weakness of grain.

Wide List In Toronto But Weak Tone Evident

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—A wide list was dealt in on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with trading fairly heavy, but a weak tone was again in evidence. Mackay issues continued their recession, Common dropping 2 and Preferred 2 1-4 points. Canadian Canners Common eased a quarter, and Preferred a point, and Canada Bread joined the weaker side losing 3-8. Banks showed some recovery, Imperial advancing 1 at 196, and Dominion 1-8, and Smelters gain 3-8. Brazilian eased 1-8, but British Columbia Fishing strengthened by that fraction.

General Course Of Prices Down On New York Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. Canadian Press. — Selling pressure, inspired by indications of a heavily overbought conditions in many industrials and fears of an increase in the New York Federal Reserve re-discount rate at to-day's meeting of the Board of Governors, turned the general course of prices reactionary in today's stock market.

Trading showed a marked expansion in volume; total sales for the first three hours running close to 1 1-4 million shares. Rails offered much better resistance to pressure with independent strength cropping out in a few issues, notably New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Norfolk and Western, the first named crossing 124 in volume, and the last two attaining new peak prices for the year at 109 3-8 and 141 respectively. Progressive lowering of the call money rate to 4 1-4 per cent. temorarily check'd the waves of selling, but offerings in creased in the early afternoon, General Electric extending its loss to 8 1-2 points; American Can breaking 7 to 278 1-2, and International Telephone, U. Cast Iron Pipe, International Harvester and a few others sagging to nearly five points.

Hon. G. N. Gordon Acclaimed As the Liberal Candidate For West Peterboro Riding

PREVIOUS TRIUMPHS ARE RECALLED.

R. R. Hall Contrasts Achievements of Present Administration With "Dried Bones" of Mr. Meighen's Following—Candidate Tells His Stand on National Questions.

In an atmosphere of certainty and palpable satisfaction that left no room for doubt or speculation, the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., Minister of Immigration and Colonization, Peterborough's first member of the Federal executive and Cabinet Council, was unanimously accorded the nomination of the Liberals of the constituency at their convention in the G.W.V.A. Hall last night.

The crowded auditorium represented not only the urban electors but also the rural voters from nearby townships. It was the first meeting of the party and its member who had brought to the Liberal Association of Peterboro and to the riding as a whole the first portfolio in any Government of the Dominion, and the Hon. Mr. Gordon was enthusiastically acclaimed when he arose to accept the nomination conveyed to him by the veteran president of the party for more than twenty years, Mr. John J. Hartley. With them on the platform was Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P., who proposed Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. John Dewart. No other name was suggested, and apparently none was even contemplated by any person in the audience. The Liberals were obviously more than satisfied to offer their "ace" to the electors of the new riding of Peterborough.

And the manifest anticipation of this issue of the convention curtailed the ordinary business to unusual brevity and dispatch. The only other feature was the adoption of the following resolution of confidence in Premier King and his Government:

Moved by Mr. J. J. Duffus; seconded by Mr. Bert Byers:

That this convention assembled desires to most heartily express its confidence in Prime Minister Mackenzie King, and his Government and in their administration of the affairs of this country, and expresses its appreciation of the business-like administration it has given to the affairs of the country, at a time when there was world-wide deflation of values, and world-wide depression in business.

That the favorable trade balance in favor of Canada of $257,000,000 in the last year of exports over imports and the value of the Canadian dollar above par, are splendid indications of the recovery of Canada under the present administration.

That we most heartily pledge ourselves to stand behind and maintain the Liberal party in power, which we believe will be in the interests of Canada, and will speedily improve conditions as time goes by.

The proceedings were varied by vocal selections by Mrs. George King and Miss E. McManus.

President Hartley's Address.

J. J. Hartley referred to the nomination of Mr. Gordon by the Liberal Association as their candidate in previous elections. He asked the meeting to take cognisance of the handicaps under which the government had labored. There were three parties in the House of Commons and the government majority was but one over all parties. But Mr. K. was a man of great ability and great knowledge and had managed to run the country for four years. They could understand how hard it was to carry on with such conditions and Mr. King had found he had to come to the country.

Mr. Gordon had not been many months in Parliament until the Prime Minister made him Deputy Speaker, and a short time ago appointed him to the Ministry of Immigration, one of the most important posts in the Cabinet. This showed that G. N. Gordon meant something. During the next four years Mr. Gordon would show them that they had made no mistake in making him member for West Peterborough.

On the meeting being thrown open for nominations, R. R. Hall put forward the name of the Hon. G. N. Gordon. J. A. Dewart seconded.

No other name was put forward, and the nominations were closed.

R. R. Hall's Speech.

R. R. Hall referred to the by-election in 1921 caused by the resignation of Mr. Burnham, on account of disagreement with Mr. Meighen's policy. The speaker said he had at that time the pleasure of nominating Mr. G. N. Gordon as the Liberal candidate. The contest that followed was one of the most interesting for many years, and attracted attention all over the Dominion. It seemed as if Mr. Meighen was then on trial before a jury of the whole people. Mr. Gordon carried the Liberal colors to a victorious close. At the general election in the same year Mr. Gordon was again made the standard bearer of the Liberals of West Peterborough, and again he carried the colours to a victorious close. Mr. King thought so highly of him that he made him Deputy Speaker. He had rendered excellent service to the Government and was chosen to be Minister of Immigration and Colonization. He congratulated Mr. Gordon on his honor.

Mr. Hall also congratulated Mr. Hartley on the fact that he had been president of the Liberal Association for 21 years. "Governments come, governments go, and governmen ers remain (as the King government will remain) but Mr. Hartley goes on forever."

There was one thing certain, said Mr. Hall, vast numbers believed the Dominion to be so overcome with debt that it would never be able to pay off that debt; and the people would never be able to live in the comfort of former days. There were those who took the despondent view. Certainly a debt of two billion dollars called for all the determination and hope that was exhibited by their forefathers who hewed down the forests and made the welkin ring with the sound of the axe.

Britain in 1817.

To those who were disposed to educate themselves in crooking, he recalled the example of Great Britain after the Napoleonic wars. At the conclusion of those wars, Great Britain found herself loaded with a debt of 850 millions, which, with her smaller population of that time was almost equal to the per head debt of Canada to-day with her nine million people. Great Britain approached this enormous debt with courage and determination. With what result? In a short numb r of years she became the leader of the worlds indus-

W. JAMIESON IS DEAD IN BED WHEN CALLED TO BREAKFAST IN CHARLOTTE STREET HOUSE

Penitentiary Shark Is Flirting Through Bars

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25. —(Special by United Press).— Charles Hanson, (penitentiary shark) asked for a parole today. Some time ago J. M. Wagner, 309 North Glover Street, charged that Hanson had struck up a flirtation with his wife by waving from his prison window. The affair had caused her to leave him, he said. Commissioner Parrish will hear Hanson's plea to-morrow.

Mrs. Adam Davidson Finds Him in Postion He Lay Last Night.

CORONER INQUIRES.

Nail Driven Into His Head Made Him Subject to Spells.

William Jamieson was this morning found dead in his bed at the home of Adam Davidson, 169 Charlotte Street, where he boarded. Mrs. Davidson looked in the door of his bedroom [illegible] to have breakfast ready after that. This morning, Jamieson who was usually down early, didn't appear and Mrs. Davidson went to call him and found him lying dead in the same position as her husband had seen him last night. Dr. Clark was called and Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young investigated the death and decided that Mr. Jamieson had died from natural causes.

Mr. Jamieson was a plasterer by trade. Some years ago he had a nail driven into his head while working for W. R. J. MacDonald. Since that time he had been subject to sudden bad spells, both before and after an operation performed in Kingston for his relief. Whether his accident had any bearing on his death has not yet been ascertained.

The deceased had a large family but the whereabouts of only a few of them is known at present. A daughter, Mrs. Walter Schultz, in Detroit, has been notified. Two sons, Carl and Stanley are in Dayton, Ohio; another son, Joseph, is thought to be in Northern Ontario.

TWO DROWNED OFF STEAMER

Fireman and Cook Lost in St. Lawrence River at Midnight.

BODIES FOUND.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press).— Frank Jackson, 28, fireman on the steamer Robert M. Thompson of the Geo. Hall Corporation, and Phillip Henry, aged 25, second cook on the same vessel, both belonging to Prescott, Ont., were drowned at midnight in the St. Lawrence river, near the lower Dersted at Ogdensburg, N. Y. Jackson and Henry apparently were returning to the boat when they met their deaths. It is believed that they were making their way up a ladder to the deck of the craft when one missed his footing and carried the other into the water. The cries of the men were heard by Henry Clarkson, a watchman on the steamer who roused the members of the crew who tried to locate the men in the water. With the aid of grappling hooks, the bodies were brought to the surface after nearly an hour's search.

DIES AS RESULT RAILWAY CRASH

Alan Hunt, of Thorold, Drove Truck That Collided With Train.

THOROLD, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Another crossing accident occurred in Thorold yesterday afternoon, in which Alan Hunt, partner in the firm of Martin and Hunt, contractors, of Thorold, died after having had his leg taken off below the knee and having suffered other injuries, as the result of a collision with an N. S. & T. freight.

Mr. Hunt was driving a truck loaded with gravel, and was accompanied by Norman and Tony Johnson, both of Thorold. On approaching the N. S. and T. crossing on the Welland Gardeby at Centre Street, Hunt failed to notice the approaching freight train owing to a parked car, but everything on each side of the crossing, and the engine of the freight struck the truck completely demolishing it. Norman Johnson had time to jump clear and Tony Johnson was hurled to the ground, one of his legs being broken. Hunt was a married man.

BLUES AND REDS END HOSTILITIES

Presumed That Physical Difficulties Halted the Manoeuvres.

MANY GREEN MEN.

LONDON, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press). — The battle between the Blue and Red armies with London as the objective ended abruptly last evening, to the surprise of those who have been entertained to follow the manoeuvres and the plight of the belea guered Tommies. Latest reports say that the attack of General Chetwodes Blue forces, who were defending London, fell out of schedule yesterday, and that when they resumed with General "Jo Boy's" invading Red troops holding a strong line.

The manoeuvres began at dawn on Tuesday, and instead of waiting for the invasion, the defending army, occupying wide, shooting line, moved out, owing to the favorable condition of the entire area for open warfare, the result of a dry September. The depths and direction of the movements of the various armies could not be ascertained, but it is presumed that the manoeuvres were brought to a close a few hours ahead of time by the physical difficulties of the troops, who, it is said, were green men.

Fourteen women who disobeyed the military law were sent to the dungeons for three and [illegible] days.

FIND DEAD MAN MURDER VICTIM AS CARS CRASH

Sedan and Taxi Collide in New York—Body in Wreck.

SHOT IN HEAD.

Prayer Book and $1,430 in Pockets of Clothing on Body.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—The collision of a sedan and a taxicab on Upper East Side today resulted in the discovery of a man's body in the sedan which was deserted by three occupants after the crash. The dead man had been shot through the head. The police believed that the three men in the sedan were taking the body to East River with the intention of sinking it to conceal the murder. A Catholic prayer book and $1,430 were found in the dead man's pockets. The police started an investigation to determine whether the killing was the result of gang warfare.

CHARGED WITH SLAYING

Following the discovery of a woman's body in a trunk in the basement of Hotel Lafayette, Brooklyn, Police Detective Sergeant Joseph Officer, left, and Detective Sergeant Thomas Wyckoff (not pictured) yesterday arrested Mrs. Mary Ann Hoffman, 45, on a charge of murder in connection with the death of

FUND TO REPAIR ST. PAUL'S MET GREAT RESPONSE

Almost Double the Amount Needed Has Been Received.

FROM MANY PLACES

Yukon and Australia Are Among Postmarks on Contributions

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Thanks to a heavy response from all parts of the world, which resulted in contributions continuing long after the time had officially elapsed, the funds for restoration of St. Paul's Cathedral has now reached the high mark of a quarter of a million sterling. The Times announces: For weeks past a small but persistent aftermath of contributions to the Fund for the Preservation of St. Paul's has continued, and at the end of August the grand total of subscriptions received since the appeal was launched in January amounts to a quarter of a million pounds.

A quarter of a million is nearly twice as much as the Dean and Chapter found it their duty to ask for at the beginning of the year; for their Commission of experts, who had taken over three years to consider the problem, put the required amount of £120,000 or £140,000. The appeal had not been before the public longer than a fortnight when, on St. Paul's Day, the Fund handsomely exceeded the greater of these two sums. It was evident, however, that the crowning day in response to the appeal would certainly not be the limit to which money would be collected, and from then until now contributions have flowed in.

"The distance from which some of the latest contributions have come are as typical as any of the far places in the Globe over which St. Paul's casts its glamour," says the Times. One cheque hails from Yukon, another from Ballarat, another from Geelong and a fourth from the Diocese of Christ church, New Zealand. Nothing could have better illustrated the unity of the English race than their loyalty to the Cathedral Church of the mother city of the Empire.

"It is not to be supposed that all who have given to its support have seen St. Paul's with their own eyes; but its name and fame and shape are a common possession. It is the first building which newcomers to London desire to visit, as the crowds daily to be found in the nave and crypt prove. To have seen St. Paul now, in the days of its abbreviated glory, will no doubt be a cherished memory to many, and an additional source of pleasure when the time comes for the last scaffolding and barrier to be cleared away and for the entire structure to be pronounced safe and secure again.

"It stands to reason that whatever the grouting costs, much expenditure will have to be incurred over incidentals of various kinds before everything in the Cathedral can be restored and put back in its place as it should be. The recognition of this need seems to be implied by the excess of the donations over the minimum; every one who has given appears to have thought that the work of restoration should not be done, but done thoroughly. Meanwhile the operations made possible by the Funds are proceeding. The noise caused by them in the building is not wholly ungrateful to the ear, nor would remote supporters of the Cathedral in Yukon and New Zealand find it harsh if it could be conveyed to them by wireless transmission."

STRANGE FATE OF HOUSE IN LONDON

Was Suddenly Abandoned by Owner About Twelve Years Ago.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press Despatch). — A large house in Kensington is enduring a fate which is somewhat reminiscent of that which befell Satis House in Dicken's "Great Expectations." Twelve years ago this house No. 1 Hyde Park Terrace—was suddenly abandoned by its owner. Throughout this period the local taxes, amounting to something like £200 a year, have been paid through a City Bank on behalf of the owner, Mrs. Janette Oliver Vetch, who is believed to be a wealthy widow, living abroad. No servants have entered the place since its was abandoned, and the last visit of the owner took place six years ago and only lasted a few minutes. Although the mansion has fallen into disrepair it is said to be neither insanitary nor dangerous. Therefore no action is likely to be taken at present. In its present condition the house attracts the attention of people passing along Kensington road. The blinds have not been lowered, but the dust of many years on the windows almost conceal the damage which is being caused to uncovered furniture and decorations.

What caused the abandonment of the house no one is able to say. Apparently the occupants left in some haste, as it is said the remains of a meal, now covered with mould, are spread on the table in what was probably the drawing-room. No ghost legend attaches to the mansion, and there has never been any report of a burglary.

The present year is of special interest to printers and booklovers, as it marks the four hundredth anniversary of the first book printed in the English language.

WOULD STOP HIM

If the secretary for home affairs, Sir Walter Joynson-Hicks, had the power to prevent Shapurji Saklatvala, the Communist member of the British House of Commons, from making the trip to the United States and Canada he would not hesitate a moment, the Daily Graphic quotes the minister as saying in an interview.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

HON. G. N. GORDON ACCLAIMED CANDIDATE

ers who say we have no future."

Great wars had a devasting influence. Take the American civil war. The largest armies then known were placed in the field. The American dollar as Mr. Hartley remembered, dropped to 40 cents "(37 1-2 cents," ejaculated Mr. Hartley). The Canadian dollar had never fallen below 80 cents. In a few years the United States were able to write prosperity everywhere. He wanted to say to such poor souls as Mr. Meighen and those who sorrowed with him: "Men are not to be trusted whose bones are dry and whose souls are lost."

Signs of Revival.

Mr. Hall quoted figures showing the increase of the favorable trade balance of the country since the King government had assumed office, until in the last fiscal year the favorable balance had amounted to 264 million dollars. If Mr. King remained long enough in office goodness knows what the favorable balances would be. They had millions of acres of fertile land in the west to be [illegible]. Last year Ontario's production of gold was 25 million dollars. This year it would be in the neighborhood of 34 million dollars. The vast sources of wealth were not yet touched; much of our resources were still to be developed. The burden was not so great but that it would pass away in time, and the people would say "I have had a terrible dream, and that poor Mr. Meighen was the chief figure among the ghosts and spectres that surrounded me!" (Laughter.)

As to the National debt, no party was to blame for its beginning, but all parties could help to bring about a better state of affairs. For the first time in ten years the Dominion of Canada showed a surplus and that surplus was the result of the course adopted by Mackenzie King. Canada was now making reductions in taxation. True the reductions were light, but at the same time they were real. They saved 26 millions in taxes, and still showed a surplus of $4,816,000 for the year.

If taxation was being reduced it was a wise thing to leave well alone, and let Mr. King continue the reductions which would enable them to take advantage of the money markets of Great Britain and the United States.

National Railways.

Then there was the Canadian National Railways question. The railways were taken over by the Conservatives and it was found necessary to consolidate the various railway enterprises into one management. Sir Henry Thornton was appointed general manager. These lines were operated at a deficit in the year ending 1921 of 11,530,000 dollars. In 1922 after the Liberals had been on the job for a year this deficit was wiped out and a surplus remained. In 1923 this surplus stood at 20,432,000 dollars, and in 1924 at 17,742,000 dollars. The estimated surplus for this year was 30 millions. With these signs of improvement there was reason to hope that the lines would become an asset instead of a liability in days to come.

War Expenditure.

During the war period those in charge of the nation's money lost sight entirely of the real value of money. Ministers went to bed thinking in millions. They lived millions, and dreamed millions; and in this way the people's hard earned money was spent. In 1921, the last year of Mr. Meighen's government the amount collected in taxes was 424 millions. In 1922, under Mr. King, this was reduced to 434 millions; in 193 to 370 millions, and last year to 350 million.

Good Time Coming.

If Canada could pare down expenditure and still have increased trade, she was giving signs of revival. With a continued improvement there would be increased work for all, not only for those here, but also for those who are coming from other countries to assist in developing the national resources. With a government at its head, not a single member of which, he was proud to say, had ever been touched by the breath of scandal, he could look forward during the next four years to a greater time than had ever been experienced.

The secretary of the Liberal Association, Mr. J. J. Duffus, announced a meeting of Liberal ladies in the Liberal Hall on Tuesday next.

Mr. Gordon's Address.

In accepting the unanimous nomination of the Liberal party, Hon. Mr. Gordon thanked his proposer and seconder. "I simply cannot tell you," he said, "how much I appreciate the honor that has been done me to-night by Mr. Hall and Mr. Dewart and by this splendid gathering of electors of the city and country who fill this Hall. It is a great honor to come before you again and receive your confidence, to know that you support me in the principles I have adopted, and that you will support me in the future as you have done in the past.

Mr. Gordon paid a compliment to Mr. R. R. Hall, who, he said, had been steadfast in the cause of Liberalism in this riding for thirty years, had redeemed it and upheld the cause through all that time. The party should be very grateful to Mr. Hall for his loyalty and for what he had done in maintaining the principles of Liberalism.

"Another convention was held the other night by those who do not believe in our ideal of government for the people by the people. It was the party that believes in things as they are. One of its orators, Mr. Roland Denne, more or less hilariously said that the fair wage clause was not being enforced in the contract for the dam we are building. I am told the men are being paid the prevailing wage of 35c an hour. However, I thank him for calling my attention to it and I shall see that the wage agreement is fulfilled. And I may say that is more than Mr. Denne did when he had the patronage on the Nassau dam and failed to enforce the fair wage clause. He also said I had made money on the Hunter Street bridge. I wish to say to you to-night that G. N. Gordon stands before you with clean hands. I never made any money out of the Hunter Street bridge or out of anything else which I was not properly entitled to make. No one can come before you and criticize my actions in any affairs to which I have been entrusted.

Canada's National Debt.

I understand that Mr McElderry said that the national debt of Canada in 1921 when the Meighen government was defeated was $1,500,000,000. If Mr. McElderry was correctly reported he was just about one billion dollars out in that statement. But that wouldn't mean much to him.

In 1921, the national debt, exclusive of railway obligations, amounted to $2,340,000,000, which was an increase of $92,000,000 over the year before. In 1922, it was $2,422,000,000, because that year the Liberal government had no control over the indebtedness of Canada. In 1923, it was $2,453,000,000 or an increase of $31,000,000 largely on account of the war. In 1924, the national debt was $2,417,000,000 or a reduction of $36,000,000 under the present administration of Premier King. So Mr. McElderry was wrong to the extent of $36,000,000."

Before the war Canada's debt was $400,000,000, but in order to prosecute the war successfully it was necessary to put forth every effort in massing men and materials. As a sult two billions, approximately was added to the nation's debt through its war endeavor. And no person would object to this debt of honor and sacrifice except the men who was unwilling to bear a fair share of it.

Tariff Not Only Issue.

Hon. Mr. Gordon contended that the tariff was not the sole issue in this election, as pronounced by Mr. Peck. There were other grave issues which he would discuss throughout the campaign. Mr. Gordon defined the tariff as a tax on imports that were brought into the country for sale here or for the fabrication of other goods. Nearly all countries have such a tariff. Canada realized from its tariff $300,000,000 by way of customs duties, which is is pretty fair sized tariff for a child of our age." A tariff schedule was designed to keep other goods out of country and to increase home industry and commerce.

"The tariff of the United States has not changed in four years. I often wonder why, if a change in tariff would do all that Mr. Meighen claims, he didn't change it while he was in power and keep things going," Mr. Gordon observed.

Discussing the conditions in the boot and shoe industry, he said that Canada had a tariff of 25 per cent. for that industry, while boots were admitted free into the United States. But the Canadian boot manufacturers hardly ever sought a market for their product in the United States. That might be one reason why the industry was not flourishing, but another was that any man with a few hundred dollars could lease shoe making machinery from the great American machine company, although they could not buy outright and as a result the industry was crowded with small manufacturers.

Hamilton Glass Factory.

Reference had been made on Wednesday night, Mr. Gordon said, to the glass factory at Hamilton. The silica sand which was used in the manufacture of glass cost 25c a ton in Antwerp, Belgium, and $5 a ton laid down at the dock in Hamilton, and the cost of the glass in Belgium was about $3.65 as against $13.65 in Hamilton.

"Would you be willing to pay that price?" Mr. Gordon asked. "I don't think so. There are some things we do well such as the producing of meats, the grinding of grain, the manufacture of paper and lumber. These are industries indigenous to Canada, but why try to grow bananas under glass. Some manufacturers are not playing as fairly with our manufactured goods as are the consumers. There is one automobile company that does not buy one foot of brake lining such as is made by the Raybestos Company of this city. They import it from the United States and pay a duty on it. And lasts for boots and shoes are bought in the United States instead of in Canada, although ours are just as good."

Mr. Gordon said that such manufacturers were not playing fair to Canadian industry and its workers. He called attention to the appointment by the government of a tariff board, which, he said, would study the tariff problem in a scientific way for the first time, and get rid of the haphazard method that exists now. It will study the costs of every thing entering into the manufacure of boots, for example, so that duties may be levied to the best advantage of the country.

"A short time ago Mr. Meighen said we were ruining the implement industries because of tariff reduction. He declared that he would increase the tariff on agricultural implements, which would cost the farmers, that much more and add to the cost of the production of foodstuffs. Shortly after that Mr. Vincent Massey, the president of the greatest implement manufacturing companies in the world, became a member of the government. He announced that the Liberal tariff had not hurt the industry of which he is the head, and Mr. Meighen's reply to that was that the government gave compensating reductions that didn't hurt the Massey-Harris company. Remember that every dollar taken away by taxation is a dollar lost to the country. So I say that we want a tariff board that will deal with this question in a scientific way, a departure that has never before come to the Canadian people."

Tax Free Bonds.

Hon. Mr. Gordon said that for 3½ years after the war no income tax had been collected. The man who made a million dollars in the war could invest his profit in tax free Government bonds. The Meighen government had issued bonds to the amount of $1,650,000,000 exempt from income tax, and for long terms of 25 years at 5½%. Some of them had been refunded by the present administration at 4½%. Had these bonds been issued for short terms the country would have been saved the sum of $130,000,000 a year interest by refunding at 4½% and even a less rate, instead of bearing 5½% until they mature. The Meighen government, Mr. Gordon stated, had not safeguarded the interests of the people but had been guided by an unseen hand for the advantage of the rich.

With details of loss in man power and wealth, Mr. Gordon dealt with the decline in Europe's buying power as a consequence of the sacrifices of victory in the war. More than ten million men had lost their lives and six million were reduced in their earning power through injuries. Most of these were ambitious, active men, the flower of the nations whose loss and disabilities vitally affected the world's production and consumption of goods. Great Britain had lost 27½% of her national wealth, and yet people wonder why there is unemployment there or that the dole system was resorted to. As a result of these losses Britain had not the men and women with which to colonise this country as in days gone by. The last figures showed that 1,375,000 persons were receiving unemployment relief in the Old Country. These were conditions that seriously affected world trade, and it was not a matter of wonder if these countries had bought less flour from the Quaker Oats and less meats from the Canadian Packing Company. Yet these were facts which were not known by many people, because they had not been told from the platform.

Business Failures.

Mr. Gordon said Mrs. Fallis had quoted the number of factory failures in Canada last year at 2,000. "I don't know where Mrs. Fallis got her figues and I'm not aware that she has ever been around factories. At any rate they are not from Dunn's report. The figures which I have from Dunn's for the years since 1921 are as follows:

Year	Business	Firms in Failing	Percent. Failing
1921	154,608	2379	1.54
1922	166,435	3630	2.18
1923	167,525	3197	1.91
1924	170,104	2445	1.44

I would like to emphasize that there were 16,000 more business concerns in Canada last year than in the time of Mrs. Fallis' great leader, Mr. Meighen, and there were fewer failures as to number and as to assets and liabilities than there had been in the last year Mrs. Fallis' peerless leader was Prime Minister of Canada."

Trade Balances.

Mr. Gordon dwelt next upon a comparison of Canada's trade balances since 1921. In that year under the Conservative government there was an adverse balance of $30,000,000. The imports were $1,240,000,000 as against exports of $1,210,000,00. In 1922 there had been an improvement with imports of $747,000,000 and exports of $763,000,000, showing a favorable balance of six millions. In 1923 this favorable showing had been improved to $163,000,000, in 1924 to $168,000,000, and in 1925 for the year ending March 31st Canada's exports were valued at $1,021,000,000 as against imports of $796,950,000 returning to favorable balance of trade to the amount of $225,000,000.

The reduction of the burden of taxation, Mr. Gordon continued, could be hastened by economy, and on that side the Liberal Government had steadily lessened the annual expenditure. For the fiscal year ending in 1922 the total of disbursements was $464,000,000, in 1923 it declined to $434,000,000; for the year 1923-24 the total was $370,000,000 and for 1924-25 the total expenditure was $361,000,000. The decrease between this last sum and the expenditure of 1922 when the present Government took charge was $114,000,000. And on the per capita basis the expenditure was $51.87 under Mr. Meighen and $37.51 for every man, woman and child in Canada for the year ending in 1925. And more than half that money was required for war liabilities. Out of every dollar, Mr. Gordon said, 55c. went for war obligations, pensions, hospitals and other expenses, permitting little scope for the Government in the reduction of expenditures.

Insurance Increases.

As a barometer of the financial condition of the Canadian people, Mr. Gordon quoted the total amounts paid in life insurance premiums as $230,192,852 in 1921 and $259,847,615 in 1924. In other words Canadian men anxious for the protection of their families bought $100,000,000 worth of insurance last year than in 1921. Again, the number of automobiles in Canada was 852,121, and although some may might say this was a detriment to the country, on the other hand it was an evidence that the workers of the land had more freedom, in life, and better opportunity of keeping their families together and of seeing their home cities and countries. It indicated that the people have millions of dollars for the purchase of cars, although it might be a reason, also, why some merchants were not doing as much business as before.

Another illustration of the financial stabilization of the country was the fact that the Canadian dollar was above par. During Mr. Meighen's administration the dollar was below par, but with the improvement of business and of the financial position of the country, Canadian dollar rose to par and even higher than the American dollar. It was better even than the English £ with all the power of Great Britain behind it.

The U.F.O. stock arbitration which had cost Canada $10,000,000, although it was not "worth a plugged nickel when sale was made," and the appointment of special lawyers at a cost of $200,000, although there were capable lawyers on the Government staff, was charged against the Meighen administration by the speaker, who also let his descriptive eloquence run loose in relating the oleomargarine imports, which he said, had nearly ruined the Canadian dairy industry. "And while Mr. Meighen may be a protectionist in some manufactures he is on record as a free trader in bogus butter," was one of Mr. Gordon's epigrams. He also scored as highly dangerous to Canadian business the recent proposal of the Conservative leader in his tour of the eastern maritime provinces to fix the freight rates from that section to central Canada, making up the difference out of the public treasury. "It is the most dangerous declaration Mr. Meighen has made," declared the Minister of Immigration.

Exodus to the U.S.A.

Mr. Gordon passed on to a discussion of the exodus of Canadians to the United States. That country's quota law restricting immigration from any country except Canada and Mexico to 2 p.c. yearly of its population, according to the census of 1890, had created a condition that offered an attractive invitation to Canadians, who stood high in the United States because of their honesty, industry and ability.

But, Mr. Gordon continued, this movement to the United States was not a recent phenomenon. In 1913 under the Conservative government, 128,299 Canadians had crossed the border going south. In 1914 there were 130,152; 1915, 128,602; 1916, 133,991; 1917, 149,060; 1920, 101,587; 1921, 83,607; 1922, 56,358 (in the first year of the Liberal administration); 1923, 127,000; and 1924, 159,000.

The United States, Mr. Gordon said, had accumulated enormous wealth from the war, and the money lying idle in the banks had to be used. A building boom developed with extraordinarily high wages. Mechanics in Detroit and Chicago, working overtime, had been paid up to $16 a day, and naturally this money attracted a large number of Canadians. However, the tide was turning back, and since April 1924 there were 56,000 Canadians who had come back home.

Immigration Policy.

In conclusion the Minister spoke of the plans he was outlining for the stimulation of immigration of those classes Canada specially needed. He did not intend to admit industriel workers from Europe until employment conditions here had so improved as to absorb the available Canadian labor. In the great open spaces in the west, however, families were needed. English farmers than whom there were none better, Scottish and Danish tillers of the soil. Mr. Gordon said there he would like to see Peterboro county filled up by capable, contented settlers. There was vacant land throughout the district, and there were schools, churches and all the requirements of a happy, social life near at hand. He hoped to fill up old Ontario, and Quebec along the St. Lawrence, with people who would be just as good as the rest of Canadians. Bringing thousands of such people every year, the great waste spaces of this country would be gradually occupied and developed.

Certain of Victory.

"There will be 245 members in the next Parliament," said Mr. Gordon. "At dissolution Mr. Meighen had only 49 Conservatives behind him. To get a majority he will have to gain 74 seats and not lose one of his 49, and I want to tell you he can't do it. There was never such a dead sure thing in the political history of Canada than that the Hon. Arthur Meighen will not be the next Premier of Canada."

Mr. Gordon paid a compliment to the Progressives in the House, who, he said, had been described as bolshevistic by the Conservative leader, and referred to the prediction of Mr. W. H. Hill of a landslide against the Government in the maritime provinces. "I don't think Mr. Hill travelled much in Nova Scotia. You know what they are down there, all Scottish Grits."

With reluctance, he said, he mentioned the service he had given at Ottawa to ex-service men and their dependents. He had never missed or delayed any appointment in their behalf. "I felt it my obligation to do that because of what they did for us. I have a letter from the Amputation Society thanking me for my efforts. That is one of the things Mr. Denne did not mention."

Mr. Gordon said that with the assistance of the Liberals of this riding and of all those in sympathy with the Liberal policies and ideals there was no question of the result on election day. He appealed for not only support in every possible and fair way, but also for advice for there was never a time when his responsibility was greater and when service was more needed by him. He had kept the promises he had made to the electors five years ago, and he renewed them for the years ahead, promising to give his special thought to those families whose fathers had to count every cent of their wages. He mentioned the fact of his appointment as Deputy-Speaker of the House and more recently his selection by Premier King for the portfolio of Immigration and Colonization, honors conferred not so much to himself as to the community which he represented.

In the ruins the bodies of the victims, terribly charred, were found lying side by side on the rock to which they had fallen when the building collapsed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beddington who were suffering considerably from shock and bruises sustained in jumping from the building, were removed to a nearby cottage, where they were attended by a physician. They are recovering.

A fine motor car, owned by Thos. Brightman, was destroyed, but another car the property of Dr. Mann which was housed in a tent, was not harmed.

Dr. W. Ernest Harding, coroner, has ordered an inquest which will be opened at 11 a.m. to-day.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 25, 1925.

TO THE YOUNG VOTERS.

Thousands of young men and young women who have come of age since the last election will have their first vote on October 29th.

To those in this riding the Examiner makes a special appeal.

Don't under-estimate the value of your franchise; don't lightly regard the privilege that is yours.

Start right by having your name added to the lists, follow the campaign closely throughout, and when October 29th comes go to the polling booth and mark your ballot as your judgment tells you.

Too many of your elders have no proper appreciation of what is involved in the franchise.

Let the young voters not make that mistake.

Use the vote that is now yours—there should be no slackers among the new crop of electors.

PROHIBITION NOT AN ISSUE.

Challenged by the Ontario Prohibition Union to state their attitude toward the question of prohibition, Col. S. C. Robinson, Conservative, and Edward Blake Walker, Liberal, the two candidates in West Essex, united in a declaration that prohibition was not an issue in the present Federal campaign.

The Examiner believes that the West Essex rivals took a sensible and logical stand.

Canada is confronted with many problems that demand solution, and just now the business of everyone of us is to endeavour to select a Government that will grapple with these questions manfully and with some hope of success.

We don't want the business of choosing such a Government hampered and complicated by dragging into the campaign any side issues such as prohibition.

It can wait until Canada's House is put in order.

At present there is no place for a prohibition side-show, and candidates in other ridings should follow the example of the West Essex nominees who lost no time in flatly declaring that prohibition cannot possibly be considered as an issue.

HON. MR. GORDON NOMINATED.

The campaign in Peteroro is now officially open, with both the Government and official opposition conventions over and candidates nominated and in the field.

At the Liberal convention last night Hon. Geo. N. Gordon, as universally expected, was unanimously selected to represent the Government in this riding.

The Minister of Immigration found his party of one mind so far as their choice of candidates was concerned, and was tendered a flattering reception.

Mr. Gordon's career in politics has been short, but studded with triumphs, first his victory in the memorable five-cornered by-election campaign, then his re-election in the general election of 1921, followed by his appointment as Deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons and finally his selection as Minister of Immigration and Colonization in the re-constructed Cabinet of Premier King.

In the municipal realm he has been a member both of the City Council and the Board of Education.

Like his opponent, Mr. Peck, the Minister of Immigration is held in high regard by the people of the city and district irrespective of their party affiliations.

As the Examiner pointed out last night, with two such candidates in the field West Peterboro should remember the present campaign because of the clean and gentlemanly tactics of the two standard-bearers.

GET ON THE LISTS.

The franchise, the right to have a voice in the choosing of Governments and the determining of policies, should be regarded as the most valuable asset that a citizen possesses.

Yet how lightly is that privilege held sometimes.

Canada is shortly to have a most important general election, and at present the preparation of the voters' lists is under way.

Every elector should, without any urging upon anyone's part, be interested enough in guaranteeing himself a vote—to look after his franchise—yet the registrars report no signs of a rush yesterday.

The Examiner, anxious that when Peterboro speaks on October 29th it will be with the voice of the whole electorate, has been endeavouring to emphasize the importance of individual voters protecting their own vote, and has no apologies to offer for re-iterating the warning to every reader eligible to vote to make sure that his name is on the list.

The Provincial lists, prepared by the municipal Assessor, form the basis for the present lists, but don't take it for granted that your name is contained therein, it may have been omitted accidentally.

Visit the registrar in your district and see for yourself; then it is a simple matter to have your name added if through some oversight it has been dropped.

If you are a newcomer to Peterboro or have come of voting age since the last lists were prepared, the registrar will add your name, provided, of course, that you are qualified.

The qualifications necessary are that you shall be of the full age of twenty-one, that you shall have resided in Canada for twelve months prior to September 5th, that you shall be a British subject by birth or naturalization, and that you were resident in the electoral district on July 5th.

OUR SEARCH FOR PEOPLE.

Complementary to the issue of the National Railways in Canadian economic and political affairs, and scarcely to be dealt with except in such relation, is that of immigration. The two, considered in their overlapping characteristic, constitute one of the gravest problems confronting Canadian statesmanship, and offer a challenge to Canadian genius and enterprise such as has not been placed before our people these many years.

Canada is coming to a realization of this fact, slowly but surely. Public opinion is being formed; public interest is awakening. Following its publication recently of a letter from Dr. C. V. Corless, Managing Director of the Mond Nickel Company, dealing with the immigration problem, the Globe received letters based thereon from many correspondents, including such men as Frank Cockshutt, F. Armour, and others more or less prominent in business or public life. In an address this week in Toronto Sir Joseph Flavelle described the immigration problem as one exceeding all others in gravity and urgency. The press generally is filled with editorial reference to the matter of immigration, and no subject at public gatherings is more certain of eliciting interest and sympathetic consideration.

It is to be hoped that the new Minister of Immigration is seised of the magnitude of the task confronting him, and of the limitless nature of his opportunity. Hon. George Gordon is possessed of initiative and driving power; he is too young in years—and in politics—to have bcome case-hardened and indifferent to suggestion. He should be on the watch for ideas, and willing to give reasonable consideration to every reasonable proposition placed before him. Public reaction to the Corless letter will indicate to him that he has assumed a chair from whose incumbent a great deal is expected.—The Globe.

A WORD TO THE LEADERS.

The heat and excitement of an election campaign is frequently responsible for a certain amount of angry and foolish talk on the part of campaigners. This is unfortunate, but seemingly it cannot be helped. The offenders are usually temperamental or noisy fighters in the party ranks, and a good deal of allowance consequently is made on their behalf.

But, after all, the choosing by the electors of citizens to represent them in Parliament, to direct and manage the country's affairs, to promulgate policies for the well-being and advancement of the people, to administer worthily the public estate, and to give sound and enlightened leadership to the nation, ought to be a serious proceeding. For the stake is large. Much depends upon the wisdom of the choice made.

The leaders, at least, should set a high standard. They ought to furnish their followers and fellow-campaigners with an example in thoughtful, fair, honest, statesmanlike discussion of the issues before the electors, and make their appeals for support on the merits of their case. Both Mr. King and Mr. Meighen are disappointing those citizens—and we believe they comprise a vast majority of the electorate—who had looked and hoped for such leadership. Surely they should realize that the public platform in an electoral appeal is not the place for the airing of any personal vendetta. The voters are concerned in other far more important matters. They desire to hear policies discussed and issues debated. They are much less interested in what Mr. King thinks of Mr. Meighen and what Mr. Meighen thinks of Mr. King than either of these gentlemen seems to imagine.

The Vancouver Province, an independent Conservative newspaper, voices a very vigorous protest against the manner in which the campaign is being conducted by the two old party Leaders. It describes the platform performances of both Mr. King and Mr. Meighen as "slap-stick politics" comparable only to the old "slap-stick comedy—a species of low comedy that not many years ago was popular on the vaudeville stage and in burlesque houses," in which, "while the audience roared and clapped, the two antagonists would belabor one another with such weapons as the property man had thoughtfully left lying about where they could easily be picked up."

Having specifically instanced several of the undignified personal exchanges by the Leaders since they took to the road in the present electoral contest, our Western contemporary proceeds:

"Thus whack has been answering whack from the first day of the campaign, while party henchmen and the party press have stood faithfully by with drums and traps to argument the noise. All this may be very diverting if one has the heart to laugh at it, but one can not help wondering of what benefit it can possibly be to the country. The whole thing is so obviously insincere, so plainly a piece of campaign buffoonery that it is a puzzle to the man on the sidelines why responsible leaders waste their time at it. Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Meighen are both men of brains and capacity. They have both served with distinction in previous Governments. The country evidently regards them as men of honor or it would not have entrusted them with the high positions they hold. If anybody should know Canada and the Canadian people they should. Yet here they go across the country belaboring one another like a pair of cheap mountebanks, sinking their dignity in mean accusations, ignoring great issues, insulting the intelligence of the Canadian people by assuming that they can be impressed by this sort of stuff."

This is a severe indictment, but is it not justified? Is it not what tens of thousands of disappointed Canadians are thinking? At a time when virile and visioned leadership in public and Parliamentary life is one of the greatest needs of the nation—at a time when outstanding problems involving tariff, railways, immigration, the Senate, power development on the St. Lawrence, needs of the Maritimes and of the West, are waiting solution—is it not discouraging and deplorable to witness the accredited chieftains of the two historic political parties going round the country shouting names at each other?

The campaign is yet young. Perhaps the knowledge that their conduct is neither adding to their prestige nor developing public confidence may cause them to cease these silly, noisy, unparish tactics and turn to a serious and reasoned discussion of public affairs, uninterrupted and unspelled by personal tirminations and petty animosities.

Men of the stamp of Laurier and of Borden left an example in this respect which it would be well for their young successors to follow.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Get on the lists now and vote on Oct. 29th.

The urban registrars will continue their duties for a week. Visit the office in your district, and if you are not already on the list, see that your name is added.

The fight is now joined in Peterboro. It will be short, brisk, and it is confidently expected clean.

Before you get too deeply immersed in the political campaign, become a member of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and make next year's fair bigger than ever.

West Peterboro cannot fail to send a lawyer to Parliament. No other profession is represented in the contest.

Candidates whose chief claim for support is that they are total abstainers should be closely scrutinized. Dominion prohibition is not an issue in the present campaign.

A THOUGHT.

FORBEARANCE.

There are two sides to any shingle, and why a woman with money or with working resources should want to hold her husband by the golden chain of alimony, after her affections are as aimless as a dead fish, illustrates one side of the shingle.

When a woman having money hates her husband, but insists on having an income from the real-ticket man, she is a—a—parasite.

Now turn the shingle over.

When a man is accountable for children and has made the mother of his children a partner in the responsibilities of a home, he should, when divorce decrees, pay alimony or establish an estate, even though his ex-wife is as agreeable as a cactus leaf.

1. Matrimony is an inseparable contract when the question of necessary cash is concerned. Living together, without children, when love is absent, is legalized immorality.

Romance often ceases at the altar, but responsibility begins with the ceremony.

No navigator of the past or present has been able to trace the longitude and latitude of love. No chart, no compass has yet been invented for the high sea of matrimony. We either visit the tropics or explore the ice fields.

Will find occasion to forbear;
And something every day they live,
To pity, and, perhaps, forgive."

Os the eye of marriage two people reconcile their features and fortunes, but often fail to heed the accordance of their hearts.

CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24. —(Canadian Press). — Wheat values on the Chicago Board of Trade broke from 5 to 1-2 cents yesterday with the close 2 3-4 to 4 3-8 cents lower, and establishing new lows for the current movement in all months and setting a new crop low for May.

Constructive buying was removed from the market during the slump, while liquidation continued and holding pressure increased. Stop-loss orders, uncovered during the drop, tended to facilitate the decline while the only buying came from shorts.

May wheat ended at $1.46 3-8—1-2, a drop for the day of 4 3-8 to 4 3-8 cents, September dropped 3 to 3 1-2 cents, and December 2 3-4 to 3 1-4 cents.

Corn, oats and rye also slumped during the day, corn going down 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents; oats dropping ½ to 1 1-8 cents, and rye falling off 3 1-2 to 5 1-8 cents. September corn ended at 81 3-4 cents, September oats at 35 7-8c, and Seutember rye at 74 14c.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 25. — New York exporters were in the Montreal market for wheat yesterday and sales of a few loads of No. 4 wheat were made at 5 3-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg, F. O. B., Bristol cabled here that sales of 38,000 quarters of Russian barley were made in that market yesterday.

The only business of importance accomplished in the domestic cash grain market was the sale of a few loads of No. 2 Canadian Western oats at 14 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg option C. I. F. and some No. 2 feed grade at 4 cents per bushel over, C. I. F. Montreal. There was no further change in prices for Ontario and Quebec oats and sales of odd cars of No. 2 white were made at 50 cents; No. 3 white at 48 cents and No. 4 white at 46 cents, while Ontario No. 3 malting barley was quoted at 81 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Since this day week the tone of the market for ocean grain freights has been stronger and rates to many United Kingdom ports show an advance of 1 1-2d to 3d per quarter. The volume of business has not been large, but demand continues steady and the volume of room now available for October loading is not large. Engagements of heavy grain to Liverpool and London for the first-half October shipment were made at 3s 6d per quarter; Glasgow Oct. at 3s 3d; Manchester at 3s 4 1-2d; Avonmouth at 3s 6d; Cardiff at 3s; Leith and Newcastle at 3s 6d; Hull, Belfast and Dublin at 3s 3d, while Antwerp and Rotterdam room for October on berth tramp was let at 15c per 100 lbs. for wheat, 116c for barley, and 17c for oats.

The feature of the local flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market for spring wheat grades and prices were reduced 30 cents per barrel. The weakness was attributed to a further decline in cash wheat prices at Winnipeg. Winter wheat grades were also reduced 10 cents per barrel.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25. —A firmer tone on the Toronto egg market resulted in a two cent further increase in jobbing prices. This firm undertone is common to all markets but no other points report price increases. With receipts of fresh eggs dropping steadily storage eggs are being drawn on freely. American markets show further upward tendency.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letters will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir:

May I ask the C. N. R. officials through your column whether it is advisable that they should cancel the evening train to Lindsay. The Bellville train arriving at 8.15 p.m. has been going through to Lindsay and I understand it is to be withdrawn at the end of this week. This is the beginning of the season when the motor traffic is less pleasant and when rain, and later snow, prevent the cars from running between Peterborough and Lindsay. And yet at this season the train is about to be taken off. I realize that the C. N. R. executive know their own business and what is best for it, but it seems to me that the cancellation of this train might be reconsidered.

BALDWIN ALLIED WITH OWNERS IN WAGE DISPUTE WITH MINERS; INCENSE ENTIRE LABOR WORLD

Two Days' Conference Fails to Bring About Desired Settlement.

DETAILS COMPLICATED

Propose Organization of Citizens to Maintain Vital Services.

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press)—The British Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, has taken sides with the mine owners and against the miners' federation in the dispute between the miners and operators over the wage question. A two days' conference between the Prime Minister and the miners' executive at No. 10 Downing Street, failed to bring about a settlement.

After yesterday's conference, A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, announcing the deadlock, declared that his colleagues would take no part in the royal commission inquiry into the mining situation pending the decision of a delegate conference which would meet October 9. The miners, he added, would again appeal to the whole labor movement to stand by them, as they did in July, to see that the miners' wages were not reduced.

The details of the dispute between the parties are somewha tcomplicated but Prmier Baldwin's attitude will enable the mine owners to reduce wages in certain districts in a manner the miners contend is a violation of the agreement upon which the Government subsidy was granted.

This subsidy took the form of a "subvention" to the mines nearly two months ago, which would enable the owners to continue their existing wage agreements for another nine months. The miners' leaders declare there is danger that the truce will be upset.

This renewal of the mining strife comes simultaneously with a new move which is certain further to insence the whole Labor world. A new organization is being formed to

WANTS SECURITY PACT.

PRESIDENT VON HINDENBURG, Who presides over Cabinet which yesterday accepted the Allies' invitation to attend a conference for the purpose of negotiating a security pact.

GERMANY TO MEET ALLIED POWERS TO NEGOTIATE PACT

Hun Delegates Will Not Be Bound By Definite Instructions.

HOLD CONFERENCE.

Germany Will Be Accommodated As To Date and Location.

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Germany will meet the allied powers to negotiate a security pact. The cabinet, presided over by President Von Hindenburg, yesterday accepted the invitation of the Allies to attend a conference to this end.

Dr. Luther, the Chancellor, and Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister, will represent Germany at the conference, with Dr. Friedrich Gauss, chief legal expert of the Foreign Office, as secretary-general, and probably Dr. B. W. Von Buelow, chief of the League of Nations division of the Foreign Office, together with various under-secretaries.

The German delegates will not be bound by inflexible instructions, but will enter upon the discussion with a firm determination to effect the conclusion of a security pact along the lines of the Government's various recent pronouncements, especially the German note to the Allies of July 20, maintaing the right to strive for revision of the peace treaties to meet changed conditions.

This amplification of today's official communique announcing Germany's acceptance was emphasized in official quarters as obviously representing the Government's attitude. Any contrary assumptions, it was added, would be wholly without foundation.

While Otober 5 is persistently named as the date of the conference, neither date nor location has been definitely agreed upon, the Allies deferring to Germany's wishes on both issues.

Now that the Nationalists have acquiesced in the Government's formal participation in the conference on condition that it adheres to the principles of its July note, no serious parliamentary opposition awaits the German Foreign Minister if he succeeds in secring a pact negotiated along the lines he has promulgated, with the sanction of the Chancellor and other members of the Cabinet, the Nationalist Minister included.

Germany's entrance into the

SAKLATVALA BANNED.

Labor Group to Boycott Baldwin Functions Next Week.

GLASGOW, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Because Glasgow magistrates banned a Communist meeting at which Shapurji Saklatvala, the Communist M.P. for North Battersea, was advertised to speak, a Labor group on the town council has decided to boycott the functions in connection with Premier Stanley Baldwin's visit next week, including the conferment of the freedom of the city upon the Premier.

In the course of a meeting of the town council yesterday a Labor member called the attention of the Lord Provost to the fact that Saklatvala was seated in the gallery and suggested that as Saklatvala was a member of the British Parliament he ought to be allowed to sit in the section of the council chamber devoted to distinguished guests.

The Lord Provost did not object to this, and thereupon two of the Labor members of the council escorted Saklatvala down from the gallery to the desired part of the chamber.

HAIG DEPLORES ARMY BREAK-UP

Says Great Britain's Forces Are Too Small, But Good.

OVERTHROW OF ORDER

BATH England., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press). — Field Marshall Earl Haig, who received the freedom of the City of Both yesterday, alluded in his speech to the army manoeuvres. He declared that Great Britain's army was too small, but good. In view of the recent all-round reductions he could only hope that the taxpayers were not buying their relief too dearly.

"It is to my mind significant," he added, "that the breakup of the army after the war and the failure to make adequate national provision for the men has set free evil forces that are aiming frankly and avowedly at the overthrow of law and order."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Queen's Principal Denies Report Of Free Tuitions

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Principal R. Bruce Taylor, of Queen's University, interviewed yesterday evening regarding the stories emanating from Montreal to the effect that prospective members of the Queen's Rugby team are offered "free tuition" at the university, very emphatically denied that such a state of affairs would be countenanced for a moment by the university officials.

"The university accepts the registration of students, and it is their duty to see that they pass the examinations," said Principal Taylor, "there is not now, and never has been any system whereby a member of the Rugby team, or for that matter any student prominent in any other line of sport, may escape paying his tuition fees, except, of course, by the winning of an academic scholarship or being awarded a bursary. I am a member of the athletic board of control, of which Professor Baker is chairman, and I feel sure that I may speak for that board as well as the university itself in making this statement."

MINERS REFUSE TO ARBITRATE LABOR

Dealers Would Not Consent to Arbitrate Selling Prices.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—The anthracite scale committee of the United Mine Workers yesterday sent a telegram to the New England Coal Dealers' Association, in convention at Boston, outlining the reasons for the refusal of the miners to submit their differences with the hard coal operators to arbitration. The message was sent in answer to an address delivered before the convention Wednesday by Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the anthracite operators, and the request was made that it be read before the meeting of the New England dealers.

"The United Mine Workers refuse to arbitrate the terms and conditions that are to be written in and constitute a contract," said the telegram. "It will and does arbitrate questions that arise under the terms of a contract after the agreement has been made. No business man would agree to submit to outside arbitration the terms and conditions that are to go in his contracts.

"Coal operators do not agree or offer to arbitrate the price at which they shall sell their coal nor the amount of profit they may make; a clothing dealer would refuse to arbitrate the price at which he must sell a suit of clothes. Then why should the coal miners be compelled to arbitrate the price at which he shall sell his labor, which is his only stock in trade?"

Danes Debate About Better Butter Making

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — Leading agriculturists, farmers, dairymen, representatives of export associations and private exporters assembled here yesterday under the presidency of the Minister of Agriculture to discuss the export of butter to foreign countries, particularly Great Britain. The speakers all emphasized that the heavy increase in the imports of butter from the British Dominions in Britain, coupled with "the systematic agitation organized in England for enhanced marketing of butter from the Dominions in the future," was going to greatly intensify the competition with Danish butter.

The meeting decided that every energy must be exerted to prevent any justifiable complaints against Danish butter. The Minister of Agriculture submitted a draft of legislation proposed to deal with the marketing of Danish dairy products. The details, however, were not divulged.

INFORMAL MEETING STARTS THE WORK

Corn Roast and Sing-Song Form Campaign Basis.

BAILIEBORO Sept. 25.— The Young People's League of the Union church, Bailieboro, has not been organized for some time. In order to get the young people together to talk over the plans for reopening the league it was decided that the first informal meeting be held in the manner of a corn roast and camp fire talk.

There were about twenty-five present including the pastor, Mr. Folley who supervised the games. A delightful bonfire was built on the church grounds over which two spacious boilers were suspended. While the corn was boiling a number of team games were played, everyone taking an active part. The gathering then formed a square around the blazing camp fire and proceeded to roast the corn. Everyone's wants being satisfied, some campfire songs were sung.

Mr. Folley then gave a talk on "The way to choose between right and wrong." His motto, one which anyone might well adopt, was "For I do always those things that please Him". At the conclusion of the talk it was decided to hold another informal meeting Monday night, September 28, at which the programs for the coming year will be suppoed out.

The camp fire meeting was brought to a close by circling around the fire and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

The present shortage of white horses is a matter of anxious concern to musical instrument makers. For it is from the tails of white horses that violin bows are made. Black hair, it seems, is too coarse for the smaller and delicate bows, and is used only for such instruments as the double bass.

RUSSIA SEEKS ALLIANCE WITH JAPAN AND CHINA

Has Now Secured Allegiance of Christian General Feng.

PROVIDED PANTS

Clothing for Troops Won Favor of General for Soviets.

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW (by Mail to the United Press).—The Soviet Government is zealously consolidating her relations with China and Japan as a deliberate move to counterbalance an anti-Soviet block in the West, believed to be emerging under British surveillance.

This is the conclusion drawn from personal conversations with Trotsky, Chicherin, Radek, the acting chief of the Far Eastern department in the Moscow Foreign Office, Pokhvalinsky, and other Soviet leaders.

One of the most striking instances of reecnt Soviet policy in the Far East is the diplomatic manoeuvring which caused Feng-Yu-Sian, "the Christian general" of Peking, to transfer his political allegiance from the so-called Anglo-American block to the Soviet Union. Karl Radek, the journalistic spokesman of the Soviet Government, gave me a peculiar explanation of the switch in Feng's policy.

"The diplomacy of Washington and London in Peking lacked adroitness," asserted Radek. "While American and British missionaries were showing their affection for the Christian general by bringing him tobacco, both America and England permitted Feng's troops to run around without any trousers."

Radek clearly hinted that, with his new Russian affiliations, Feng himself may be smoking fewer Virginia cigarettes, but that his 220,000 soldiers have pants.

Whither Soviet policy is drifting was also indicated by a recent incident, in itself trivial, but essentially a political feather in the wind. The episode centered around Stalin, native of the Caucasus and sphinx-like secretary of the Russian Communist party, who has inherited a larger slice of Lenin's personal power than any other ruling revolutionary.

It is said that Stalin never granted a newspaper man an interview in his life until the other day, when he broke his silence by receiving the correspondent of the Osaka "Mainichi." That it happened to be a Japanese journalist, to whom this "scoop" was granted, started the political tongues of Moscow wagging. It was no coincidence, they said.

When the Japanese correspondent entered Stalin's door, the Communist leader leapt from his chair, strode across the room and, almost embracing the startled interviewer, abruptly cried, "Welcome! I, too, am an Asiatic!"

Theatrical horseplay? Perhaps. But certainly more than that. In his fiery welcome and outburst of pan-Asiatic exuberance, Stalin, in reality, was announcing to the world the dawn of a new Asiatic alliance.

No one expects this alliance to emerge overnight. There remain gigantic obstacles in the path of a full-fledged Russo-Chinese-Japanese entente. True, two of this triumvirate have discovered immense interests in common, which have already led to a united Russo-Chinese front toward the Great Powers. But gaunt barriers still thwart Japan's adherence to Russo-Chinese block.

Trotsky, his eyes flashing, his body leaning tensely across his desk, forecast to me the powerful growth of the Chinese nationalist movement, declaring that China will continue to find its single, strongest ally against "foreign imperialism" in Moscow.

In this and other conversations, I attempted to learn the perspectives, envisaged by the Soviet Government in its new orientation to the Far East.

STEEL LINES BLAZED THE TRAIL OF PETERBORO'S PROSPERITY

City's Industries All Followed the Coming of the Railway —Industrial Growth Kept Pace With the Increase of Transportatio n Facilities

EARLY RAILWAY ENTERPRISES

The railway today is closer to the average man and woman than any any other contribution to civilization. Every child has thrilled at his first sight of a roaring express train. Every baby has played with a toy train; every man and woman remembers some interesting personal experience in travelling over the steel rails which carry progress across the continent.

There is a very close relationship between the advent of the railway and the development of the community it serves. The railway has meant a great deal to Peterborough. Progress has followed the steam locomotive. Practically every industry in Peterborough has come into being here since the rails were laid into the city.

In 1852, a charter was obtained for the building of a line from Cobourg to Peterborough. The city was offered stock in the project, but declined to avail itself of the offer. Lindsay and the Township of Ops gave some little financial assistance and the undertaking was successfully carried out. The first train was run over the line in the Fall of 1854, and a remarkable impetus was immediately given to the lumber industry—the export of timber rising from four million feet per annum to twenty-seven million feet. This railway got into difficulties during the years 1855-6 on account of a bridge across Rice Lake being forced out of position by the ice. Some attempts were made to remedy this condition, but complete success was not attained, and the train service to Peterborough on this line ceased after 1863.

The Peterborough, Port Hope Railway, after many abortive attempts, became an accomplished fact in 1857. The first trip was made in May of that year, and on the 24th of the same month, a free excursion brought 3,000 from Port Hope to Peterborough. For the return journey all the available rolling stock was commandeered, three engines and 40 cars carrying 5,000 people to the town on the lake front.

In after years a railway construction boom was initiated; a line was constructed to Lakefield, and the Grand Junction and the Midland lines were built. In 1880, all rail communication with Belleville was first established. The next step was the creation of a line to Omemee following a resolution taken by a mass meeting of citizens in the Opera House, and addressed by George A. Cox, who was then one of the leading spirits in the promotion of railway enterprises throughout the country. This line became known as the "Missing Link."

A fairly extensive amalgamation took place in 1881, when the Midland Railway assumed control of the Toronto and Nipissing, the Grand Junction, the Whitby and Port Perry, and the Victoria Railway companies under the designation of the Midland Railway of Canada.

The Ontario and Quebec Railway, the germ of the C.P.R., came this way in 1884, when the bridge across the Otonabee was built and permission was secured for the laying of a track along the river bank to Hunter Street, and into the Dickson Mills property. In 1888 the Grand Trunk Railway built the bridge over the canal lock leading into the city. This bridge was the first structure in the Dominion on which automatic power rivetting was used.

In the ratio with which transportation facilities increased, industries became established in the town.

The William Hamilton Company was organized in 1857 and for a long time was coupled with the Dickson Mills as the two premier industries in the town. The Auburn Mills were set up in 1862.

A large number of small businesses were established in later years, and while few of them ever attained to large dimensions, they all contributed their quota towards the development of the city.

On the other hand, some of these small beginnings have led to much greater things. The Matthews Packing Company, founded in 1882 by George Matthews of Lindsay, is now the internationally known Canadian Packing Company.

In 1883 the Ontario Canoe Company erected a plant adjoining the station of the Peterborough and Cobourg Railway. This company went out of business in 1892 after a disasterous fire, and was re-organized as the Peterborough Canoe Co., which is known everywhere today.

In 1855 the Peterborough Lock Co. came into being. B. F. Ackerman & Co. transferred their plant to Peterborough from Port Perry in 1892. The industries of the town increased rapidly until today, Peterborough has a variety of manufactures unsurpassed by any town of a similar size.

A great stride forward was taken when in 1890 the Edison Electric Co. located within the city. As an inducement to build here, the council granted a free site valued at $18,000, with sidings, sewers and water supply costing over $12,000, and 20 years' exemption from taxes. The company expanded in every direction until at present, as the Canadian General Electric Co., it is capable of giving employment to 2,200 workers, and has become the central hive of a prosperous industrial colony.

Other important comparatively recent arrivals have been the Quaker Oats Co., established here in 1900, as a branch of the American Cereal Co., operating what has become the finest milling plant in the Dominion; and the De Laval Dairy Supply Co., which came to the city in 1912. These various industries have made Peterborough the city it is today and in every case the railway facilities of the community were deciding factors in their coming here.

TOOK 206 CARS TO BRING U.S. SETTLERS HERE

Brought Cash and Securities Valued at $811,800 to Dominion

IN ONE MONTH.

Hon. G. N. Gordon Tells Strides Made in Colonization Branch.

Speaking of the work of his department, and with special reference to its efforts to secure settlers from United States, Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, to-day expressed satisfaction with the results up to date, and told of his anticipation of an immediate increase in the number obtained.

The proportion of actual farm settlers among the newcomers from the United States now stands at 67 per cent., he said. The Department maintains eighteen offices in the United States where aggressive work is being carried on in promoting the settlement of American farmers in Canada. One of these offices alone sent up to Canada during the month of August just past no less than 545 persons, carrying with them cash and securities to the amount of $811,800. The names and addresses of these 545 persons, Mr. Gordon said, with the date of their entry into Canada, the place of their origin in the United States, and their Canadian destination are matters of record in his Department.

Mr. Gordon attributes the influx to easier economic conditions in Canada, and the reports of bumper crops in Canada at high prices, produced on cheap land, combined with the advertising campaign which his Department carries on in the agricultural press. The United States agents and sub-agents of his Department, without exception, report a greatly increased interest in Canada.

260 Car-Loads.

As giving a better idea of the work being done over a longer period, Mr. Gordon showed that for the year ended March 31, 1925, 260 car-loads of settlers' effects, at the Customs value of $7,416,870, were brought into Canada from the United States, while the settlers also brought with them cash to the value of 2,050,000.

For the five months, from April 1 to August 31, 1925, the principal offices of the Department in the United States sent actual farmers to Canada to the number of 4,304—an increase of 1,629 over the same period a year ago. This increase is indicative, Mr. Gordon said, of the upward trend of operations in the United States.

Reverting to principles, Mr. Gordon said these American farmers, along with those who are being obtained from the Mother Country and from Europe, are doing much to restore a proper balance between the urban and rural population of the Dominion, and are thus helping to bring prosperity and employment to all classes.

All Grain Prices Drop On Winnipeg Exchange

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24.— (Canadian Press.)— Sustained weakness brought about further recessions in price of all grains here to-day. October wheat declined 4 1-8c, with deferred months sharply lower. Indifferent export demand and heavy country shipments were factors in the down turn.

is grim pyorrhea's count

DENTAL STATISTICS tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. SCIENCE SAYS UNIVERSE ORDERLY BASIC PRINCIPLE OF PROGRESS EVIDENCE OF CHANGES IN NATURE

Long Observation Has Shown Process to Be Systematic.

NATURAL LAWS

Doctrine of Evolution Inspires Hope for Future of Human Race.

(By F. R. Moulton, Professor of Astronomy, University of Chicago.)

The question of evolution is just now giving rise to an extraordinary amount of discussion. If we are careful of our use of terms, we probably should not call most of it discussion. Much of it is rather an appeal to prejudice or authority. Much of it is simply taking advantage of an opportunity to get conspicuously in the public eye. Many of the so-called arguments about it are concerned with personalities rather than principles.

The public, however, is interested in the facts rather than in academic discussions. The average man is legitimately curious about the origin of the human race and about its destiny. His views on these subjects form a background for his opinions on questions of more immediate practical concern. For these reasons the question of the truth or falsity of the principle of evolution is important.

Let us first keep clear of subjects in which our prejudices are deeply involved and let us consider just what is meant by the laws of nature. An illustration will help to make clear the final conclusion. Suppose we knew nothing about trains and that we are living beside a railway track between stations. Let it be assumed that we are keen observers and are mentally active. Sooner or later we notice that a train passes every day at about the same time. Our curiosity being aroused, we take our clock and carefully check the matter. To our delight we find that the train passes every day at the same time. Then we raise the question whether the corresponding thing is true of other trains. We find that each of them passes every day at the same time. Then we make a time table of the trains for our position. It always works and we rely upon it. It is a "law of nature" for the passage of the trains by our position.

How Planets' Ways Were Learned.

The astronomer from his position upon this little planet observes the passage of the sun, moon and planets. Their motions are very complex instead of being simple like those of the train. Even the sun, at various times during the year, sets all the way from the northwest to the southwest; at noon it is sometimes high toward the zenith and at other times not more than one-third the way up from the southern horizon; and sometimes it is above the horizon fifteen hours daily and at other times only nine.

In spite of these great complexities, its motion was eventually found to be orderly. Likewise the motions of the moon and the other heavenly bodies were found to be orderly. The order was discovered by an immense amount of labor, extending over many centuries—the astronomers worked out from observations the time tables for the motions of these bodies.

Although the foregoing illustrations fall far short of doing justice to the methods and the thoroughness of science, they enable us now to make clear just what a law of nature is. A law of nature is a "description" of the way some part of nature goes through its changes. It has no relation to a statute or a law in the legal sense. It is most unfortunate that it is called a law, for the word "law" raises in our minds ideas of superior authority, of compulsion, and possibly of penalties. A "description" of the way things proceed carries none of these connotations. It simply states more or less perfectly how things happen. This important conclusion should be kept firmly in mind.

It will be observed from what has been said that we can have laws of nature (descriptions of the way nature proceeds) only in those parts in which it is orderly. This conclusion raises the question whether or not all of nature is orderly. It was first found to be orderly in astronomy. The most marvellous order holds in the motions of the sun, moon and planets. Nothing else within human experience approaches it in perfection. Literally in thousands of cases predictions have been made and found to come true without a single failure. Eclipses can be calculated with certainty for centuries ahead; the motion of a comet is more regular than that of a watch, and the planet Neptune was discovered from its minute effects upon the motion of Uranus.

Physics is concerned with a domain of nature that is orderly. The shape of a lens is calculated, and when the lens is made it brings new wonders of the universe into view. A dynamo works in perfect harmony with the laws of electricity. Every machine that runs is a confirmation of the law of motion. No physicist doubts that the physical universe is completely orderly. The corresponding thing is true of the chemist and of the geologist. In the biological sciences more factors are at work and the phenomena are more complicated. But here too the evidence that the universe is orderly is overwhelming.

The orderliness of the universe is the foundation principle on which science rests, the Magna Charta of its existence. The belief in this principle and tireless search for the laws of nature—knowledge of the way the universe runs—are what have revolutionized within a few decades our ways of living. The fact that this belief is well founded has made it possible for science to obtain a large control over the physical and biological. Communication, transportation, food, shelter, clothing and a thousand other things that are enjoyed in our day for the first time in the history of our race all bear witness to the soundness of our belief that the universe is orderly.

Former Drudgery Relieved.

Our belief in this principle has freed us from the drudgeries of former days; it has surrounded us with sanitary protection and relieved us of many of the ills that beset our predecessors. It has largely banished superstitions and dispelled the terrors that assail non-scientific people, and it has given the masses of men leisure to reflect on such profound problems as those of our origin and our destiny. Every man who has any real understanding of the importance of the discovery of the orderliness of the universe has a deep thankfulness in his heart that he lives after the discovery was made.

There is a final feature of the principle that the universe is orderly that remains to be mentioned. Nearly every one willingly concedes that it is orderly today, and also that it will be orderly tomorrow. Scientists have found out the equally important fact that the order to today will go into that of tomorrow, and then into that of the next day, and the next, in a continuous and orderly fashion. That is, the universe is orderly and continuous in time. Now this is Evolution stripped of the complexities of special applications. Whatever exists at present came out of something preceding in an orderly way, and will change in an orderly way into what will be in the future.

Evolution simply asserts the principle that the universe is orderly in time as well as in space. It does not maintain that it is going toward a more complicated organization or toward simplicity. In fact, both processes are observed in almost everything. Much less does it assert that the changes are necessarily toward any preconceived notions of "perfection." In general, it is a deep and abiding belief that the universe is undergoing changes in time in an orderly fashion. In particular cases investigations must show just what the changes are.

An enormous amount of evidence shows that everything is in a state of change. Mountains are formed and wear away. Rivers cut out valleys and fill up deltas. Individual plants and animals go through remarkable series of changes, and the long records of fossils in the rocks leave little room for doubt that species of plants and animals undergo corresponding changes. Human institutions change, languages change, philosophies change, and religions change—they are all undergoing evolutions.

Whether or not human beings have evolved from some other forms, in some respects inferior and perhaps in others superior, is a question for the evidence to settle, and will not be considered here. But if the theory that we have come up from lower forms is true, it is a doctrine that fills us with hope for the future race. If we have come far, we may go much further. If we believe we are not bound down to mediocity, we shall be more likely to aspire to high things to make active plans to attain them, and to deliberately undertake the direction of our own evolution.

STORY OF UNVEILING HARDING MEMORIAL

Brilliant Gathering of Notables on Kiwanis' International Friendship Day.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 24.—Under a perfect September sky, with a cool breeze passing gently through the branches of the tall cedars, Douglas firs and hemlocks that encircle the great natural amphitheatre facing the pavilion in Stanley Park, the international memorial to the late President Warren Gamaliel Harding of the United States was didicated last week in solemn ceremony in which upward of ten thousand people took active part.

Kiwanis honored the memory of its most distinguished member and upward of a thousand Kiwanians from all parts of Canada and the United States were present.

The governments of Canada and the United States were officially represented, the former by Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, and the latter by Hon. Frank B. Willis, United States Senator from Ohio.

Victor M. Johnson, Immediate Past President of Kiwanis International, acted as master of ceremonies.

Proceedings opened with the singing of "O Canada" and "America" conducted by Kiwanian Harry Grant band and the Vancouver Kiwanis Glee Club. The great audience joined heartily from the opening bar, indicating at once something of the latent sentiment that marked the whole ceremony. Rev. J. S Henderson, D.D., of St. Andrew's church, pronounced the invocation.

Unveiling Impressive

The unveiling of the central portion of the memorial, following instantly on the last dedicatory words of President Moss, was effected slowly and with impressive dignity. The figures had been covered with flags, that of Britannia with the Canadian ensign, that of Columbia with the Stars and Strips, while the central panel with the bronze base relief medallion of the late President was hidden under the voluminous folds of a large Union Jack.

As the flags were slowly withdrawn, revealing the completed memorial in all its beauty of design and setting a murmur of delight from the great concourse of people gathered into sustained applause lasting for several minutes.

Perfectly Organized

Singing of "Lead Kindly Light", the favorite hymn of the late President Harding, followed the unveiling, after which Hon. Dr. King delivered his brief address on behalf of the Canadian Government. "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" was sung and Senator Frank B. Willis then delivered his address on behalf of the United States.

The ceremony concluded with the introduction of Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., brother of the late President and Charles Marega, the Vancouver sculptor who saw the work of arduous months of artistry rewarded in an outspoken recognition of its merit. Mr. Harding, visibly affected, found himself unable to say more than a word or two of thanks.

Present on Platform

In addition to those taking official part in the ceremony, places on the platform were occupied by a large number of notables. These included Hon. Mr. Justice Denis Murphy, representing the judiciary; His Worship Mayor Louis D. Taylor and party; His Honor Lieut. Governor R. G. Brett of Alberta, who is visiting in Vancouver; Senator J. D. Taylor of New Westminster, and Senator Sanford J. Crowe of Vancouver.

The Consular Corps, including Hon. B. L. Harris, United States; Hon. Paul Sugar, France; Hon. T. Kawai, Japan; Hon. C. B. Stalschmidt, Norway; Hon. Nicolai Masi, Italy; Hon. S. Gintzburger, Switzerland; Hon. M. P. Morris, Chili; Hon. W. A. Ward, Denmark; Hon. W. W. Armstrong, Siam; W. C. Shelly, chairman of Vancouver Parks Board, and Park Commissioners Jonathan Rogers, W. D. Jones; W. J. Baird, president of Vancouver Canadian Club; Mrs. W. A. Clarke, president of Vancouver Womens' Canadian Club; Mrs. B. C. Grant, president of Vancouver Women's American Club; R. J. Cromie, publisher of Vancouver Sun; Frank J. Burd, managing director of Vancouver Daily Province; Brig. Gen. V. W. Odlum, publisher Vancouver Daily Star; Dr. R. E. McKechnie, chancellor of University of B.C.; F. W. Peters, superintendent, C.P.R.; R. Jamieson, President Rotary Club; R. L. Maitland, president Gyro Club; W. H. Dayton, president Lions Club; Hon. C. R. Davis, A. S. Walker, C. Ronan, James F. Neal, Dr. W. B. Burnett, Harry Nobbs, Nathan Eckstein, Rev. Father Cecil J. McNeill, A. E. Forman, Hon. Samuel C. Reat, Ernest Arras, Fred C. W. Parker, Douglas J. Scott, J. T. M. Anderson, Earle Gensberger, G. A. Savoy, Dr. J. C. McCauley and Robert Cramm. Manyof these were accompanied by ladies and the decorated platform presented a brilliant appearance with its draping of flags and bunting.

Following the ceremonies several wreaths sent from Kiwanis Clubs from the Eastern States were placed on the memorial beneath the carved head of President Harding.

Dr. George T. Harding read the message carved in the stonework and viewed, silently, the likeness of his brother.

He and leaders of the Kiwanis Club had official pictures taken by Kiwanis photographers on the steps of the memorial.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—An elaborate programme has been prepared for the visit to this city of Mrs. Bramwell Booth, wife of General Booth, head of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Booth is making the trip with the object of meeting army officials when they assemble in Winnipeg for the 43rd annual congress at which representatives covering the territory from Port Arthur to Alaska will be present.

On Friday evening, Oct. 9, there will be a mammoth historical pageant, which will be given in the Amphitheatre rink on Oct. 10. In the afternoon there will be a parade. On Sunday Mrs. Booth will conduct three great meetings in the Winnipeg rink. At the afternoon meeting the chair will be taken by Lieut-Gov. Sir James Aikens.

Mrs. Booth through all her life has been active in work of the Army. Many years ago, she made a beginning in the social work of the Salvation Army which has since grown to very large proportions, and been extended to almost every country in the world. Until recently she held the position of British commissioner, being in charge of the general work of the Army in Great Britain.

LINDSAY CENTRAL EX. SUFFERED AN ATTENDANCE DROP

Flowers, Fruits, and Vegetables Best Exhibits in the Fair's History.

MISHAP MARS EVENTS

LINDSAY, Sept. 25.—Lindsay Central Fair suffered a slump in attendance on the second day (Citizens' Day) as compared with last year's attendance. This, the directors claim, was due to the morning rainfall as well as to the chilly condition of the weather. A half holiday was proclaimed by Mayor Graham, and this gave the business men as well as the school children a chance to take in the Fair.

A falling off is reported in the exhibits in different classes, but the display of flowers, fruits and vegetables is the best shown in the history of the Fair. The Midway is not nearly up to past years. The Midway concession last year was sold to a Sarnia man for $2,000 for the year 1925, and this resulted in the absence of many of the smaller outfits. The directors also suffered a disappointment in connection with two special features booked in connection with the grand stand performance, word being received that they would be unable to appear.

An accident occurred on the grounds yesterday morning, when Fernie and Rhets Mark were run down on the race track by a horse. The former had her arm broken.

Two speeding events were pulled off during the afternoon, the results being as follows:

organize throughout the country a body of loyal citizens prepared to volunteer to maintain supplies and vital services in the event of a general strike.

The management of this organization is vested in a president, vice-presidents, and council, with an executive committee. Lord Hardinge of Penshurst is president, and the council consists of many prominent men, including Major-General the Earl of Scarborough, the Earl of Ranfurly, Admiral Earl Jellicoe and Viscount Falkland.

The scheme is non-political and non-party. Its secretary explains that the scheme is not a Government scheme, but the Government is perfectly aware of what is being done and knows that if any action on the part of the Government becomes necessary, this organization will be behind it.

Four categories of recruitments are proposed—First, for the protection of public services, and, if necessary, to act as special constables; Second, operating the railways, handling foodstuffs; Third, to act as drivers of vans and lorries; Fourth, messengers, in the event posts, telegraph and telephone communications are stopped.

If an emergency arises the whole organization will be offered to the Government, and its members will become Government servants. It is probable that the recent report that Sir William Joynson Hicks, Home Secretary, had decided in favor of rapid recruitment of special constabulary, had to do with this plan, in which, however, the Government is taking no direct step.

The plan is likely to meet with general public favor, but will also doubtless accelerate the organization of "The Workers' Defence Corps," for which John Wheatley, a member of Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet, is reported to have laid the foundations at Glasgow, with the hope of achieving a membership of ten million men.

GERMANY TO MEET

League of Nations is viewed as a logical sequel to the successful conclusion of a security pact, and it is assumed in political circles that its application will automatically follow, so long as no conditions such as renewed confession of war guilt be exacted. Upon this the cabinet has the undivided support of all the Reichstag parties in the same measure as it can count on their approval of a pact based on the principles of equality and reciprocity.

The cabinet will confer with the Premiers of the Federated States tomorrow and discuss its line of procedure at the forthcoming conference with the Reichstag foreign relations committee Saturday.

President Von Hinderburg varied the proceedings of the cabinet council by requesting the Chancellor to accelerate official action with respect to the adoption of measures calculated to reduce the prevailing high cost of living, which continues to constitute the Government's most perplexing internal issue.

OBITUARY.

MRS. EDMUND MACKLIN

COBOURG, Sept. 25—The death took place on Wednesday at Plainville of one of the old and highly regarded residents of the district, when Mrs. Edmund Macklin passed away. Mrs. Macklin's maiden name was Jane Luxton and she had spent her lifetime in that locality. Of her family there survives one son, Arthur E. Mackin, with whom she resided. Her husband died some year ago, and two daughters, Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Robert Cruickshank, predeceased their mother.

The funeral took place today at 2.30 from the home of her son, to the United Church Cemetery at Plainville. Mrs. Macklin was in her 86th year. She had been in failing health for some years, and was confined to her bed for the last two months.

A. M. TRAYNOR.

MARMORA, Sept. 25.—The funeral of the late Father A. M. Traynor, who departed this life on Sunday, at the age of fifty, took place on Wednesday. The funeral mass was sung at the Sacred Heart Church at 10 a.m. by His Grace Archbishop M. J. Spratt, D.D., LL.D., of Kingston. About fifty of the clergy were present. An eloquent funeral oration was delivered by Rev. Dr. Kingsley, of Portsmouth. Mrs. L. Bigger sang "Ave Maria" very impressively. The committal at the graveside was taken by Father James Traynor, brother of the deceased priest. There was a large assemblage at the funeral and many words were sent by a large number of worshippers.

Lipstick Brings Back Gallantry Of Old Days

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25.—(United Press.)—Kissing the lady's hand, a gallant form of greeting belonging to the days of courtesy, is coming back.

Authority for the announcement of its recurrence, Cleveland Health Commissioner Rockwell, explained that the occasion had nothing to do with sanitation. The secret is the lipstick.

"Girls are getting tired of having to fix up their lips every time they are kissed," the commissioner pointed out. "Likewise their suitors fear the betraying red imprints scattered over their faces. So the style now is for the fair lady to be kissed on the hand."

ICELANDERS HELD MEETING AT GIMLI

Celebrated Anniversary of Arrival of Colony in 1875.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Recently the largest concourse of Icelandic people ever gathered in one place in Canada met at Gimli to commemorate the arrival at that place of the first party of colonists from Iceland, 50 years ago.

A unique honor was accorded Mrs. S. G. Stefanson, of Gimli, in the appointment by the committee to the post of official hostess to receive all comers and welcome them to the quaint log cabin—quaint to all the younger population who came to see it and its crude appointments, but to her very realistic. It was an almost perfect model of the first log cabins hurriedly put up by the men of the party who were landed in the fall of 1875 one of which was her own first home in Western Canada.

The cabin was furnished with a rough deal table, a bedstead made bunk-fashion from the ironics of small trees, a No. 9 cook stove, a factory chest or trunk—with 1874, the year the party left Iceland.

The Regina Rugger Club, composed of veteran cyclists who have been devotees of the sport ever since the days when the old high wheel was in vogue, recently celebrated the thirty-fifth annual run, known as the "Ward Around the Hub." The run this year was established by Dr. Walter G. Kendall, a 72-year-old surgeon, whose bicycle was a 52-year-old machine.

terday afternoon, just after Nature had been prepared for a day on ivy, my cabin was visited by boys and girls from across the They come and coax me to let read about the Merry Men of Greenwood, but were quite dis- ed to-day, when all I had to offer a dose of poison ivy.

t one of them could describe poison nor could point it out, if near at . The reason is clear. We keep l from growing, by spreading old r oil on its growing ground and fore, there is none to show children. ould it not be a fine service for chil- if someone, who knows the poison would gather some samples of it, e Spring, in the summer and in the tumn, and take it to school to be layed under glass, so that all might w it, for knowledge is the great and defence of humanity, against all m.

There is a very pretty little example this truth, in the way the humming ds defend themselves from harm. ey do it by knowing that the bigger ds cannot move about, twist and n, dash in advance and retire almost the same time, in humming bird manner, as the bigger birds are far too clumsy. And experience, which is knowledge pounded into our heads by example, has taught the big birds that they are too slow for a humming-bird, so, since both birds know these things, the big fellow minds his own business, for fear the little fellow will hurt him.

I remember seeing a little encounter between a ruby-throated humming-bird and a blackbird. The blackbird had discovered the hummer's nest, and, being a young and inexperienced black bird, he thought he would eat up the delicate little hummer children. Had he possessed a little more knowledge, he would have remained away, but he was ignorant, so started to go to the hummer nest.

The male hummer seemed to float through the air like a soft bullet. He would dash at the blackbird's head, until the poor big black fellow would strike out with his wing, but by that time the hummer would be retreating. He actually seemed to go forward and backward without changing wing movement in any way. The blackbird, in fear of losing his eyes, went away, a much wiser bird. To know some things by experience, is not very pleasant.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE AN "APPARITION" VISITS A VILLAGE CHURCH

In the little town of Caravaggio, in Lombardy, Italy, there stands an old-time church. Here the natives go for confessions and for blessings. While most of the inhabitants have lost sight of the church's supernatural visitor, there are many of the older people who still remember the first appearance of the apparition that so frightened the congregation back in 1882. In their hearts remains the constant hope and fear that they may again behold the vision during their hours of devotion.

A writer in the London Journal, who witnessed the spectacle, described the awesome visitation as follows:

"Every day, at noon, the vision of the Virgin Mary rises from a dark recess behind one of the pillars of the aisle, and the struggles of the thousands of eager devotees to catch a glimpse of the apparition are most extraordinary. The shrieks and screams of the victims who are knocked down and trampled on amid the confusion are appalling.

Those who cannot approach near enough to the shrine throw handfuls of copper coins against the iron grating which encloses it, and the shock of the metallic sound, amid the deep monotonous intoning of the priests, seems to produce a frenzy in the crowd, many of whom rush wildly about, shrieking and tearing their hair, and treading without mercy on the limbs of the paralytics outstretched on the pavement. The simple village church, which is capable of containing only a few hundred people, is made to hold ten thousand, who, although packed, suffocating, perspiring, and trembling beneath the stifling atmosphere, yet continue to howl out their invocations. When the dismal howlings of the pilgrims within the church announce the appearance of the misty vapor which precedes the apparition of the Virgin, the crowd outside fall to the ground, and literally cried forth the litany composed for the occasion; and the litany is succeeded by a dead silence."

The Awesome Visitation.

Even before the first visit of the apparition this interesting Italian village was famous. It was known as the birthplace of the seventeenth century painters, whose name is identical with that of the town—Caravaggio.

It is twenty-two miles east of Milan and has a population of about 6,000 people.

The tramp paused in the very act of a frantic scramble for freedom from the clutching hands of the hilarious brakeman. He turned, stared—and then the pained rotundity of his face melted into proud and placid recognition of a friend at court.

"My dear Wilson, and—working! I need not tell you,"—this with a nervous shrinking toward Bob and away from the waving brakesticks, the gauntlet instruments of torture—"that my great personal joy at encountering so boon a friend again is increased by the protection obviously to be had in your position of authority."

Unashamed, Bob threw his arms around Potts in a mutual demonstration of affection. The brakemen, grinning knowingly in remembrance of Bob's pre-railroad days, withdrew in deference to his signal that he wanted Potts spared the ignominy and cruel punishment of the dreader "brakeman's gauntlet."

Arm in arm with Potts Bob strolled back toward his cab. The whistle of the Limited coming down the night breeze carried to both memories of old days together; and to Potts' reflections it added a tinge of regret, for he said:

"Ah, my friend, the end of my active career has come." The professor, patted his paunch wistfully for a moment before continuing; then, "You remember Spike's prediction that one day the increasing girth of my figure would interfere with my riding. That time has come, Bob—no longer can I successfully ride my beloved rods!"

Potts' actions and lugubrious words tickled Bob's risibilities, yet there was so much genuine pathos in Potts' manner that he refrained from laughter and preserved a sympathetic silence. Potts actually dashed a tear from his eye and stiffended his upper lip with a visible effort before concluding:

"I shall retire now, to live in the solace of Nature's splendour here in the mountains beside the tracks I love so well. I shall watch at the water tank on this siding for you, day by day, and always will be glad for an opportunity to exchange with you the philosophic salutations of gentlemen and scholars. And now, the Limited draws near—you will soon be on your way; I must be on mine at once, to reach the spot I have in mind. Therefore, adieu!"

Potts was gone now, into the trackside underbrush with the precision, if not the speed of a jackrabbit. Glowing with friendly feelings from the encounter, Bob sauntered to his cab and paused at the step to watch the high jinks of the millionaire roistering party on the observation platform of the passenger special. Bob's fireman had remained behind to gossip with the brakeman, so Bob was alone at the head of the freight.

A quick, nervous little scream split the calm night air—and seemed to snap some tense thing inside Bob. He looked whence it had come, and observed a woman, whose back was turned, steadying herself by holding to the side of the observation car with one hand, while with her other hand she was holding up and rubbing one ankle, which she had evidently turned.

The Limited was close now, and the woman, being on the trackside, was in a precarious position. Bob raced to her aid.

"Let me help you down to the rear of the car here, Madam—you'd get sucked under the Limited if you remained here—hurry!"

He picked her up and bore here swiftly to the safety of the space between the nose of the Limited and the tail of the special. Here, as he set her down, they looked into each other's face for the first time.

Recognition was mutual, instantaneous, and devastating.

"Bob!"

"My God—Jane!"

So this was the moment that all the uneasy premonitions of the night had been whispering of to him. He reeled under the stark tragedy of a buried and unlovely past projected with demonical irony into the happier warp of a living present; on this day of all days when he had known the lovely promise of Caroline's friendship. A taste of bitter ashes dried his tongue in his mouth.

"Bob!" the woman was saying. "I've hunted for you five long years. I love you more than ever—and now I've found you!"

She flung her arms around his neck and showered him with kisses that he was too stupefied to resist. Was that screeching in his ears the Old Witch laughing at him?—no, it was the Limited, thundering by on the main track.

Bob, dully looking up at the Limited over the head of the woman, which was drooped upon his breast through her encircling arms, had a fleeting picture of an open car door and Jim standing there looking down at him for a fraction of time, scant but all too revealing in that pale flood of moonlight.

The picture brought Bob to his senses. Had Jim seen?

Bob pushed Jane from him in distaste and anger, and, turning, strode toward his cab. The slight pain of her twisted ankle forgotten, she followed, insistent; plying him with questions that he ignored; with protestations of love at which he laughed.

A curt summons from the observation platform recalled her. She went, reluctantly there was nothing else for her to do, since Bob had mounted and disappeared into his cab and it was hardly possible for her to follow. The conductor of the special was calling to her:

"All aboard, Madam!"

He and one of the men from Jane's own boisterous party pulled her up to the observation platform.

"Conductor," she breathed, but low, "do you know the engineer of this freight train?"

"Yes ma'am, that's Bob Wilson. Do you know him?" curiously. Any thing relating to the mystery behind Bob was enough to revive and pique the latest interest of all Crater Cityites.

"Wilson, eh? Well—what you don't know won't hurt you, conductor."

In a hull the man withdrew into the now moving car. Jane was presently left alone on the platform with a chair and friend. The rest of their party had gone in to continue the merry-making.

"Say—do you know him?" said the girl, while Jane's eyes, glassy and cold, remained glued to the face that loomed but of the cab window of the big, power moving freight, from which they were fast pulling away.

"I'll say I do!" said Jane, her brittle laugh mocking the tone of the male voice. "How I've waited for this hour! And I'm going to see him again, you can bet—for that Bob is my Bob—my husband!"

The morning of the following day dawned purple and gold and fragrant and sensitive with the promise of the perfect June day. Bob, who had been up since four o'clock, was already out in the yard, with a bucket of hot water and a scrub brush, giving the old freight engine a thorough cleaning. He was whistling as he worked, and the fragrance from their bepetalled altar pods—the beginning of a perfect lover's holiday.

It was a day of the stuff that fair June days and young girls' dreams are made of; a day of such days as were appointed and ordained for youthful hearts when love first began and the world, too, was young.

But to Bob Wilson, hotly restless on the bed that had known no sleepful relaxation of his strong, heavy-masculine body throughout the short night; the light of the newborn day welling into his room could bring no glad awakening. It brought not quietude, but weariness; not eager anticipation, but dull and apathetic echoes in his aching head of the old words that expressed the sum and substance of hobo philosophy.

"What the hell's the use of anything? What the hell difference does anything make?"

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY HAS A PEEK INTO BELGIUM.

When Gocomeback, the travel elfin, found Betty sitting on the porch steps, broom in hand, with a scowl on her pretty face, he was astonished.

"Why, Betty, what in the world is the trouble?" he asked, sitting down on the steps beside her.

"Oh!" Betty exclaimed crossly, "Mama wants me to sweep and scrub the steps. That's always the way when I come home from school and want to play with the girls—she always finds something for me to do around the house."

"Was that all she asked you to do?" questioned Gocomeback. Then when Betty nodded, he laughed merrily. "My goodness, and you pouted at that. Gracious me! If you lived in— But, pshaw, let's go and you can see for yourself." And before Betty had a chance to even ask where they were going she found herself standing before a pretty little house in a strange country. "Here we are in Belgium," continued Gocomeback. "It's just about time for Zanda to come home from school. We'll wait for her. Maybe she can play with you."

Just then a dear little happy-faced girlie rounded the corner. She wore a little black pinafore and great, heavy-looking wooden shoe. She smiled and shook hands with Gocomeback and Betty.

"Betty came to play with you Zanda," said Gocomeback.

"I'm mighty glad to have you," laughed Zanda happily. "I will play after I get my work done. I don't know how it is in your great America, but here in Belgium we children must help with the work when we come home from school. After the work is all done, then we can play. Will you wait for me?"

Betty promised to wait and the little Belgian girl soon came from the side of her house in a blue dress and white apron, driving a little red cart filled with lovely fresh vegetables. To the cart was hitched a great big lovely dog.

"Will You Go With Me?"

"It won't take me long to peddle my vegetables," said Zanda. "Will you and Gocomeback go with me? Brother said he would drive the milk wagon around for me. Then I can play."

Betty and Gocomeback trotted beside Zanda as she went from house to house with her vegetables. Gocomeback tried his magic power on every one she called on, and when they returned to Zanda's house the little red wagon was empty, but it was so late there was no time to play.

Betty knew if she didn't hurry home it would be too late to scrub the porch, so she bid Zanda goodbye and she and Gocomeback hurried back to America.

"Gracious, I have no cause for complaint," she laughed, gathering up her broom. "I'm glad I live in America," and all the time she scrubbed Betty sang merrily, and before she knew it the work was done and she still had an hour to play before setting the table for supper.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A REMEDY FOR THOSE BORED WITH LIFE

Most every tourist visits the "Cheshire Cheese" in London. This famous old restaurant is known as a favorite haunt of Dr. Johnson and other well-known writers. Perhaps it was here the old Doctor observed that "he who is tired of London is tired of life."

I believe it was Sidney Smith who said people should live in the city, where bustle and noise are the rule. Under such surroundings calmness of spirit will be cultivated, because every knock at the door will not be feared as the summons of the death angel.

Was it Pope who said "the proper study of mankind is man?" There is a never-dying attraction about men, their movements, their activities, their schemes and plans. You must never lose your interest in the human family. Just as sure as you do you will begin to get bored.

One of the saddest things in life is to study an old man who has "retired" from business, given up his interest in local affairs and seated himself, waiting for the end. Fortunately, perhaps, the end is not far off for one who sets out to wait for it.

If you would live to be very old and to keep vigorous and sweet during your long life you must keep busy. Drones are no good to the hive and human drones are no good to the world. It never was intended by Nature that drones should have any sustained and safe place. The bees instinctively make way with their drones and Nature very unwillingly preserves the human drones.

I may be thought cruel and unkind to the old. I should resent such a charge, because no living man worships more sincerely at the shrine of the old. They hold my interest and affection always.

What I am trying to bring out is that these dear old friends cannot live and be happy unless they keep a grip on other human beings and continue to hold their interest in human affairs. Dr. Johnson had the idea when he said, "He who is tired of London is tired of life."

I don't care whether it is London or Suffern or Dexter or any other place. If you get tired of people and of their interests, you are tired of life. This means you are bored. When you get bored you stop breathing deeply and your heart loses its vigorous beatings. Your vitality grows less, your powers of resistance are lowered, and you are ready for pneumonia or some other serious ailment.

Keep your interest in life. Don't give up your membership in the clubs and societies you have honored all your days. Don't get tired of your surroundings. Go away for a few days and come back with new snap and energy to live your accustomed busy life. Die with your boots on!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 26.

Favorable conditions must be looked for in many directions, according to the prevailing lunar and mutual figures. All affairs may assume a lively and flourishing aspect, and there is some prospect of sudden change or travel. Increase of money is presaged and expansion in business. But guard the health and be prepared for some household anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is are under a fortunate sway for business expansion and increase of moneys during the year. There may be some unexpected change. They should guard the health and shun disputes and excitement. It may be that a sorrow may enter the domestic circle. A child born on this day may have very desirable and lovable qualities, although it may be excitable and high-tempered. It should make good success through its enterprise and initiative and rise to good position in life.

STREET NAMES

WELLER STREET

Charles A. Weller, a County Court Judge of the County of Peterborough, was born at Cobourg, March 20, 1820. He was educated at Cobourg and Toronto and came to Peterborough in 1853 immediately after he had been called to the Bar at the age of 23. He was appointed County Crown Attorney in 1858 and County Judge in 1866. Giving all his time to his duties as Judge, his life was comparatively uneventful. Judge Weller endeared himself to the profession by his uniform courtesy, his patience in hearings, and his absolute personal integrity. In court, he invariably waited until the last word on either side had been spoken. He brought to his task of judging a wide knowledge of affairs, a judicial mind and an appreciation of that which was equitable. Appeals from his rulings were infrequent. His judgments were received as the decisions of a just judge. He died on June 5, 1906, aged 86 years, and was buried in Little Lake Cemetery.

PHONOGRAPH IS RECOGNIZED AS AN INSTRUMENT

Eminent Musician Says That He Cannot Understand "High Brow" Attitude.

FAVORS MACHINE

All Music is Transmitted by Means of More or Less Machinery.

It is exceedingly interesting to have the expressed opinion of so eminent a musician as Sir Richard Terry upon the phonograph, and to find that his views are in every way favorable to the instrument.

Sir Richard was speaking at the first Gramophone Congress at Westminster, in London, England, recently. In the course of his remarks the speaker said that it seemed but the other day when everybody abused the phonograph, either as a mere toy, or an instrument without any soul in it. But in spite of this, the phonograph had gone on perfecting itself, and he was present as a representative of the musical profession in a penitential mood to apologize for the hostility or indifference which had been shown to a wonderful piece of musical mechanism.

How much music was there that did not owe its existence to the interposition of some mechanism between the composer and the performer and the musical public? If we were going to say that a sound-box was something wrong in itself, why were we making music all day by means of mechanical sound producers? If we conceded that the piano and the organ and the 'cello were musical instruments—not to mention the oboe!—why stop at the phonograph?

Sir Richard confessed he had always been unable to understand a certain "high-brow" attitude to the phonograph, but was glad to say that it was a passing phase, such as all new inventions met with, that was swiftly passing away. The difference between one musical instrument and another was not one of principal, but one of degree, and it was only a question of time when the phonograph would be recognized as a source of surest joy as well as amusement. He was glad to think that from the beginning he, personally, had recognized the possibilities of the phonograph, the future of which he believed was a great one. The phonograph had an educational as well as recreative value which could not but be increasingly recognized as time went on.

One by one all the leading musicians have come into line as recognizing not only the present musical value of the phonograph, but also its vast future possibilities, and it is pleasing to note that Sir Richard Terry has added his distinguished tribute.

BUSY PERIOD FOR FARMERS

Are Racing Against Frost in Garnering Their Crops.

Farmers of the district are racing against time and the frost that will soon wind up their major activities for the season of 1925. Already there have been sharp warning that winter is heading this way. Heavy white frosts have nipped the tenderer plants and foliage, and the winter constellation of Orion is rising earlier every night.

The busiest time of the farm year has caught the farmers in a complication of work. Some of the grain has still to be brought in from the fields, although this detail is practically completed. Buckwheat is being cut and attention has turned to the roots, especially potatoes, which in this district have provided one of the few disappointments of the year. Fall-plowing and seeding are under way, and meanwhile the threshing mills are humming. Corn is nearly all cut and stooked, and some farmers are turning their attention to the filling of their silos. And so it goes up and down the concessions everywhere, allowing scant leisure for the farmers and their helpers. Apple picking is only a light side-line in this district, but those who have orchards are gathering their harvest of fruit.

Nature has been opulent in its production this year and the horn of plenty—the cornucopia of symbolic abundance—is overflowing with a harvest that calls for a sincere thanksgiving.

BIG BEET CROP SOUTH ALBERTA

Beet Sugar Industry is Making Progress on Prairies.

GOOD YIELD

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press)—Encouraging reports concerning the sugar beet crop in the southern part of Alberta were given by W. V. Newson, deputy provincial treasurer, on the completion of an extended tour of inspection through territory where this product is rapidly becoming an important commercial factor.

Mr. Newson was primarily interested in the operation of the co-operative credit societies, four of which have been organized in the province to date. A total of $100,000 has been loaned to these companies for the purpose of financing the beet crop. Conditions were found to be very satisfactory, with every prospect that the loan will be liquidated within the specified time limit.

The new sugar factory at Raymond will be ready for operation early in October, Mr. Newson reported. Officials of the sugar company expressed themselves as highly pleased with the outlook for their Canadian branch and were convinced that Alberta beets will be the equal to the best across the line.

From the growers' point of view the first year's beet crop is expected to yield a profit of about $70 an acre.—There will be an average yield of at least ten tons of beets to the acre, and in some cases, it is anticipated that the figure will reach as high as twenty five tons.

FEAR OF WASPS PROVED FATAL

Man Died of Shock After Being Stung By Insect.

ORGANS HEALTHY

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—A remarkable case of a man's terror of wasps and the fulfilment of a belief he had for years that his death would surely follow a third sting by a wasp came to light at an inquest at Newport recently in connection with the death of William Robert Doney, 40 years of age, an employee in a gas works. "My husband had a terror of wasps," Mrs. Doney testified at the inquest. "If one came into the kitchen he would change color and want to vomit."

Doney has been stung twice by a wasp, continued Mrs. Doney, and he had said that the third sting would be fatal.

According to the doctor who made a post-mortem examination, Doney died from shock, following a wasp sting. There was a small puncture of the skin in the upper forearm near the vein. All his organs were healthy.

The doctor said he knew of only two cases of a fatal wasp sting, and in both cases the victims were stung on the head.

Asked if he could account for the man's apprehension at the approach of a wasp, the doctor said that a previous injection of a poison into the blood made the victim very sensitive in the future.

Commenting on the case, the Coroner said: "It is curious that a man like Doney, who looked a picture of robust manhood, and capable of standing any physical pain or disease, should be so abnormally constituted in some respects that the sting of a wasp had a lethal effect. That such a strong, hardy man should have died in this utterly mysterious and insignificant manner is something that the ordinary person cannot understand. He died as not one man in 10,000 would die."

A verdict in accordance with the medical evidence was returned.

SURVEYING BY CAMERA

Up-to-Date Methods Used in Mapping Territory in Manitoba.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—What is looked upon as a record in co-ordinating ground control surveys with aerial photographic mapping has been announced by the Topographical Survey Department of the Interior.

"Here is a large area in eastern Manitoba and western Ontario, lying east of Lake Winnipeg, of which very little is known. It was therefore decided to map a portion of this area this summer by combining aerial photographs with a ground control traverse. The method employed is to take the pictures and then have the surveyor use these for information as to his route, at the same time fixing points on the ground which show in the pictures in order that the correct dimensions of the area mapped may be plotted from the pictures.

WOMAN IS BUSY FROM FAR NORTH

Has Lived on Herschell Island Among Eskimos for Two Years.

FOR HUDSON BAY CO.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press).—"For over five months she had seen no darkness." So a reporter on the local press wrote of Mrs. M. Lyman, who has spent the last two years at Aklavik and Herschel Island. Mrs. Lyman signed up in 1923 to go north in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company. She was on board the S.S. Arctic Distributor when Judge Dubuc and party went up for the purpose of holding court at Aklavik. Mrs. Lyman received a radio message from Edmonton which had been sent December 28, 1924, on April 7, 1925. It had been picked up at Fort Good Hope by wireless and from there was relayed an by dog team. She received her Christmas presents sent by mail, July 4.

Strange as it may seem, ice is in great demand at Herschel Island. This, of course, is necessitated by the fact the sea water is unfit for either drinking or cooking purposes. In summer it is necessary to take a schooner and go out and chip pieces off the icebergs floating in the Arctic Ocean, and then melt it down for domestic use.

The Eskimos are very imitative, and in customs, manners and dress are rapidly becoming more and more like the people to the south of them. During the time she was on Herschel Island Mrs. Lyman made some 20 dresses for Eskimo women, all of the finest silk availab'e. She never once saw a father whip his child, but the children are well brought up and obedient

DRIFTED 27 HOURS IN CANOE ON LAKE ONTARIO

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy twenty years old. I am going out with a girl who is eight years older than myself. She does not look to be any older than I.

Do you think there is too much difference in our age for us to be happy?

ANXIOUS A. L.

ANXIOUS A. L.: Yes, Mr. A. L., I do think that the difference in your ages is rather important. Although, as you say the young lady appears to be very young, women as a rule age more rapidly than men. With age mcoe different tastes and interests—and marital rupture. However, if you are quite sure that your friend, despite the difference in age, shares your aims and ideals, and your love is mutual don't let anything stand in the way of your happiness. But before you take the vital step think the whole problem over carefully and clearly.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

For five years I have been going with a yound man three years my senior. I have also been going about with a young man I met during my years in high school who says he loves me and wants me to wait until he finishes college. I am very fond of both of them, but can't decide which I love best. BLONDIE.

BLONDIE: If you are equally fond of both these young men it is a sure sign that you are in love with neither, Miss Blondie! Love is much too personal an emotion to be centred on more than one person. I suggest, therefore, that you continue your friendship with both these young men, but do not give up your other interests. Make no promises now because you are not in a position to do so, but be cordial and friendly and wait until you really fall in love before you become engaged.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Colors

By HEDDA HOYT.
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (United Press).—Whenever a 'new' color is launched in the Fashion World, faddists accept it regardless of its becomingness and it is immediately killed by its over-popularity. So-called 'new shades' are usually very pronounced ones and they are usually more becoming to brunettes than to blonds or women with neutral coloring. Perhaps this is due to the fact that the majority of women have dark hair. At any rate, the woman with drab coloring must beware of faddish shades.

At present, burgundy red is featured for early Fall wear. Both the brunette and the very light blond can wear this shade well but the drab-toned person is completely faded in this red. There is not enough red in burgundy to flatter a pale complexion and it is not dark enough to offer a pleasing contrast.

Citron yellow is one of the new shades for evening. This also is a shade for brunettes. Even the vivid blond can not afford to deaden the shade of her hair by wearing so deep a yellow. There is a new soft green shade that is used for street wear which is very becoming to persons of drab coloring. Navy, brown, golden tans and black are all Fall shades which will become [illegible]. These are quite as [illegible] of the more faddish

Purples and violets, though somewhat overdone during the Summer, will be carried over into the Winter months. These are also good colors to beware of. One must have an extremely clear complexion to wear them.

Neutral shades are those which always last the longest. Light drabs prevail for coats and costumes matched by hats, shoes and hosiery. Being neutral, they will not become over-faddish.

SOME NEW CONVENIENCES.

It is the comforts and conveniences that are especially selected that give the homey touches to a house that makes it a real home. Our beds, our dressing tables, our table fittings are part of our well-being and homeness, so it is well to buy things with care that are to become mental props for a goodly portion of our lives.

For those who do not care for the more cumbersome cedar chests, yet want a protective place to stow things away from the ravages of moths, where they may be easily gotten at in case of need, the new cedar box bureau may appeal. This is a cedar box set in a bamboo frame thirty-two inches tall with the top that lifts to give access to the box Below there are three drawers in a row, one wide one in the center and two narrow ones. The entire [illegible] cretonne covered, which makes it a very good looking piece of furniture.

There is a wonderfully attractive cotton net that is hand-tied, ninety inches wide and in all the desirable colors, that is very attractive for [illegible] may be used length or width ways, and hangs wonderfully well. The settee shoe box is another cretonne-covered convenience and the top, when closed makes a good seat. Inside the box, are a number of pockets of the cretonne for slippers and fancy shoes, and the bottom of the box is baize covered to protect the shoes. Then, there is the plaything box that is lower and a little smaller than the shoe box, but it is also cretonne covered. Both boxes are mounted on casters. Another version of the bamboo framed box is the dress box that has three boxes with drop front covers that fit into the cretonne covered frame that are long enough to carry skirts at full length and a one-piece dress folded over once.

A novelty for nursery use that children will love is the gliding couch. This is a small sofa-shaped couch that glides back and forth in its frame like a low swinging standard hammock. It can be moved about readily and is heavy enough so that it does not tip over. The grown-up models are very effectively covered with block prints, new large patterned cretonnes and in the English chintzes. Next Winter, we are told, will be one of Spanish revivals and already the first showings of cretonnes and other coverings and draperies are showing the coloring and patterns of old Spain.

Individual pillows are a fad that has grown recently to an enormous extent. The pillows are variously shaped. The heart shaped one is restful for the shoulders when riding or sitting up in bed reading. The rectangular one is nice for tucking, under the head for special napping, the round one for a tuck pillow when nerves are keeping one awake, and the spare one is another tuck shape. The pillows are down, fine feather, cotton and kapok filled according to fancy. They are covered with close silk under cases, then have lingerie, chintz, silk or even velvet cases. Quite a new idea is to cover the pillows with covers fashioned from the small Persian cotton table covers paisley patterns in delicate colors that are very attractive the familiar palm leaf being the motif of the border, the circular center of the cloth on one side and the points shaped on the other side.

PLAIDS ARE FEATURED IN NEW FALL COATS

A Colorful Note Sounded for Between-Season Suits and Coats.

ANNETTE BRADSHAW

"There is something in the air which makes women choose plaid materials for their early Fall frocks and coats," remarked a smart modiste. She says her clients who have been choosing advance Fall models have shown a marked preference for colorful plaids.

It is expected that this Fall season will be an especially good one for plaids, and one can understand the liking for them when one sees the lovely plaid fabrics that are being shown in the shops.

Tan and wood brown shades will be figured prominently in the Fall plaids, it is thought.

An effective coat which exploits tan and wood brown on a lighter cream background is shown in the model sketched at the left. Brown fur makes a soft collar, and the same fur is applied more sparingly down the edge of the rippled jabot, where it simulates a fringed treatment, reminiscent of the popular shawl.

The street costume at the right exploits more vivid shades of red, green and yellow. The dress is finished with a fitted capelet of the plaid, while the vestee, collar and cuffs are made of cream kasha cloth and finished with a scalloped border.

We also see more subtle plaids than these, as in a plain mannish, double-breasted topcoat in a soft English fabric patterned with an imperceptible checked plaid.

The Coat on the Left is Fashioned of Tan and Wood-Brown Plaid, with Brown Fox Collar. The Dress is in Shades of Red, Green and Yellow Plaid.

BENDING TO BRING BEAUTY

By Lucrezia Bori

Have you not often envied the woman who handles her body movements with perfect grace and poise?

If you have never thought of this, you may not envy her. Sometimes grace of movement is such a subtle thing that we are hardly conscious that a person possesses it. She moves so gracefully that we do not think of it. It is the person who is clumsy in her movements who makes us conscious of every step she makes. If she crosses the floor with a cup of tea in her hand, for instance, we are mortally afraid she is going to stumble and break the cup and spill the hot tea on our new frock or hers. We rather hope it will be hers, for we feel that anyone who has not learned to move more easily deserves the penalty.

A great many young children move easily and naturally. Sometimes they lose this desirable characteristic as they grow older. This makes us realize that awkwardness of movement often comes from a certain brand of self-consciousness. This is to be avoided at all times. If we have others to think of, and our work or our pleasure or whatever is uppermost at the moment, we should not be bothered with self-consciousness.

However, a lot of us need limbering up before we can lose a certain awkward-looking stiffness that we may possess. For this reason I am going to give you an exercise which is excellent to limber your body and make you more graceful.

The exercise is as follows:

Kneel down on your right knee and raise your arms above your head, bending backward as far as you can.

Now bend forward, going down until your head touches the floor if you are able.

Repeat this, bending backward and forward alternately.

This exercise is simple enough and it brings almost every muscle of your body into play.

The type of heels you wear has much to do with the way you carry your body. I hate to see large women perched up on high, narrow heels. Study your type, and whatever you do, do not make the mistake of trying to affect a type that you are not. If you are not one of the small, bird-like women who can flit about in narrow, high-heeled shoes, do not imagine that you are. Be sensible, whatever you do, and dress according to your type. Choose shoes that are comfortable and suitable to the occasion.

WHY IS A HUMAN FLY? JOHN TOCHER EXPLAINS THE BASIC PHILOSOPHY OF THE DARE DEVIL

John Tocher in a trio of precarious positions. And in one of his quieter moments.

Auto-Suggestion the Key to Super-Human Stunts He is Convinced—His Experiences With a Fake Hypnotist—But He Won't Tackle One Type of Feat—Those to Which His Wife Objects.

Because he found his greatest pleasure in life was doing those things which other people said couldn't be done, John D. Tocher became a steeplejack and human fly.

He has climbed the outsides of some of the highest buildings in the world; ridden a bicycle around the edge of a twenty-two storey skyscraper, wheeled on a dirt track for twenty-one hours and forty-one minutes without stopping; made parachute jumps from an aeroplane; played the piano continuously for fourteen hours and has allowed as many as ten ordinary hatpins to be pushed through his cheeks, ears, hands and legs at one time.

Somebody said he would never find a girl who would consent to become his wife. But even that didn't stump him. He was married six weeks ago.

When a boy, back in his home town of Banff, Scotland, a cat went mad one day and climbed to the top of a fifty-five foot pole. There it remained for three days, slowly starving to death. A crowd gathered at the foot of the animal's lofty perch to devise ways and means of restoring her to a lower level. Climb up after her? It can't be done. It's too dangerous,, they said.

That was enough for little Johnny Tocher. He shinnied up the pole and the townsfolk gasped. On reaching the top he grasped the cat by the back. But puss, not recognizing him as her benefactor, turned and put a tooth through his thumb. The animal fell to the ground unhurt and scampered away, while Johnny forgot his injury as he listened with satisfaction to the plaudits of his audience. This, his first great hazardous adventure, was the beginning of his dare-devil career.

"And I have since proved that a man as well as a cat can fall fifty-five feet without being hurt," says Tocher to-day. "I did it last spring from a smokestack in Toronto—accidentally of course. I went to a hospital for four days, but there was nothing the matter with me. It was only for an X-ray examination."

Since he has made his profession that of a Canadian daredevil. Tocher has performed his human fly stunt on twenty-three buildings, of three to five storeys in height, in different parts of the dominion and the United States. He has climbed seven skyscrapers over ten storeys, including the Metropolitan tower, New York, Wrigley building, Chicago, Philadelphia city hall and the Dime Savings Bank, Detroit. His great ambition now is to climb the tallest building in the British Empire, which is in Toronto. If he does it, it will have to be when the police aren't looking, for the authorities have placed a ban on flirting with death in this manner.

"But it is perfectly safe," says Tocher 'as long as one is careful and doesn't lose his nerve. And I haven't lost mine yet. Why, when I'm on the side of a buiding and I know there is an undertaker watching me in the crowd below, I look down on him with the greatest of contempt, for I know that he will never get me until I die a natural death. When I was doing a human fly stunt in Kitchener, not long ago, a garbage man parked his cart directly underneath me, when I was about half-way up. I heard the crowd yell that it was a bad omen. I suppose they thought that it was ten chances to one that it would be needed to carry off my remains. But I fooled them and just kept on climbing, incidentally giving them a few extra thrills now and then by pretending that I was slipping.

Giving Real Satisfaction.

"In the same city I rode a bicycle around a two-foot coping on the top of a bank building. After I got down somebody said that I couldn't walk along the edge of the same structure with my eyes blindfolded. I had never tried the stunt before, but I wasn't going to be beaten. I not only walked, but I put in a few dance steps and handsprings for good measure."

When in Winnipeg some time ago Tocher took his first trip in an aeroplane. He went up in the machine but didn't come down in it. When his pilot had taken him to a height of 2,000 feet he got the idea that he would like to jump, figuring that he would be just as safe as where he was. He had never heard of any person voluntarily taking a parachute leap on their first time aloft. Perhaps it was one of those things that people said couldn't be done. It was worth trying.

He tapped his pilot on the shoulder and made known his intention. And after feeling for his aerial life-preserver to make sure that it was still firmly strapped on, he climbed from his seat and scrambled along the left wing of the plane. A pause to take a deep breath, and he leaped. A few seconds later he thought all the bones in his body were broken, when the parachute opened. "I looked down and when I saw the earth rushing toward me it gave me a bit of a scare, just enough to make me keep my head up. Perhaps it was the first time I was really frightened, but I soon got over it. The next week I went up again and jumped, just to prove to myself that it hadn't got my goat."

Tocher claims that all his death-defying stunts and endurance tests are done as the result of auto-suggestion. "I just make up my mind that I am going to do a thing and I concentrate on it. Then I go ahead and do it. If I have a single doubt as to the outcome, I abandon the attempt."

He applied the same psychology to his job while working with a so-called hypnotist, who is well-known in Canada. Tocher was the subject for the act. He played his part well, pretending to be under the influence of his mystic employer. While under an alleged sleep he was told to make his body rigid. He was then placed with his head on the back of one chair and his feet on another. Four heavy men were called from the audience and they sat on his light frame. How can he do it? He really must be hypnotized, people murmured in the theatre. But Tocher was quite conscious of all that was going on. "There was no fake to any part of the act," says Tocher. "I really had to hold up that weight. But it is not so difficult. Most people could do it as long as they concentrated on keeping their body perfectly rigid."

With a Fake Hypnotist.

Then while he was still supposed to be under this famous hypnotist's power, he allowed the latter to push ordinary hatpins, which were gathered from the audience, through his cheeks, ears, the skin of his neck, hands and legs. It was a very gruesome and painful act, but a convincing one from the standpoint of his employer.

"Did it hurt? You bet it did. The first night, after I went back to my hotel, I could hardly sleep, my nerves were shaking so badly. I would never have done it, but I was broke at the time, and forty-five dollars a week looked like big money."

Tocher stayed for five months, taking as many as ten pins in his body at each of two performances a week. He still bears the scars where he has been pierced.

But those days are gone forever. Tocher is now employed in saner pursuits. His adventuresome spirit has made him a first-class steeplejack with seven trades-Bricklayer, carpenter, painter, roofer, caulker, rigger and sign painter—and he is going to stick at these legitimate occupations.

"But of course," says Tocher, "I have still my ambition to climb the tallest building in the British Empire, though my wife objects to me going back to my human fly stunts. Will I go against her wishes? No; that's one thing that can't be done."

MOVIE MAGNATE BELIEVES THAT STAGE WILL LIVE

N. L. Nathanson Believes Legitimate Drama Has Future.

(By Celluloid—From Toronto Star)

N. L. Nathanson, general manager of Famous Players Canadian organization, is the only moving picture magnate in the world who recognizes the claims of the "legitimate" theatre, in the way that he does. Some movie men say the drama is dead; some that it is second-up to the screen; a few admit that the stage has something to offer that the screen has not and never can have. But Nathanson is the only man of control in the screen industry who when he accords the stage a great vitality for the future as well as for the past does it in a way that makes a stir in the box office.

But what does a moving-picturist know about plays? Much, little or nothing, as he is built. Nathanson is an organizing show-man, who if there had been no moving picture industry would have become a drama producer or an impresario of music, or of something else.

What he said to The Star about stage and screen and a few other things was occasioned by his recent return from Europe where he has been all summer.

Movies Need Better Stories.

"After a vacation have you any fresh ideas about American film production?" "Yes; I think too many pictures are produced, without enough regard for the story, the drama, the life. Personally, I believe in building up picture interest, theatre interest, show interest. You can't do that with hokum pictures or promiscuous sex films and slam-bang music. The claim of the moving picture must be established in its fidelity to life and its inter-relation to good music.

Trans-Canada Bookings, Limited.

That brought him to the subject of the "legitimate."

"Trans-Canada Bookings, Limited," he said. "That's the title of another link. The legitimate theatre; the British actors?—why London is full of them.

"But what has a screen expert to do with that?"

"All a matter of being showpeople," he said. "English actors have never been given a real chance in Canada, though some of them make money here and some of them lose. Martin Harvey made a good-sized fortune in Canada the last time he was here and dropped every nickel of it in the United States, where they couldn't understand him. We understand English actors; as a rule, Americans don't. We understand a certain type of American play and actors, and the English don't. A George M. Cohan play goes here when White Cargo, for instance, is a dud, and on Broadway a winner. There is such a thing as theatrical temperament, and Canada has it. And from the near future on there will be an effective chain of theatres from Montreal to Victoria, featuring British plays by British companies. Simple enough. The great lack in the past has been theatres. You can't work a play company on a few nights in Kingston and then a long Pullman haul to heaven knows where. We have the houses, we have the people who appreciate British plays and actors, and we're going to have the circuit. Mr. Lawrence Solman, the dean of theatre managers in Canada, is the head of the concern; and we shall have information about what's coming very soon."

Drama Nowhere Near Dying.

"So you don't evidently agree with those who say that the screen is strangling the drama?" "Obviously —not. Why, you can't kill drama. It's as old as the human imagination. The screen is only a juvenile to the stage. And the stage can't hurt the screen either. Each helps the other, so long as the best in each is busy at the game."

In the four big football leagues of England, 1,848 matches were played last season. Of these, 1,007 —more than half— ended in victory for the home team. By way of contrast, only 375 victories were recorded away from home—roughly, one in five games—while 466 matches — one in four — were drawn.

WOMEN VISITED PRINCE'S RANCH

"Not a Dude Ranch After All" Seemed To Be Verdict.

GREAT SURPRISE

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 23.—(By Canadian Press).—Members of the Canadian Women's Press Club, resident here, helped to entertain the wives of seventy-five rural editors, touring the Province. Every women was on the Qui vive to see the Prince's ranch house. This is how a C.W.P.C. member, Mary Armitage, describes the feminine reaction. "Not a dude ranch, after all," seemed to be the general verdict.

The ranch-house was an additional surprise, particularly to the women of the party, one of whom was on the editorial staff of the Women's Home Companion. "And does the Prince really sleep here?" they asked, gazing in keen disappointment at the simple brass bed, no coronet, plumed nor trailing velvet canopy. "But where is his swimming pool?" asked one anxious lady, frowning at the business-like shower with its little iron grating as a drain in the floor. "That little box stove, is that the way you heat the room?" was the horrified question of one dainty questioner—the prince had taken a terrific tumble from his pedestal for her. "He is a darling just the same," she added as she paused before a beautiful executed drawing of the Prince on one of his favorite horses. "Does he read nothing but Canadian books?" another puzzled lady asked, and well she might for there were piles of them—the prince receiving them on every mail from well-meaning authors. "I'll never see the same back home," breathed one energetic lady, as she lowered herself into the prince's own chair at his very own desk, and proceeded to cover a ream or so of note paper with her "Impression."

The story of the Dartmoor ponies, however, almost put the prince back on the pedestal. "Bless his heart!" they breathed fervently when they heard the tale which they will doubtless retell. "The prince, noting that the ranch children had many long miles to walk over prairie trails to school and noting also that their little fat legs stuck out from the sides of the tall horses they rode when these were obtainable, immediately thought of Dartmoor ponies, running wild on the big Devon moor in England, of their rugged qualities and large endurance, of how they would probably take to ranch-life and what a boon they would be to the ranch children of Alberta; in consequence they appeared in short order on the 'E.P.' and many a ranch child has had cause to thank the prince in his or her little heart for the kindly act, at the same time an ideal polo pony is developed, in an undreamt-of way."

POOR BLIND MAN REMEMBERED IN BENCHER'S WILL

Had Stood for 42 Years Selling Laces Near the Middle Temple

WEATHER PROPHET

Strange London Character Always Listening to Recognise Footfalls

". . . And I leave £10 to the poor man, Robert Griffiths, for many years standing daily at the southwest gate near the Middle Temple Library."

The poor man at the gate has been remembered in the will of Mr. T. W. Brogden, a Bencher of the Middle Temple, who died last April. He also "remembered" Catherine Lye, his laundress, and Thomas O'Connor, the Middle Temple head porter.

For 42 years the "poor man" has stood in his accustomed niche down the alleyway leading to Essex-street, listening to the footfalls that echo in this quiet place from daylight to dusk.

Robert Griffiths is blind. But through all these years he has never murmured against his lot. He is known to thousands as the strange London character who stands against the wall selling matches and bootlaces from a little glass case, which he carries to the spot daily.

He looks a picture of contentment and patience, with his head slighly thrown back, his well-worn weather cape over his shoulders, and the habitual attitude of listening, as though for some footfall that never comes.

"SEEING" BY HEARING.

"I know people who pass me by their footsteps," he said, "and I can tell many of them by name before they have gone by, because I am so used to hearing the regular ones walk past. I can tell a stranger by hearing him walk."

Mr. Griffiths says that his lot is by no means without cheer. "Many stop and talk to me to pass the time of day and ask me about the weather." He has a keen weather sense, having spent so many years in the open air, and can give a 24-hours' forecast with considerable accuracy.

When a youngster he lost his sight through illness, and he took up his pitch near the Temple Gate, never realising that he would stay there so long as to become one of the personalities of the neighborhood.

Griffiths is a well-educated man, and rather reserved. He recalled his benefactor as one of the many customers who invariably stopped and chatted with him. He has already sent his thanks for the little "windfall" which came so unexpectedly down the alley.

DOCTOR'S MISTAKE CAUSES DEATH

Dock Laborer Undergoing Cancer Operation, Collapses on Table

How a doctor's mistake in the administration of chloroform led to the death of a dock laborer who had to undergo an operation for cancer of the cheek was told at a Liverpool inquest.

Dr. Edward John Foley, of the Brownlow Hill Institute, said that the patient, John Curry, aged 52, underwent the operation last Thursday. He administered ether by the open method and Curry became unconscious. "I then changed the anesthetic to chloroform," he said, "by means of Junker's apparatus as the man was emerging from the ether.

"The apparatus consisted of two tubes, one being applied to the nostrils and the other attached to a bellows with a bottle in between. I tested the apparatus a few minutes before the operation and it was all right.

"It was necessary to connect the apparatus up in a hurry, and the tubes were wrongly connected, the result being that the chloroform liquid was passed into the man's nostril instead of through the bottle, in which it would have been vaporized."

It was stated that restorative means were tried for 15 minutes after the heart had stopped, but without avail.

Medical evidence was given that Curry's heart was in a bad condition, and he was liable to collapse. "Death from misadventure," was the Coroner's verdict.

WOMEN'S HATS NOW HAVE MEN'S SIZES

Madame Will Just Ask for a Six and Five-eights

Compelled by the shingling, bobbing and Eton crop fashions to make smaller hats for women, the leading manufacturers have decided to make women's hats in what have come to be known as "men's sizes."

No man who has seen a saleswoman compelled to put a hundred hats before his wife before she finds one to suit will regard this as another incursion of woman into man's domain. "A seven and one-eighth, please, in a sky blue felt" will narrow down the search considerably. . . .

"There was never any general use of hat sizes for women until they reduced their measurements," a reporter was informed by a firm of manufacturers of women's hats, "although the circumference in inches was often used as an index."

That a size as small as 5¾ should be registered—smaller than men are ever known to ask for—is stated by the hatters to be because women's heads are smaller than men's. The 5 size is for the woman who still keeps all her tresses.

Pointing out the advantages of the new system, a London hatter observed: "It makes it easier for women to order hats by telephone!"

BOBBED HAIR MAKES WOMAN'S AGE MORE PUZZLING THAN EVER

For obtaining a half-price railway ticket by representing herself as 16, a woman of 20 was fined one pound at Linsdale, Bucks.

"In these days of short skirts and bobbed hair it is not easy to tell whether a girl is 17 or 30," commented a solicitor.

QUEEN WAS MISSED AT WEMBLEY PARTY

Went Off to Search for Pink Sapphires in Ceylon

USE CABLES

Abdul Cafoor Sought in Vain to Match Rare Coloring

Enthusiastic crowds who suddenly missed the Queen from the royal party when, with the King, she toured the British Empire Exhibition for five hours, little realized what very feminine reason had taken her away.

She had gone in search for two pink sapphires to match one of rare coloring in a ring she was wearing especially. So she left the King to enjoy the more masculine joys of Canadian expresses roaring along through model Canadian plains and lakelands while she sought Ceylon.

Here she displayed the ring, and there were frantic efforts to match it for her. Everything failed. Then someone remembered that in Abdul Cafoor's special safe of his most valuable gems there were many sapphires. But where was Abdul Cafoor?

He could not be found. The Queen rejoined the King in the Canadian Pavilion and everywhere her eyes sought for the flash of a pink sapphire. But Abdul Cafoor was the only hope. After an hour of delight in the Australian and New Zealand and Malayan sections the Queen was inspecting grain in Southern Rhodesia's pavilion, when a swarthy and smiling little man in a fez rushed in, with an excited bodyguard, from Ceylon. It was Abdul Cafoor, and he had brought the sapphires with him.

TO BE CABLED FOR.

Standing beside a bin of corn the Queen looked at them with sparkling eyes. Not one quite the right pink, nor quite the right size.

"I will show you," said the Queen, and bared her hand. "Ah!" said Abdul Cafoor, and bowed and laughed. It could be done. They would be cabled for and in the Queen's hands within a week or two.

"And you will not forget the size," said the Queen when she shook hands. "Your Majesty, the size is all important," said Abdul.

MILL IS STORMED BY GIRL STRIKERS

Riotous Scenes at Bradford During Textile Strike

Ugly scenes marked the textile strike at Bradford. Stones were thrown, a girl was stunned, and two policemen were slightly injured before order was restored.

The strikers disregarded the instructions of their union officials that certain mills should be allowed to work, and a crowd of 200 girls marched to the Barkerend Mills demanding that the operatives should come out.

When this was declined the girls became angry, and bricks were thrown through the windows. One struck a girl working inside, knocking her unconscious.

The mill doors were then forced, the mob of girls got inside, and a free fight ensued.

When the police arrived, summoned by telephone, one of them was seized and thrown violently on the ground, and another was also injured, before order was restored.

At the mills of Messrs. Garnett, Greengate, Bradford, an exciting incident was the rescue of a policeman by his colleagues when a hostile crowd tried to throw him into the mill dam.

Altogether 130,000 workers are now involved in the strike.

WOMAN EXECUTED IN IRISH PRISON

First Hanging of Woman in Ireland in Twenty-five Years

Mrs. Annie Walsh, aged thirty-one, and her nephew, Michael Talbot, aged twenty-three, were hanged in Mountjoy Prison, Dublin.

They were found guilty of the murder of the woman's husband, a farm laborer, at Carnane, Co. Limerick, and each accused the other of the deed.

Both went to the scaffold praying, but Mrs. Walsh was nervous and faltering. No woman has been executed in Ireland for twenty-five years.

James Winstanley, a young Wigan miner, was hanged in Walton Prison for the murder of Edith Wilkinson, a barmaid, who was his sweetheart. Winstanley strangled her, and at his trial at Lancaster in May insanity was unsuccessfully pleaded in his defence.

His two brothers, Tom and Arthur Winstanley, rode twenty miles on their bicycles to the prison in the hope of a last interview. They arrived, hot and tired, at the gates at 8.15 a.m., but, as the execution took place at 8 a.m., they were too late.

At a cost of £105,612, Belfast contractors are to build 200 houses in Dublin within a year.

For 70 years Mr. C. Spriggs has been a tenant farmer of the West Wycombe estate.

To her servant, Ada Woolridge, Mrs. Mary Irvine Ormond, of Aberdalgie, Bournemouth, has left £1,500.

DEADLY SNAKE IS SWEPT ASHORE AT BATHING BEACH

Boy Picks Reptile Up But Visitor Decapitates it With Sandspade

A KRAIT

Believed to Have Come from Bombay Liner in Thames

Hundreds of people sitting on the beach at Leigh Beck, Canvey Island, scattered in panic when a deadly Indian snake, four feet in length, was swept ashore by the tide near the Pavilion on a recent afternoon.

Many bathers were in the sea at the time, and when the snake was sighted they made for the shore in great alarm.

The reptile, it was later discovered, was a krait, one of the most venomous snakes, that will strike on the slightest provocation.

This species is believed to be the cause of more deaths than any other snake in India, and, in its native haunts, does not hesitate to enter houses. Allied to the cobra, its upper parts are bluish or brownish black, with narrow white streaks; the rest of the "body" is white.

It is suggested that the snake may have belonged to a passenger on a liner homeward bound from India, and that it may have escaped or been thrown overboard.

The P. and O. liner Ranpura arrived at Tilbury Docks from Bombay that afternoon, but no report has been received there by the company's officials concerning such an incident.

BOY'S PERIL.

One theory is that the snake may have been taken secretly on board a liner by some passenger at Bombay, and dropped overboard as secretly in the Thames in order to get rid of a troublesome pet.

A boy on the beach, in a spirit of bravado, seized the reptile at the water's edge, but it was immediately struck from his grasp by a visitor who, having spent several years in India was aware at once of the lad's peril.

Seizing a sand spade from another child, he attacked the snake and chopped off its head.

The beach crowds, their fears so promptly allayed, gathered round the "corpse," and congratulations and thanks were showered on the man whose alertness probably prevented a tragedy.

GEORGE ROBEY PAID 700 QUID WEEKLY

Famous Comedian Highest Paid Star in England

Mr. Henry Ainley, the actor, who is generally quite serious when he is playing, but frequently not so serious when he is not, said, in an address to the City of London Teachers' Vacation Course that in the days of the Roman Empire "one Roscius made as much as £31 a performance, which is more than I or Owen Nares get today."

It would be an unusual engagement in which an actor or actress was paid so much a performance; the usual arrangement is a weekly salary, presumed to be based upon the "box-office worth" of the individual concerned.

A big star in musical comedy or revue is sometimes guaranteed so much money per week, plus a percentage of the gross receipts.

Mr. George Robey is probably the highest-paid artist in this country. When he last appeared at the London Hippodrome he was reputed to be drawing £700 a week for twelve performances a week — nearly £60 for each performance. Dan Leno (who always insisted on being paid in Bank of England notes) never got more than £250 a week.

Theatrical earnings are never stable, for they cannot be estimated on a 52 weeks per annum basis, but fortunes have been made by a number of actors and actresses. David Garrick left £120,000, Mrs. Siddons £35,000, Charles Kean £35,000, Sir George Alexander £90,000, John L. Toole £79,000, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree £44,000, and Edward Terry a like amount.

SPELLING TEST FOR MORE THAN BOYS

Employer Tried it on Scholar So Director Made Retaliation

How an employer "floored" a schoolboy with a spelling test, and was "floored" in his turn, was told by Mr. A. T. Flux, Director of Education for Erith, speaking at the annual meeting of the Association of Education Committees, at Central Hall, Westminster.

A departmental manager of a large firm, he said, asked him the other day to send him an intelligent boy for what would be ultimately a responsible position.

A day of two later he met the manager, who asked, "Do you teach spelling in your schools? That boy you sent me could not spell. I only gave him one sentence, nearly all one-syllable words, and he made two mistakes." The sentence was:

"Hugh, will you see whether it is a wether or a ewe that the weather has driven under a yew of the deepest hue."

As an ardent gardener, he (the speaker) asked the business manager to spell fuchsia, and he spelt it "fuschia." (Laughter.)

CROWNING THE ROSE QUEEN IN WALES

ECCENTRIC POET HAD FOUR TONS OF BOOKS IN ATTIC

Sonnets and Sovereigns Found in Sealed Rooms at Brighton—Strange Habits of Man Who Wore Several Overcoats at Once and Who Offered Manuscripts in Payment of Bills

The strange habits of a well-known figure who lived in Brighton and Hove until his death, 18 months ago, were revealed when two rooms which were sealed on his death were opened within the last few days. The man's name was Herbert Lionel Percival Treherne.

One of the rooms is an attic in a house in Brighton, and the other room is in a house in Hove. Treherne lived in the attic at Brighton and called the Hove room his "office."

While search was being made for relatives both rooms were sealed. After a long search, the only living relative, a woman of 60, a cousin, in Illinois, U.S.A., has just been found, and a solicitor with power of attorney is now trying to wind up the old man's affairs.

BOOKS TO THE CEILING.

When the Brighton attic was opened the room was found to be packed ceiling high with books of all descriptions, dealing with all kinds of subjects. Some were in handsome bindings, many in paper covers, and others in no covers at all.

In a corner of the room, wedged between the stacks of books, was a bed in which the old man slept. There was no bedding, and it was piled with old coats. These Treherne would wear in the day-time—he used to wear two or three overcoats even on the hottest summer day, and would use them instead of bedclothes at night.

In a corner under the dormer window were a few dilapidated cooking utensils, the remains of meals, an old paraffin stove, and a few oddments hanging on a line.

SONNETS AND SOVEREIGNS.

Strewn about were poems which the dead man had written, and mixed with them were dozens of letters, some from high personages, acknowledging the receipt of the dead man's poems with thanks. More than one of these letters came from Royal secretaries.

When the removers began to sort the things, they found an old bag containing sovereigns and a few half crowns under the bed, two bankbooks, and securities.

A similar state of things, so far as the piles of books were concerned, was found in the room at Farm road, Hove. Apparently Treherne had collected so many books that he had to rent the other room in order to have somewhere in which to store them. Altogether there were four tons of books.

HIS PAPER CURRENCY.

Treherne, who is believed to descend from an old London publishing family, was 54 when he died. He called himself an advertising agent. He was chiefly known in Brighton and Hove, however, by reason of his eccentric appearance. In addition to a number of overcoats, he wore thick leather leggings and carried a large umbrella and a large bag. In the bag were books and poems. He was not only a poet but he wrote songs and apparently he had written a great deal of verse.

He was an educated man with a cultured voice.

He had a liking for chemists, and one of his weaknesses was to buy dozens of packets of cough lozenges.

One of his whims was to endeavor to impress upon tradespeople that, while he was willing to pay his bills, they would be paid far more generously if, instead of cash, they would accept some of his works in manuscript.

THOUSAND A YEAR AND GOT A DOLE

Absurdity That Law Permits Revealed in Court

New light was thrown on the dole scandal by a summons which was heard at Tower Bridge Police Court, when Francis Freeman, of Neptune street, Rotherhithe, was charged with making false representations.

It appeared that Freeman was a grocer, with a business of his own, "Freeman's Stores." Notwithstanding this fact, he not only applied for the dole on his own behalf, but signed an application in his wife's name in order to procure the dole for her and also for his two children.

He represented himself in this application as "a motor driver unable to obtain work," but he admitted in court that he had done no motor driving since 1921.

The magistrate (Mr. Tassell): Surely a man with a business of his own is not entitled to draw the dole?

Mr. Pratt (for the Ministry of Labor): Yes, if he works at some other occupation.

Mr. Tassell: Then a man making £1,000 a year in a business under management could draw the dole if he was a motor driver out of a place?

Mr. Pratt: I am afraid so.

Freeman was sentenced to a month's imprisonment on each of the charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

BISHOP FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

The Right Rev. Herbert Gresford Jones, Bishop of Kampala, from 1920 to 1923, and now vicar of Pershore, Worcestershire, was at Winchester fined £10 for driving a motor-car in a dangerous manner.

It was stated that the bishop drove his car at Headbourne Worthy, Hants, from behind a traction engine and caused an accident to Andrew Rodaway, who was driving a motor-cycle and sidecar.

Rodaway's leg was broken. He was carried into Court on a stretcher, which was placed across the benches used by counsel.

It was urged that the bishop, who appeared in person, was guilty only of an error of judgment. There was no wilful negligence.

Colonel Simmons (chairman): I suppose this is the bishop's first offence.

BRIDE'S FORTUNE PROVED A MYTH

Glasgow Man in Court on Non-Support Charge

The story of a marriage romance, in which golden dreams were somewhat rudely dispersed, was told in Glasgow Sheriff Court.

Said to have married his wife believing that she was worth £25,000, Robert Turner, a hammerman, was then charged with failing to maintain her.

Mr. Regnard, inspector of poor, said that it had been reported that the woman was heiress to a Canadian soldier who had married her during the war. On her husband dying she announced that he had left her a fortune.

That proved to be a myth, however, and it was not long before quarrels arose between her and Turner. The latter had not supported her for six months, with the result that she became chargeable to the parish.

On Turner offering to pay 15s a week the Sheriff continued the case for sentence until November 7.

MYSTERY WOMAN GIVES GOLD AWAY

The mysterious woman in Brighton who has aroused much curiosity by her gifts of £30 10s to the Royal Sussex Hospital and £36 10s to the Queen's Nurses Fund, in sovereigns and half-sovereigns, has not yet reached the end of her supply of gold, apparently.

She called at the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children, in Dyke road, while the staff were at luncheon, and dropped a packed in the letter-box which was found to contain 67 sovereigns and 4 half-sovereigns. In the envelope was written on a small piece of paper: "For the children from an old lady."

She also visited the Sussex Maternity Hospital, in Buckingham road, in a similar manner, leaving there an envelope containing 42 sovereigns and 3 half-sovereigns, and a note stating that it was a woman's gift to the hospital.

Other Brighton hospitals are now eagerly anticipating a visit from the woman, who has left no clue to her identity. Her gifts now amount to £179 in gold.

Reaching out his stick Charles Giles 70, a Nuneaton old-age pensioner, pulled a drowning boy to safety.

ROBERT FARMAN STILL CARRIES ON OLDEST BUSINESS

Basketmaking Firm in Norwich Has Existed Over Eight Centuries

SON FOLLOWS

Suggestion That Another Family Record Dates Back 2,000 Years

A be-spectacled old man in a rush hat, an old black suit, and golf stockings pulled over the legs of his trousers, stood absorbed in the task of making a turnip basket in a little barn at North Walsham, fifteen miles from Norwich.

He was Mr. Robert Farman, head of the basket-making firm which holds the extraordinary distinction of being the oldest business in the world. Eight hundred and seventeen years ago another Robert Farman was making a basket in the same way in the same village, and so, through the ages, heedless of wars and plagues, and death, the little business has been handed on from father to son in unbroken succession.

To Mr. Farman his astounding family history is but a legend. He is not an inquisitive man, and has never delved deep into ancient records for his family's history.

"Oi have never troubled," he said with a broad Norfolk accent. "Oi have always known that we Farmans dated back a long toime. But it was only recently that we kept a family Boible. My grandfeyther was in the trade, and so was his feyther. Oi learned to make a basket along of moi feyther, just as my son learned along o' me.

"Why, we people did not know how to write years ago, so how could we keep records? We were not like the nobility. My ancestors could not read. I have heard that for generations in our family we were basket-makers."

THATCHERS.

Mr. Farman employs two men. He hopes to retire shortly, and his son, Robert William Farman, has already taken over the thatching side of the business. He travels round England thatching cottages, and employs nine men.

He, at all events, takes an interest in his family record, and marks his advertisement pamphlets, "Established twelfth century." He, too, has his house in North Walsham.

The interesting suggestion that there is in England a family whose connection with one trade goes back more than two thousand years was made by a Norwich archaeologist with whom was discussed the Farman record.

"I have heard it said," he remarked, "that there is a family in England whose menfolk have always been flint knappers. They were, I believe, originally at Brandon, in Suffolk, where there was once a large flint industry.

"Where they are now I cannot tell. Perhaps they have died out."

TITLED LADY OWES FOR PERSIAN RUGS

Antique Dealer Ordered Out of House by Lady Beecham

An action against Lady Beecham to recover the price of two Persian carpets valued at £425 was brought in the King's Bench Division.

During the hearing of the case, mention was made of the Chancery proceedings between Sir Thomas and Lady Beecham concerning the furnishing of a house in Grosvenor Square.

Mr. C. T. La Quesne, K. C., for Messrs. Roffe and Raphael, a firm of antique dealers, said the prices of the carpets were originally £300 and £250, subject to a discount of £125. The discount was allowed on the understanding that Lady Beecham paid cash. Payment was not immediately forthcoming, so Mr. Roffe sent round a representative and two workmen to recover the carpets.

They were not allowed to take them away, and on the following day Mr. Roffe went round himself. Then for the first time, said counsel, Lady Beecham mentioned the name of Sir Thomas. Mr. Roofe said he wanted either the cash or the carpets, and was ordered to leave the house.

Mr. John Cohen, manager of the company, said he waited for Lady Beecham in the hall of her house. Her secretary came up and said, "You are in the way." Mr. Cohen said he would have to wait, and the secretary pointed to the door, telling him to clear out and saying that if he did not go he would call a policeman. Mr. Cohen replied that he must remove the carpets. The secretary then said, "In that case you can wait."

Lady Beecham said the carpets were still in the house. She would pay for them, if her husband would not. Judgment with costs was given against Lady Beecham.

FIND GOLD HOARD IN MISER'S HOME

Gold and silver and securities worth £273 were found hidden in most curious places in a ramshackle house in a poor part of Southampton.

It was occupied until recently by an eccentric family named Rimer. Father mother and son lived in apparent poverty. They died in turn, and have been buried as paupers. The last, Philip Rimer, died recently.

A small piece of rough board was found to be hollow. It was shaken, and a stream of gold fell on the rubbish that littered the floor. Layers of silver coins were in a box underneath clothes and books, with the Bible on the top.

Mr. Frederic Graham Hughes has been appointed secretary and treasurer to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty.

BRISTOL'S GRANNY WHO HAD OUTLIVED ALL HER CHILDREN IS DEAD.

Bristol's oldest inhabitant, Mrs. Mary Jarrett, known familiarly as "Granny," has died in her 105th year.

She outlived all her children, and her descendants number over 100. When the King and Queen visited Bristol in June they congratulated the old lady on her age.

TRIPLE MYSTERY CENTRES AROUND KILBURN HOUSE

First Husband Disappears Whilst Free on Heavy Bail

WIFE ROBBED

Now German Cook Found Poisoned at Foot of Stairway

Dora Sternlicht, a German cook employed by Mrs. Leon Tauber, of Brondesbury Park, Kilburn, has died in the Willesden Hospital from poisoning.

This is the third mystery centering round Mrs. Tauber's house in the course of a few weeks.

Mrs. Tauber's husband was arrested in May in connection with thefts of furs valued at £7,000 in the City, and appeared at the Mansion House Police Court. He vanished, however, after being released on £2,000 bail. The magistrate accordingly estreated the bail which had been provided by four of his friends.

Some time after his disappearance a letter was received by the City of London police, in which the writer stated that Leon Tauber was innocent of the charge, that he had lost his money and his friends, and had come to the conclusion that the only way out was to end his life.

NOTE FOUND.

Clothing supposed to belong to Tauber was found on the beach at Brighton two days later, and in a pocket was a note for Mrs. Tauber. The body was never recovered, however, and the City police still hold the opinion that Tauber is alive, and probably in Amsterdam.

A robbery occurred at the house in Brondesbury Park last week while Mrs. Tauber was asleep in the garden. The thieves forced open the back door with a chisel and carefully selected the articles which they took. The jewellery was valued at £1,500. A reward of £150 has been offered.

The woman Sternlicht was found a few days later at the foot of the stairs in great agony. She was at once taken to hospital, but efforts to save her life were futile. No suspicion of foul play is attached to the woman's death, which is said to be due to spirits of salts.

It is believed that recent events at the house agitated the woman. Sternlicht was about forty years of age, and, it is understood, lived apart from her husband. She had been with the Tauber family for a considerable time.

RENT CHAIRS TO THEATRE QUEUES

Profitable Business Made Outside of Popular London Theatres

One of the most profitable occupations in London at the moment is that of the men who hire out chairs to people waiting in queues outside theatres.

The chairs are hired out at 6d. each, and at one West End theatre which is playing to crowded houses eight times a week the chair-merchant arrives at every performance with a lorry full.

His average clientele is 200 each performance, thus making about £5 a time.

The financial outlay is not great, and a theatre commissionaire said yesterday that this man makes on an average a clear profit of £30 a week.

Many other men in the same business are making from £15 to £25 a week, though, as another commissionaire said, the living is a precarious one because each man has his allotted theatre, and if that should be shut or should produce a failure he cannot go round to another and interfere with another man's trade.

WILLS FORTUNE TO AID NATION'S DEBT

Sir Wilson Mappin Made Big Request to Treasury

A big bequest to the Treasury towards the reduction of "the National Debt incurred for the purposes of the recent war" is the outstanding feature of the will of the late Sir Wilson Mappin, of the famous Sheffield firm of Mappin and Webb.

Sir Wilson Mappin, who died on June 8, aged 77, was a Justice of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire, the City of Sheffield and Derbyshire, a former chairman of the Sheffield Gas Company, and a liberal supporter of the hospitals and other philanthropic institutions in Sheffield.

His estate, so far as at present can be ascertained, is of the gross value of £466,338.

He left legacies to many old servants, his moors at Moscar and White Path to his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Withers, Thornbury estate and contents of the mansion to Lady Mappin for life, and at her death the trustees of the Mappin Art Gallery to have the choice of pictures.

After making certain provisions for Lady Mappin, his daughter, and other members of his family, he left all the residue of his estate to go towards the reduction of the National Debt.

CURZON CHANGED "LAST TESTAMENT" NUMEROUS TIMES

Disposition of His Property Seems to Have Worried Him

COMPLEX WILL

Announces Belief in Aristocracy But No Vanity

That Lord Curzon changed his mind many times with regard to the disposition of his property is revealed by the numerous alterations to his will, which is lodged at Somerset House.

The various documents, exclusive of the "Literary Testament"—not lodged with the will—comprise a very considerable bundle. Many of the documents have whole paragraphs scored out, others altered in pencil and in black and green ink, while complete pages of typewritten instructions have been crossed out and the contents rewritten on the back in ink.

There are many cross-references and marginal notes, so that a particularly careful scrutiny of the maze of instructions is made necessary for a complete comprehension of his intentions.

Several notes indicate that he had given away certain things before his death, while he had lent others, which were to be returned in some cases and retained in others after his death.

The family tiara, together with the badge and riband of the Order of Nova Scotia, is to be returned by his widow. The tiara is made up from the Kedleston family jewels.

A smaller diamond tiara, made from the family jewels, in the form of a wreath, is to revert to the owner of Kedleston. At present, says a note signed "C.," it is in the possession of "Grace C.," and was worn by "M. V. C."

The gross value of the estate is returned at £354,894 1s. 10d., the net value of the personal estate at £242,785 13s. 11d., and the following reasons are given for the formation of the Kedleston trust for the maintenance of the estate:

It is from no motive of pride or vanity that I desire to keep the Kedleston estate intact, and the mansion with its contents well cared for; but because, attached as it is, a high value to the survival of the landed aristocracy of Great Britain, and believing that they may still continue to be a source of stability to the State, I desire that my family, which has owned and resided at Kedleston for over 300 years, shall continue to live there and maintain the traditions of a not unworthy past.

I have sought to assist my successor in doing this with dignity, but without extravagance. Should I leave a son he will be the natural heir of these traditions, and my wife will, I know, assist him to carry out the ideas which I have described. Should I not leave a son, or should the Kedleston estates pass into collateral hands, I trust that future owners will equally acknowledge the obligation.

JEWELS FOR LIFE.

Directions for carrying out instructions of his first wife are contained in the following paragraph:—

In her will my first wife provided that certain of her principal jewels should be held by me upon trust during my life for our three daughters, to be distributed by me among them either during my life or upon my death at my direction. Except in so far as I may have allotted any of them before my death, I distribute them as provided in a paper lying at the top of my jewel trunk now in the custody of the Bank of England, Burlington-gardens. But if they like to make an exchange among themselves they are at liberty to do so.

I bequeath to my wife the whole of the remaining jewels owned by me and not otherwise disposed of by this will, even if I have made a different disposition of them in the paper referred to.

Accompanying a "List of jewels belonging to M. V. C. and C." is a "Long rope of pearls of fine orient with two small diamond ends, 142 pearls. Total weight 1,500 grains," valued at £11,000.

This item is marked, "Given to Cin. on her marriage, 1920," referring to Lady Cynthia, who was married in 1920 to Mr. Oswald Mosley, the former Independent Conservative M.P. and now a member of the Labor party.

The original and supplementary wills were found in a box in Lord Curzon's bedroom. The supplementary will he wrote just before his operation, on ordinary notepaper, at No. 1, Carlton House-terrace. Other documents were on the Privy Council notepaper.

Shorts From Courts

Man fined ten shillings at Willesden: I have no money, but I will leave you my watch and chain. Magistrate: We are not in that line of business.

Clerk of Highgate: What is your real complaint? Wife who had complained of her husband's cruelty: I want some money.

Tottenham man accused of being drunk: I was provoked.

Man at Tottenham with a bandaged head: My wife did it. She ragged me and I said I wouldn't have it, and she said, "Take that."

Willesden magistrate to a girl: You are single. Don't you imitate the wildness of these married women.

A street hawker who appeared at Highgate gave his address as Colney Hatch Asylum.

Southwark man: She accuses me of being at work, and I have not done any for two years.

North London wife: He struck me in the face with terrible force, loosened all my teeth, and blackened my eyes, and that is more than my husband does.

Magistrate at Willesden: Do you want a separation? Wife: We have had one for the last ten years. My husband lives upstairs and I live downstairs.

Willesden woman: I own I called her a crafty old cat. Magistrate: Such language is not used, I believe, in the highest circles.

MODERN BED ROSE TO PRESENT FORM BY VARIOUS STAGES FROM RUDE MATS USED BY ANCIENTS

Britons Slept on Skins or Fleeces Laid on Floors.

NORMAN CHANGES.

High Bedsteads Were First Used in the Times of the Tudors.

Biblical records show that the Israelites slept on mats made of rushes, interwoven, or of plaited straws. According to Isaiah the Prophet, the mat or bed was "shorter than a man can stretch himself on it, and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it." Later they spread quilts containing hair, hay or some vegetable fiber over these mats. Coverlets were luxuries afforded only by the rich.

The poor slept in their day-clothes, wrapping cloaks around them for outer clothing.

Due to this practice is the precept, "if thou at all take thy neighbor's raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down; for this is the covering only, it is his raiment for his skin; wherein shall he sleep?"

In Winter, some spread skins over the quilts and used them also for coverings, but sheets were unknown. But all the beds of those days were not simply of rushes and straws, for there were the "beds of gold and silver" which were set upon pavements of red and blue and white and black marble, and the "beds of ivory" to which Amos referred. Others had "feet of silver," as the ten beds sent to Eleazar, the high priest, while others still were made "of purple and gold, and emeralds and precious stones interwoven," and from the wood of the cedars of Lebanon, as the beds of Holofernes and Solomon, respectively. So, after all, the luxurious bed is not a modern production.

Romans Had Feather Beds.

Each nation in turn seems to have followed the practice of the Jews. As civilization advanced, skins and rushes were laid on wooden bedframes raised a few inches from the ground, the covering being a woolen cloak, light or heavy, according to the season of the year. It was to remove the discomfort caused by these that sheets were introduced. With a taste for luxuriating on the increase it was but natural that the people of the great powers of pagan times should find recumbency the most blessed state, and to this no doubt the various couches used by the Babylonians, Assyrians, Egyptians and the Romans may be attributed.

The bed-couch was of course the most important. That of the Roman was raised so far from the ground that a short step-ladder was necessary to enter it. The couch was made of rare and inlaid woods; its ornamentation was done with ivory, mother-of-pearl, bronze or silver. It rested on pedestals of gold or silver that were joined together by wooden or metal side-pieces on which the mattress lay. Each side had a distinct name, the inner side being known as the pluteus and the outer side as the sponda. The bed had two mattresses, one for each occupant, but the use of these dates only from the time of Scipio Africanus, who brought several from Carthage.

The feather bed was introduced first by the Romans and the air-cushion by Heliogabalus. The air bed, however, was not introduced until the sixteenth century, and the feather bed did not come into popular use in England until the reign of Henry VIII, 1509-1547. The first bedding of the ancient Britons consisted of deer-skins or fleeces, which were laid on the bare ground around a peat fire. In the daytime the bedding was piled in one heap against the wall. It was not until Anglo-Saxon times that sacks of straw displaced the skins and fleeces. But the skins were still used in Winter for covering, and coarse sheeting for the Summer time.

First English Bedstead.

The Anglo-Saxon bedchamber, or "bower," as it was called, also served as a private sitting room. The Normans, like their predecessors, slept at night on beds of straw, raised from the ground and fitted with testers, or canopies, from which curtains hung. About half a century later the wealthier of the Normanized English turned from beds of straw to beds of down and substituted Turkey rugs for coarse sheeting as coverlets. Probably the greatest changes in the English bed were made in the Tudor period, when in England bedsteads were first made with high sides and footboards which fitted into grooves, so that the bedding might be spread and not slip. At this time the beds of down were laid upon a layer of straw or rushes which give rise to the practice of searching the straw of the King's bed with a dagger "that there be no untruth therein." The bedsteads of that period were immense, that of Henry VIII measuring eleven feet square.

The great bed of Ware, one of the curiosities of England, celebrated by Shakespeare in his "Twelfth Night," dates from Tudor times, and accommodated no fewer than twenty-four persons. This bed is an existing type of the grand old "four-poster," the pride of the English housewife. Its massive posts were plain at the base and surmounted by four pillars elaborately carved, which supported four arches, the total height being about eight feet. The canopy and the head of the bed were firmly carved, the latter with human figures, fluted work, heraldic roses and Gothic arches.

German Bed Cost $400,000.

English state beds have always been costly, massive creations, gorgeous with trappings of velvet and plumes. As much as $40,000 was paid for one of these in which James the Pretender was born. But this extravagance was not restricted to the English, for in the palace at Munich, Germany, there was before the war a state bed which cost no less than $400,000. Its trappings are of dark crimson velvet richly embroidered with golden cord.

The characteristics of the old German bedstead were its extreme shortness and lack of breadth. It was a short wooden case over which was laid a mattress that, although it extended full length, sloped half way at so great an angle that bodily rest was next to impossible. Elder-down quilts were the chief bedcovering. In some parts of the country blankets were altogether unknown, and sheets only were used, the upper sheet being sewn on to a thick unquilted bag of feathers. The modern German bedstead is made to strict military measure, and in it the occupant can seldom lie at full length, his feet usually overhanging some inches.

At the London Exhibition of 1851 a couch was shown which tilted its occupant out at any desired hour, but perhaps the prettiest and most agreeable of these contrivances was the bed made by a Bohemian mechanic in 1858. This musical bed played one of Auber's gentle airs when it was pressed by a tired body, and thundered forth a clashing march at the time the sleeper desired to be awakened.

The most elaborate bedstead ever seen in Russia was that presented by Czar Alexander II to the Shah of Persia. It was made of solid crystal, "resplendent with silver ornaments, and mounted by steps of blue glass"; in the centre it had a fountain for perfumed water.

The beds of Marie Antoinette and Napoleon Bonaparte, both creations of the eighteenth century, were beautiful specimens of art and are still preserved in the Palace of Fontainebleau.

Corded Bedstead Once Popular.

The American bedsteads that came over on the Mayflower were examples of the standard four-posters of England and were surmounted generally by a tester or canopy. In the Colonial days a change took place in bedstead making. The uprights were no longer clumsy posts that gave a heavy, sombre appearance to the room. They became slender, delicately turned stocks that gave the bed frame an air of elegance and refinement.

At one time the old corded bedstead was popular. It consisted of a bed frame without slats, these being replaced by a cord laced back and forth from end to end and from side to side, forming a net-like pattern. On this arrangement a straw bed was put instead of a mattress and over that a quilt or feather bed. With the introduction of the slat bedstead its corded predecessor passed away.

Until a year ago, when it was destroyed by fire, there was a folding bed in the possession of W. H. Gannet of Augusta, Me., which it is asserted was over 200 years old. This bed was described as a combination bed and wardrobe. There were no springs or weights to lighten the weight when the bed was to be drawn up. When closed it formed a wardrobe, the feet of the bed standing out like two arms. The wardrobe was not enclosed with wood, but a curtain was drawn around the extended feet above and at the lower part of the bed, thus forming a curtained wardrobe. The contents of the wardrobe had to be taken out, but the curtain could be left in place when the bed was let down for use.

WISH HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND

Labor M.P. Criticizes Present Methods of Dealing With Scottish Bills.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press Despatch).—At a demonstration in favor of Home Rule for Scotland Thomas Johnston, M.P., gave a graphic description of the experience of the citizens of Glasgow and of neighboring districts before a Parliamentary Committee sitting at Westminister to consider a Bill which these Scottish authorities were promoting in Parliament.

"To London there came flocks of witnesses," said Mr. Johnston, 'Doctors lawyers, town clerks, engineers, burgh surveyors, education officers—expert witnesses, one of whom got £250 for an hour and a half in the witness-box. These men, engaged at so much per day, were housed in great hotels in London. On the committee of inquiry there was no Scotsman; there was only one man on it who had ever been in Scotland. There they sat for months in the Westminister Committee Room along with a flock of over twenty advocates, some of them at £1000 down—cash on the nail; a retainer it was called—and £40 a day as a refresher. There they were, twenty of them, with wigs and gowns, spinning the thing out—"Oh, Lord, let it last a while." At the end of it all nobody was satisfied. Neither the promoters nor the opponents believe they had got justice."

Mr. Cunningham Graham — "Surely the lawyers were satisfied?"

Mr. Johnson—"No, no, not yet. One member of the Committee told him that the costs up till now were over £200,000 and it was not finished. The bill was only through the House of Commons Committee. The lawyers declined to accept the decision of that Committee, and the bill was now to come before the House of Lords Committee. Before four or five peers, who might never have been in Scotland, the whole farce was to be gone over again. What a waste. What an insult to a proud and intelligent people," exclaimed Mr. Johnston.

BREECHES FIND GOOD DEFENDER

Mrs. Fleming Tells of Joy She Finds in Wearing "Breeks."

FEELS BETTER

TORONTO, Sept. 25—(By Canadian Press).—A feminine correspondent of a local paper, living in a small place, recently, spoke her mind on the, to her, unseemly habit of women appearing in men's clothes. She was ashamed that she was a woman, she announced. Isabella Osborne Fleming, of Todmorden, Ont., answers her and says:

I may state here I have not bobbed my hair—partly because it is nice hair and partly because it is less expensive to keep it as it is—but I do wear breeches, and have done so for three years, and no words can tell of the joy and beauty those breeches have brought me. I am married and have a home to keep in order—a trying job sometimes, you will admit—but when I begin to feel tired and ready "to fight with my own shadow" I don my "breeks" then I am able to go into the bush, or up to the summit of hill-top. Had I a skirt on I could not do these things, because I undoubtedly would be in tatters ere I reached the first fence. When I return I can pick up the thread of my work with renewed strength, clearer vision and a greater tolerance of the foibles and weakness of human nature. Very often my husband goes with me on my tramps and what a great cameraderie is ours. I think if the objectors once donned breeches and felt the joy of open spaces they would forget this hypocrisy and mock modesty about such petty things as our clothing and the way one's hair is cut or worn. After all, it is the soul that matters, is it not?

I.O.D.E. MEETING.

57th Regimetnal Chapter Has Business Session at Armouries.

A meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the officers' quarters at the Armories yesterday afternoon, the Regent occupying the chair.

It was decided to hold a tea and sale of home-made cooking and fancy work on Thursday afternoon, October 8th, in the officers' quarters at the Armories, and on Armistice Day, a bridge party and afternoon tea will be held in the same rooms.

As many as possible of the members of the Chapter were asked to attend the annual district meeting of the I.O.D.E. to be held in Norwood on October 1st.

Mrs. Fred. Hooper, Regent of the Peter Robinson Chapter, was present, and gave an interesting report of the annual meeting of the National Chapter, held in Ottawa in the first week in June.

They will be assisted by several expert assessors.

POTTERYMAKER HAS DIVERSIFIED TASTES

Miss Anna Preston is Author of Two Good Books.

CLARKSON, Ont., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Anna Preston, who took first prize at the Canadian National Exhibition for glazed pottery with a finely executed design of a drake, and second for a decorative bas-relief in clay, is an example of the artist of diversified taste. Beyond taking a three months' course in pottery at the Technical School in Toronto, Miss Preston has been practically her own teacher. She has known the perilous fascination of watching her own pottery in her own kiln—and wondering, on one occasion, whether the house would burn with her experiments. Anna Preston is the author of two books showing imagination, "The Record of a Silent Life" and "The Glory and the Dream," both having been published some years ago by Huebsch of New York. Her father, Sydney Preston, has not written of late, but two humorous books, "An Abandoned Farmer" and "On Common Ground," are known to booklovers.

Ernest Thompson-Seton used to roam the woods of Lorne Park and Clarkson and many of his natural history observations deal with life in the district. Today, Miss Mazo de la Roche lives in a woodland setting for part of the year but writes her stories of the human drama. Her new book, "Delight", will be published shortly by the Macmillan Company of New York. Her one-act play "Low Life", which won the I.O.D.E. competition this year, will probably be seen at Hart House this season.

WOMEN BETTER WHEN DESERTED

In Many Cases They Do Better, Says Pension Board Officer.

CASES CITED

TORONTO, Sept. 25—(By Canadian Press).—"I would say that deserted mothers applying for pension average one a day," said John M. McCullough, secretary of the Mothers Allowance Commission. "Of course the mother must have been deserted five years before she is eligible for a pension.

"Yet, I think the woman is often better off without the man. At first she may feel the financial strain, but I think it must often be a relief to be rid of him."

That there is an intensely interesting side to the work of the Commission is shown by the notes interspersed in the statistical records of Miss Dorothy Farncombe, chief investigator. "Here is an interesting case," she remarked, "The mother was the first to go on our list. She had been drawing an allowance of $35 since 1920 when her husband died. She is keping boarders and this brings her in about $40 a month. In addition to her allowance of $35. She has been doing a little sewing and laundry work too, and she has been so thrifty that she has been able to have plumbing arrangements installed in her home, and she has also installed a pipeless furnace, paying a little each month on it. She goes off our list soon as she is to be married." Often the allowance proves a great tonic for nervous mothers. To the remotest parts of the province the investigators in Ontario penetrate. To go fifty miles after the end of the railway is no new thing for officials in isolated districts.

THICKENED MOSUL MYSTERY IS CAUSE OF HOT COUNCIL SESSION WHEN RUSHDI BEY EVADES ISSUE

Colonel Amery Insisted That Comission Should Investigate.

TURK REFUSES ANSWER

Violent Manifestation Results—Chairman's Pounds Table Vigorously.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—The Mosul muddle thickened last night during a dramatic session of the council of the League, which M. Loucheur, as president, hastily adjourned after an outburst of disapproval from those present against the attitude of Rushdi Bey, head of the Turkish delegation, on the question of the deportation of Christians.

The committee of the council had introduced a resolution, which subsequently was unanimously approved, authorizing the despatch of a special league commissioner to the Mosul area to examine the British charges that Christian Chaldeans were being ill treated and exiled by the Turks, the Turkish counter charges that the British had occupied points held by Turkey, and in a general way to keep the council informed of any incidents liable to endanger peace.

Colonel Amery, British Secretary for the Dominions, insisted that the commission should not only have the right to pursue his investigation south of the Brussels Line, which is occupied by the British, but also in the narrow Mosul strip north of that line, occupied by the Turks.

Rushdi Bey evaded a clear answer; whereupon Colonel Amery repeated his statement, saying: "I think Turkey should make perfectly clear its attitude on this important point."

Rushdi Bey replied that anything north of the Brussels Line was Turkish; hence, anything touching the treatment of the population there became a minority problem which was not concerned with the main Mosul dispute.

Again Colonel Amery put his question, demanding an unequivocal yes or no, but again the Turkish delegate refused to answer, saying he could only repeat his previous statements.

Murmurs of disapprobation arose from various parts of the hall, rapidly merging into a violent manifestation. M. Loucheur vigorously pounded the table and called for order. Immediately thereafter he announced that the debate was closed and the resolution adopted.

"Great Britain, having accepted for the south, the council hopes that the Turks will do the same for the north," the presiding officer somewhat caustically remarked, then quickly adjourned the session.

After once more denying the deportation of Christians, Rushdi Bey brought fresh charges against Great Britain. One was that an Irak band, after committing atrocities, had attacked a Turkish post north of the Brussels Line. A second was that fifty persons of all ages and sexes, escaping from the oppressive rule of the British forced occupation, had taken refuge in the Turkish zone. A third charged that a band of 500, including Assyrians, commanded by British officers, was preparing to attack the Turkish posts.

Colonel Amery informed the council that about 8,000 Chaldean Christians had been deported by the Turks. Rushdi Bey retorted that the Nestorians who had abandoned Turkey, were working treacherously against Turkey on the British side. He demanded the appointment of a special commission to make an investigation of the military situation and of all incidents which had occurred since the signing of the treaty of Lausanne in 1923. But the council declined yesterday to take action on his proposal.

BOOTLEG RING HAD BIG TRADE

Took Orders For 4,800 Cases of Scotch in One Day.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press).—A big bootleg ring, uncovered by raids here, took orders for 4,800 cases of Scotch whiskey, worth $240,000, in a single day. Thirteen men regarded as members of the ring were arrested by Federal agents and police in two raids on the offices of pseudo real estate firms. With the records of large liquor purchases in Rum Row, the police found several $1 bills torn in half. On parts of the bills that matched were such notations as "500 cases" and "1,000 cases." The rum-runner sent out from the shore presented half of the torn bills to the skipper of the rum ship chartered by the syndicate. The skipper had the other half of the bill and the runner got his liquor.

PIONEER WOMAN TELLS OF WEST

Miss Hannah Taylor Left Ontario for Winnipeg in 1872.

LIVED ON BOATS

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Hannah Taylor, 82, and her brother John 85, visiting in this city, have tales to tell of pioneer life in the west when they forsook old Ontario.

"My brother and I left home on April 29th, 1872, and arrived at Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, on May 26. I was on the first passenger train to Brackenbridge which is situated where the Red river rises. From there we went down the Red river on a fleet of flat-bottomed boats. On that voyage there were 33 people, 30 men and two other women as well as myself. We women cooked for the whole party during the journey.

"For six weeks I lived on a pontoon of boats strung across the Assiniboine river. I also stayed at Fort Garry with a Hudson Bay family during all the time the grasshoppers were in the country. We lived near the parliament buildings—a log cabin in those days." Miss Taylor spent eleven years in the west during which time she lived for several years on her claim in Dakota. She has adopted and raised two girls and four boys and gave them their start in life.

CANADA'S OLDEST MINE TO REOPEN IN NEAR FUTURE

Wright Mine Was First Discovered in Year 1686.

GOOD LEAD ORE

First Metal Was Taken Out By Mr. Wright in 1870.

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—(By Canadian Press).—The romance woven around Canada's oldest mine, 250 years old, which has been lying dormant for many years on the shores of Lake Temiskaming, Northern Ontario, is about to be shattered by the march of progress and the demands of the financial world.

This mine is known as the Wright mine and is a lead proposition of a high grade nature. It is now the property of Noah Timmins, president of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and will be worked it is expected, this winter. Lead has taken a sharp advance lately, which makes the Wright mine an attractive proposition.

It is very favorably situated as regards transportation, power, and other mining facilities. It lies within a few miles of the village of Ville Marie on the Quebec side of Lake Temiskaming and almost opposite the town of Haileybury.

The mine was discovered in 1686, but nothing seems to have been done about it until 1850, when E. V. Wright of Ottawa, chanced to come upon the mineral in a novel way. He noticed, when he took off his boots at night, that bright pieces of metal adhered to the calks and so he took a piece of the ore to Ottawa with him. About 1870 it occurred to him to have the mineral assayed and the result was such as to create considerable interest.

Shortly afterwards, Mr. Wright, accompanied by J. M. Currier of Boston commenced work. They sunk a shaft about 12 feet, from which they took out ten tons of lead ore, which they shipped to the market.

Nothing further was done until 1885, when Geo. Goodwin also of Ottawa, and G. P. Brophy, Ottawa, sank the shaft 50 feet further, but no ore was shipped as a result of this work.

Robert Chapin of New York acquired the property about 1890 and established the first air compressor in Canada. Later the Petroleum Trust of London operated the mill and shipped concentrates to Swansea. Timmins-McMartin bought the property a few years ago. The future of this mine will be watched closely by mining men, especially as it will open up a country that up to now has received scant attention from prospectors.

KIWANIS HEARS OF VOCATIONAL SCHOOL VALUE

D. A. Campbell, Director of Technical Education, Was Speaker.

TOLD OF GROWTH.

Number of Schools and Pupils Has Greatly Increased in Recent Years.

D. A. Campbell, Provincial Director of Technical Education, was the speaker at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held at noon to-day, and his subject was vocational education.

Mr. Campbell pointed out that vocational education is not a new thing although the term has come into wide use only recently. The present courses offered in the collegiates, such as the teachers' and matriculation courses, are vocational courses, as are also those offered to doctors, engineers, and other professions at the universities.

Without criticizing the present academic courses, these were declared to be inadequate as they did not offer the special types of instruction required by various elements in the community. For this reason commercial, industrial and technical education were advocated. These new courses provide a good education in the fundamentals of the academic course such as English, mathematics, history, science and geography, and substitute drawing, art and shopwork in the place of the optional subjects such as the classics and moderns.

The growth of technical education is shown by the extensive building programme carried on in the Province. The following cities and towns have either separate technical schools or have technical departments in connection with the collegiate departments: Windsor-Walkerville, Chatham, Sarnia, St. Thomas, London, Fort William, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie, Haileybury, Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Toronto (4 schools), Weston, Galt, Owen Sound, Guelph, Kitchener, Ottawa and Renfrew.

The legislation dealing with grants for technical education was explained by Mr. Campbell. It was pointed out that Dominion grants were provided for a period of ten years, of which six have already passed. Liberal Provincial grants are provided for communities to enable them to provide buildings and equipment and to assist in the maintenance, such as paying teachers.

The method used in technical schools is that of closely associating the book work of the class-room and the shopwork. This is the same method as is followed in the teaching of science in the collegiates, which associates class-room work with laboratory work. The same method is used in teaching medicine, where lectures and clinical work are associated.

The speaker concluded by quoting Dr. Charles Eliot, President-emeritus of Harvard University, who said, "This combination of book work and shop work is the most perfect education that the world has ever seen," and by giving figures to show the increase in technical education in the last four years. The number of technical school pupils, full time, on the roll in 1920-21, was 2,600; in 1921-22, it was 5,344; in 1922-23 it had reached 6,958, and in 1923-24 the total was 9,153.

DEANERY MEETING ANGLICAN CHURCH

Eighty-two Delegates Here For Annual Gathering at St. Luke's.

The annual deanery meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church took place in St. Luke's Church yesterday, with an attendance of eighty-two delegates from the four churches of the city and from the district, including ladies from Hastings, Havelock, Lakefield, Otonabee, Campbellford, Norwood and Roseneath.

Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector of St. Luke's Church, took charge of the Communion service in the morning, assisted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave of St. John's, Rev. I. K. Hughes of St. George's, and Rev. Robt. Cox of Lakefield. An inspirational address was given by Rev. R. C. Blagrave.

Dinner was served to the delegates by the ladies of St. Luke's Church.

Mrs. J. P. Archer of Campbellford, president of the Deanery, presided over the afternoon session, which was featured by an address given by Mrs. Archer's brother-in-law, Dr. Archer, a medical worker in India, at present home on furlough. Dr. Archer spoke entertainingly on the work done in India.

Reports were given by delegates from various sections, and Miss Minty of Toronto, one of the Diocesan members of the Girls' Branch of the W. A., gave a splendid talk on "What it means to be a W. A. Member."

The election of a Deanery president for the ensuing year resulted in the naming of Miss Emily Denne.

PART OF DETOUR IS ELIMINATED

Highway is Open to Traffic From Old C.N.R. Track.

COBOURG, Sept. 25.—A change was recently made in the Grafton-Cobourg detour. A part of the C.N.R. roadbed is being utilized. The road is not up to a good gravel one by a long way but it shortens the distance to Cobourg. Going west traffic goes on the C.N.R. at C. H. Mallory's crossing, and leaves it at B. J. Mallory's crossing. From the latter point, the highway is used into Cobourg.

Paving on the Provincial Road has now been completed as far east as J. S. Cornelius' farm.

The road is now being torn up farther down.

The Grafton-Cobourg bus is now on the route between here and Cobourg.

A Canadian Press despatch says that a World's Poultry Congress will shortly be held in Canada at a time and place yet to be fixed. A Worlds Poultry Congress is held every three years, the first being held at the Hague in 1921, and the second at Barcelona, Spain, in 1924.

NO BLAME ATTACHES TO HOSPITAL STAFF

So Coroner's Jury Finds After Probing Death of Phillip Taylor.

TORONTO, September 25. — "We find that Philip Taylor came to his death on September 9, 1[illegible], at the Ontario Hospital for the Insane, as the result of violence from the hands of Peter MacKenzie, another patient at the hospital. The jury further finds that no blame can be attached to the staff of the hospital."

Above is the verdict brought in by a jury sitting under Chief Coroner G. W. Graham at the Morgue. Evidence was to the effect that MacKenzie was subject to delusions and hallucinations. The delusion that was the prime cause of the death of Taylor was that Taylor was plotting against him, and intended to burn him and drown him.

Dr. Donald Fletcher of the hospital staff, said the deluded patient confided this fancy to him afterward.

Taylor was struck with the leg of a table while he lay in his bed in the dormitory of the hospital some time after ten o'clock on the night of the 9th September. MacKenzie was suffering from dementia praecox and showed no homicidal tendency previous to the fatal assault or acted in any way which would indicate that he was dangerous.

Superintendent Testifies.

F. Vrooman, Superintendent of the hospital, stated in evidence that it would not have been possible to have MacKenzie locked up. MacKenzie and Taylor had slept in beds next to one another.

"This case would not lead us to make any change, sir," Dr. Vrooman said when questioned as to patients' care by Dr. Graham, "in the usual procedure at the hospital." He expressed the opinion that there would be innumerable suicides if such cases were locked up, and Crown Attorney Eric Armour, K.C., agreed that such confinement would be a reversion to the old treatment now done away with.

Mr. Taylor was formerly a resident of Peterborough.

FRANCE OFFERS

funding negotiations reach a settlement, leading bankers said to-day.

The total of American investment abroad, exceeding $10,000,000,000, approximates $90 per capita, and is more than double the currency in actual circulation, within the country.

Since the close of the war $5,000,000,000 in public loans have been offered to American investors. A fresh flood of loans is in the offing should the war debt tangles be straightened out, financiers believe.

PARIS, Sept. 25—(United Press). —France asks no moratorium of America in settling her debts, Stephane Lausanne cabled Le Matin.

A moratorium, declared this noted writer, is all right for a vanquished nation or a bankrupt. France is "neither beaten nor bankrupt, but is poor," and can make only extremely reduced payments, he said.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Ginger-bread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Three Regular Veterans Out of Game With Injuries.

ATHLETICS LOST

Sisler's Sluggers Tied Score in Ninth and Win in Eleventh.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Washington yesterday clinched its second consecutive American League pennant. The champions took the first game in 10 innings, 4 to 3, and captured the second, 6 to 2.

The pennant was clinched with the crowd in the grand stand apparently unaware of it. As the last out in the second game was made, the fans drifted calmly out of the park with only the usual demonstration accompanying a victory.

For the last three weeks Washington had held a commanding lead in the race and the ultimate result was more or less taken for granted here.

The champions made their final bid for the flag with three straight victories over Cleveland, in which three of the veteran regulars, Manager Harris, Peckinpaugh and Walter Johnson, were out of the game because of injuries. All, with the possible exception of Harris, will be able to start against Pittsburgh in the opening game of the world's series less than two weeks hence. Scores:

The Sisler men tied the score in the ninth inning by pounding two runs over the plate, and won out in the eleventh when Slim Harriss went in cold. The Athletics won the season's series with the Browns by the slim margin of 13 victories to 10 defeats. Score:

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(Canadian Press).—For the first time this season and for the sixth time in his career, Babe Ruth hit a home run with the bases full, yesterday, giving the Yankees a 6 to 5 victory over the White Sox. The big drive, which was Ruth's 21st of the season, was made off Pitcher George Connally, with one out in the extra session. It was the final game of the year between the clubs. The season's series stands 13 to 9 in favor of Chicago. Score:

Heavies Differ About Result Of Fistic Bout

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).— Road work—just enough to keep their joints limber—wound up the training yesterday of Gene Tunney and Bartley Madden for their scheduled 10-round fight here tonight.

Tunney, carrying the United States light heavyweight championship, expressed confidence last night that the result of today's bout would mean an early battle with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight.

Gene Tunney

"I am going to knock out Madden today," Tunney said, "and then Wills' last chance to crawl out of a fight with me will have faded."

Madden has other ideas. "I will be on my feet when the bell rings at the end of the tenth round," he said "and don't be surprised if I'm the only one standing."

HAGEN TRIUMPHS OVER LEO DIEGEL

Victory Comes After Forty Holes—Diegel Ahead at Thirty-six.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—For the second time in three days Walter Hagen, of Pasadena, Fla., yesterday survived by a long extra-hole match in the professional golf championship at Olympia Fields County Club. He defeated Leo Diegel of New York, in forty holes after Diegel had led all the way to the 36th hole. Hagen had to play spectacular golf during the second round on Course No. 3 to overtake his opponent.

The victory, which went even one hole further than his match with Al Watrous in the first round, brought the champion face to face with Harry Cooper, of Dallas, who entered the semi-finals by defeating John Farrell, of New York, 3 to 1. The other semi-final match will be between Morte Dutra, Aberdeen, Wash., who played better than par golf most of the way to defeat Tommy Armour New York, and Bill Mehlorn, of Chicago. Melhorn handily overcome Tom Kerrigan, of New York, although both played mediocre golf most of the time until Mehlorn won, 7 and 6.

LEAGUE LEADING HOTSPURS AND SUNDERLAND TO TRY CONCLUSIONS

Will Be Battle Between North and South—Decide Issue.

REVERSE BY ROVERS

Sunderland Has Loomed Large as Goal-Getting Aggregation.

LONDON, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The feature of English League football on Saturday will be the clash between the two League leaders, Tottenham Hotspurs and Sunderland, in a contest that is scheduled for the ground of the latter-named team. The game will take on the character of a battle between the north and the south, and will go a long way towards deciding whether Sunderland, which until Monday had pursued a conquering career, will continue to be the "wonder-team" of the League. Dazzling success had greeted every appearance of Sunderland until four days ago they ran into a bad trimming at the hands of Blackburn Rovers. This was a serious reverse, but the County Durham club pulled themselves together following the defeat and travelling to Cardiff on Wednesday they managed to emerge victorious once more by the merest margin. This was the game which had been postponed from last Saturday. Up to the moment, Sunderland leads all other teams in the first string in point of goal-getting, and until their initial reverse they had been ruthlessly piling up counters against all comers. What they can do against the Metropolitans remains to be seen. They have not travelled any further south than the Midlands so far, and it is not improbable that the 'Spurs, bearing as they do the honors of the London area on their shoulders, may be constrained to inject into the game just the exact amount of extra pep that will bring them out on top.

The 'Spurs have moved along consistently on the path towards the League title, and the determination that they are capable of developing was shown a week ago when they held Huddersfield Town to a drawn game of five goals each, after losing Seed, their centre-forward. The 'Sours' great virtue is their resolute attack, a factor that somewhat balances a certain weakness in defence. Last Saturday they had hung up three goals in the first twelve minutes of their game against the League champions, and their fans think it highly probably that the tourney would have been won had not Seed been compelled to withdraw.

As if to stimulate the rivalry between north and south, it is noted that on the same day that the 'Spurs travel towards the Cheviots, the most northerly club of the League, Newcastle United pay their first call on the London teams. On Saturday the Northumbrians take the field at Upton Park against West Ham. The game will be scarcely less interesting than that at Sunderland. Until a week ago, the Hammers gave great promise of accompanying their fellow-Metropolitans a long way, but at Leeds they stumbled badly and came out at the short end of a 5-3 encounter. As if this were not sufficient humiliation, they moved over to Highbury last Monday, and once more had a defeat chalked up against them at the hands of Arsenal. Following a series of four wins and a draw, these two reverses were disappointing to their fans, who are somewhat apprehensive for to-morrow.

Newcastle United have not hitherto been at all impressive, and they betray a weakness in defence that may prove fatal to them. Their two trimmings have been inflicted by teams of indifferent calibre, Blackburn Rovers, who made it a 7 to 1 carnival two weeks past Wednesday, and Leeds United, who whitewashed them 2 to 0 eight days ago. Additional to that, the two wins enjoyed by the Tynesiders were obtained over Notts County and Leicester City, neither of which has shown any good form so far. The odds are in favor of West Ham in this encounter, and they have the further advantage of locale.

Other scheduled games are:

Leeds United at Arsenal; Notts County at Aston Villa; West Bromwich at Birmingham; Cardiff at Blackburn; Sheffield United at Bury; Manchester City at Huddersfield; Bolton at Leicester; Everton at Liverpool; and Burnley at Manchester (the United).

DERBY IS STYLISH

And Powder Blue Overcoat Favored By London.

LONDON, England, Sept. 25. — Revolutionary changes in the shades and colors of cloth for men's overcoats are forecast by the mentors of styles in fashionable Savile Row. "Powder-Blue" a color which has been used very little in the past for men's clothing, is to replace the dark blue nap cloth in vogue last year. The only alternative to the new shade, say the fashion dictators, is a very dark brown.

The coat will be double breasted, will set very close to the figure, and must not reach lower than the knees. There will be only two buttons, whereas last year there were three, the top button being left open.

Apart from overcoats, little change is predicted for men's clothing. Grays and browns will be the predominant colors. Double-breasted lounge coats will not be much in vogue, whereas the old type of coat with three buttons and only the center one buttoned up is coming into style again.

As for trousers, there is a tendency to abandon the cuffs, for the flowing straight legs have plenty of width.

Evening dress fashions will not change. The dinner jacket or tuxedo retains its popularity. England has not yet reached the pitch where she is willing to admit the propriety of wearing a white waistcoat with the dinner jacket, despite the efforts of some of he young bloods to have this combination adopted. Saville Row brands it as bad form.

The derby is a strong favorite, after suffering something of a setback. The "bowler", as it is called in England, has come into great popularity again and will, it is said, be seen in greater numbers than the ordinary felt or trilby.

FEATURE PLAYS

Senator fans, treating their team's win of the second consecutive League pennant, spared themselves the exertion of giving vent to their feelings. They treated the winning of the decisive games as a matter of foregone conclusion.

Bucky Harris, popular manager of the Washington Club, may be out of the game for the remainder of the season, as a result of injuries sustained on Tuesday.

Peckinpaugh, declared the most valuable player in the American League, is also out of the game, but will probably be ready for the championship series.

Battering Bable leaped into the limelight again yesterday, when he hammered out a home run with the paths loaded. The grand slam came in the tenth, and was the sixth which Ruth has poled out with three on.

Ruffing, sharpshooting against the Tygers, scored a bull's eye. Four Bengal hits were rung up against him.

Scott, pushing them over for the Giants, held the freebooting Pirates at bay, not a single bandit invading the sanctuary throughout the fight.

Rixey and McGraw had a tooth-and-nail scrap yesterday. Rixey was awarded the bout after eleven rounds.

PITCHING AND BASE RUNNING MAY DECIDE WORLD'S SERIES

Pittsburgh and Washington Play Much Same Kind of a Game—Speed and Generalship Will Count in the Championship Fight.

By HUGH FULLERTON

Two ordinary teams, playing extraordinary baseabll, are to meet in the World Series. Two teams of strangely contrasting construction will battle for the championship. The long run of New York versus New York is ended and in its place a new show, which promises to bring one of the most interesting series in the history of baseball's great aftermath.

Pittsburgh, a comparatively young team, with a foundation of tried and seasoned players, will meet Washington, a team aged beyond the usual limit of players, built of castoffs and has-beens from all the baseball world. Yet, these two teams, one almost all veterans and most of them discarded years ago as worthless by other teams, play more nearly the same kind of baseball than any two teams in the major leagues.

Doping the result of the series this year should be one of the most interesting experiments ever attempted.

For two years the dope of baseball has been a hopeless mess. The lively ball changed the game so that all the known methods of gauging results failed. It caused a revolution in the style of play, detracted heavily from the value of defense, equalized the value of pitchers by making the best only little better than the worst, and put a big premium on the hard-hitting, long-driving type of players.

It compelled me to change all the figures of position values of players, and even then a wild-swinging pitcher with his eyes shut hit a ball over a fence and wreck all the mathematics of the season.

The restoration of the ball, or rather the taming down of the ball, has restored the grand old dope to its proper place. I confess not knowing what they have done to the ball, but pitchers say it is easier to pitch, because they can get a grip on it, and infielders say it is easier to throw.

Fundamental Baseball.

Besides that, doping the result between Washington and Pittsburgh is figuring on fundamental baseball. These teams are playing the game as it used to be played when science counted. Both are running the bases and each is far in the lead in its own league in stolen bases.

Neither team has catchers that are deadly in stopping runners. Washington's pitchers hold up runners on the bases, but even so this series will restore a feature long missing in World Series—base-running—which is the prettiest part of the game.

The series will be decided, beyond doubt, by pitching and base-running by speed and generalship, rather than by long flies over fences or into crowds. We will see more speed than has been shown in any World Series in years, and more action in the field—with plenty of the right kind of hitting.

The job of doping these two teams against each other to see which will win the series is not as hard a one would think. We have more known elements with which to work, we have more players whose records year after year against all sorts of opposing pitchers and teams are available, more veterans who may be relied upon to play to their limit than ever before, and I believe we have two teams that will start the series in better physical and mental condition than has been the case in many years.

Both Washington and Pittsburgh have been able to ease up on the strain and to save pitching power without risk of losing and without much danger of going stale. Each team has old pitchers to whom the easing off and rest have been a blessing, perhaps more to Washington than to the Pirates.

There is another comparison of vast interest. That of the combination of Clark Grifith, owner, and Stanley Harris, manager of the Senators, and Fred Clarke, assistant, Bill McKechnie, manager, and Barney Dreyfuss, owner, on the Pirate side. Here, for the first time in many years, we have real baseball men, pitted against each other, and the brains of Griffith and Clarke have counted heavily in aiding the managers and will count heavily in backing them during the series.

Here Is the System.

The system used in doping the results of these series is rather complicated. It is based entirely on the official records, but instead of taking the figures at face value, we analyze them. You can do it just as well. Probably you can improve on them, as I always was poor at mathematics.

Instead of saying a player bats .350 and letting it go at that, it is necessary to figure what kind of pitching he hits well against, what he cannot hit and whether his hits are long or short.

I figure the attacking force of any man 65 per cent on his hitting; 12 per cent on his waiting, which means bases on balls and getting hit; 10 per cent on the length of his drives and the remainder on his speed, resourcefulness in helping along runners by bunts and his ability to fret pitchers (which shows also in his increased hitting).

When it comes to figuring defensive value of players the process becomes more complicated. It is foolish to say that an outfielder is as important in defense as a pitcher. Therefore, we have first to calculate the values of each position and then figure how valuable each player is "in that position." Cobb as a catcher might be a "bust," but as an outfielder, a star. You catch the point?

I figure pitching is 36 per cent of the defensive value of any team, catching 16 per cent, second base 8 per cent, and so on around the field. The figures on position values are based upon the number of chances a player has. With the lively ball the number of chances of some positions dropped heavily, the number of chances of outfielders increased.

Now, if the attacking and defensive strengths of teams were equal, it would be impossible ever to score a run. Therefore, the offensive and defensive departments must be figured. I figure that the attacking value of any team is 61 per cent. of its total value and its defensive value 36. That is not exact, but it is close enough to enable us to reach the comparative strengths of teams, which is what we are after.

By computing the offensive and defensive strengths of teams against teams in their own league, against all kinds of pitching, by using this method we arrive at the team strength.

A Pencil and Patience.

But that is not enough, for the purpose of this dope is to find out which team should win in the World Series. We want to take the known strength of the Washington team and find out how strong it is against Pittsburgh, especially against Pittsburgh's pitchers.

To do this we must study closely how the Senators have hit against pitchers of a type similar to those of the Pirates in their own league. We want to find out what Pittsburgh's batters should do against Washington's pitchers. There, in the case of Ruether, we have a fair line, since most of them have batted regularly against him in the past seasons.

We want to study how a team of the known strength of the Pirates and its known speed will operate against the defensive strength and skill of Washington. You can see it is rather complicated but at the same time interesting. You can do it for yourself.

All you need is the official averages, a soft pencil and patience.

By using that method I intend to work out the team strengths of the two teams, compare them in each department, calculate the defensive strength of each against the attacking strength of the other and figure what each should do against each pitcher it must face.

In the next article I will study the brains departments of the two teams—Dreyfuss, Clarke and Mckechnie vs. Griffith and Harris—and explain their methods and theories.

By CHESTER HORTON

In the forward swing there is a most pronounced effort felt in the hands just as the clubhead hits and goes through the ball. Unless this distinct hitting effort is felt the swing is a stiff-arm affair that sometimes hits a good ball, but never a springy, solidly-hit one. The hands work in the forward swing, and this working is a pronounced effort—one that the player is keenly conscious of. There should be an eagerness in the hands to strike the ball. You can press with the hands all you want to—the more the better. Be careful to keep hand pressing apart from body pressing, because the latter adds nothing. When you begin to work this way with the hands a conception of the correct golf swing will begin to dawn on you and you will begin to understand how the hands do it instead of the body. A fixed rule should be: Your golf swing is as strong as your hands and not a bit stronger. Therefore find out just how far your hands will go—just how much pressure they will withstand—and thus have determined definitely the maximum of your own swing.

Motors and Rails Lead In Recovery Of Wall Street

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Stock prices made a sharp recovery from recent weakness in to-day's stock market, which was featured by increased demand for high grade railroad shares, and the renewal and strength of activity in the motors. Reduction of the 3 1-2 per cent rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank and the elimination of many weakened marginal accounts in the reaction of the last few days encouraged a resumption of bull operations and led to considerable short covering. Public utilities responded to reports of high earnings, surplus and rumors of special dividend distributions, chief speculative interest in the rails continued in brisk advance in Chesapeake and Ohio, and "nickel plate," which was heavily bought in apparent anticipation of an early and favorable decision by Inter-State Commerce Commission and the Vasweirengen merger. Sharp gains also took place in other carriers, Norfolk and Southern and Atlantic Coast line selling 4 1-8 and 3 5-8 points respectively above last night's closing quotation.

Prices tapered off somewhat during the early afternoon when the call money rate was marked up to 4 1-2 per cent.

Chicago Wheat Rallied After Nervous Opening

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices rallied sharply today, after an initial downturn. The market was unsettled and was easily influenced by any good buying or selling. A temporary let up in commission house demand occasioned rather abrupt declines during the early dealings, but prices turned up grade on renewed buying with the Winnipeg market showing more strength than Chicago or Minneapolis. Chicago opening quotations 1c lower to 3-4c higher December 143 3-4 to 144 1-4, and May 145 12 to 146, were followed by material setback all around and then by a rise to well above yesterday's finish.

Ideal weather for corn made the corn market easy, and oats as well. After opening 38c off to 3-8c up, December 78 7-8 to 79 1-8, orn prices underwent a moderate general sag. Oats started at 18c decline to 1-4c advance, December 39 1-8, and held near to the opening figures.

Notwithstanding an upturn in hog values, the provsion market was responsive to the action of corn.

GRATITUDE FOR GREAT HARVEST

Thanksgiving Service at All Saints' Church—Sermon By Rev. A. G. Emmett.

The one hundredth Psalm was chosen as the basis of his sermon by the Rev. A. G. Emmett of Port Hope, at the Harvest Festival service in All Saints' church last night. The particular part of the Psalm on which he dwelt consisted of the first three words: "O be Joyful."

This is the Psalm of Thankoffering which was sung by the Jews whenever they had any occasion to give thanks, said the speaker. It calls attention to the duty of joy, praise and thanksgiving.

Joy and thanksgiving for the bountiful harvest that has been given to this country this year should be the production of spontaneous gladness of heart. People should be so happy that they are just bubbling over with joy and want to do something in return for God's goodness.

It is not many years ago, said the speaker, that a child would be reproved and possibly punished for laughing and singing, as it was not considered proper for a Christian to be so happy when there was so much sin in the world. The people of those Puritan days had a great consciousness of the awfulness of sin. That sin is a terrible thing is true said the speaker, but there is something bigger. This is the great love of God. "Let me ask you a personal question," he said, "Is your religion a happy one?" "I can't help being happy because Jesus Christ has revealed to me a God who is a Father. As a father is always glad to see his children happy, so the Heavenly Father wishes to see His children happy," said Mr. Emmett.

"When Jesus was on earth he was not a wet blanket. He was spoken of as a wine bibber, a glutton, and an associate of publicans, and he went to the marriage feast of Cana within a very short time of his temptation in the wilderness. His God is always on our side. He is not like a policeman waiting around a corner for someone to sin so that he can arrest him," said the preacher, Jesus was always telling the people to cheer up, and He gave them an unwavering confidence in the friendliness of God.

As the wheat must be thrown out and buried, so that it dies, before it can bring forth fruit, so was Jesus glad to die because in so doing He was saving others. No matter what one gives to God or does for Him it is still impossible to be His creditor, as He has done more in giving His Son to die than anyone could ever do for Him.

The church was beautifully decorated with fruits of the harvest and a profusion of flowers. The choir sang the anthem "Praise the Lord," showing careful training and faithful practice.

EDUCATIONAL BRANCH.

be either urban tutorial classes or workers introductory classes. The tutorial classes are intended for people of a good education who desire a definite course of study on a subject such as English Literature or Economics. The choice of subjects in these courses is very wide. Classes have been arranged in History, Industrial Psychology, the Drama, Sociology, Journalism, Zoology, and kindred subjects. The fees are $15 or $10 according to the subject and the minimum class is 20.

The third section is that of the Workers Introductory Classes which are designed for working men and women desirous of improving their education. Here also there are provisions made for the study of a large number of subjects. If the required score of students can be enrolled, the University will send down a professor or lecturer who will give lectures of two hours a week for twenty weeks.

Investigation discloses the fact that in these three sections there is something beneficial to every section of the community.

A well-known and thoroughly well educated citizen of of Peterborough said that he himself would enroll if a suitable class could be formed.

Local branches of the Association have been formed in Toronto, Ottawa, Windsor Scarboro Bluffs, Galt Hamilton and Brantford.

It has been understood that the Library Board are contemplating instituting a series of Extension lectures this winter.

It is also stated that it will be an easy matter to enlist the support of the Library Board and the Board of Education towards the provision of accommodation for any Worker's Education Classes that may be formed in the city.

BANK MANAGER SAYS FAREWELL

C. H. Pennefather is Leaving City For Walkerville.

INFORMAL MEETING.

An informal gathering of the bank managers of the city was held yesterday at the Peterborough Club, for the purpose of taking leave of Clarence H. Pennefather, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Union Bank of Canada, who is moving out of the city to Walkerville, where he will take charge of the Royal Bank. There was no luncheon or speech-making, but a general free to all talk was indulged in. Events of past years were recalled and much good humored banter featured the meeting, the parting member coming in for a great deal more than his share.

PRIMITIVE GOLD MINING.

"Idaho" Shows Crude Methods of Early Gold Seekers.

Bringing to the screen a series of events that happened during the gold rush days in the Idaho Territory, was the task that confronted Director Robert Hill and Producer C. W. Patton, the men who were responsible for the actual filming of "Idaho" a new Patheterial, episode number one, of which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre, Saturday matinee only.

Before the actual filming of the picture could be started a great deal of careful research work was necessary on the part of the production staff.

It will no doubt be of interest to know of the crude methods that were used by the early gold miners. The manner of getting the gold out of the creek beds was particularly primitive, owing to the lack of adequate facilities on the part of the miners. The big idea was to get the gold before somebody else could get it, and, consequently, the crudest methods were resorted to. The mining operations took place along the small water courses of the region. Water was indispensable in the crude placer operations of the early pioneers. When they could not use the actual current of the stream to separate the particles of gold from the soil, they diverted the stream into ditches and sluices. The sluices were long troughs fitted together end to end, like tile pipe. Across the bottom of the sluices were the riffle bars, or saplings nailed to the bottom boards. The material dug from the claim was thrown into the high end of the sluices. The current carried down the muck, and the gold, being heavier, settled to the bottom and was caught against the riffle bars.

The struggles of these hardy men their differences and thrillingly eventful lives are stirringly depicted in this fine serial. It is a graphic picture of one of the most interesting periods of American history and the story might well have come from the master pen of Bret Harte.

"THE HEART OF A SIREN."

Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle are again seen together in "The Heart of a Siren," the Sawyer-Lubin production which first National opened yesterday, at the Capitol Theatre.

Miss La Marr, as a siren of the gayest of the gay spots of Europe—the Riviera—has a role perhaps better than that in which she played with Tearle in "The White Moth." Famous for her lavish costumes she wears an array of the new Paris styles—negligees, day frocks and a splendor of evening gowns—which would captivate the fancy of any woman.

Tearle's role as a poor but aristocratic English diplomat also is admirably suited to him.

The plot finds the pair stopping at the same sumptuous hotel on the Riviera. The siren's entry is a signal for all the men in view at once to desert their ladies fair and stare with dazed admiration upon the gorgeous creatuure as she passes—that is, all but one.

The diplomat, with his mother and his fiancee, ignores her, and womanlike, she resolves to crush his heart, as she has the hearts of scores of others.

The climax come when, having won his love, she finds her love gone out to him in return while between the two there arises the unsurmountable barrier of his aristocratic family.

There are many highly dramatic scenes in which Miss LeMarr and Tearle perhaps present the best acting of their screen careers.

Phil Rosen, who directed, has given the picture an unusually capable supporting cast. Harry Morey has a strong role as the American millionaire who becomes a plaything of the siren; Clifton Webb, of musical comedy fame, has transferred his little moustache and mirth making talents to the screen for this production and others include Ida Darling, Florence Auer, William Ricciardi and Tammany Young.

The story is an adaptation from Florence Reed's stage success, "Hail and Farewell," Frederick and Fanny Hatton being responsible for the screen version.

LILLIAN AND DOROTHY GISH TOGETHER ON SCREEN AGAIN

"Give us Lillian and Dorothy Gish in the same picture," has been the demand made by countless film patrons ever since the two girls appeared together in "Orphans of the Storm." And this request has been answered at last with the ever-popular Lillian and Dorothy doing teamwork in what has been called one of the great pictures of the year, "Romola." "Romola," which is Henry King's production of the famous novel by George Eliot, is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday. It is an Inspiration picture released by Metro-Goldwyn. Besides the Gish sisters, thec ast also includes Ronald Colman, William H. Powell, Chas Lane and Herbert Grimwood. The entire production was filmed in Florence, Italy.

AT THE ROYAL.

FRANCOIS AND HIS WONDER SHOW.

The Royal Theatre rocked with laughter last night. The audience, which filled the house almost to capacity, stood up in the seats most of the time and roared with mirth over the entertainment afforded by Francois, the mental telepathic expert and hypnotist, and his troupe of clever assistants. With demonstrations of his prowess in mental telepathy and in hypnosis and songs from his company, Francois entertained, mystified and amused his audience last night for nearly two hours, in a series of clever stunts. Assisting him were half a dozen members of the audience, who arranged themselves on the stage and had a merry evening under his direction.

The programme opened with a very fine singing and yodelling number by Miss Ethel Jones, who, like the other vocal performers, was forced to respond to several encores. Resista, a small lady, defied a trio of husky gentlemen to lift her from the floor; Miss Braithwaite, possessor of a dramatic soprano, rich and sweet, delighted her hearers with renditions of "Honest and Truly" and "All Alone," and Mr. James Esplin, Scotch comedian, in Scotch costume, received enthusiastic applause for his comedy and his singing of humorous Scotch songs in a fine, strong baritone that was heard to splendid advantage, also in a dramatic number extolling the wonders of the singer's native land, Caledonia.

Francois, the gentleman who recently mystified the city with his blindfolded driving stunts, gave a demonstration of his telepathic powers when he answered questions written on slips of paper. Numerous young ladies worrying over their sweethearts were comforted, a gentleman who made a quick exit was warned about his domestic affairs, and "George" was told just why he was fired. "Katherine" got a lecture over her flirtatious ways, and "Mr. D." was advised not to haul whisky in a Ford car.

The hypnotic stunts were the most amusing of a very entertaining programme. With the help of volunteers from the audience and a charming young lady assistant, Miss Decker, Francois demonstrated his skill in this particular line, preluding the performance with a brief explanation of hypnotism, or phychology carried to an extreme.

After a couple of preliminary tests when the subjects tried in vain to wrench their closed hands apart, to lift their feet from the floor, and to desist from falling backward at a word of command, a grey-haired gentleman in the group became imbued with the idea that he was a lost baby and the youth next him essayed the role of a comforting maternal parent. Then the septette became convinced that there were mice on the floor and made frantic efforts to escape them, they chased imaginary butterflies with praiseworthy energy about the building and they did a hula-hula dance in costume in an effort to charm the Prince of Wales. In the words of the cub reporter, "a good time was had by all," including the demonstrators and the audience, which shrieked with merriment through a hilarious hour of fun.—Jeannette.

FRANCOIS GAME AND CONQUERED.

Before a crowded house, the much advertised Francois made his bow before a Peterboro audience last night at the Royal, and it is safe to say he will play to crowded houses the rest of his engagement.

The theatre-going public surely received their money's worth last night.

Francois' work in mind-reading and telepathy is just as baffling as his blindfold drive. All questions were answered in an intelligent manner, and brought applause and gasps of surprise.

Ethel Jones, "the girl you cannot lift," is a novelty new to Peterboro —a seventy-five pound girl who, when she wills it, the strongest men cannot lift off the floor.

Miss Jones also entertains in yodeling songs. Madame Braithwate, concert soprano. James Esplin, Scotch comedian. Mlle. Deakin, hypnotic understudy, and Francois himself, in hypnotic demonstrations with a stage full of "subjects," must be seen to be appreciated. Never was such hearty laughter heard in the old Royal.

Crowded houses will be the rule for the balance of the week, or we miss our guess.—Fan-Fan.

AT THE GRAND

"BLOSSOM TIME" AT THE GRAND.

Theatregoers of this city are to have the pleasure of seeing that lovely operetta "Blossom Time." This greatest of all musical successes comes to this city for an engagement of two performances at Grand Opera House on Saturday, October 3.

This musical play under the direction of Messrs. Shubert has been running for three years. It was seen for two years in New York at the Ambassador, Jolson and Century Theatres; for six months in Chicago and Boston, and for thirty-two weeks in Philadelphia.

The story of "Blossom Time" deals with the love of Franz Schubert. The scenes are laid in old Vienna and the story is told in three acts. The original theme of this story was discovered in a half-fiction and half-biographical life of Schubert which was published shortly after his death. The material was worked over into a musical comedy by Willner and Reichert. Dorothy Donnelly has entirely re-written the Viennese book and supplied a new set of lyrics. The first act occurs at an outdoor restaurant in the famous Prater Park in Vienna in May, 1826. Here Schubert meets Mitzi Kranz and falls in love with her. Mitzi is fascinated by his devotion and his music, but while she thinks she is in love with Schubert, she is really in love with his friend, Baron von Schober, who is also in love with her. Baron von Schober, in the end, wins Mitzi from Schubert.

A fete in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the artificial silk spinning industry was held recently at Tubize, near Brussels, where the industry has transformed what was formerly a small farm village into a model garden city. There was a parade of the 4,500 men and women employes of the factory, and a large apartment in the works was converted into a temporary chapel where a choir from the Theatre Royal, Brussels, sang a Te Deum.

Around The City.

The Fire Department was in action yesterday shortly after 12 noon at a chimney fire at 327 George Street. The experience of past years of the department has shown that chimney fires become more common about the end of September, the days for the temperature causing many stoves to be lit which have been idle all summer, and chimneys which require cleaning start the blaze.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Reynolds said that at about one o'clock the Fire Department asked permission to bring up the big truck. He then learned that there was a fire at Fernbank, and after giving permission for the brigade to respond to the alarm, he went to the scene. Miss Pritchard, a resident of Fernbank, informed witness that two persons had been burned to death. The building was almost consumed when he got there.

He saw W. H. Brittman, J. A. Brennan, the Misses Pritchard, and some other people at a nearby cottage. He also saw Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brightman, and Mrs. Brightman, to occupy the Imrie cottage for a short time.

He practically stayed with them, but slept in his own cottage, previously mentioned. Dr. Mann and wife occupied the south-west room over the verandah, while Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brightman occupied the south-east room. A fireplace was in approximately the centre of the building. They had a wood fire in the fireplace last night. Witness said they had been playing bridge till about 10 o'clock, when he left. There was very little fire in the fireplace and this was covered by a screen by Mrs. Brightman after Dr. and Mrs. Mann had retired. About midnight he saw the flames and ran to the cottage by the east side, when he saw his brother, who had jumped out of the burning building on his hands and knees, and just as the witness arrived Mrs. Brightman dropped from the front window. She jumped to a mattress which her husband had thrown out from the south window.

Attempt at Rescue.

Witness got Mrs. Brightman away from the cottage and secured a long ladder with which he broke the window in the deceased couples room. The cottage was a roaring furnace at this time and no answer was received to his calls. He believed the deceased couple were then dead. He could offer no theory as to how the fire started. The fire place was considered secure. He was first there. He secured a pail and threw water on a slight blaze at the cottage formerly owned by M. M. Brown and told of the efforts of he and his brother to stop the flames from spreading. Miss Pritchford was the first one he had seen outside of his brother and sister.

The deceased have no family. His brother and sister-in-law are suffering from sprains, but are not seriously hurt. His brother said he felt a choking sensation and heard his wife say, "Get up, the house is all afire." There was not a chance in the world to rescue Dr. and Mrs. Mann from the time he first saw the flames.

Another Eye Witness.

James A. Brennan first saw the fire at about 12.30 o'clock when the reflection was visible to him from a cottage near the country club where he was playing bridge. He rushed to the fire in his car. The roof had practically gone. He saw the two Mr. Brightmans outside, at the scene and also saw the remains of one body. He could offer no idea as to which part of the building the fire started in.

Chief Burke Testifies.

Chief Burke testified that he was notified at 2.18 a.m. of the fire. He called the coroner and drove up to Fernbank in a taxicab. The cottage was completely burned. The bodies were seen by the witness lying close together, partially covered by ruins; their heads toward the south. With a rake he removed the bodies from the ruins, and on the coroner's instructions, had the remains removed to C. E. Johnston's undertaking parlors.

This concluded the evidence, and the inquest was adjourned to meet to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at 4.30 o'clock in the Police Court room, when the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brightman will be heard.

Two cars in a collision caused a good deal of excitement on Hunter Street this afternoon. A Ford coupe, driven by Garnet Brown, 320 Sherbrooke Street, coming south on Chambers Street, collided with a Maxwell touring car, driven by Commandant A. Smith. The Ford's axle and radius rod were bent and a front bolt smashed, while the Maxwell was also slightly damaged.

Artificial silk was invented in 1884 by a Frenchman, Count Hilaire de Chardonnet, following an accident to a flagon of collodion used for photography. On the following day the Count found that the collodion had solidified and formed a number of fine threads resembling silk.

O why was she taken so young and so fair,
When earth had so many it better could spare?
Hard, hard, was the blow that compelled us to part
From the loved one so near and so dear to our hearts.
Gone from among us, Oh! how we miss her.

TRAGIC STORY TOLD BY SURVIVORS.

Dr. Mann Himself Made Certain Guard Was in Place at Grate—Origin of Fire Remains Mystery — Inquest Finds Death Accidental.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 26.—Accidental death by suffocation and fire, the origin of which could not be determined, was the verdict of the jury last night in concluding the inquest into the deaths of Dr. James Burritt Mann and his wife, Mary Simmons Mann of Peterborough, who were burned to death yesterday morning in the fire which destroyed Dr. Georg Imrie's cottage at Fernbank.

Two witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brightman, of Peterborough, were heard last night and their descriptions of the fatal occurrence, which coincided, were very touching. During the course of his examination by M. M. Brown, County Crown Attorney, Mr. Brightman was visibly affected by the memory of the morning's event and broke down on more than one occasion as he recited how Mrs. Brightman, after awakening him when the cottage was filled with grassy smoke, had done her utmost to arouse the unfortunate couple who died in the flames. Mr. and Mrs. Brightman, according to the evidence, were sleeping in the southeast room over the verandah and Dr. and Mrs. Mann were in another room at the southwest corner of the cottage. When Mrs. Brightman awoke she imagined she heard someone calling, Oh, Tom," and said that she thought

BIGGEST NET REVENUE IN HISTORY OF C. N. R. WAS RECEIVED DURING EIGHT MONTHS ENDING AUGUST 31

Gross Receipts For Period Were Below 1924 Figures, But Operating Expenses Were Reduced By Much Larger Sum, Leaving Net Gain.

UPWARD MOVEMENT IN RECEIPTS STARTED

MONTREAL, Sept. 26.—Official figures issued to-day show that the Canadian National Railways have made a notable advance in net revenues during the eight months period ending August 31st., the net for that period being higher, than for any similar period in the history of the company. This improvement has been made in the face of decreased gross receipts.

For the first eight months of the year, the gross receipts were 4.25 per cent or $6,511,169 below the corresponding figures for 1924, but operating expenses were reduced by $10,968,497 or 7.35 per cent so that the net position stands at $8[illegible] which is an increase of $4,457,328 or 113.47 per cent as compared with the first eight months of 1924 and an increase of 66.06 per cent over the figures for the same period of 1923.

The upward movement in gross receipts which was noticeable in the July figures was continued during August, the gross increasing during the latter month by $2,422,709 or 15.23 per cent over August, 1924. Operation expenses during August, 1925, showed an increase of $418,980 or 2.38 per cent with the result that the net earnings for the same month were increased by $2,004,922 or 280.90 per cent as compared with August, 1924. The summary of results is as follows:

Rising Bubbles Tell Fate of Sub's Crew Says Torpedo Expert

Only Three of Crew Reported Saved When Submersible Rammed By Steamer—Vessels Rushed to Give Assistance—Will Raise the Wreck.

STILL HOPE FOR LIVES OF SOME.

Ramming Steamer Rushes For Port With Survivors, and Captain May Be Censured For Leaving Place Where Wreck Occurred—Struck in Dark.

Thirty-four officers and men of the United States submarine S-51 are believed to have been lost when their vessel was rammed and sunk last night by a coastwise steamer. Bubbles are said to be rising from the wreck, and this, in the opinion of the commander of the torpedo station, signifies the end of hope.

Efforts are being made, however, to raise the submarine from where it lies in 23 fathoms of water. It is reported that the captain of the steamer will be censured by the secretary of the navy, and may be proceeded against following an investigation.

Only Three Saved.

Only three men, Dewey Kile, Fling and A. Greer, are reported by the naval communication to have been saved.

Lieut. Rodney H. Dobson was commander of the submarine.

The first intimation of the disaster was the receipt early this morning by the submarine base at New London, of a message from the City of Rome, bound from Savannah, for Boston.

The message said: "Collided with sunken Submarine S-51. Three men saved."

No details of the collision were forthcoming at an early hour this morning from the City of Rome or any source.

Block Island lies in the Atlantic ocean, off Washington County, Rhode Island and four east of Eastern most point of Long Island.

Immediately after news of disaster became known the greatest message was broadcast ordering all vessels in the vicinity to hurry toward the scene to render what aid they might. Preparations were made in New London, Conn., to dispatch naval craft. Thirty seven comprised the personnel of S-51.

The officers, in addition to Lieut. Dobson, included Lieut. G. Bannerman and Lieut. Harlow M. Pino.

The S-51 was attached to the patrol force of Atlantic. Her station was New London. The time of the collision is not as yet definitely known but apparently it was some time between 9.30 and 10.30 o'clock last night.

CRITICISM OF CANADA HURTS DOMINION IN EYES OF WORLD

Says Hon. G. N. Gordon in Replying to Immigration Antis.

SUPPORTS POLICY

Minister of Colonization Tells High Ideals of His Office.

Replying to some criticisms of his Colonization policy as announced through The Examiner and given Canada-wide publicity, Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration and Colonization today said one of the greatest handicaps met in the administration of the department is the adverse advertising through lamentations of Jeremiahs out of office. "There has been a great deal of ill-advised criticism of Canada—not of governmental policies alone—disseminated through the press of other countries, emanating from "whispers of death" and other unfounded attacks on the stability of the country," he said. "These critics have not themselves brought forward any constructive policy on colonization; but why should they bother with constructive policies, or anything else, if, as they say, we are faced with irretrievable and unavoidable ruin."

Hon. Mr. Gordon believes absolutely in the policy he has formulated. He says so and he already has the end of every colonization string in his hand. He is not out to

PARIS PAPERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Rejection of First Debt Offer Caused No Dismay.

WAS FORSEEN.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—(United Press) —The Parisian morning press to-day took an optimistic tone towards the debt funding negotiations at Washington. The fact that Finance Minister Caillaux's first offer had been rejected by the American Government caused no dismay, in fact the papers generally admitted that a rejection was foreseen.

It was pointed out that there might be still much technical discussion over the problem of interest payments, past and future, and ultimately friendly settlement is foreseen.

The beekeepers of this district are doing what they can to keep up the name of Ontario as a centre for the honey industry. Going out from Peterboro on Monday will be a car of honey pooled by the co-operative apiaries of the district, en route for England, a contribution to the export trade of the Dominion. Alberta is working hard to get a strong hold on the honey business of Canada, but Ontario has as much chance as any of the provinces, if the beekeepers will combine in an effort to keep up the grade. Recently, The Brown - Shields Apiaries shipped a carload of honey to Toronto, to the Christie-Brown factories.

Spicy Entertainment Found At Studio Club

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 26 (Special by United Press)—A nude man and woman dancing to the tunes of a mammoth jazz orchestra was the sight that greeted the eyes of officers when they raided the Nourse Studio Club early today in Hollywood.

Fifteen persons, including three women, were arrested, and held as witnesses, while the names of 125 other guests were taken by the police. Many of the guests were said to be prominent.

Two officers attending the dance as guests reported wild scenes prevailed at the club during the night.

APPOINTMENT OF DANDURAND AS LEAGUE OF NATIONS PRESIDENT IS APPROVED BY FRENCH PRESS

Claimed Swiftly as Pure Product of French Inheritance.

Speaks Authentically.

Should Send Writers to the Land of "Maria Chapdelaine."

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The appointment of Senator Raoul Dandurand of Canada to the Presidency of the 6th Assembly of the League of Nations has been received by the press of France with warm and appreciative comment, and newspaper exchanges received in Montreal from Paris show that Mr. Dandurand's election is held by the French editors to be a significant event. A writer in "Le Petit Parisien," commenting on the Canadian's election, says:

"In a town in Auvergne, which I know well, an old and very industrious family, attached from time immemorial to the soil, began the name of Dandurand. This name is also that of the eminent Canadian senator who is now presiding over the labors of the Assembly. It is a pure name among us; a fine name.

"Mr. Dandurand has not only a French name: he has, above all, French features and all the traits of a Frenchman.

"There when with a resonant and firm voice, a Burgundian voice, he invited the Assembly to come to order, I sought in my mind to determine whom he resembled. Parbleu: M. Loubet, of course. Small white moustache; short beard; slender build, but with firm shoulders.

"It was not without emotion that I heard a Canadian speaking French. It is the purest French, the most authentic and the clearest of all French spoken. He speaks a French that has not changed.

"It is our own language, in France, that has been evaporated little by little and which has become more or less sophisticated by the invasion of foreign words and expressions. In Canada, the French language remains unchangeable and without pretentiously. We could perhaps send a few of our writers and also our

Untied Police Interrupted Motorist Having Good Time

WALTHAM, Mass., Sept. 26. —United Press. — Ober Crawford, a veteran motorist, believes in having a good time when he goes for a ride. All Ober did or his last time out, was to endeavor to drive his car, smoke a pipe, play a ukelele and embrace a girl friend at one and the same time. The police further allege that he was drunk and driving without a license.

tain of our politicians who are opposed to the 'solution' of various problems to take a cure in good language in the land of 'Maria Chapdelaine'."

"Le Journal Des Debats" said:

"It (Mr. Dandurand's election) consecrates the diplomatic situation of the North American Dominion. In thanking his colleagues, the new President nobly vindicated his characterization of 'descendant of the heroic French who opened the North American continent to civilization.' It was not inopportune to recall to the representatives of the fifty-four nations that the French were the pacific pioneers of North America and that they have left fertile traces. May the election of a statesman who unites France and England, former rivals on the banks of the St. Lawrence, symbolize the vitality of the entente cordiale."

TURKS OPPOSE MOSUL INQUIRY

Won't Admit Commission Into Territory They Hold.

MAY CHANGE MINDS.

GENEVA, Sept. 26. Canadian Press. — Before leaving for Angora, Tewfik Rushdi Bey, the Turkish foreign minister, forwarded written communications to the Council of the League of Nations insisting that the proposed Mosul investigation commission shall not have the right to pursue its enquiries in that part of the disputed territory occupied by Turkey. It is understood however, that Rushdi Bey gave verbal assurances to the effect that he will endeavor to secure the approval of the Turkish Government to the proposal that the commission in Angora may be empowered to make investigations of all charges and counter charges laid by both Great Britain and Turkey.

Vets. Make Silken Poppies; Commemorate Armistice

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press). — Announcement was made yesterday by Hon. Dr. Beland, Minister of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, that arrangements had been made for the disabled men in the vetcraft shops to proceed with the manufacture of the silk poppies required for the custom of wearing a token of remembrance on Armistice Day.

"It has been decided that as in past years," stated Mr. Beland, "that the silk poppies made by seriously disabled men in the vetcraft shops in the various provinces will be offered to the public in each community for commemorative purposes on the occasion of Armistice Day."

NO COMMISSIONS WERE PAID ON SKYSCRAPER, SAYS GRAHAM

Points Out Rentals Saved by Canadian National Offset Interest Charges.

ANSWERS MANION

Questions Put by Speaker at Peterboro Convention Receive Attention.

WINDSOR, Sept. 26. — "Mr. Meighen and his right bower, Dr. Manion, are hard to please," said Right Hon. George P. Graham yesterday, when shown a newspaper despatch from Peterborough quoting Hon. R. J. Manion as criticising the sale by the government of property located at the corner of King and Yonge streets, Toronto.

"While Mr. Meighen stamps up and down the country declaring that he will end capital expenditures on the railways his supporter from Port William denounces us for lowering our capital obligation by selling a building in which we had $1,200,000 tied up," declared the minister of railways and canals.

"The Canadian National paid no commissions to anyone," continued Mr. Graham. "We were compelled to expropriate the old Grand Trunk building or be forced off the best corner in the city of Toronto.

"We bought the property for $1,200,000 and we sold it two years later for $1,250,000. The buyers who will erect the much discussed skyscraper have leased us four floors and we figure that we can sub-let space for which we will not have any use.

"When Dr. Manion talks about the interest charges that were piling up, while we held the old building he forgets that we had the use of it for two years. He should set the rental that we saved against the interest that he complains about in his Peterboro speech."

Mr. Graham defended the government's action in expropriating the property and he referred to the sale as a good business deal.

"Anyone who knows the situation in Toronto can realize how our business would have suffered had we been crowded off into some side street and left our competitors on the best corner in the city," said the minister.

Mr. Graham for the last ten days has been making an intensive canvass of his riding of South Essex. He intends to remain here until election day, except for brief absences at Ottawa or when attending some political rally in this end of the province.

Mr. Graham's opponent is Eccles J. Gott of Amherstburg, a young man who has been working the ridings ever since he was nominated early last spring. Gott is an energetic politician of the hand-shaking variety, and for some time was able to take advantage of Mr. Graham's absence in Ottawa to build up an organization.

South Essex is traditionally Liberal and, since the minister's return, it is generally believed that there has been a marked swing of sentiment in his favor.

Sing Sing Loses Songster Tondra Is Being Paroled

OSSINING, N.Y., Sept. 26 (Special by United Press).—Sing Sing inmates learned today they were to lose their song writer. He is Albert Tondra, composer of the music for the prison's musical comedies. He will be released on parole in a few days.

Tondra was accused of the abduction of his 15-year-old secretary. He is married and has grand-children, and formerly conducted a music school in Yonkers.

BRITISH BUYERS LIKE CAN BUTTER

Communication States That It May Get Market Control.

ELIMINATE IRISH.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Satisfaction with this year's quality and improved grading of Canadian butter is expressed by prominent importers in Bristol, one of the most important distributing centres of Canadian butter in the United Kingdom, according to advices received by the Department of Trade and Commerce of Canada from Trade Commissioner Douglas S. Cole, Bristol. The letter adds that if Canada keeps on shipping good fresh butter, in time it will have an effect on the English market to the detriment of other sources of supply.

Mr. Cole states that "increased quantities of Western Canadian butter are coming into that market, and this new source of supply upholds the high reputation the Canadian product has won in the trade." One notable change in the situation, he states, is the elimination of Irish butter supplies. The Irish exporters were formerly the chief competitors of the Canadian produce in the west of England.

The men drowned were: Captain Joy, Robert Stockford, Edward Joyce, John Hancock and James Joyce, all of Burgeo, except Stockford, whose home is in North Sydney; Kenneth Power, Burgeo, and George Burgay, North Sydney, were saved. They got to shore in a dory which Burgay was able to sail, as all the schooner's sweet down.

SPLENDID TRIP THROUGH LAKES

Two Young Men Went Up Otonabee and Returned by Ottawa and Rideau Rivers.

F. R. Bamforth, M.A., son of the Rev. R. Bamforth of this city, and H. F. Jolliffe, B.A., of Kingston, have returned from a long canoe trip. The two young men left Peterborough and went up through the Kawartha Lakes to Algonquin Park. From the park they went down the Petawawa Rivers and through the Rideau Lakes and Canal to Kingston. From Kingston they returned to Peterborough via the Bay of Quinte and the Trent and Otonabee Rivers. They report a glorious trip with plenty of hard work, portages and thrills. Mr. Jolliffe returns to Albert College in the near future to take up his work as teacher of classics. Mr. Bamforth, who has been a teacher of mathematics at the college for the past three years is going to Chicago University to complete his post graduate studies in mathematics.

RETURNING OFFICER ANNOUNCES PLACE

Nominations Will Be Held in Madoc For Hastings-Peterborough.

MADOC, Sept. 26.—J. S. Marshall, returning officer for the new riding of Hastings-Peterboro, has announced that the nomination meeting for this riding will be held in Madoc on Oct. 22nd.

A delightful social evening was held in the Armouries on Wednesday under the auspices of the Young People's Club of the Sacred Heart Church, of which Father O'Riordan is the parish priest. Thirty-nine tables of progressive euchre were played until eleven, when dainty refreshments were served. The floor was then cleared for dancing. The Madoc orchestra furnished excellent music and the spacious Armouries afforded room for the large crowd to thoroughly enjoy the dances. The card room was in charge of Col. Rierdon, President of the Young People's Club. Assisting him were Misses B. Cox and S. Thompson and Messrs. Harvey Stewart, Will Stewart and F. Meraw. The first prize for ladies, a hand-painted fruit dish, was won by Mrs. F. Thompson, and the second, a fine china butter dish, by Mrs. Geo. Welsh. The first prize for gentlemen, a tie, was won by Ted Nayler, and the second, a pair of socks, by Thomas Forrestal. Owing to poor weather conditions, not many strangers were present, but all denominations in town were well represented, and the club reports that the financial returns were very satisfactory.

REMARKABLE RECORD.

OBITUARY.

W. R. G. BOND

COBOURG, Sept. 26. — Citizens of Cobourg learned with very keen regret of the death of George Bond, Jr., on Saturday of last week. Mr. Bond felt the death of his wife, who passed away about sixteen months ago, very keenly, and had not been quite up to his accustomed vigor since, although going about and employing himself much as usual. He was, apparently, well on Saturday morning and seemed brighter than he sometimes did. He came down town, attended to some matters, and after returning home went out in the afternoon to mow the lawn. His father and sister were sitting on the verandah and saw him re-enter the house a little later. Hearing a strange sound Miss Bond went in and found him sitting on a sofa. She phoned at once for a physician, who promptly responded and called to her father to come, but Mr. Bond passed away within half an hour.

George Bond was the oldest son of George Bond, Sr., and the late Mrs. Bond. When the war broke out he was among the first Cobourg artillery men to respond, and went overseas in 1915 with Major Burns' draft. He returned in 1917. On May 29, 1924, sad bereavement came to him in the death of his wife, before her marriage, Annie Taylor. He leaves no family, but is survived by his father, who the day after his son's funeral attained his 81st birthday; by two brothers, Stanley of Toronto, and Percy of Peterborough, and by two sisters, Miss Edith Bond at home, and Mrs. Harvey Sproule, Toronto.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon. Service at the family residence, George Street and at the cemetery was conducted by Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, D.D., assisted by Rev. W. A. Bremner. The flowers were very beautiful and bore a mute message of regard and sympathy. Mr. Bond was borne to his last resting place by six of his military comrades: James Scarfe, Reuben Jackson, Dave Hill, Frank Spooner, Hollie Bolster, George Carley.

Sergt - Trumpeter M. Crouse sounded the Last Post.

Among relatives present from a distance at the funeral were deceased's brothers, Mr. Stanley Bond, Toronto, and Mr. Percy Bond, Peterborough, and his uncle, Mr. Stanley Retallack, Ottawa.

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets.

A medicine for the baby, or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancook Island, N. S., writes: "I have ten children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness," will be sent free to any mother on request.

YESTERDAY'S TRAGEDY.

The tragic death of Dr. J. B. Mann, one of Peterboro's best known physicians and most popular citizens, and of his wife, who enjoyed the regard and esteem of a host of friends and acquaintances, has thrown an atmosphere of gloom over the whole community.

The tragedy was one of those inexplicable twists of Fate that are not capable of being fathomed by human understanding.

That death should come in such a terrible form and with such appalling suddenness to two well-known residents causes a sense of shock and grief to every citizen of Peterboro.

Dr. Mann was born near Bridgenorth, and for the past fourteen years had practised his profession here, winning the liking and respect not only of his colleagues in that profession but of the community at large.

The sympathy of all Peterboro goes out to the bereaved relatives.

PRESERVE THE GOOD ROADS.

The Ontario Highways Department is out with two very excellent pieces of advice to the people of the Province—the first, that they should take advantage of the good roads to visit two or three fall fairs, and secondly, that in so doing they refrain from damaging the road surface by speeding or the road foundations by overloading their trucks.

The counsel in both cases is sound.

It is undoubtedly true that the fairs are becoming better in all departments, and there is both pleasure and education in visiting them while the combination of automobile and good roads makes it possible to see exhibitions that a few years ago were considered too far away to make a visit feasible.

As to the effect of speeding on the roads, the testimony of experts is that every mile an hour added to the speed of a car over the legal limit of twenty-five miles has an increasingly damaging effect upon road surfaces.

Fast driving, therefore, is not only dangerous but expensive, inasmuch as it increases the cost of road maintenance to a very appreciable degree.

Overloaded trucks not only affect the surface but have a tendency to damage the foundations as well, and drivers who appreciate the good roads with which Ontario is being interlaced will find it profitable to follow the advice of the department.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

His Excellency the Governor-General has issued a proclamation designating the week commencing October 4th, that is a week from tomorrow, as Fire Prevention Week throughout Canada.

During that week it is hoped to have lessons on fire prevention subjects in the schools, public meetings held in many of the larger cities, towns and villages, and the owners and occupants of property everywhere in the Dominion will be urged to give special attention to the removal of fire hazards from their premises.

Dominion Fire Commissioner Smith declares that fire waste is one of the most serious economic problems confronting Canada at the present time, because the public in general is vitally affected by the tremendous losses annually caused by fire and the enormous expenditures rendered necessary to adequately protect life and property from its ravages.

Although the wisdom of staging a fire prevention week during a general election campaign is open to question, the matter is of such great importance that the Canadian people should endeavour to enter into the spirit of the occasion and make the campaign mean something.

Seventy-five per cent. of the fires, it is officially announced, are the result of carelessness, and therefore could be prevented.

It is surely worth while to make a real effort to cut down that percentage.

THE FRONTIER COLLEGE.

The Frontier College has this year for the first time issued a calendar covering its work and containing a vast amount of useful information.

This institution, of the Board of Governors of which Mr. Joseph Wearing, Peterboro's City Solicitor, is a member, for a quarter of a century has been developing an idea—the education of the worker at his work.

In pursuance of this object it has sent 900 men, graduates and undergraduates, mostly of Canadian and American universities, to act as instructors in camps and other frontier places.

These instructors engage in the same kind of hard manual labour as their fellows.

In their spare hours they become teachers, helping the men, many of whom have been deprived of opportunities for even elementary education.

The Frontier College has in this way blazed its own trail and entered a new field.

It indeed occupies a unique place in the sphere of education.

The idea is growing, and each succeeding year has seen an increasing number of graduates and research students added to the staff.

It is claimed by the college that its instructors by daily contact with their fellow-workers offer the best solution for bridging effectively the gulf, too long existing between the manual worker and the university.

There is no doubt that there is much in this claim and that the Frontier College is playing a very real part in Canadian development.

The first calendar issued by the institution is full of interest.

DISAMED DOMINIONS.

A recent speech of Colonel Amery, British Secretary of State for the Dominions, deserves more notice than it has received in this country. Discussing the operation of the Empire Settlement Act, Colonel Amery attributed the paucity of results to the indifference of public opinion in the overseas dominions. He declared that there were in Britain large numbers of workers who would be only too glad to emigrate to Canada, if they were not hindered from doing so by reason of the fact that the Canadian Government was unprepared to assist them. He repudiated the suggestion that unemployment pay, health assurance and the other social benefits enjoyed by the British worker acted as an effective bar to emigration. In spite of these advantages, asserted Colonel Amery, there would be no difficulty in persuading emigrants to make the change, given the necessary co-operation of the Canadian authorities. Obviously, the British Government cannot alone bring about that movement of population from congested regions of the Empire to localities which are less crowded and which offer opportunities of a more satisfactory living. The Mother Country has generously done her part in the provision made for Empire settlement. The success of the undertaking depends upon the response made in the dominions themselves.

Another significant passage in the speech of the Secretary for the Dominions was that dealing with the attitude of employers toward the immigrant. He expressed the opinion that many employers looked upon the question of immigration from an altogether too selfish viewpoint. There were some who welcomed the opportunity of getting cheap labor from Europe, he thought, and did not care from which country it came, so long as the supply was ample and the standards of living such as to enable low wages to suffice. Others regarded immigrant labor as an instrument with which to intensify the competition among the workers. So long as ideas of that kind prevailed, there could not possibly be a satisfactory development of imperial migration schemes. It is with no intention of depressing living standards, but rather that present standards may be maintained and improved upon that the redistribution of Empire population is to be recommended. While, no doubt, there are employers of the type referred to by Colonel Amery, he is mistaken if he imagines they constitute the majority in Canada. By far the greater number are as anxious as the Secretary of State himself that the new blood infused into the industrial population of Canada should be British. Cheap labor from Central Europe is not the kind of labor favored in this country so long as British labor is available willing to do the same class of work performed by these foreigners. It is not a question of wages so much as of labor supply. As for the lowering of standards, British working men should understand that labor in Canada is highly organized and that it would not be possible for selfish employers to carry out their program, if they wanted to. The insinuation that the Dominion Government is falling down in its co-operation with the home authorities is another matter, and demands official attention.—Hamilton Spectator.

AN OPEN DOOR TO CANADA.

Proposed changes in the immigration laws, designed to perfect the Restrictive Act of 1924, are beginning to attract attention in Washington. Secretary of Labor Davis is said to have in mind several amendments which he wishes to recommend to the immigration committees of the House and Senate. Among them, it is reported, is an extension of the quota system to include Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America, territories now unrestricted.

Reserving detailed comment on the Secretary's proposals until their publication as a whole, we think it fitting to suggest at this time, nevertheless, one axiom which Congress ought to keep in mind when it takes up new immigration legislation. This is, that there shall be no change in the present portions of the law permitting the entrance of Canadian citizens into the United States without quota restrictions.

It is a duty of Congress to see to it that this country shall do nothing which might alter the friendly relations between the English-speaking neighbors of North America. The closer the friendship and understanding between the two countries the greater will be the mutual advantage. It would be cause for high indignation were Americans restricted from crossing the border. So will the Canadians feel if they are to be prevented from passing at will that line which can serve the two nations best by being most truly imaginary.

An extension of the quota was threatened before, during investigation of the bootlegging of European and Asiatic aliens from Canada. In reply, Canadian officials renewed their offer to co-operate with the United States in every way to check the illegal flow. This attitude furnishes some proof of the Canadian state of mind. If the bootlegging of aliens across the border is at the bottom of Mr. Davis' proposal, Canada has set us an example of co-operation which we should follow instead of turning to a course which might well alienate her good will.

In geographic setting, in heritage, in temperament, and in national ideals no other nation on earth resembles our country so closely as does Canada. Canadian immigration presents no problem of assimilation. The only other countries to approximate this close relationship are Australia and New Zealand. Ask any doughboy who went overseas with what allied fellow-soldiers he got along best. At least two out of three times, if he met them, he'll say the Canadians and the Anzacs.

Let the door to the north stand open.—Chicago Tribune.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Get on the lists now—and vote on October 29th.

It is much easier, as well as much more satisfactory, to make sure your name is on the voters' list than it will be to argue with a deputy returning officer on election day.

A THOUGHT.

WHERE MOST OF US SLIP.

Thirty-one years ago twins were born and at the age of eight months these sisters were separated. They were removed far from each other and with the exception of about ten months they lived apart all their lives.

And they lived in entirely different environments and led dissimilar lives.

To-day they look alike, weigh about the same and, after a scientific test, they prove to be the same intellectually, but are far apart in emotional reaction or development.

Here is one concrete case that should help to settle the long feud between those who believe that heredity determines practically all that we are, and those who maintain that environment makes or mars our mental or moral make-up.

1. We inherit and acquire habits. Ancestors are accountable for our brains, but associates influence our behaviour. We are heirs to our head-stuffing, but our hearts are molded by the external conditions that confront us.

We surrender to our surroundings even when we have brains enough to know better, but brute instinct is often stronger than intellectual faculties. Environment opens the easy door to enjoyment.

And it is the seeking of enjoyment where most of us slip; therefore, it should be the business of every rational mind to understand that we cannot combine opposite qualities — that Wise Providence has fixed the limits of human enjoyment by immovable boundaries —that we are part of all that we have met—that brains get befuddled by whom and what we meet—that environment is much.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Bethany Church Will Hold Special Services on October 11.

NORHAM, Sept. 26.—At a meeting of the Trustee Board of Bethany United Church held at the home of Mr. J. B. Jones of Warkworth has been engaged for the services. A thankoffering will be taken as the ladies of the congregation have requested this instead of a supper. The amount to be asked for at the thankoffering is $100.00.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.— (Canadian Press).—Assertions that the Canadian wheat grower's pool has been offering wheat to Europe at 2 to 7 cents a bushel under the rates asked through ordinary export channels had a depressing effect yesterday on the wheat market here. New low prices records for the season were reached both by wheat and corn. Wheat closed nervous, 1 1-4 to 2 1-2 cents lower, December $1.42 3-4 to $1.42 7-8, and May $1.44 7-8 to $1.45 1-8, with corn 3-4 cent to 1 7-8 cents off, oats at 1-8c loss to 3-8c advance and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.

Despite a sharp rally which took place in wheat values soon after the opening, active selling that developed forced the market down later until in some cases the level reached was more than 11 cents under prices which were current on Tuesday. September delivery showed the most weakness, and went to a discount as compared with December. Something of a recovery, however, was again in progress as the day drew to an end.

Reports about the Canadian wheat pool offering bargain prices abroad were coupled with opinions that the pool officials had blundered and had obliged Canadian millers to compete at a disadvantage with foreign millers using Canadian wheat. It was charged also that the action of the pool had virtually eliminated ordinary exporters who were therefore making little attempt to bring forward any material quantity of wheat before the close of lake navigation.

Favorable wheather for the maturing and cutting of corn led to liquidating sales of considerable volume in the corn market and kept the oats market easy.

In provisions the effect of grain weakness was an offset for higher quotations on hogs.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press).—There was little improvement in the demand from English importers for wheat on the Montreal market yesterday but there was some enquiry for Ontario and Quebec oats and sales of quite a few loads were made.

The trade in cash grain was a little better, there being a better demand and sales of No. 2 Northern wheat were reported at 12 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, C. I. F., Montreal, and No. 4 wheat at 3 1-4 cents per bushel under the same option, C. I. F. bay ports, while No. 2 Canadian Western oats sold at 14 cents per bushel over the October future C. I. F. Montreal.

A moderate amount of business was done in car lots of Ontario and Quebec oats for domestic account and prices were steady with sales of No. 2 white at 50 cents No. 3 white at 48 cents, and No. 4 white at 46 cents per bushel, ex-track, and Ontario No. 3 malting barley was quiet and unchanged at 81 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There was no further developments in the local flour situation, prices being about steady at the recent declines noted. The volume of business in spring wheat grades in all directions was reported smaller, the recent weakness in the wheat market having a tendency to check the demand.

The trade in Winter wheat was also rather slow owing to the fact that buyers in most cases seem to be fairly well supplied for immediate requirements. The tone of the market was steady.

There was no change in the condition of the market for millfeed, prices for all lines being well maintained under a steady demand and a fair amount of business was done. A fair trade was transacted in all grades of standard oats and prices were unchanged.

The receipts of butter to-day were 3,332 packages, as compared with 3,793 for the same day last week, and 2,066 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade continues to be the decidedly strong feeling that prevails in the market and prices have scored a further sharp advance of 1 3-4c to 2c per lb and they are now at the highest level of the season with every indication of them going still higher in the near future. The strength of the market may be attributed to the good demand from all sources for supplies, the large volume of business passing and the lighter receipts. Late on Thursday afternoon sales of 1,000 packages of Eastern townships No 1 pasteurized creamery were made at 44 7-8c per lb., and 1,000 packages at 45c per lb. and yesterday further sales were reported at 45c per lb., in sympathy with the above, the wholesale jobbing market was also very strong and prices for finest creamery in solid packages were marked up to 45c per lb., and in 1 lb. blocks at 46c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 9,056 boxes, a scompared with 8935 for the same day last week, and 9,262 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market for cheese was also strong and prices show a further rise of 1-2c per lb., which was attributed to the continued steady buying of English importers and the fact that they accepted all the offers made overnight by Canadian exporters with the result that an active business was done.

EGG MARKET.

The feature of the egg trade was the stronger that developed in the market strictly fresh stock and prices scored another advance of 2c per dozen which was attributed to the increasing scarcity of supplies and the higher figures dealers have been compelled to pay at country points. There was no change in prices for storage eggs, but the undertone to the market was very firm. The demand was steady and a fairly active business was done. The receipts were 1,382 cases as compared with 1370 for the same day last week, and 829 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Owing to the continued small supplies of potatoes coming forward a very firm feeling prevails in the market. There was a good steady demand and a fair trade was done in New Brunswick cobblers at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., and in Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

Beans were steady at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A Friendly Bank

He was a farmer of sound character and ability. So when he asked for a loan to further develop his farm it was readily granted.

With the loan he bought more stock, machinery and seed. His farm prospered and his profits swelled. After selling his crop he paid back the loan and had a handsome surplus.

This surplus he wisely deposited in the Bank of Toronto. Wiser still, he sought the expert investment counsel of his Bank of Toronto manager.

That was years ago. He is now retired, comfortable and prosperous.

But he still comes in for advice on banking and investment matters. For he regards the Bank of Toronto as a good friend—a friend that gives service and that is unfailing in its welcome. A friend that has earned the trust and cordial good-will of thousands of farmers like himself.

GERMANY'S TENTATIVE MOVEMENT TOWARD PARTICIPATION IN LEAGUE OCCASION OF LAUDATORY WORDS

Assembly Gave Special Heed to Amicable Feeling of French.

PHRASES OF HARMONY

Assembly to Respect Viewpoints of All—Co-operative Spirit.

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press).—With negotiations about to be inaugurated between the Allies and Germany for a security pact, the Assembly of the League of Nations yesterday gave special attention to a friendly French gesture toward Germany, conveyed in the words of M. De Jouvenel, former Minister of Education, that all hoped the German nation would be co-operating in the councils of the League.

This is but one of the many phases of harmony and conciliation falling from the lips of statesmen during a great discussion of disarmament and arbitration. Speaker after speaker arose to laud the progress of world regeneration through arbitration and security pacts and the reduction of armaments, which the Assembly adopted in the form of concrete resolutions.

The programme provides, first of all, for preparation by the Council of an international disarmament conference, the hopes for which everybody admits depend almost entirely upon the forthcoming security pourparlers with Germany.

M. De Jouvenel made his amicable reference to Germany while arguing that the Assembly must respect the viewpoints of all countries with their different traditions and temperaments, and that the watchword must ever be not victory, but co-operation.

The United States figured prominently in a resolution affecting armaments, yhich was unanimously adopted by the Assembly, as it did also in an address by Dr. Guerrero, of Salvador, who presented it. By the resolution the Council of the League is directed to prepare a draft convention on the private manufacture of arms so that an international conference to consider it may be summoned before the next Assembly. It was further resolved that the co-operation of a representative of the United States Government in the preliminaries was indispensable to the success of the conference, and the Council is requested to invite the United States Government "to co-operate as soon as it considers such a step possible."

Dr. Guerrero told the Assembly that the reference to the United States included in his resolution was in conformity with the desire expressed by the Assembly last year that the closest possible collaboration should be established with the United States in preparing for the conference. He added that the Armaments Committee was convinced that in order to be effective the convention on the private manufacture of arms must be so drawn up as to receive the approval of all the producing countries.

A resolution, introduced by Eleodor Yanez, of Chile, asking the Council to consider the advisability of convoking an international press conference, also was adopted by the Assembly. M. Hymans of Belgium, speaking before this resolution was passed, pointed out that the press "is a great power which has a permanent seat in the League of Nations."

CHILD WELFARE COUNCIL PLANNING BIG BROTHER AND SISTER SCHEME

To Collaborate With Department of Immigration For Children's Care.

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

Advocate Procuring Volunteer Teachers For Crippled Children.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 26. —(Canadian Press).—The Department of Immigration and the Canadian Council on Child Welfare, whose fifth conference opens here Monday, are planning a big brother and sister scheme for immigrant children by which responsible members of organizations in the locality where the children are, will befriend them. In a report to be presented at the conference it is stated that the Department of Immigration has acted on the Bondfield report in that improved medical inspection of children is required in London, and everything possible is being done to improve the mental test. The Department is taking up with emigration societies the necessity of inspecting the homes of applicants for children. Further improvements are pending. Representatives of a number of emigration societies are here to discuss the restriction of passage grants for unaccompanied children to those over 14 years of age.

In the annual report of the secretary of the Child Welfare Conference, Miss Charlotte Whitton states that the establishment of a registry of crippled children, with a view to connecting them with volunteer teachers for the purpose of education, had called attention to the need for a census of crippled children. She recommended that for those in remote districts who could not be taught directly, a correspondence scheme be organized with the aid of the various departments of education.

Members of the Council are being asked to use their influence to have the provinces adhere to the Imperial Maintenance Orders' Enforcement Act of 1920, which provides for reciprocal arrangements between courts in the United Kingdom, in the apprehension of family deserters and the enforcement of maintenance orders against them.

The Council has prepared for distribution series of pre-natal letters in French and English. Hitherto these have been largely ordered from United States organizations, since only two Provincial departments published such health letters.

Dire Need Of a Nickle Brings Black Maria Quickly

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Matthew McSorley felt sore need for five cents while walking along Provencher Avenue, St. Boniface, Thursday. A portly gentleman dressed in a neat business suit approached and Matthew made his request:

"Could you gimme a nickel mister?" he asked.

"Just wait here a minute," said the prospect, "while I step into this store."

Matthew waited expectant. The police patrol clanged around the corner and five minutes later he was in a cell charged with vagrancy.

His prospect turned out to be Chief Gagnon of the St. Boniface police. He had invested the "nickel" in a pay-station call to the police station.

FRUIT SEASON PASSING PEAK

Peaches and Tomatoes Gradually Thinning Out—Grapes Plentiful.

APPLES MAKE APPEAL.

The summer fruit market is passing through another phase this week according to local dealers, with the bulk of the best peaches and plums reaching the tag end of their supply Tomatoes, too, are thinning out, while grapes are approaching their peak.

"The best of the peaches will be gone to-day,' 'said one merchant. "There may be a few more odd lots but the public should not delay any longer in any purchases they intend to make. The leno or open top baskets of Albertas are selling at $1 to $1.15 with selects having touched $1.50. But the selects are practically done. Grapes are 50c and 60c a basket and are coming plentifully. At the same time there is a heavy demand, and the season for them may not be long. Tomatoes are around 50c and 60c a basket."

Apples are crowding the fruit store shelves with St. Lawrence's making a particularly strong appeal to those who consider the Canadian apple and unrivalled fruit. Other varieties are also on the market selling from 25c to 50c a peck. Choice St. Lawrences were quoted at 50c Plums are from 65c to $1.25 a basket, and will not last much longer.

It is no secret that grapes have a special attraction for those persons who include a few, if not many, bottles of wine in their winter's larder. And the cost is figured out a comparatively small sum compared with the retail price of the Niagara Manufacturer's product.

FRENCH AVIATORS TRY FOR RECORDS

ETAMPES, France, Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press). — The French aviators, Paul Tarascon and Favreau, flying the airplane which Tarascon and his companion, Francois Coli, had constructed especially for their attempt to make a non-stop flight from Paris to New York, took off from Etampes at noon yesterday to try to break the speed record for 3,000 kilometres. Their machine had fuel for thirty hours.

The present record for 3,000 kilometres (1,863 miles) was made by Lieutenants Kelly and Macready of the United States Army in 1923, when they maintained a speed for the distance of 71.62 miles an hour.

SMALL VARIETY FISH FOR SALE

Salmon Trout, White Fish and Cat Fish Are Offered.

OYSTER MONTHS.

A canvass of the retail fish stores of the city discloses the fact that almost the only varieties of fish consumed just now in the city, apart from anglers' catches, are salmon trout, whitefish and catfish. As the weather becomes colder, fillet halibut and sea salmon appear on the counters of the stores. There is always a plentiful supply of these fish to be had but there are not stores here with equipment to keep them in proper storage during the warmer months. The present month is the only time of the year when cat fish are exposed for sale in large quantities. During the present month oysters begin to arrive. The popular belief that oysters are only to be eaten during the 'R' months is based on a scientific fact—which is that the other months, from May to September are the spawning season.

RETIRED FINANCE MINISTER GIVEN OFFICE MEMENTO

Presented With Bond Which Represented Last Official Operation.

TRIBUTE TO SERVICE.

Artistic Work Done By Fellow Provincials From Nova Scotia.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 24. — Canadian Press. — Representatives of the Departments of Finance and Insurance, called yesterday morning on Right Hon. W. S. Fielding his residence, and presented him with an address accomponied by a gift from the entire staff of the two departments throughout Canada, in the form of a bond of the 1923 issue, the last big financial operation with which Mr. Fielding dealt as Minister of Finance.

The event which was perhaps unique in many respects in the records of the public service of Canada, marked the severance of the relations of Mr. Fielding as Minister, with the staff of the departments. The address was read and the presentation made on behalf of the officials by Hon. J. A. Robb.

Mr. Fielding in his reply, spoke from his long experience with public officials, of the high regard he held for the public service of Canada as a whole, and referred to the loyal support which he had always received from the members of his own departments from the highest to the lowest.

At the same time bouquets of roses were presented to Mrs. Fielding and the Misses Fielding.

The address was engrossed with the Dominion coat of arms and a picture of the East Block, in which for so many years, Mr. Fielding had his office.

The engrossing words were done by a native of Mr. Fielding's home province of Nova Scotia, H. Schmartz.

It was contained in ab lue morocco case, decorated with corner pieces of maple leaves and with lettering in gold done by J. J. Keegan.

Both Messrs. Schwartz and Keegan areemployees of the Canadian Bank Note Company, Limited, of Ottawa, which had charge of the work on behalf of the Finance Department.

A CHANCE FOR WOMEN.

Today a woman's chance of rising from the ranks to a position of real guiding authority in any big industrial concern is practically nil," Lady Rhondda told an interviewer recently. "And it will remain so until fathers and the commercial community in general get used to the idea that there is an immense amount of talent for business organization among women, and that it is perfectly natural they should be given the chance to use it.

"Our country's history is largely the history of trade. As long as women take a minor part in our premier profession, the foundation of our national prosperity, we shall tend to depreciate their intelligence and capacity. Most of the men who are controlling our big industries today inherited or walked into their positions as an officer walks into the army with a commission. I want women to have the same chance to make good."

FRENCH FORCES TAKE OBJECTIVES NEW OFFENSIVE

French Troops Now Occupy Djebel Kounsoun and Djebel Rouchum.

MAY JOIN SPANISH.

Also Thought Move to Relieve Riffian Pressure on Allies.

FEZ, French Morocco, Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press).—A French offensive on a large scale was launched yesterday on the eastern sector of the Moroccan front, with the advance of strong elements of French troops from Kifane in the direction of Ajdir, which lies 40 miles due north. The French troops reached all their objectives, occupying Djebel Kounsoun and Djebel Rouchum, north-east of Kifane.

The extent and scope of the offensive—whether it is designed to effect a junction of the French troops with the Spaniards who are moving down from Alhucemas Bay toward Ajdir, the capital of Abd-El-Krim, or is simply to relieve the Riffian pressure on France's allies—has not yet been officially announced by the high commission.

The forty miles which separate Kifane from Ajdir stretch over a wild, mountainous country, and great artillery preparations were necessary before the French infantry began to move. The French report says that the enemy appeared completely stunned by the suddenness of the attack and abandoned two cannon and a quantity of ammunition to the advancing French troops.

The success of the Spanish troops which landed at Alhucemas Bay and the ultimate outcome of the operations they have carried on during the last ten days appears to be dependent upon a prompt advance by the French toward the north.

"Cannon roared all along the front of the Nineteenth Corps yesterday," the official communique says, adding that airplanes dropped bombs on the enemy retiring toward the north in great disorder. Air scouts also noted a movement of Abd-El-Krim's troops toward the south from Ajdir in an effort to halt the French offensive. This is expected to give the Spanish troops on the narrow strip of land they hold at Alhucemas Bay a little more breathing room.

Mud Taxes or Gas Taxes?

Users of Ontario highways in years gone by paid a heavy tribute to mud roads. They paid in the form of damage to vehicles and waste of time and money in getting about the country.

The mud taxes were more burdensome than any conceivable gasoline tax ever will be. Not one automobile or truck owner would exchange Ontario road conditions, with a gas tax, for the conditions of ten years ago when there was no gas tax.

The gasoline tax reminds you that as a user of the road you are expected to pay construction and maintenance costs. As a practical measure, road building must have definite financial support.

In making this situation familiar to all motorists, the Government is requesting co-operation in maintaining the good condition of the roads by the sane and intelligent use of them.

Care of the roads falls into the hands of the public as well as of the road authorities. Repairs are made by the authorities, but the need for repairs can be deferred by reasonable loading and sane driving.

While the law provides penalties for those who overload or drive above the speed limit, voluntary co-operation of intelligent motorists and truck owners is being given in this matter. Those who persist in breaking the law, however, may expect rigorous enforcement of its provisions.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs, Good Roads Associations and all other public spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the Province.

The HON. GEO. S. HENRY, Minister. S. L. SQUIRE, Deputy Minister.

Facts About Your Gas Meter

Any Gas Meter is much like a pint or quart measure for water or flour.

When the covers are off, you can see two leather pockets—or bellows. Those bellows draw in the gas from the street mains and discharge it into your house piping.

Attached to the bellows are some simple little cog wheels which move the hands on the clock-like face of the meter dial as the gas passes through. Your meter actually measures the gas by taking it in and pouring it out. It cannot register the same gas twice. And, when your burner cocks are all closed, it cannot move unless there is a leak in the piping inside your house.

Gas Meters are not made by the companies that supply gas to the homes. They are manufactured by well-known firms, of high reputation, who specialize on the building of mechanical devices that are as accurate as human skill can make them.

A Gas Meter may get out of order and need fixing—just like your watch. An old watch is more apt to run too slow than too fast. This is also true of a Gas Meter or of any other device made of iron or copper or leather that will wear out in time.

Close all your burners once in awhile and watch the small test dial at the top of the meter. If the hand moves, your pipes or appliances are leaking. Call the Gas Department at once. Gas leaks are dangerous. If there are no house leaks, but you still think the meter is not working right, report the trouble to our Service Department for prompt investigation.

A letter has just come in, from a little girl and her brother, wanting to know something, so I will give the whole letter, in case others may have had the same experiences.

Dear Nature Lore: We have no bird book but we have a nice big dog who likes cake, so he is educated enough to like birds too. Last Spring, when it was still Winter and everybody was ashamed at Old Man Winter for not staying away when he once went, and he came back and froze a lot of birds in the snow that time. John and I were helped by Daddy to find some dead ones which were not nearly as dead as they let on. We picked them frozen stiff off the ground, and they wouldn't wiggle their heads or talk one bit for ages in the dining room. They had the nicest crowns of orange on their heads and some had yellow ones and some had circles of yellow with red inside, all on their heads. They were oh so tiny. They didn't like our kind of food, so we let them go when the snow began to melt at noon. It was warm then. Will they ever come back? Please tell us where they are and lots about them.

Yours truly,
—JOHN AND MABLE HAMILTON.

Well, John and Mable, and all the other little girls and little boys who share their cake with nature, we just love to get nice letters like this one. You must have loved the birds very much indeed, to be so careful in seeing exactly what they looked like. We can easily tell the bird you mean. These were what are known as Golden-crowned Kinglets. They will probably visit your garden any day now, on the way south for the Winter, but you must not feel badly if you miss them, for they sometimes come in the night and go early, and they sometimes take another way altogether. However, they will be back again in the Spring, so look for them, and tell me some more about birds and cake eating dogs.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PERIODIC EXAMINING TO AVOID ILLNESS.

A few days ago one of my correspondents scolded me because I say so much about periodical physical examinations. He says, "the doctors will make enough money without this additional income."

He referred to my uncle who recently reached his hundredth year, saying this ripe old age is due largely to the good health of the mother and the inheritance she gave him and depends little on what doctors have contributed.

It would be foolish for any man to discount the tremendous value of a splendid physical inheritance. But a hundred years, or half that, is a long, long time.

No matter how perfect are the materials from which a house is built, there will come a time when it must be touched up, here and there. A nail will rust, break off, and loosen a clapboard. This gives a chance for the rain to enter. A shingle will curl up and let in the destroying water. The stained ceiling and dropping plaster tell the story of deterioration.

My correspondent is just a little bit unkind about doctors. I have known a lot of them—as a medical teacher, helped to make a lot during a quarter of a century on a medical faculty. I know no better men and women in all the world.

Did you ever stop to think what is the family doctor's chief job It consists in keeping the family well. In my opinion the doctor of the future will have little else to do. Advances in medical science—brought about by doctors—are speedily cutting off the income derived from the art of healing. But unselfishly they go forward in their work of obliterating disease—at the same time doing away with the need of doctors.

But doctors continue to be a necessity. One of the most useful services they render is to give the periodical examinations. They are undertaken to find if there are any breaks and to advise what should be done to seal them up before real trouble arrives.

Such ailments as cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, Bright's disease and others of lesser importance are likely to yield quickly to remedial measures if taken early. It is a harder fight if the battle is postponed.

In spite of my friend's criticism, I insist that just as good care should be given the body as you give your automobile; certainly. It is foolhardy to neglect a fine machine, and to me it seem little short of wicked to let the precious human machine go to wreck because of inattention to tiny breaks.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY OVERHEARS A FAMILY WRANGLE.

When Dotty neared the bushes she heard so much twittering she stopped still to listen.

"I tell you, it's an outrage," chirped a wee little bird. "Throw it out! Throw it out right now!"

"Now, Daddy Yellow Throat, be reasonable," soothed a softer voice. "It doesn't pay to be quick tempered."

Dotty pulled aside the bush, and there, on the edge of a skunk cabbage, beside a wee little nest filled with eggs, sat a dear little bird, a wee bit smaller than the English sparrow, with dull olive-gray feathers on its head and back, with throat and breast of bright yellow.

"Why, friends," whispered Dotty before she thought, "you mustn't quarrel. What's wrong? Can I help you?"

At first the birds were rather startled. Then when they looked at Dotty's happy face they recognized her as a friend, and Daddy Yellow Throat hopped down beside her. His face was almost covered with a black mask that made his yellow throat all the brighter.

"I don't mind telling you, Miss Dotty,' he chirped, "and I know you'll agree with me, it's an outrage and something should be done to clear this part of the country of Cowbirds."

"Cowbirds!" exclaimed the astonished Dotty. "Have they stolen your eggs or babies?"

"Not that bad," laughed Mrs. Yellow Throat Warbler. "Mrs. Cowbird wouldn't steal anyone's children."

"You Mustn't Quarrel."

"No, because she hates baby birds," exclaimed Daddy Yellow Throat. "The trouble with Mrs. Cowbird is she's too lazy to make a nest of her own and raise a family. She must chuck her eggs in someone else's nest. Mama Yellow Throat and I just returned to our nest to find one of her ugly old eggs beside ours," and he pointed to the eggs in the nest. There, beside the tiny little eggs of the Yellow Throat Warbler, rested a great big ugly egg.

"Never mind, Daddy," Mrs. Yellow Throat tried to soothe her husband. "I'll hatch it out for her."

"You 'll do nothing of the sort," cried Daddy Yellow Throat. "Why, Dotty, would you believe it, Mrs. Warbler, our cousin, had to put in three floors to her nest last year to keep from hatching Cowbird's eggs. Every time she found a Cowbird egg in her nest she'd build another apartment right above it, until she had a nest three stories high. I'll not do that. I'll——" and he perched himself on the edge of the skunk cabbage and began pecking at the egg.

"I'll tell you, Daddy Yellow Throat," cried Dotty, "Mama Yellow Throat doesn't want you to do that. Suppose I take the big egg out and lay it on the ground."

"That would be lovely," twittered Mrs. Yellow Throat. "Then I wouldn't feel so badly about it."

Dotty carefully lifted the ugly egg from the pretty skunk cabbage nest and laid it on the ground. Mama Yellow Throat nestled back on her pretty little eggs, and all that afternoon Dotty could hear Daddy Yellow Throat singing his pretty little love song to his wife.

Irish People Have Obeyed Instructions of Sinn Fein.

DUBLIN, Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press).—A Republican newspaper organ yesterday says that a movement is being organized in Ireland to boycott all English goods.

The same paper asserts that the voting in the recent elections for the Senate, which it says was "extremely poor," is evidence that the Irish people have following the orders of Sinn Fein to boycott the elections and that this proves that the hold of the Free State regime is slight.

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

What use, what difference, indeed? After all his sturdy retilling and resowing, the chance for an abundant and joyous harvest now withered in his hands by discovery when he thought he was safe and forgotten; all his cherished isolation and jealously guarded bars of secrecy brushed down until Crater City and the present were one with the rest of the world and the past. Bob, rigid upon his back, stared miserably at the same patch of white ceiling on which the first flushing of light had found his eyes blankly fixed. He looked forward with dread to what would now be an ordeal all day with Carolinnen e an ordeal all day with Caroline in the woodland, instead of a carefree picnic. He wished that Morran had refused to grant him the day off. Then, he suddenly grew conscious that over and over he was telling himself to arise and dress and steal away from town with the beginning day and become a drifting nonentity again on the trail of forgetfulness. He could find and join Potts out there near Eagle Pass—dear, useless, companionable old "Pottsey," whose return at this time was perhaps opportune and providential in that it enticingly represented to Bob the easiest way for a trouble wearied man.

"What the hell difference does anything make?"

What difference could his going possibly make to anyone; preceding circlets of ripples in the public interest as the days went on—then, forgotten!

He twisted himself out of bed, slowly, heavy-hearted. He would go, even though the very— walls seemed to be mocking him with an accusation of cowardice. He would leave a note for Jim. To Caroline he would explain that Morran in the press of an emergency had cancelled his day's leave. Now that his mind was made up he plodded steadily at the task of dressing.

"Hurry up Daddy Bob—the lady will be waiting!"

He had almost forgotten Bobby, who dishevelled from the sound and untroubled sleep of his babyhood stood in the doorway with his clothes in his hand, ready for Bob to dress him.

Bob sat down on the bed with a short laugh, all his resolutions to leave dissolving into thin air as he stared at the tow-headed, rascally youngster and knew him for an anchor—an anchor that might be dragged in times of storm, but could not be broken away from because it was attached by a chain of love. In that moment Bob realized, too, that he had been stubbornly blinding himself to another overlying fact; an invisible, larger, more potent anchor that this sleepy-voiced mite somehow symbolized and brought into clear and unmistakeable relief—his love for Caroline.

He had tried to pretend through the night that he was not in love with her, that theirs was merely a mutual friendly interest. He had fought even harder when the mating scents and sounds of the June morning threw their subtle impressions around his senses. He told himself that it was not mean or contemptible to run away from Caroline because she had not admitted love for him, that this was the time to go before the breaking of hearts—his, or hers, or both—would be involved. Now he knew himself for an emotional liar; he did love Caroline. Whether or not she loved him—yet—did not make any difference, or lessen his responsibilities.

He must go through with to-day's outing. Perhaps he would never hear from Jane again. But even if he did—he could no longer run away, like a whipped dog; he must fight, confess, and seek a way out.

After he had dressed and breakfasted himself and Bobby, and was leading the child by the hand down the street to the Widow's, Bob found that courage was seeping into and fortifying the foundation of his determinations. The spell of the morning was working upon him, bringing recklessness of consequence. The day promised not so badly, after all.

Caroline was eagerly awaiting him at the gate—Caroline, cool and willowy in a slim dress that neither concealed nor emphasized the refined but fundamental womanliness of her girlish body. Bobby was duly kissed by Caroline.

"Are you giving them away?" aksed Bob enviously.

"Can I trust myself with this man, I wonder?" Caroline countered, pretending to appraise Bob with suspicious apprehensions while she handed him the lunch to carry.

An instantly assumed expression of bland innocence and sexless benevolence won the restored confidence of Caroline. The picnickers were ready to start now, upon Mrs. O'Leary's assumption of the person and charge of Bobby and his armful of toys.

"Daddy Bob, why do you look at the lady like that—just like Daddy Jim does, too?"

This startling pronouncement of childishly innocent curiosity fell like a wet and awkward blanket upon two of the three adults—upon Bob, who stared uncomfortably at Bobby; and upon Mrs. O'Leary, who fidgeted and looked calamitous. Caroline alone, aside from a slight flush, retained self-possession.

"You're much too young to qualify as a reliable observer of grown-up nonsense or a professor of physhology, but you're a dear child!" she said lightly, kissing Bobby good-bye and shooing him into the yard and the safe check of Mrs. O'Leary's vicarious motherhood.

PRESENTATION TO BAILIEBORO BRIDE

Miss Jean Eagleson Was the Recipient of Many Gifts.

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 26.—On Monday, Sept. 21st, a pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Eagleson, Bailieboro, where members of Centreville Presbyterian Church and friends from the community, to the number of one hundred and forty, met to do honor to Miss Jean Eagleson on the eve of her marriage.

Personal good-wishes and tokens of good-will were "showered" on the bride-to-be, after which a short presentation programme was given.

Mr. J. C. McRoberts, acting as chairman, extended to Miss Eagleson the thanks and appreciation of the managers and of the church as a whole for her services as organist during recent years. As a token of this appreciation a purse of gold was presented to Miss Eagleson by little Miss Robena Tate, on behalf of the church.

Mrs. Skitch and Mr. J. C. Campbell, speaking for the community, conveyed the best wishes of a host of friends for the future happiness of the bride-to-be.

Mr. D. N. Dodds spoke very highly of Miss Eagleson's faithful and willing work in connection with the choir. A handsome walnut library table, the gift of the choir, was presented by Mr. Roy Rutherford, with the following address:

"Dear Jean,—

"It is with the utmost pleasure that we, the members of Centreville Presbyterian choir, have gathered here tonight to express the gratitude and best wishes that we owe to you as a member of the choir from which you have recently resigned.

"Needless to say, you will be greatly missed from the place that you have so ably filled for the past three years. As organist of the church you have proven yourself a very devoted member, with the result that your work has been most commendable. You have at all times been so faithful in your duties. Very seldom were you absent from your place on Sunday, and if it were that you could not be there, you manifested your deep interest by informing those interested in order that a substitute might be secured. At the practices you were no less faithful, and we fully realize the sacrifices that you must have made at times just because of choir practice.

"However, you may rest assured that we appreciated and feel grateful for all the earnest efforts that you expended in that behalf.

"In social life your pleasant smile and cheerful countenance have made for you many friends, and we are delighted to know that you are going to remain in the community amongst those who think of you always as a true friend.

"So it is that we now ask you to accept this gift, which serves to show in a tangible manner our appreciation of your efforts in the past. Grant that as you take your departure into a new sphere of life you may realize the tender feelings that accompany it.

"And now, on the eve of your marriage, let us reiterate our sincerest wishes for a life imbued with length, happiness and prosperity.

"Signed by the choir."

Miss Eagleson spoke words of thanks to all for the many kindnesses shown her.

"For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" was heartily sung by all present. Lunch was served, after which a good time was spent in dancing and games.

A pen of hens exposed to ultra violet rays for ten minutes a day at the University of Wisconsin laid twice as many eggs in March as another pen receiving the same food and care but unexposed to the rays.

UTMOST HARMONY MARKED FIRST MEETING COBOURG PRESBYTERY; REV. ROBBINS FIRST CHAIRMAN

Officers Are Well Divided Among Three Parties to Union.

130 DELEGATES.

Long Session Was Taken Up With Routine Business Or Organization.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, September 25. — The Presbytery of Cobourg of the United Church, the governing body immediately above the officials of the various congregations, was organized here on Thursday at a session that was marked with the utmost harmony throughout. The name of this particular part of the church machinery remains the same as that which was accepted for years by the former Presbyterians, but in other respects there are slight changes. The two branches incorporated in this new organization are the old district meeting of the Methodists and the former Presbytery of the Presbyterians. The presiding officer, instead of being called the Moderator, is now known as the Chairman; the former Clerk becomes the Secretary, and, owing to the increase of business anticipated on account of the larger membership, a treasurer was elected to relieve the latter of a portion of the duties which devolved upon him.

Fair Division of Offices.

The three denominations that have joined forces in the Union movement are represented by the chief officers who were chosen yesterday. Rev. J. U. Robbins, of Bowmanville, the chairman, was a Methodist before Union; Rev. Dr. D. W. Best of Bowmanville, was a Presbyterian, and the treasurer, J. T. Field, County Clerk, of Cobourg, belonged to the Congregational church in that town. As all these were chosen by ballot, there was no chance afforded the delegates for collusion in the distribution of the honors. The secretary and treasurer were named on the same ballot.

Work of Organizing.

There were about 130 clerical and lay delegates and almost as many outsiders gathered in the Division St. United Church, when Rev. S. C. Moore, of Colborne, appointed by the General Council for that purpose, called the gathering to order and a new era in church government in the Presbytery was begun. The audience joined with a vim that made the large edifice ring, in the singing of the hymn, which from the frequency of its use on special occasions has came to be known as the battle song of the Unionists, "The Churchs One Foundation is Jesus Christ. the Lord," after which Rev. A. K. McLeod, the veteran pastor of Brighton read the scripture lesson, and prayers were offered up by Rev. Dr. Brown, pastor of the church, Rev. J. S. Ferguson, of Baltimore, former Moderator of the Peterboro Unionist Presbytery, which passed out of existence yesterday, and Rev. J. W. S. Wilson of Brighton, ex-president of the former Bay of Quinte Conference.

Rev. S. C. Moore was then elected chairman pro tem., and Rev. Dr. Best was chosen as temporary secretary, the assembly being then in a position to proceed with the work of permanent organization.

The roll was churches and ministers in the Presbytery was called and each minister handed in the name of his lay delegate, a special committee being named on motion of Rev. C. F. McIntosh, associate pastor of St. John's, Campbellford, to confirm the list.

If this is true of a grown-up body,

For Settlement Board.

The four members chosen by ballot to represent the Presbytery on the Bay of Quinte Conference Board of Settlement, which supercedes the former Methodist Stationing Committee, were Rev. J. U. Robbins, the chairman, Rev. F. W. Anderson of Port Hope, and Colonel Snyder of Port Hope and W. H. Hopper of Cobourg.

Routine Business.

The delegates were busy until nearly 7 p.m., discussing details of routine business, which in effect provided a programme for the future of the organiation.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the Presbytery in Knox Church, Peterboro, in order to make final preparation for the first meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference—the old name being retained—which convenes on the evening of that day.

On motion of Dr. Best, the secretary, it was decided to hold only two regular or stated meetings of the Presbytery every year, special sessions to be called if the necessity for such gatherings arises. The chairman and secretary were given authority to decide the place where regular meetings are to be held.

Thinks Presbytery Too Large.

Rev. C. C. Washington of Courtice introduced a resolution calling on the coming conference to revise the boundaries of the presbyteries within its jurisdiction and, if possible, to have not more than 35 pastoral charges in each.

Mr. Washington, speaking to his resolution, maintained that the Presbytery of Cobourg, consisting as it does of 60 churches, is too large, and that in so wide a territory the matter of transportation will become a serious problem. The Presbytery cannot oversee local conditions so well with so much ground to cover. He was also of the opinion that to prevent business from piling up, meetings should be held more than twice a year.

The resolution was defeated by a large majority.

Four Million Required.

The sum of $4,000,000 is required to maintain the United Church for the coming year, and of this amount the five Presbyteries in the Bay of Quinte Conference are asked to raise $360,000. That was the message brought to the Presbytery yesterday by Rev. Frank Langford, of Toronto, whose official position in the United Church is general secretary of religious education, and who made an eloquent appeal for financial support for the Sunday schools.

Another special speaker was Rev. Dr. D. N. Soldant, business manager of the United Church publications, who dealt with the spiritual phase of the problem which now confronts the Church.

Standing Committees.

It was decided to adopt the suggestions of the General Conference as to the number of standing committees to be named, and a nominating committee was appointed to select the members. These special committees reported only two, one on boundaries of charges and the other on maintenance, George A. Kingston of Campbellford being a member of the latter. The others will be selected at the next Presbytery meeting.

Lady Delegates Present.

Before union was perfected ladies were admitted as lay delegates to Methodist Conference, but this custom had never been followed in the old time Presbyteries. At yesterday's session four lady delegates were admitted, three of these coming from Whitby and one from Prince Albert church.

All superannuated ministers who belonged to the former conference were admitted to the new Presbytery in full standing while former Presbyterian pastors were taken as corresponding members, without the right to vote, as no provision, so far as any of the delegates could discover, appeared to have been made with regard to these veterans, in the articles of Union.

No Ministetrs Unattched.

Temporary Chairman Moore announced that in the new Cobourg Presbytery these are 60 churches wit ha total of 82 ministers, 16 of whom are superannuated. There are 63 on active duty and the remainder have taken up other lines of work so that for the present there s no minister without a charge or a position.

Electing the Officers.

After considerable discussion it was decided to choose the officers by ballot without nomination, a majority of the votes cast being required for election.

In the first ballot taken Mr. Moore and Rev. J. N. Robinson were each given 31 votes out of a total of 118 cast, the remainder ranging from one upwards, being scattered among over a dozen ministers.

In the second ballot, out of 125 votes, Mr. Robbins received 63 and Mr. Moore 47.

The Presbytery then adjourned for dinner, which was served by the ladies of the congregation in the school rooms to all those for whom places could be found.

When the session was resumed in the afternoon, Mr. Robbins was chosen on the third ballot, securing 70 votes to 57 for Mr. Moore, who resigned the chair to the new official.

It required only one ballot to elect Dr. Best secretary and Mr. Field, treasurer.

Dispute at Hilton.

When the Salem Chuch was taken over by Norham, the parsonage of the former charge was sold and the Hilton congregation now claims that they are entitled to $1100 of the proceeds of the sale, the money being required to repair the ministers residence at the latter place. A deputation from Hilton was present yesterday to press this claim which was referred to a special committee. This committee reported in favour of Hilton and it is likely that this dispute of long standing will be finally disposed of at the first meeting of conference.

Case from Seymour.

Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of the Seymour circuit, presented a resolution which had been adopted at a special meeting of the official board asking that the Union Church at Ryestone, which recently seceded from Burnbrae non-unionist congregation, be added to the Seymour circuit and that a senior and a junior pastor be maintained in the enlarged field. This would make five charges in the circuit every one of which would be given a service every Sunday. At present, with one pastor, each of the four churches misses a Sunday service every month. Mr. Daniel assured the Presbytery that the increased revenue received from Rlestone would be sufficinet to meet the extra expense involved by the engaging of a junior pastor.

On motion of Rev. S. C. Moore, the Presbytery expressed sympathy with the request which , it is fully expected, will be granted by conference.

Former Presbytery Dissolved.

The Union Presbytery of Peterboro, formed soon after Union was effected met here yesterady morning and after transacting some items of routine business, formerly voted itelf out of existence. Rev. J. S. Fergusson of Warkworth was moderator and Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield, clerk. Rev. J. W. Gordon and were among the ... They reported that in the Lindsay Presbytery to which all four church es represented by the four pastors latterly mentioned now belongs, there is not a Unionist pastor, without a charge with the exception of those regularly superannuated.

H. MacConnachie of Springville

Pastors' New Duties.

Rev. C. F .McIntosh is engaged in work among the young people of the United Church preparing them for the rally which will be held in Port Hope on October 10th. He presided at a meeting here last night, getting the young people of the Cobourg United Church ready for this event.

At the meeing yesterday Mr. McIntosh, on motion of Rev. C. D. Daniel, was granted leave of absence as a member of the Presbytery.

NATURE'S WARNINGS

Danger Signals That Everyone Should Take Seriously.

Pain is one of Nature's warnings that something is wrong with the body. Indigestion, for instance, is characterized by pains in the stomach, and often about the heart; rheumatism by sharp pains in the limbs and joints; headaches are a sign that the nerves or stomach are out of order. In some ailments, such as anaemia, pain is not so prominent. In this case Nature's warning take the form of pallor, breathlessness after slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, and loss of appetite. Whatever form these warnings take, wise people will not ignore the fact that many diseases have their origin in poor blood, and that when the blood is enriched the trouble disappears. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are most helpful in such cases because they purify and build up the blood to its normal strength. In this way it tones up the nerves, restores the appetite and gives perfect health. Miss Hazel Berndt, of Arnprior, Ont., has proved the great value of this medicine, and says: "I am a young girl and have been working in a factory for the past four years. For two years I had been in such poor health that at times I could not work. I was thin and pale, and troubled with headaches and fainting spells. I doctored nearly all this time, but it did not help me. My mother advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using them for a while I could notice an improvement in my condition. I used nine boxes and can truthfully say that my health is restored. When I began taking the pills I weighed 97 pounds and now I weigh 114. I feel that I owe my good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and hope other ailing people will give them a fair trial."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bought by a Rotherham dealer for $50, an emerald ring was later sold by auction in London for $7,250. It is now believed that this was one of the jewels belonging to the Russian Royal family.

STEEL REMOVED FROM MAN'S EYE AFTER 4 YEARS

Peterboro Man Was Injured in 1921 in Goderich Foundry.

LOST EYESIGHT

Piece Found in Socket After Operation at Nicholl's Hospital.

A piece of steel that have lain in a man's eye for over four years was successfully removed this week at Nicholls' Hospital. J. Whitman, Barnado Avenue, while working in a foundry at Goderich, Ont., sustained a painful injury, through a piece of steel entering his left eye. He went to the London Hospital, wher eafter examination, he was told that the piece of steel had passed through the eye to the back of his head. Evenutally he lost sight of the eye. During the week he suffered excruciating pains in this eye, and he was compelled to seek the advice of Dr. T. P. McCullough, who decided that the eye had to be removed. Teh operation was performed at Nicholl's Hospital and on the eye being taken out, the piece of steel that had caused so much loss and suffering was found sticking in the socket at the back of the eye.

Mr. Whitman is still in hospital and is making good progress.

ARCTIC POLICE POST.

Mounties to Have Most Northerly Station.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press).—The world's most northerly police post and also the most remote of any human habitation is to be constructed next year for the Mounted Police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies have been cached within easy freighting distance of the point. Three men will be detailed for patrol duty on the indescribably lonely shore of Rice Straits.

A new invention that stores sounds on steel which may revolutionize telegraphy has been perfected in Germany.

The Favored Four

Because of Supreme Quality, New Performance Results, Advances Engineering, Superior Workmanship

Out of Chrysler engineering and manufacturing skill come the extraordinary performance and value of the Chrysler Four—plus quality and beauty never before equaled in its price class.

The Chrysler Four is, in the most precise sense, a fine car—fine in principle, fine in materials, and fine in its standards of manufacture and assembly.

It is built with painstaking care, and to a degree of accuracy and precision, heretofore unknown among cars of its price—in the most modern and scientifically equipped manufacturing plants.

Obviously, when such quality is combined with the unusual roadability which results from Chrysler designed spring suspension and balloon tires; with low center of gravity, pivotal steering and the option of Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes to give utmost safety; and with Fisher bodies for maximum comfort—the result is unapproached motor car value in its price class.

Everywhere, men and women who know motor cars are favoring the Chrysler Four. Women, who like fine things, say it is a delightful car to drive and to ride in. Men are enthusiastic over its extraordinary performance, its economy and its durability. Test it out, yourself behind the wheel. We are eager to provide the opportunity.

CRITICISM OF CANADA

make records for a month or two at the expense of years of dissatisfaction among men rushed into the country unadvisedly. His aim, as he puts it, is not "immigration," but "colonization." It would be easy to flood Canada with immigrants, but to select and place colonists takes time, effort, patiene and skill.

And Mr. Gordon told The Examiner he believes the majority of the people of Canada have a wider vision than the calamity-howlers possess. If the distorted perspective that sees Canada a failure in the prime of its young nationhood were common, then the country would be speedily depopulated.

Means Employed.

"In the midst of much loose talk about immigration," Mr. Gordon said, in repeating one of the fundamentals of his colonization creed, "it must be remembered that favorable prices for the products of the farm will do more to induce people to come into the country than all the missionary lecturers we can send abroad can accomplish. We are not neglecting the missionary work, but we want to make it move hand in hand with development in Canada. That is why so much attention is being paid by the Government to railway and ocean rates, the obtaining of better prices and wider markets for our products, both agricultural and manufactured lower taxation lessened cost of living. A happy-go-lucky, no policy system of immigration would inevitably lead the country into the actual morass that is seen by some people now in mirage, but a matured and well considered case of the immigration question will add to our potential wealth and lighten the burden on the country generally."

MRS. BRIGHTMAN TRIED TO SAVE FIRE VICTIMS

it was her husband's brother, Wm. H. Brightman, as he ran from his cottage to the burning building.

Tried to Warn Friends.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Brightman called to Dr. and Mrs. Mann when they discovered the building was on fire, but could get no response. They could not cross the hall which was a roaring furnace. While Mr. Brightman was breaking out the east window in their bedroom, Mrs. Brightman removed the screen from the south window in their bedroom facing the river and by leaning out of it and hanging on to the coping was able to reach around and she tapped repeatedly on the window at the head of the bed occupied by the victims. She called to them several times, but could get no response. She hung on to her precarious position as long as possible, but could not arouse Dr. and Mrs. Mann and dropped to the ground beneath the verandah, where her husband had dragged a mattress after he had thrown it from the other window and jumped.

Spent Happy Evening.

Each recited how the five people, Dr. and Mrs. Mann, the witnesses and W. H. Brightman, had spent a quiet evening at Bridge in the cottage and how Dr. Mann himself, as was his custom since arriving at the cottage, had made sure that the screen was securely in position surrounding the light fire in the fireplace. All apparently went to sleep quickly after retiring and neither Mr. nor Mrs. Brightman could offer any theory as to how the fire started. Both were positive that they had done everything possible to arouse the victims and were visibly affected at the untimely fate which befell Dr. Mann, their family physician, and Mrs. Mann, who were their particular friends.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Brightman were painfully injured about the backs in their jump from the burning building, and were suffering considerably from pain as they gave their evidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Brightman accompanied the bodies of Dr. and Mrs. Mann on the 11.15 train to Peterborough last night. With them was their daughter, also Dr. Cameron, partner of the late Dr. Mann; and a brother of deceased.

Funeral on Monday.

The funeral of Dr. and Mrs. Mann will take place from their late residence, corner of King and Rubidge treets, to Little Lake Cemetery, on Monday at 2.30 p.m.

MANY ELECTORS REGISTER AT SIX CITY REGISTRY OFFICES

Duty of Every Citizen Is To Get on the Voters' List.

PERSONAL MATTER.

Rural Registration Will Open Soon—Ends Here Wednesday.

The compiling of the voters' lists for the federal election is proceeding smoothly, Sidney Whatley, returning officer for this constituency informs the Examiner. From 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. the registration booths in the city will be open until Wednesday evening next, and it behooves every voter to ascertain whether his or her name is on the list. Many of the citizens have already attended to this duty, and the party workers are also scrutinizing the lists, but it is essentially a personal matter and should not be neglected in the remaining days of registration next week.

The list used as a basis for registration is the municipal assessment roll made out in 1924 for the 1925 taxes. Part three of that includes the names of all those who are not assessed as owners, tenants or occupants, or the wives and husbands of them, or those who are assessed for income. For instance in a household all persons over 21 years are entitled to vote, but the father is perhaps the only registered property owner. The others are recorded in part three of the assessment roll, but this part is not published or printed until required for an election in which all persons reaching their majority have a vote. The provincial government requires the municipalities to register all these persons, but the printing of them is not authorized until such occasions as this. The voters' lists for the plebiscite might have been used, but it was objected that they were padded in more than one centre.

The public is again urged not to overlook this duty. Mr. Whatley will have the rural registrtaion details complete shortly. Registration in the country is always about two weeks or more later than in the city.

APPLES APPEAR IN QUANTITIES

Busy Market To-day, With Fall Produce Plentiful—Grapes Offered.

FOWL PLENTIFUL.

The farmers' market was a busy place this morning, with plenty of buyers and plenty of produce on the carts.

Green and blue grapes were a new offering by several of the vendors, and sold at 60 cents for a basket. Apples also were quite plentiful. One man was taking orders for Spies at $4.50 a barrel. Bruce Johnson of North Monaghan had something new in the way of pimentos, big, round specimens of the pepper family, with red and green and brown patches on their smooth, pulpy skins. These were 50 cents a dozen. Mr. Johnson has the little ground cherries also, the small yellow, tomato-like fruit that come wrapped up by nature in tufted paper overcoats.

Elderberries, the last of the season, were 35 cents for a large basket.

All the way from Brighton came one truck, with St. Lawrence apples at 35 cents a peck and blue damson plums at 65 cents a peck. From Cobourg motored a load of melons, priced at a range that started at a nickel and ended at a dollar. There were green pears on this truck too, at 60 cents a large basket.

Red and green tomatoes were selling at 35 and 25 cents a basket.

West Coast Royal Regalia Aglitter From Head To Foot, King Nana Amosh III Slipped Quietly Into New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. —(Canadian Press). —King Nana Amosh III, sockless ruller of 40,000 Fanti on the Gold Coast of Africa is here to study the relationships between negroes and whites in the larger American cities, unheralded ,though laden with much yellow metal, the King, 49 years old, slipped into port yesterday on the liner Aquitania as a second class passenger. He was dressed in ordinary garments purchased in Bond Street, and the steward reflected that His Highness treasury must be broke because he gave a $1.25 tip.

A real King stood revealed, however, when, yielding to photographers he threw on his native regalia and glittered from head to foot. His rings weighed a quarter of a pound a piece. The King's pancake sandals of black leather might make Charlie Chaplin green with envy. He explained that in the absence of hand shaking or kissing a Fanti greets another by lifting a leg and slapping soles with his accoster.

After a few days in New York, he will begin his tour of the country.

GEORGE STREET UNION CHURCH OFFICIALLY WELCOMES PASTOR

Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Todd Come From Church at Guelph.

LADIES ENTERTAIN.

Dr. J. A. Middleton Presided at Big Rally of the Congregation.

Last evening, George St. Church Church gathered in the Lecture Hall of the church to formally welcome to their new home and pastorate, Rev. J. E. Toodd and Mrs. Todd coming to the city from Guelph, Ont., where Rev. Mr. Todd had just concluded four years in charge of the most important Methodist church in that city. There was a large gathering of the congregation at the meeting, and a most cheerful spirit of welcome and anticipation of an agreeable and helpful partnership prevailed.

Dr. J. E. Middleton took the chair and deftly steered and dispensed the items of a rather extended program. After a few words of greeting, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, for the Offical Boards of the church and the congregation tendered to the incoming pastor an almost unlimited franchise and promised the hearty and efficient support to all the undertakings. With an expression of hope that in his new field the incumbent would find that so far as church membership, cordial relations and a fine spirit of loyalty and unity, the lines had been cast for him in pleasant places.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of St. John's Church, who is President of the local Ministerial Association, spoke most feelingly and encouragingly and welcomed Rev. Mr. Todd as a new member of the local fraternity, the initiation and entrance to the Association to be made as speedily as possible. He said it gave him pleasure to attend the meeting, not only in the official sense, as referred to, but on his own account, gratified to join with others in anticipating good things from the entry of the new pastor into the ministerial circle of the city.

Rev. Mr Todd.

To these words of greeting, Rev. Mr. Todd made earnest and felicituous acknowledgement. Looking back over the last six months, any hesitation that he might have felt at accepting the responsibility of taking charge at Peterborough had been completely dispelled by the warmth of welcome he and Mrs. Todd had experienced. The beautiful home provided, the friendly interest manifested, the greetings extended had all been most encouraging. A friend of a pessimistic turn of mind had cautioned him that he might find George Street Church "cold." He now knew that such a definition was entirely misplaced. No home coming could have been made more gracious and cheery. Even in the short time since arrival he and Mrs. Todd realized that they were among friends, seemingly of long standing, though of only recent acquisition. He had never filled a pastorate entered on under such happy circumstances, and promising such congenial association for the future With other clergymen, he had experienced some uncertainty at the passing of the itinerent system, so long the feature of pastoral work among the Methodists But, any doubt gradually being silenced. If he met wishes of the congregation and acme within measurable distance of giving the service due and expected it could rest with the church to say so and hearten him for renewed efforts. He looked forward to years of congenial fellowship and unefulness, spurred on by such confidence and ready acceptance of him as a minister and pastor.

At intervals of the carrying out of the programme, and interspersed with the addresses, Mrs. J. H. Renwick, for many years soloist of the choir, gave a vocal solo. There were several numbers by the Sunday School Orchestra. Mr. Martin B. Chenhall contributed an instrument number on the 'cello, Mrs. Fred McNeillie, two recitations in very charming manner, and Miss Daisy Murray, soloist of the choir, a vocal number. In fact, all of these friends so assisting contributed double portions for all were cheerfully encored and obligingly obliged.

It was said by the Chairman that of old the congregation of George Street Church was diligent in meeting and also eating, both excellent attributes. So the Ladies Aid of the Church, having at the suggestion of the president, the excellent Mrs. B. Shortly, prepared refreshments, such were served and seemingly enjoyed. It beats all, how obliging, faithful ready to serve & undenyingly patient these Ladies' Aids are. They never fail to please and help.

The committee in charge of arrangements last evening was composed of Dr. J. R. Middleton, Mrs. B. Shortly, Mrs. S. R. Armstrong and Mrs. James Stubbs. Mr. Geo. Carruthers, recording steward, officially introduced the congregation to the new minister. The vote of thanks to those who assisted was voiced by Messrs C. S. Thompson and Geo. Robertson.

Seldom has a city been so stirred as was Toronto when it was learned that Mrs. Cork and the two children she had with her in the canoe had been rescued after being 27 hours adrift on the lake. The pictures above show: Top left, Mr. William Cork, happy to feel the arms of his little daughter, Phyllis, around his neck once more. Top right, Kathleen Conroy, aged twelve, who wrapped her sweater around the baby and nursed her during the perilous hours. Kathleen prayed and sang during the trying experience and was a little heroine of whom any parents should be proud. Below, Mrs. Cork, whose heroism, it is suggested, should be brought to the attention of the Carnegie Hero Foundation and the Royal Humane Society.

SHE DISCUSSES WINTER WRAPS.

Miss De Valin came in yesterday to choose a few last things to make her trousseau complete. Madame has dressed her since she was a debutante, and consequently Miss De Valin's clothes are a special delight to all of us.

"What I really want I've never seen," she said, "but if I give you some idea perhaps you can suggest something."

"Do try," I urged. "If it is only a coat or street dress I am brimful of ideas."

"What luck! That is exactly what my outfit needs to make it perfect. I want a dashing outfit for sport wear."

"Good," I said. "Have you ever heard of tapestry-mixture?" This was a bit of bluff on my part, because this is one of the newest materials created, and unless she had been abroad in the last month she couldn't very well have know anything about it.

"Heavens, no! Tapestry for sport wear? Do let me see."

"One moment," I said, "and make yourself comfortable while I slip into it." I rang for Minna, our new maid, to serve tea while I made myself beautiful n the new wrap. (You have no idea how contented tea makes customers.)

I came back to find her blissfully putting in two lumps. She nearly dropped the cup when she saw me.

"What a gorgeous costume! Come quickly and let me see."

"Can you pick out all the different colors?" I asked. "Dark and light gray, white, black, a hint of green, another of blue, and every now and the a thread of red."

"It's the most delightful combination I've seen in ages," she enthused. "The collar is gray fox, isn't it? My very favorite fur."

"It is. And although this cape is lined with red, it would look equally well in green or blue if you would rather have it."

"Mercy, no!" she exclaimed. "On a bleak or snowy day just to see that red-lined cape coming would make even one's dearest enemy glad to see one. It is the most individual thing.

Tapestry-Mixture Cloth Makes This Winter Coat Startling.

Does the skirt wrap around?"

"Yes," I answered. "You see how much extra warmth that gives. It is as warm as toast, anyway, especially since the entire top part is fastened with a zipper."

She laughed delightedly. "Just like my new pigskin pocketbook."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27-28.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one, significant of honors, advantages and benefits in many directions. It is a time to push for favors and preferment. There will be much activity and energy expended, with successful issues.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an active and energetic year, with rewards expressed in honors, promotion and financial success. A child born on this day will be energetic, ambitious, clear-headed, and will make a success in life.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather ominous one, with portents of anxiety, disappointment and troubles in many directions. It will take courage and determination to wring success from difficult positions. Protect the finances, avoid disputes and postpone new ventures.

Those whose birthday it is may fortify themselves for a year of overcoming difficulties. They will best surmount obstacles by refraining from disputes, shunning new enterprises and safeguarding the money. A child born on this day should have a most careful education to enable it to surmount obstacles and sidestep difficulties of many phases, both in its business and in its personal affairs. Courage and steadfastness will enable it to wring success from all astral handicaps.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Fashion News

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(United Press).—We are living in an age of inventions. Here's a new one that will be of interest to women, of more interest perhaps than a fall-proof aeroplane. It's an invention which prevents runs in stockings! A company is now being formed which will manufacture 'ladder-proof' hosiery, undervests and bloomers. Imagine a stocking that is insured against runs! Women who use their hosiery for banking purposes may soon be sure that there can be no "run on the bank."

Metal trimmings and materials will be lavish this Fall. Metal embroidery and stitching adorns gowns, wraps, handbags and bonnets. Gold and silver belts are numerous on street frocks. Silver lame blouses are featured with black velvet street suits and brocaded metal evening wraps contribute to the metallic vogue.

During the first cool days of Autumn we shall see many velvet and velveteen coats of bright color. Nearly every smart shop is showing the coats which sell at popular prices. They are very plain and straight-lined and unrelieved by fur trimimng of any sort. One matches such a coat to a crepe or satin frock if the ensemble effect is desired.

Envelope purses with monograms of silver are being carried by many smart women. Black patent and brilliant red leather are the most conspicuous envelope leathers at present.

Almost every conceivable leather and skin have been utilized for shoes. Even reptile hides have proved successful. Recently introduced are shoes made of walrus hide which has been treated to assure suppleness. Walrus will undoubtedly last and keep it's shape longer than the average shoe leathers, and will prove a good sports shoe for both men and women.

A new dancing corset which will perhaps interest the flappers, is in truth, a pair of form fitting 'panties' of heavy ribbed material with elastic gussets over the hips.

IN THE KITCHEN

FAVORITE NURSERY DISHES.

Nursery folk need a varied menu as frequently as possible. Here are several health-giving dishes easily prepared:

Raisins and Rice.

Boil the needed quantity of rice in the usual way. Seed from a tablespoonful to a small cupful of raisins, according to the quantity of rice to be used. Throw the raisins into boiling water for a few minutes to plump, then drain carefully and add to the rice. Dust each portion with a little sugar and cover with cream.

randmother's Floating Island.

Make a good boiled custard, using yolks of four eggs to a quart of milk. When the custard is done set to cool. Whip the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, adding two level tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Drop by spoonfuls onto oiled paper, or a very lightly buttered baking dish, and brown the little meringues in the oven. When cooked remove them with a slender sharp knife and drop them on the top of the custard. Chill and serve.

Spice Cookies.

Beat together for fifteen minutes five fresh eggs and two cupfuls of sugar. Add the grated rind and the strained juice of a lemon, then add slowly four cupfuls of sifted flour in which four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a saltspoonful of salt, and a half teaspoonful each of namon and cloves have been mixed. Mix well, then drop by the teaspoonful onto greased baking pans and bake in a medium oven eight to ten minutes. The recipe makes four dozen cookies.

WEDDING BELLS.

FERGUSON—RICH.

At St. James' Parsonage on Saturday morning, September 26th, the marriage took place of Angus Ferguson, of Peterboro, and Miss Nellie G. M. Rich, of Oakwood. They were attended by Mr. Fred Jenkins, of Oakwood, and Miss Mila Rich, of Oakwood, sister of the bride. The sacred rite was performed by Rev. J. D. Richardson, minister of St. James' Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will make their home in Peterboro at 446 George Street.

DAWSON—EAGLESON.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Eagleson, Maple Grove Farm, Cavan was the scene of a pretty wedding when their only daughter, Hattie Jean, was united in marriage to Mr. Gerald Franklin Dawson, son of Mrs. Clarence F. Dawson of Bailieboro.

The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and the ceremony took place under a bridal arch of asters, gladioli and evergreens.

Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B. A., of Campbellford officiated.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Bernice Barnard, cousin of the bride, the bride entered the drawing-room, on the arm of her father. She was becomingly gowned in flat crepe dress of sandal wood shade and wore a pretty bandeau of orange blossoms.

She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern tied with white streamers. Miss Olive Dawson, sister of groom was bridesmaid and wore orchid georgette with silver bandeau and carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Edwin Eagleson, brother of the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was an Isabelle fox fur and to the bridesmaid and pianist, bar pins; to the best man, gold cuff links.

After the ceremony, luncheon was served in the dining-room, prettily decorated in pink and white, to the immediate relatives and friends.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti for a trip to Buffalo and Cleveland, Ohio. The bride travelled in an Ensemble Suit with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside at Bailieboro.

KINGSTON TURNED THE TABLES ON OSLERS BY SEVEN TO FOUR IN SECOND PLAYOFF ENCOUNTER

Pitchers Had Duel, With Spring Leading in Strikeouts

SEVEN DOUBLES

Heavy Hitting Marked Game —Thirteen and Eleven Allowed Batters.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 26.—(Special to the Examiner).—Kingston turned the tables on the Osler ball team here yesterday and defeated them by the score of 7-4, before the largest crowd of the season in the second of the O.B.A.A. senior play off games between these two teams.

The pitching of Spring and Cairns was the outstanding feature of the engagement and both pitchers battled along at a fairly even clip, although the Toronto hurler had a margin in strike outs, having eight to Cairns' four while he was over in the hitting department, Cairns bettering him by two.

The Kingston team were in this game with a new fighting spirit and right from the drop of the hat they went after runs, getting four in the first inning alone. After Teepell, who had drawn a walk, was nailed at second, Halbert opened with a hit and Batstone followed with a walk. Somerville clouted for two bags and Halbert crossed over. A two bagger by Cherry sent in Batstone and Somerville. Quinn struck out and Cherry scored on Purvis' hit. Arneil closed by striking out.

Oslers did not tally until the second but they scored three runs in this frame. Breen singled and stole second and Buchanan drew a ticket. Reid was thrown out at first and Crilly walked. Spring hit scoring Breen and Buchanan and Crilly added the third on a safe blow by Fleming. Spring was caught between third and home when Purvis picked off a grounder by Hughes. Egan finished by being thrown out at first by Somerville.

Their Last Tally.

Oslers got their fourth run in the next innings. With one out Breen was safe on Batstone's error, and he stole second. Buchanan hit safely and Reid followed with a single, scoring Breen. Crilly hit to Halbert who threw Buchanan out at third base. Spring reached first on Halbert's error but Fleming finished by sending out a fly to Cherry. From then on, Oslers were held out of the scoring sheet.

Kingston added to their four runs in the fourth inning. After Quinn had breezed, Purvis slammed for two bags. Arneil fanned but Cairns followed through with a hit, scoring Purvis. Teepell forced Cairns at second base.

One more was added in the seventh. Halbert, first man up, hit safely and Cherry was safe on Burt's error. Purvis doubled and Batstone crossed over but Somerville was nailed at the plate by a beautiful throw from centre field by Crilly.

Kingston's seventh run came in the eighth frame. With two down, Teepell sent a whizzer over short. Halbert walked and Batstone hit safely, scoring Teepell. Somerville finished by grounding to Fleming who threw him out at first.

Oslers tried desperately to do something in their half of the ninth inning. They secured two good hits but this was not enough. As has marked most of the games here, Cherry retired the last man of the game, Hoose sending him a long fly.

Sudden Death Games Next Year Youthful Ball Teams

There will be no home-and-home games in the junior, juvenile or midget series of the O.B.A.A. next season after the various league titles are decided. The association finds that the expense of financing the youngsters is exceptionally heavy, and it will be cut down next season by having the teams play sudden-death games from the first rounds on. The association will make every effort to encourage the young players, and feels that the same ends can be gained by playing one game instead of two.

BRILLIANT PLAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26 (Canadian Press).—The Australian women's tennis team, which is making a world tour, yesterday defeated a United States team drawn from the leading players of the eastern states, two matches to one.

Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, several times women's national titleholder, was the only American to emerge victorious, and she was given a stiff battle by Mrs. R. R. Harper, captain of the Australian team. Mrs. Mallory, however, won in straight sets, 7—5, 8—6.

Miss Esna Boyd, No. 1 on the touring team, easily defeated Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, the scores being 6—4, 6—2.

The United States doubles team, Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Penelope Anderson, played brilliantly against their more experienced opponents, Miss Boyd and Miss Floris St. George, but were defeated, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5.

HAGEN SHOOTS PAR TO DEFEAT YOUTH

Harry Cooper, 21 Years of Age, Was on Cham-

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (Canadian Press).—Another hard battle in defence of his title of national professional golf champion was fought and won yesterday at Olympia Fields Country Club by Walter Hagen, who had to shoot par golf on the second round to overcome Harry Cooper of Dallas, Texas, who although only 21 years of age, kept Hagen down half of the time and threatened near the close of the match to deprive the champion of the only major title he holds.

Today's victory in the semi-final was the third difficult struggle in four days and will bring him face to face with Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago, who in defeating Morte Dutra, of Aberdeen, Wash., Friday, bettered par by three strokes in the thirty holes played before he won, 8 and 6.

HEATHER-SPRIG WON GOLF MATCH

Compson-Manchester Giant —Played Poor Putting Game to Win.

FAVOR BUCKED HIM.

MOOR PARK, England, Sept. 26 (Canadian Press).—Arthur Compston, the most hopeful of the rising school of British professional golfers, today capped off a successful season by winning the unofficial professionals' match play championship on the Moor Park course, defeating George Gadd of Roehampton in the final 36 hole match, 3 up and 1 to play.

Compson is 32 years old, he hails from North Manchester and is a giant in stature being 6 feet 3 inches tall.

He finished only one stroke behind "Long Jim" Barnes when the United States professional won the British open championship last June. The following week he proved that this accomplishment was no flash in the pan by defeating Abe Mitchell, regarded the best match play golfer in Great Britain, in the finals of the Gleneagles Thousand Guineas tournament. Yesterday, in the round before the semi-finals at Moor Park, he again defeated Mitchell, and today he won the tournament, which is held under the auspices of the News of the World and carries a purse of £1,040.

His game today was not impressive, however, especially on the greens. Five times during the morning round he took three putts and it was only Gadd's shaky approaching and wild driving that allowed Compston to go into lunch after the 18th hole only one down. The Manchester giant drew level for the first time at the twenty-seventh hole. A lady in the gallery then gave him a sprig of heather and it seem to bring him luck, for he became steady and forged ahead, while Gadd's game did not improve.

HARRIS TO RELY RIGHT HANDED HURLING TO WIN

Clarke and McKechnie Will Oppose Wits to Cop Classic.

HARRIS IS STATEGIST.

Johnson and Coveleskie to Carry Main Burden in Race.

NEW YORK, September 26. Canadian Press. — Now that the outcome of the National and American League pennant races has become a mathematical certainty, Pittsburgh and Washington, the rival world's series contenders, are free to concentrate their efforts upon preparation for the annual baseball classic which starts at Pittsburgh on Wednesday, October 7th.

There may be a little less "masterminding" than usual in this year's series, with John McGraw of the Giants missing from the picture for the first time in five years, but McGraw's processes may be given a counterpart by Fred Clarke, veteran adviser to the Pittsburgh forces.

Clarke, who was winning pennants with the old Pirates when McGraw first took control of the Giants, is credited with having done much of the deep thinking for the new National League champions.

In this matching of wits, however, Clarke and Bill McKechnie, manager of the Pirates, will have a nimble-minded opponent in Stanley (Bucky) Harris, who has established himself as a strategist of the first rank, in spite of his youth and comparative inexperience.

Harris paused recently in his pursuit of the Mathematical pennant certainty to give a few of his views on the Pirates. He holds high respect for the ability of the Buccaneers, but is nevertheless confident that the experience and steadiness of his outfit will carry the Senators to their second straight world's championship.

Harris figures that if his club beats the Pirates it will be done with right handed pitching, a view which also is shared by McGraw, who is qualified to speak with authority on the merits of both contenders.

Walter Johnson and Stanley Coveleskie are the pitching aces upon whom Harris will place his main reliance, with not a few hopes also resting on Alex. Ferguson, veteran acquired from Boston, and Fred Marberry, rescuer-in-chief of the Washington staff.

SCHOOL FAIR WAS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Pupils of Newcastle School Were Taken to Grounds By Trucks.

COBOURG, Sept. 26. — South Clark Rural School Fair was held on Thursday, and the Newcastle Board of Education took part in it handsomely by providing motor trucks to convey the pupils from the public school with their exhibits to and from the Fair. The courtesy was much appreciated. The school Fairs have been very successful throughout the district and the school children and their teachers certainly deserve praise for the way in which they have carried out their parts. In some communities the school Fairs seem to be eclipsing the old township fairs, which were for so many years one of the landmarks of community life.

LILLIAN GISH IN "ROMOLA" WITH RONALD COLMAN-DOROTHY GISH

An Elaborate Photoplay of the Well - Known Book By George Eliot

CORRECTION STATEMENT!

WE WISH TO MAKE AN APOLOGY.—Some time ago we made a statement that "The White Sister" was the greatest picture in which Lillian Gish ever appeared, and that it would practically be an impossiblity for her to eclipse this beautiful and artistic achievement—and when we said so, we honestly believed this to be true; but after seeing "Romola" we are obliged to make an apology; for it is even a greater production than "The White Sister," and you will agree with us when you see it Monday.

NO PLAY-OFF GAME FOR PETERBOROUGH

Oslers and Kingston Will Meet in Oshawa on Wednesday.

Peterboro fans will be disappointed to learn that the Osler-Kingston Senior O.B.A.A. play-off will not take place here after all, but will be played in Oshawa next Wednesday.

The game was scheduled for Peterboro today, and Mrs. A. C. Kimmel, the local convenor of the O.B.A.A., was so notified by Secretary Joe Walsh.

The postponement of the Kingston game from Thursday until yesterday spilled the beans.

Neither Kingston nor the Oslers wanted to play today with only twenty-four hours' rest, and the O.B.A.A. was reluctant to force them to do so, with the result that a postponement until Wednesday was arranged.

Then the opposing interest, willing enough to play a Saturday game in Peterboro, began to worry about the size of the gate they would get here in a mid-week game, and finally it was decided that Oshawa was a better proposition as a thousand Toronto fans would be able to visit the motor town.

Peterboro thus is passed by, after Mr. Kimmel had gone to considerable trouble and wasted much time in trying to arrange the game.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Al Espinosa, the Pacific Coast golf star who is now connected with one of the fine clubs in Chicago, and who is, in my opinion, the best exponent in golf today of the rhythmic stroke—he plays the finest golf with the least effort of any player I have ever known—has invented a term that precisely describes the feeling of tightness — looseness you want in hands and arms during the swing. Espinosa says: "Let your hands and arms act as if they were rubber. Stretch them out in the back swing, let them contract in the forward swing." That is the action exactly. Watch any good golfer and you will see he has "rubber wrists." Espinosa's couldn't be more so if they were actually made of gum. This comparison should make clear to any golfer the exact difference between tightness in the back swing—like stretched rubber—and rigidity, which is the exact opposite of resiliency. Avoid rigidity.

FRANCE AND SPAIN COMBINE OFFENSIVE

Telephone Communications Established Between Allied Headquarters.

MADRID, Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The French and Spanish forces, says an official statement issued by the War Office yesterday, are completing preparations for a combined offensive, which is imminent, against the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen. It is added that telephonic communication between Spanish headquarters at Tetuan and Fez, French general headquarters, has been re-established. General Primo De Rivera has gone to Tetuan from Ceuta, in order to be in a position to supervise more closely the general situation.

Another communique announces that six Spanish officers and seventy soldiers were killed and sixteen officers and five hundred men wounded in the latest Spanish advance on the Alhucemas coast.

MASSEY OPENS HIS CAMP'AIGN

Prosperity Visible on All Sides, He Says in Port Hope.

SPEAKS AN HOUR.

PORT HOPE, September 26. Canadian Press. — Hon. Vincent Massey fired the opening gun of his campaign here last night when he addressed a large gathering in the opera house.

Massey, making his first political address, spoke for the better part of an hour on general subjects, only touching upon vital issues before the electors in his closing words.

His subject was announced as Canadian unity and National politics.

Referring briefly to his position as joint candidate of the Liberal and Progressive governments, Mr Massey was quite wrathy regarding what he termed the unfair criticism to which the Progressives had been subjected because of their action in repeatedly falling in behind the Liberal party in the House.

"At any rate," he said, "are not all true Liberals Progressives at heart, and all Progressives Liberals."

"Prosperity is visible on all sides this fall," said Mr. Massey, "and it is only comparison with conditions in the United States which creates the

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"ROMOLA" COMES WITH RECORD AS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL OF FILMS

New Lillian Gish Success Said to Have Unusual Artistic Worth Besides the Romance and Thrills of the George Eliot Novel.

Acclaimed as being the most beautiful picture yet produced, "Romola," the latest Lilian Gish production, comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday for three days. New York critics were tremendously enthusiastic over "Romola" at its premiere, pointing out the fact that artistic worth had been combined with romance and thrills in perfect fashion, and their favorable verdict was borne out in the very successful run of the film at the George M. Cohan Theatre at two-dollar rates, and in special runs in other cities.

"Romola" is a film version of the famous novel by George Eliot which tells of the exciting life of the Florentines in the days of Savonarola. It was directed by Henry King, who was responsible for Miss Gish's previous offering, "The White Sister," and was filmed by Inspiration Pictures, Charles H. Duell, Jr., president. Metro-Boldwyn is the distributor.

Some Important Names.

While Lillian Gish is the star of "Romola," there are many familiar and important names in the cast. Dorothy Gish appears in one of her inimitable roughish parts, this time a little peasant girl. It is the first time the sisters have been together in a production since "Orphans of the Storm," and once again their contrasting styles are brought out to full advantage.—Lillian's limpid sadness which bursts out into great dramatic fire, and Dorothy's whimsical caperings that turn into tragedy later.

Ronald Colman, who has appeared in a number of successes lately, including "The White Sister," "Tarnish," and "Her Night of Romance," is the hero. William H. Powell has the difficult role of Tito, the young man who won the affections of both the peasant girl, Tesa, and the scholar's daughter, Romola, and proceeded to make himself unworthy of either. Tito is considered one of the most fascinating villains in all literature.

"An Absorbing picture that runs the gamut of thrills and emotion. Is sure to get a hand from any audience whether it be in Centreville or Broadway. If you can see George Hackathorne as Danny O'Connor and not wipe a furtive tear, than I must say you are a better man than I am, Gunga Din.' It ranks with the best of our recent Broadway productions."—ouella O. Parsons in the American.

"Infinitely more than a splendid picture. It is wonderfully dramatic. It grips your heartstrings with its essentially human pathos. We advise you to go and see for yourself."—Regina Cannon in the Graphic.

Francois, who is giving a demonstration of mental telepathy and hypnotism at the Royal Theatre, had another filled house last night. To accommodate their patrons, the Royal Theatre is running two shows to-night, commencing at 7 and at 9 o'clock.

Miss Ethel Jones gave her yodelling number again last night, also an exhibition of her powers of resistance to those who essay to lift her. Miss Braithwaite sang and Miss Deakin assisted in the hypnotic demonstration.

Francois answered a number of questions, much to the interest of his audience, and gave an entirely new programme of hypnotic stunts that kept the watchers mystified and entertained. He had his troupe of volunteer assistants hunting for silver dollars, picking strawberries and selling hot peanuts and corn salve through the crowded house. He finished the programme by placing one of the group in a cataleptic condition and allowing seven men to stand on the rigid body, which was afterwards placed in the window of the Royal Theatre, where it remained until a quarter to three o'clock this afternoon.

TWO SHOWS TO-NIGHT, 7 AND 9 P.M.

Owing to the fact that the Royal was forced to turn hundreds away last night, Francois wants it announced that he will give two performances tonight; performances to start at 7 and 9. There will be no feature picture. This time will be taken up by the Francois entertainers.

The performance will consist of Comedy Picture; Serial; Francois in Mind Reading; Miss Jones, Yodeler and the Girl No One Can Lift; Madame Braithwaite, Concert Soprano; Jas. Eskin, Scotch Comedian; Miss Decker, Hypnotic Assistant, and Francois himself in Hypnotic Demonstrations.

Two Shows; 7 and 9; Doors open at 6.15 p.m.

AT THE GRAND

"BLOSSOM TIME" AT THE GRAND

Exquisite "Blossom Time," that altogether charming operetta or musical comedy, will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, October 3rd, matinee and evening.

Those who have seen "Blossom Time" will want to see it again, and those who have never seen it should not miss its numerous unusual allurements, not the least of which is its lovely musical score taken almost entirely from the songs and other master works of Franz Schubert, Messrs. Schubert are bringing the splendid singing company which has delighted theatregoers everywhere this beautiful and extraordinary play with music has been seen.

The story of "Blossom Time" is founded on an episode in the life of Franz Schubert who, apparently, had but one authentic affair of the heart. The book and lyrics are by Dorothy Donnelly and the music, almost entirely, taken from the famous songs and unforgettable motifs from Schubert's larger works, has been beautifully adapted by Sigmund Romberg. Single musical numbers here and there were composed by H. Berte, a modern writer of Vienna. The piece was staged by J. C. Huffman, under the personal direction of Mr. J. J. Schubert.

The scenes are all laid in Old Vienna (1826) and the work as a whole, now grave, now gay and later turning to romance, often conjures the life of that gay European capital in its heyday of earlier generations. There is a resemblance in the story of "Blossom Time" to our famous New England legend around the romance affairs of John Alden—but it

CITY DIRECTORS VISIT LINDSAY

Members of Fair Board Take Good Weather to Town.

TAKE SONGSTERS.

In response to an invitation from Mayor Graham, Lindsay to have lunch with the Board of Directors of the Lindsay Central Exhibition and himself; President Denne, with twenty directors, and Mayor Turner journeyed to Lindsay yesterday morning in a motor conveyance, decorated for the occasion, and bearing placards advising the personnel of the crowd and concluding, "We bring the weather." This statement was no idle boast, for the weather on Thursday was cold, raw and wet in spots, and contrasted with yesterday.

The directors of the Peterboro Industrial revelled in bright clear, sunshine of an autumn day.

The party from Peterboro contained among its numbers singers of repute such as Art Blade, A. J. Reynolds, Chas. Cummer, Thomas Hooper and Reg. Turner, and with the aid of slap sticks produced tuneful harmony and topical songs, which went over big. Special song sheets were distributed by Art Blade which helped the general chorus.

The luncheon was largely attended by C.P.R. and Can. National officials, including Mr. Morrow, the new district agent succeeding Mr. Booker.

During the speaking Mayor Turner made a presentation to Mr. John Carew whom he referred to as a gentleman who was all heart.

The Mayor alluded to the pleasant relations which existed between all the municipalities surrounding Peterborough, and among all our acquaintances none was more highly esteemed than John Carew.

The presentation took the form of a souvenir medal, which was pinned on by President Denne.

Mr. Carew was taken completely by surprise but responded very feelingly, voicing his pleasure at being present, and stating the friendships formed would last forever.

Mayor Graham and President Jos. Hickson thought of everything possible to entertain the visitors, who returned home at 7 o'clock, after spending a very pleasant day with Lindsay officials.

Vessel Making for Port.

BOSTON, Sept. 26. — Canadian Press. — The steamship City of Rome is proceeding to Boston with the only three survivors she was able to rescue after ramming and sinking the submarine off Block Island, according to a radio communication received at the navy yard here from her commander shortly after 5 o'clock. The message said that the City of Rome rammed the submarine at 10.25 p.m.

Submarine Located.

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The position of the submarine S-51, sunk off Block Island last night in collision with the steamer City of Rome, was located to-day by rescue craft searching for the vessel, it was reported in a radio message to the Newport naval training station.

The position of the S-51 was given as about a mile and a half south-south east of that first given by the City of Rome. Four submarines were standing by as was Vincent Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal.

There were no signs of life, the message said, but crews of rescue ships were optimistic that some of the 34 men who went down with the submarine might be alive.

Hope Still Held.

The destroyer Putnam, which went out from Newport early this morning was returning to this port, while the wrecking company's barge was setting out for the scene of the disaster with full equipment on board to bring the craft to the surface.

A later message said that the S-51 had been located by Lieut. C. Shawkins, piloting a seaplane which had been flying over the vicinity of the disaster. The submarine lies in 23 fathoms of water.

Commander Lewis D. Causey, executive officer of the torpedo station here, said that it "looks bad" for those aboard the S-51 as air bubbles were coming to the surface.

Commander C. H. Shaw, commanding officer of the Putnam, however, said that in his opinion the men in the submerged submarine have enough air to last them for 72 hours.

Captain Censured.

WASHINGTON, September 26. — Canadian Press. — The steamship City of Rome should have remained on the spot unless urgently impelled to leave after ramming the submarine S-51 last night, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur declared to-day. The conduct of the captain of the City of Rome, the secretary added, would be inquired into in connection with the investigation that would be ordered, and if it was found that there had been any criminal act of negligence on his part action would be taken against him.

Had no Lights.

The submarine was running without side lights and was nearly into the ship before she was sighted, Captain Diehl of the City of Rome reported in a wireless message to the Charlestown navy yard to-day.

The S-51 was rammed "about half way from the stern to the conning tower" on the port side, the message said.

September Meeting Held in Church Parlor—Home Helpers.

The September meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor and took the form of a Home Helpers' meeting, iwth the president in the chair.

The meeting opened with prayer and Scripture reading by Miss A. Lancaster and Mrs. Latimer, after which Miss Craw in her usual efficient manner gave a talk on the "Messenger."

The principle speaker was Mrs. P. J. Jull, of Lakefield, secretary of the Home Helpers for this district, whose address to the ladies was very interesting and much enjoyed.

Mrs. G. S. Parlour favored the ladies with a vocal solo, after which refreshments were served and a social half hour spent.

During the evening, several vocal solos were given by Miss Elizabeth Harrison.

Higher Price At Liverpool Causes Rise In Wheat Value

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press).—An unexpected upturn of wheat quotations at Liverpool helped give an early lift to-day to wheat prices here. The upturn of values abroad was ascribed to prospects that world shipments for the week would prove to be small. Attention of traders here was also directed to a statement from a leading authority that with the exception of a few undesirable qualities of northwest wheat there is no pressure of actual wheat anywhere in this country. Chicago opening prices 3-8 lower to 1¼ up, December 143 1-8 to 143½, and May 144½ to 145, were followed by all-round gains, but then by a set-back for September delivery, whereas December and May continued to ascend. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. After opening at 1-8 to 3-4 higher, December 78¼ to 78 3-8, the corn market continued to develop firmness except for September.

Oats started at ¼ to ½ advance, December 39½ to 39 5-8. Later the gains were increased.

Provisions reflected the upward trend of cereals.

Brazilian Leads Again At Week's Closing Session

TORONTO, Sept. 26.— (Canadian Press.)— Brazilian was the outstanding leader in the week's closing session of the Toronto stock exchange this morning, but after a strong opening it eased one eighth at 72 7-8. Elsewhere trading was fairly light, though a good range of issues was dealt in. The market as a whole was firm, the Canada Cement advance of one and three-eighths at 107 3-8 being notable.

British Columbia fishing advanced five eighths to 49 1-4, and Mackay common a half at 137. Canadian Canners preferred eased an eighth while the common advanced a quarter. Dominion Stores common sold up a point at 66.

IN POLICE COURT.

Peterboro police station has received notification from Sarnia to the effect that George LaChappelle, alias James A. LaChappelle, who was captured here by the local police officers a fortnight ago, after an exciting chase, has been sentenced by Magistrate Gorman of Sarnia to three years' imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary, on a conviction for the theft of an automobile.

Broke Fish Law.

A fine of ten dollars and costs was imposed in the police court this morning by Magistrate O. A. Lanzley, on a Peterborough man who was charged at the instance of Special Patrol Officer, Captain Carson, with taking out of the Otonabee a quantity of bass in excess of the number permitted by the Fisheries Act. The Hon. G. N. Gordon, in pleading for the minimum penalty, pointed out that the erring fisherman was a citizen with a good record and one who frequently distributed his catches among the needy in his neighborhood. It was this fact, said Hon. Mr. Gordon, that had prompted him to come to court in defence of the accused. There were not many clients for whom he would come to court in the meantime.

The Magistrate, in imposing the fine, cautioned the accused against allowing his fisherman's ardour to lead him into any further breaches of the law.

Fined $200.

Peter Gamble, Belmont, was fined $200 and costs, after pleading guilty to having an illicit still in his possession at his home.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., on behalf of Gamble, said there was no suggestion that he had used the still for making liquor for sale to his neighbors or other than for his own use. He had never been before a judicial officer at any previous time, and in this case, had gone to Peterborough and reported himself to the magistrate on learning that the officers had visited his house. He was a man of 62 years of age. Mr. Kerr suggested that the ends of justice would be met by the infliction of the minimum penalty.

It was intimated that the Inland Revenue Officers had taken possession of the still and were awaiting instruction from the Department as to its disposal. The usual procedure in such acses is to destroy the apparatus in the presence of two witnesses.

Across the sea in a distant land,
Beside his comrades brave,
Our boy lies quietly sleeping
In an unknown warrior's grave.

May the heavenly winds blow softly
O'er the sweet and hallowed spot
Though the sea divides his grave from us
He will never be forgot.

"More and more each day I miss him;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within the heart concealed.

His loving face I never forget,
Though years may pass away;
The loss of him I sadly feel
As keen as that first day."

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear brother, Pte. A. F. Wilkinson, 928098, killed in action Sept. 27th, 1918, at Canal De Nord:

Oh, why was he taken, so young and so fair,
When earth held so many it better could spare,
Hard was the blow that compelled us to part
From one whom we loved, so dear to our hearts.
We do not forget him, we loved him so dearly,
For his memory to fade from our eyes like a dream.
Lips need not speak when the heart mourns sincerely,
But grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

UNAVOIDABLE DELAYS HAMPER RESCUERS OF SUBMARINE CREW WHO ATTEMPT TO RAISE CRAFT

Survivor Tells of Experience —Six Have Outside Chance.

AWAIT MONARCH

Attempt to Raise the Submarine by Compressed Air Failed.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press). — Advices ashore here at noon were to the effect that conditions of sea and weather at the locality of the S-51 wreck were so bad that rescue operations had to be suspended for the time being.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press.)— With only the faintest hope that their efforts would be crowned with success, naval men aided by civilian wrecking crews continued their strenuous efforts yesterday to rescue the 34 officers and men who went down with the submarine S-51, when she was sunk in a collision with the steamer City of Rome off Block Island Friday night.

Unavoidable delays due to the absence of powerful derrick equipment, and the testimony of divers who reported that there could not possibly be life in the crushed hull of the submarine on its ocean bed 128 feet beneath the surface, saddened but did not discourage the rescuers. Repeated attempts to raise the sunken craft by means of compressed air pumped from her sister vessel, the S-50, failed of success, and last night the naval officials on the scene awaited impatiently the coming of the great derrick ship Monarch, due to arrive at midnight.

While the rescue forces, headed by Rear Admiral H. H. Christy, commander of the submarine control force at New London, admittedly labored with slight hope that any of those entombed in the S-51 had a chance of life, officers at the submarine base still refused to see the darker side of the picture. Relatives and friends of members of the S-51 crew, frantitc with suspense, besieged the base to-day, and all were advised not to abandon hope.

Officials in charge of the rescue work admitted to-night that the delay in raising the S-51 afforded the most depressing aspect of the situation. The most optimistic estimate as to the length of time men might live in the compartments was 72 hours, and two-thirds

LLOYD HARRIS DIED ON SUNDAY

Prominent Citizen of Brantford Was to Have Been Conservative Nominee.

SUFFERED STROKE.

BRANTFORD, Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press). —Lloyd Harris, prominent manufacturer and financier of Brantford, died in this city shortly after nine o'clock last night following a result of paralytic stroke which he suffered Friday afternoon.

Mr. Harris, whowas 58 years of age, never recovered consciousness after the stroke. While the death of Lloyd Harris takes away an industrial leader of the first rank in the Dominion, his loss will be felt particularly in Branftford, as he had lived here practically all his life, this being the centre of many of his varied activities. Brantford took particular pride in the fact that in the most strenuous days of the Great War, he was selected as Canadian representative to Washington. In that position, he was responsible for diverting to Canada huge orders for munitions and supplies. At the conclusion of the war he was sent to London, England, as Canadian representative and there was instrumental in clearing up the war's aftermath as affecting Canadian business. At that time he was approached with a view to accepting a Federal cabinet post but declined.

He was to have received the Conservative nomination for the riding of Brantford. The nomination convention was postponed when it was learned that he had been stricken.

Dreams Of Love Give Way To Slumber Of Citizens

MANILLA, Sept. 28 (Special by United Press).—Down in Ceuba Province they are gradually taking the joy out of life. Santander, the southernmost town on the island of Ceuba, is the latest to prohibit one of the inalienable rights of man, the right to serenade his lady love. No more will lovesick youths play the bear" under the windows of the "only girl," or hopeful youth strum their bandurrias on starry nights. For these, the town council of Santander has no regards. An ukase just issued prohbits serenading or making any noise at night that might interfere with the slumbers of the sleepy town.

He will proceed forthwith to the disputed territory to investigate the British charges of deportations of Christians by the Turks and the Turkish counter charges that British forces have been invading the section of Mosul provisionally held by the Turks since the Brussels conference.

After disposing of this matter the Council adjourned to meet here again in December.

Badly Behaved Crowds Put Out Women Golfers

LONDON, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Joyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch, the two best women golfers in Great Britain, have decided to retire from competition. Neither has entered the English ladies' championship to be played in October at Westward Ho. The behavior of the crowds which seem to grow in size and become worse mannered with every successive tournament, is probably to blame for the retirement of both women, it is said.

HUNDREDS OF ELECTORS SWAMP THE REGISTRARS WITH QUERIES

Not Taking Any Chances of Names Being Omitted From Voters' List.

NAMES ARE ADDED.

Present Precaution Unnecessary, One Registrar Advises—Later Opportunity Provided.

The flood of enquiries at the registration booths from electors desiring to make sure that their names are on the voters' list, has kept all the registrars extremely busy every day since their offices opened. The great majority of these citizens, men and women, have found that their names were on the assessor's roll, and one of the registrars pointed out that these enquiries were unnecessary. When the registration is completed on Wednesday at 9 p.m., the lists thus completed will be posted for examination in the various divisions, and every elector may then ascertain whether they are duly registered or not. If their names have been omitted they may apply to the Judge to have their names inserted in the final revision.

The present registration, it was stated, is chiefly for the purpose of receiving the names of those who do not expect that they are registered, and the solicitude of workers for both political parties is unnecessary at this stage of registration. Persons whose names were previously listed, and those added by the assessor's department during the last year, need not clutter up the registration offices this week, but may assure themselves later when the completed lists are hung up for inspection.

Quite a number of names have been inscribed on the lists at each registration booth. Up to noon today, No. 2 district has turned in 50 to Mrs. MacDuffee, registrar at W. F. Huycke's office on Water street, and Col. Clegg reported 23 names supplementing the list for District No. 3, at 273 Charlotte street.

R. J. Devey, at 133 Lake Street, reported his count of 30 persons registered and 167 other enquirers. In the northern district R. T. Hounsell, at J. T. Braund's store, put on 25 names, and F. Walker, at T. J. Brooks' store on McDonnel Street, estimated his enlistment at about thirty.

Workers for both parties repeat that the easiest way to satisfy themselves of registration is to visit the registration booths now, instead of having to go through the later procedure before the Judge. It may inconvenience the registrars, but there are only two days left, and the political partizans consider the bulk of the registration as completed.

ROBBER MAKES HAUL IN OSHAWA

Masked Man Secures $23 From Safe in C.P.R. Office.

HELD UP CITIZENS.

OSHAWA, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press) — Saturday night about 11.30 R. C. Brown, night operator at the Canadian Pacific Railway station on Centre Street here was held up at the point of a gun and ordered to open the company's safe, from which twenty three dollars in bills were removed and he was then backed up into a corner of the office and told to empty out his pockets. In leaving the building the masked robbers ordered him to remain where he was for twenty minutes or he would be shot in his tracks.

On leaving the office of the railroad the robbers met Mr. White who was taking a short cut across to his boarding place and ordered him to throw up his hands and immediately began to go through his pockets but met with no extra renumeration, as the local citizen was carrying his money, five dollars in all, in a pocket that the robber did not observe.

From the Mouths of Babes Come Potent Questions

This year's winner in the air race round Britain, Captain F. L. Panard, says that the only question regarding his aeronautical experiences he was quite unable to answer, was asked him by a child.

He was visiting a friend, and his host's little girl, aged about eight or nine, after putting him through a lengthy cross-examination, wound up with this poser.

"But tell me, captain," she said in all earnestness, "if the end of the world were to come and the earth were destroyed while you were up in your aeroplane, where would you land when you came down?"

APSLEY ELECTS FIVE TRUSTEES

All Supporters of Consolidated School — Rev. Mr. Spence Heads Poll.

BIG VOTE OUT.

APSLEY, Sept. 28.—The election of the Board of Trustees for the Consolidated School, which took place in the Town Hall on Saturday, created quite a bit of interest, a large percentage of the ratepayers casting their ballot. Quite a number were not allowed to vote, by reason of their names not being entered on the voters' list (a circumstance which has not been satisfactorily explained) and several women who were strongly in favor of consolidation, were debarred for the same reason. In all 66 ratepayers marked the ballot. There were seven candidates for the five vacancies. The result of the voting was as follows:

Rev. C. A. G. Spence	51
Dan Whitmore	47
Rev. J. W. Ogden	40
Simon Windsor	38
Mrs. Woods	36
R. H. Knox	15
Al. Harris	14

The new board is, therefore, comprised of the first five, and as they are all strong supporters of the consolidation movement, it is expected that steps will at once be taken to secure a site for the new school, and, after approval by the Department of Education, building will be proceeded with.

DIED AFTERWARD

WINGHAM, Ont., Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press) —Mrs. James Golley of the London Road, about two miles South of here died Friday night as a result of burns sustained about noon Friday.

The late Mrs. Golley who was in her 71st year was alone in her home at the time of the accident and it is thought that she was pouring coal oil in the kitchen stove and that the oil had become ignited and exploded as part of the can was found in the kitchen afterwards. She rushed over to her sons house nearby completely enveloped in flames, but by the time the flames were extinguished, the body was burned to a crisp. A doctor was called but was unable to do anything beyond giving relief through opiates and death came to her relief about midnight.

She is survived by her husband and one son and one daughter.

YELLOW RIVER FLOODING CHINA

Two Million People Have Been Flooded Out By Spreading Waters.

MAKING NEW COURSE.

YELLOW RIVER ....

PEKING, Sept. 28 (Canadian Press).—Fifteen thousand square miles containing the homes of 2,000,000 persons now are flooded and it is feared that hundreds have been drowned in consequence of a break in the Yellow River dyke on the Shantung-Chihli border. The affected area is being extended hourly, and famine relief workers returned from the scene say the flood is the greatest since that of 1887.

A further break in the main south dyke is allowing the waters of the yellow River to flow unrestrictedly to the south, and a portion may reach the Yangtse River through the Grand Canal. The possibility is seen of a complete and permanent alteration in the river's course.

Relief work is proceeding, with Yun Cheng Hsein as the base.

Defective insulation is believed to have caused the blaze.

Four Good Ones at One Place Inside a Week.

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 28. — Corn roasts are plentiful around here. The Millbrook Trail Rangers held one at Hibbards Landing as did the United Farmers. Mr. Hibbard entertained the campers on his free campsite at a corn roast, which was quite a success. A good programme was put on including a duet by H. Jemison and G. Fletcher. Bailieboro Epworth League is holding one on Tuesday evening.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Abreast of The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon, and "The Thief of Bagdad," said the critics in reviewing Lillian Gish's new picture, "Romola," which has been acclaimed as her finest photoplay, "better than The White Sister." It's a magnificent production, one of the most important pictures in the history of the screen, a photoplay version of George Eliot's famous novel of the Italian Renaissance.

It is at the Capitol Theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The only one of the girl contestants who did not have bobbed hair won the milk maid championship at the Kansas Fair in Topeka by milking 10 pounds of milk in 11 minutes and one second.

HOTELKEEPERS AND DEALERS AGREE ABOUT THE FAILURE OF FOUR POINT FOUR AS A DRINK

Professional Alms-seekers Lose Source Of Revenue

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press). —Riding the tide of western civilization which is poring into the new Turkey and sweeping away one picturesque custom after another, the prefect of Constantinople Dr. Emine Bey, has banished from the streets of the city all the dancing bears and performing monkeys, who, with their gypsy masters, have delighted countless children in the past. It appears that they have also bitten many of their young admirers; hence they have been ordered into exile.

Another reason given for the edict is that the custom of blocking the traffic with dancing animals tended to make the country ridiculous in the eyes of visiting foreigners.

HOSTILE CROWD MEETS BRITISH

Delegates To Inter-Parliamentary Conference Reach New York To-day.

POLICE INTERFERE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press)—The arrival of European delegates for the Inter-Parliamentary Union Conference in Washington reached its peak to-day when the steamship Caronia brought 155 foreign Government repetesentatives, including 40 members of the British Parliament and delegates from Scandinavian and Central European countries.

A crowd of approximately 200 foreign men and women tried to reach the pier as the Caronia docked this morning, but they were turned back by mounted police.

They carried several banners. One bore the inscription, "Down with British Imperialism"; another, "We demand unrestricted immigration to the United States," and a third, "Stop persecution of foreign born." Some of the banners were hauled down by the police.

Apparently the demonstration was a protest against the barring of Shapurji Saklatvala, member of the British Parliament, by the United States State Department. One of the banners bore the words, "Saklatvala is the friend of Labor; British delegates are the enemies of organized Labor."

The police said the demonstration was staged entirely by Communist sympathizers.

DRAG THE TRENT FOR MISSING MAN

But Friends Believe Earl Turner of Campbellford, is Safe.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 28.—The family and friends of Earl Turner, a young business man of this town, have been worried and alarmed by his absence from his home since late Saturday night. It was learned this morning that he was last seen shortly after 12 o'clock on Saturday night, and because of the possibility of some untoward accident having befallen him searching parties were today dragging the Trent River. Friends refused to believe that there was any serious cause for his absence from home and expected that he would shortly return from some business or other personal call that had required his attention. Mr. Turner is engaged in the hardware business, is married, and is the son of Mrs. C. W. Turner of town.

D. N. King Calls It "Four Disa-Point Four"—No Demand.

NOT WORTH 10c GLASS

Dealers Call It Good for a Hot Day, But Failure Otherwise.

Four point four has not been a commercial success. This is the unanimous verdict of all the hotel managers and vendors in Peterboro, whose opinions of the much cussed and discussed beverage were canvassed by The Examiner.

D. N. King, proprietor of King's Hotel, described the drink as "four disappoint four." There was practically no demand for it, he said. Nobody had any use for it. "The chief trouble lies in the quality," he said. "If the stuff were good, we could easily get 20c a glass for it, but as it is, it is certainly not worth 10c. It is a case of paying something for nothing, and, goodness knows, we are all doing enough of that already. People often go out and pay 25c for a glass of good beer, but they simply won't have this stuff." Mr. King said he thought the introduction of this beer a poor kind of legislation.

Mrs. B. Munro, proprietor of the Munro Hotel on Water Street, spoke in the same strain. "It is no good," she said very emphatically. "People won't drink it." She expressed herself as feeling very bitter against the Government that had, she said, introduced the beer, surrounding the sale with restrictions and then, lately, allowing it to be sold practically on the roadside. "We had to tear down a $5,000 bar which is now in the cellar," she said, "because of the requirement that men had to be served at tables instead of drinking at the bar." Foreigners of all nations were now selling the stuff. The new beer, said Mrs. Munro, had killed a lucrative Sunday trade formerly enjoyed by the Munro Hotel. "We had a good sale in tobacco, ice cream and soft drinks," she said, "and a very big trade in lunches. We had to close our doors on Sundays, and all that trade is gone now."

Mrs. Munro further asserted that the 4.4 beer was not so good as the 2½ per cent. beer that preceded it.

WEATHER

Rain, and still more rain. October is usually the month when we have our heavy fall rains, but September's total up to the present time, is already approaching the six inch mark. Sunday's addition to the total was .56 of an inch. It is seldom that we see the grass so luxuriantly green at the end of September as it is at the present time.—W.P.

GARBAGE COLLECTION IS GOOD IN PETERBORO' BY COMPARISON

Other Cities Less Efficient and All But Four Cost More

SHOWN BY TABLE.

Local Contract System is Cheaper Than Other Methods.

Peterborough is listed among the cities that have a satisfactory garbage system, according to a comparative table that has just come to hand, embodying the results of investigations among the smaller cities. This report shows that Peterborough collects garbage, ashes and refuse three times a week in the business section and twice a week in the residential section all the year round. Collections are made from the curb, in contrast with some other cities of the same size where the material is taken from the rear of the houses or from back lanes. The average length of haul in Peterborough is one mile the work being done by contract teams. The total cost of collection is $8,800; the cost of disposal is $2,200, the per capita costs being .405 for collection and .10 for disposal, making the total figure $.505 per head of the population of the city.

The rubbish is disposed of in an incinerator, the value of which is estimated at $10,000. Out of 18 reporting cities, all approximately of the same population as Peterborough, there are only four in which the cost per head is smaller, and in these cases, the difference in cost, which is very slight, is accounted for by the fact that the disposal is carried out by the much less satisfactory method of dumping the material on waste lands.

In efficiency, the local system appears equal to most and compares very favorably as to costs.

Y.W.C.A. WEEK'S ACTIVITIES

Fall Rally—Registration for Gymnasium and Educational Classes. Swimming.

The big events of this week at the Y.W.C.A. are the Fall Rallies. On Friday night, at 8 o'clock, a big Rally for all Senior members and friends of the Association will be held and on Saturday, afternoon, at 2 o'clock, a rally for all the Juniors of the city. The members hope that many who have not been connected with the "Y" will come to the Rally and learn all about the many classes and good times which are planned for this Fall and Winter. There will be a good programme and a social time.

The Rally marks the opening of all Gymnasium and Educational Classes, Clubs, Bible Study, Parties and Social times. A very attractive Fall Prospectus, which gives full particulars about all the activities, is now ready for distribution and will be given to all who are interested. Registration for classes should be made this week, as classes will commence next Monday.

All swimmers who desire to have the pool kept open during October are reminded to please pay the $1.00 fee before the end of September.

This is the last week for swimming instruction, and all pupils are asked to see that their lessons are completed. The swimming schedule is as follows:

Seniors and Ladies—Monday and Tuesday, 6.30 to 8 p.m.
Juniors—Tuesday and Wednesday, 4.30 to 6.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Political interest in the whole of Hastings County centres today upon the Conservative convention at Belleville to-night and its nomination. There is no dearth of aspirants for the job of fighting Chas. Hanna, the Liberal candidate, and The Examiner was informed that Harry Thompson, an inspector for the Hydro-Electric Commission, was regarded as the best of the political timber, although it was unlikely that he would be chosen.

G. A. Brethen visited Stirling and that district to-day. The party leaders in the Peterboro-Hastings riding have made some progress in their preparations, having selected dates for their itinerary of addresses and arranged for headquarters. Neither Dr. Embury or Mr. Brethen has completed his arangements.

The two political camps in this city have been pitched in the same block, between Charlotte and King Streets, but on opposite side of the street. This morning they were settling down to the routine and drudgery of the campaign.

Mr. W. F. Huycke will assist Fred Slade, of Northumberland, in the opening of his schedule of addresses at Menie, in Northumberland, to-night.

MARMORA EXHIBITION BROKE ATTENDANCE RECORD SATURDAY

Receipts Nearly $700—Great Help to the Directors.

LOCAL HORSES WIN

Stan. Blewett's Major Hal and Silk Line in the Free-for-All.

(By an Examiner Staff Reporter.)

MARMORA, Sept. 28.—Luck was with the directors of the Marmora Agricultural Society for their fall fair on Saturday, and when the splendour of a glorious September afternoon began to fade and the record-breaking crowd began to turn homeward through the gates, the secretary-treasurer C. A. Bleecker, had counted the bulk of his cash and had a glowing financial statement to indicate to the president, A. T. Neal, and his executive associates. The gate receipts and returns from the midway concessions was well beyond the $600 mark and promised to reach a long way toward $700, the crowd was satisfied, for it had been a big community picnic with music and vaudeville, horse races and other attractions, and, if several of the classes of exhibits had fallen slightly below the average, others had made compensating gains that satisfactorily maintained the general average of success in the essential purpose of the exhibition.

Bruce H. Martin, of Corbyville, who judged the cattle, sheep and swine classes, told the Examiner that the quality of the stock was highly praiseworthy. Some of the animals had not been prepared as carefully as others for showing, but on the whole they made a favorable appearance. E. H. Sills, of Napanee, who disposed of the ribbons in the horse ring considered that some sections of this department were rather light, but the decline in the entries of horses at Ontario fairs this season was general. However, the turnouts in the agricultural, general purpose and carriage classes were warmly commended, and the judge was busy until late in the afternoon awarding the prizes.

The crowd presented a cross-section of the rural and village life of central Hastings, all the way from Bancroft and Stirling, and Bonarlaw and Tweed, with quite a number coming from East Peterboro' and Northumberland districts. Apparently they were more interested in greeting each other, renewing friendships and discussing the drift of political sentiment in the new constituency, than they were in looking over the livestock and the fruits, flowers and domestic products. The herds and the horses seemed a bit neglected in contrast with the attention attracted by the amusement features and the midway, where the ubiquitous hot-dogs sizzled and where elsewhere men, young and old, and women, too, learned that auto robes and shawls and other familiar lures usually cost a pretty penny when sought by devices that were thought to have been permanently banished from the fall fairs several years ago.

But the crowd was happy loitering in the bland sunshine, milling around aimlessly but good-natured and content, or lolling in fleets and squadrons of motor cars that commanded a clear view of the race track and the main sweep of the grounds. There was plenty of variety to the program of music and vaudeville by the Young-Adams company, and the Arlie Marks Ladies, kiltie band who were playing in the town hall, fair night, and directors agreed that this arrangement was a big improvement in the very fact of its wider appeal than a ball game or other athletic sports.

The Horse Races.

The horse races resulted as follows:

FREE-FOR-ALL:

Major Hal, S. Blewett.....1, 1, 1
Silk Line, S. Blewett.....3, 2, 2
Vola Bell, H. R. Turley.....2, 3, 3

2.30 CLASS:

Mack R., C. Armstrong, Havelock.....1, 1, 1
Si Wenger, S. Blewett, Peterboro' 2, 2, 2
Si Mack, C. Garrison, Frankford .3, 3, 3

GREEN RACE:

Hal Direct, Sharp, Wooler.....1
Elizabeth H 1, F. J. Johnston.....2

The Drawing Match.

The drawing match was keenly contested, not only by the heavy draft horses, but also by the crowd that swarmed about the teams as if there were no room for a gallery in the spacious park. It was won by a team owned by Chris Burkett, of Springbrook, with L. E. Leal's team second.

An unannounced attraction was the ascension of a bouquet or cluster of toy balloons that escaped from the man who was selling them, gracefully soaring aloft and floating away in the general direction of Crowe Lake until their gay colours of pink, blue and silver of the baker's dozen of them mered with the fleecy whiteness of a cloud, through which they vanished as mere dots in the sky.

Others had broken their loose moorings in the hands of enchanted children throughout the afternoon, but this was a wholesale ascension that held the gaze of every eye in the park for a few minutes.

Among the notable exhibitors was F. L. Rutherford, of Bonarlaw, who had shown his Ayrshire herd at both the Peterboro' and Lindsay fairs, from the latter of which he was allowed to depart on Friday to swell the cattle entries nearer home at Marmora.

H. L. Van Allen, of Stirling, who is known throughout the Central Ontario circuit of fairs carried off a full share of the prize money Saturday, with entries in three or four classes.

Both the candidates of the new riding were present. Dr. A. T. Embury, of Bancroft, the Conservative nominee, and G. A. Brethen, M.P. of Norwood, who is the choice of the Progressives, met many of the men and women in a quiet, and perhaps effective, bit of campaigning. And beneath the shouts and the laughter and the music, there was the muffled undertone in which political gossip is generally pitched. One could have had any opinion he wanted for the asking. Some could see nothing but a Conservative victory, and others were just as sure that the Progressive would go back to Ottawa.

MILLBROOK YEWS

MILLBROOK, Sept. 28.— The A. Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church held its annual corn roast on Friday evening in Mr. S. Hunter's field, west of the village, over thirty being in attendance, and a jolly time enjoyed.

The field chosen was well adapted for the occasion, and a monster bonfire, after it had died down to a big bed of coals, made an ideal spot in which to roast the abundant supply of corn, which was brought hot from the kitchens where it had been boiled to insure thorough cooking.

While the flames mounted skyward, games of various kinds were indulged in, the happy laughter and babel of voices, giving evidence of the high spirits of the merry-makers.

Plates piled high with sandwiches, and a variety of pies, added to the bill of fare after the corn was consumed, and some hearty community singing was the final number on the evening's programme.

Jim Lormer had the honor of winning the silver cup as a result of the 17th annual Field Day in connection with the Port Hope High school, having the highest numbre of points of any of the competing pupils. He and Ernest Burnham, who stood next highest, go to Oshawa on Saturday to compete in the sports' programme for the High schools of the province, the winners going to Toronto next Wednesday, with others from the various districts, for the finals for this season.

The local ball team is receiving congratulations on winning the championship of the Durham County League for 1925, defeating Wesleyville, champions of the south section, at Port Hope on Wednesday. The score, 15-0, showed a one-sided contest, the Millbrook nine evidently having the game their own way from the start. J. Rosevear and R. Chalk, of Port Hope, acted as umpires, their decisions giving satisfaction throughout.

Foster Russell and A. McCorry were the battery for Millbrook, and Beckett and Irwin for Wesleyville. The other players on the latter team being: Smith, Greenfield, Johnston, Cornish, Oughtred, Holston, and Dickson. For Millbrook the field was: E. C. Richards, 1b.; R. Shaw, 2b; R. Edmunds, 3b.; C. Nattrass, s.s.; H. Lancashire, c.f.; L. Ingram, r.f.; A. Armstrong, l.f.

The Thursday half holidays, which have lasted for the past five months, were brought to a conclusion this week, September being the final month when the local business men observe the weekly midday closing. Among those from Millbrook who took advantage of the holiday Thursday to motor to Peterborough for business, or other purposes, were: Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Armstrong and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. Eakins and daughter, Mary, Mrs. J. E. Eakins, Mrs. C. McNeil, Mrs. John Dawson, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside and family, Mrs. (Dr.) H. A. Turner, Misses M. BESSIE BROOKS' LEG BROKEN IN LINDSAY RACE

Programme Marred by Catalogue of Injuries to Horses and Drivers.

FOUR MISHAPS IN 2.45

Polly Stout Threw Driver—Circled Track Three Times—Stopped by Bell.

LINDSAY, Sept. 26. — Facing a slump of fully three thousand in attendance on Friday, as compared with the record set for the same day last year, the directors of the Lindsay Central Fair came back with what they claim was a record attendance on the closing day.

Various estimates are given of the number who passed through the gates to-day, but none of them bear the official seal. It equalled the high water mark reached at any past fair, and is believed to have been over twenty thousand.

The day's programme was marred by several accidents in the speeding events, the most serious of which was the accident which befel Bessie Brooks, a mare owned by F. Montgomery of Peterborough, when the animal's leg was broken in the fourth heat of the 2.45 pace. Four accidents, in fact, fe ured this race. In the second heat, Bub, owned by E. Jones of Peterboro went around the circle with a sulky having a broken wheel and minus a driver. Polly Stout, owned by D. Elmhirst, of Keene, also threw its driver in ths heat when the horses bunched, and circled the track three times, stopping when the starter rang the bell. In the third heat, Bessie Brooks was running a fine race when an automobile apeared on the track. Driver McDowell, in avoiding a collision, hugged the embankment near the southwest turn, and was thrown from the sulky. He handled the tapes in the fourth heat which proved disastrous for his horse. The six horses had just opened the race and while rounding a very dangerous corner on the northeast corner, Bessie Brooks was crowded and went down, breaking one of its hind legs.

The result of the different races was as follows:

2:40 Trot—
Peter Grand, McMillan, Port Perry 3 3 2
Jessie Axworthy, McMillan, Port Perry 4 2 4
Jim McGregor, I. Natrass, Millbrook 1 1 1
Herman C., C. Fife, Keene.. 2 4 3
Time, 2.29¼, 2.29¼, 2.29 3-4.

2.45 Pace—

Billie Hal, R. Montgomery, New Liskeard 62555
Polly Stout, D.Elmhirst, Keene 25122
Jim Todd, A. Johnston, Peterboro 14111
Bessie Brooks, F. Montgomery, Peterboro 41xxx

MISHAP IN RUNAWAY.

Elderly Man Thrown to the Pavement Breaking Leg May Not Recover.

SPRINGBROOK, Sept. 28. — A serious accident occurred here on Thursday, when Mr. Norman Wellman's horse became frightened and ran away, throwing Mr. Wellman against the pavement and rendering him unconscious. Dr. Alger of Stirling was summoned, and upon examination found one leg broken and his head and shoulders badly bruised. It is feared he may not recover, as he is over sixty years of age.

PASTOR LEAVING GIVEN MEMENTO

Rev. Mr. Williams Made Recipient of Purse on Eve of Departure.

HAS NEW APPOINTMENT

MILLBROOK, Sept. 28.—A gathering, representative of the entire parish of Millbrook and Cavan, was recently held in the Sunday School Hall at St. Thomas' Church, the members from St. John's, Trinity and Bailieboro, as well as from the local congregation, joining in a social evening for the purpose of saying farewell to Rev. M. G. B. and Mrs. Williams, who left this week for their new field of labor.

Rev. Mr. Williams has been assistant to Rev. Canon Allen for over two years, and has now been appointed rector of the parish of Hornings' Mills and Honeywood. During his term here, Mr. Williams' marriage to Miss Cole, of Toronto, took place, and both he and Mrs. Williams have won for themselves a warm place in the esteem and affection of a wide circle of friends, not only of the Anglican communion, but of others in the community as well.

Rev. Canon Allen acted as chairman, and in his opening remarks explained the purpose of the gathering, referring to his personal pleasure in being associated with Mr. Williams in the work of the parish during the two years and more of the latter's curacy, and also to the fact that heavieg responsibilities had devolved upon his assistant owing to the rector's ill-health for some months past.

A brief programme, consisting of piano duets by Mrs. Allen and Miss Mamie Collins, and also by Mrs. Allen and Miss Ada Attwooll, piano solos by Miss Jean MacNamara, readings by Rev. D. R. Dewdney, and some community singing, occupied pleasantly the first part of the evening.

At the request of the rector, Rev. Joseph Wilks addressed the gathering, emphasizing his personal friendship with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Williams in the course of his remarks, and wishing the young couple happiness and prosperity in their new field where they will continue to carry on the Master's service. The work of the kingdom, the speaker was assured, would prosper because "he can want nothing who hath God for his friend, and a soul that loves much will work much."

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were then called to the platform and presented with a well-filled purse, Mr. Maurice Gray, president of the A.Y.P.A., in a few well-chosen words, expressing the goodwill of the parish, and the general regret felt that such able and willing workers should remove from the community, adding the assurance of the sincere good wishes which would undoubtedly accompany the departing friends to their new sphere of duty. Mr. Fred Wood, one of the wardens of Christ Church, Bailieboro, made the presentation.

On behalf of his wife and himself Mr. Williams made a brief reply, the emotion always incident to such an occasion making the task a somewhat difficult one. The surprise of the gift, the kindly words which accompanied it, and the spirit of friendship which had prompted it, were deeply appreciated by the recipients. Mr. Williams also referred feelingly to the help he had received from the fatherly interest and advice given by his rector, Rev. Canon Allen, and his confidence that he would do better work for the kingdom because of what he had learned during their association together.

The singing of "For they are jolly good fellows," was heartily entered into as the guests of honor left the platform, and other songs, including "For Auld Lang Syne," followed, after which refreshments were served, and a very pleasant evening was finally brought to a close.

Good things are often made worse by trying to make them better.

Above is Mlle. d'Alroy, a vivacious and versatile Parisienne, who is Marceline, famous newspaper writer and lecturer on the philosophy of beauty and psychology of styles. Although it was her first appearance in vaudeville, she was this season a stellar attraction on the Orpheum circuit in a skit called "The Designing Woman." This year she will repeat in vaudeville, and in addition, break into the movies with a six-act style drama. Nonetheless she declares Hollywood "horrible" and its feminine stars examples of how not to dress.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Ginger-bread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly

DON'T LEAVE IT TO CHANCE.

Urban voters have only two more days in which to make sure that when October 29th comes round and they walk into the polling booth the deputy returning officer will give them a ballot.

The registration will be completed on Wednesday night, and although names may be added when the lists are revised, the process is not nearly so simple, and indeed is much more inconvenient.

The Examiner would advise, therefore, all those voters who have just come of age or who have come into the riding within the past year to register tonight, tomorrow or Wednesday.

As to the other voters, the latest Provincial lists will be used, and it is the duty of everyone, therefore, to make sure that his or her name is listed.

The information can be readily obtained from the registrar in your district, or from the committee rooms of either of the candidates.

From one source or the other find out whether or not your name is on the Provincial list.

If it is there all well and good; if it has been left off the registrar will put it on.

Make sure; it is too important a matter to leave to chance.

A CALL TO ARMS.

May the Examiner again remind the new crop of voters, those who have just come of age, of the desirability of their not only registering and thus making sure of a vote, but also of taking an interest in the campaign and making an effort to understand the issues of the day.

If there were as many young men in Canada who could summarize the policies of the different political parties as there are young men who can give the batting average of "Goose" Goslen or the pitching record of Walter Johnson, Canada could look to the future with quiet confidence, knowing that if she had been handicapped in the past by ignorant or apathetic electors the new generation would impose no such handicap upon the advancement of the country.

It is true that many of our own generation have failed us—the percentage of slacker voters at all elections, municipal, Provincial or Federal, is little short of appalling—and to those who are just now assuming the responsibilities of full citizenship we look for a better condition of affairs.

Every young man and every young woman in Peterboro who has arrived at voting age should enroll and exercise the franchise, for in this, as in most other matters, a good start means everything.

SHOULD CARRY LIGHTS.

The Examiner is glad to notice that in the editorial columns of newspapers in all sections of the Province are appearing demands upon the Ontario Government to pass legislation compelling all vehicles travelling on the highways after night to carry lights.

At the last session a bill was passed enabling municipalities which desired to put such a law in force to do so, but it is the general opinion of motorists that the measure did not go far enough, that there should be a Province-wide adoption of legislation in regard to unlighted vehicles.

There have been so many accidents recently as the result of collisions between automobiles and unlighted horse-drawn vehicles and coroners' juries have been so emphatic in their verdicts that it is believed that a bill of this nature would be supported by a large measure of public opinion.

Surely when human lives are placed in the scale against a trifling amount of expense and inconvenience, there can be no doubt as to which course is adopted.

The Highways Department is putting into force a number of safeguards next year; would it not be possible to add to them a regulation requiring all vehicles to carry lights after night-fall and thus remove a menace to safety that is constantly worrying every motorist?

CADET TRAINING.

When Mr. Herb. Mowat was addressing the Rotary Club here last week in regard to the activities of the Rotary camp, of which he has been in charge for the last three years, he stressed the point that in handling a group of boys no other method gave such good results as a judicious amount of military discipline.

That has been the experience of most men who have had anything to do with the training of boys.

There must be enough of the military system to teach respect for authority and to develop esprit de corps and order.

Organizations and individuals who try to prevent cadet training in the schools and to do away with the Boy Scout movement fail to see that angle of the question at all.

It was gratifying, therefore, for the Examiner, which has defended both cadet training and Boy Scout work, to read the reply of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada to an invitation from the W.C.T.U. asking the Synod to condemn the cadet system.

"So far as cadet and other similar instruction is concerned, we see no necessary connection with the spirit of militarism," was the answer. "On the contrary, we believe that they are doing much to inculcate in the boys of the nation the spirit of discipline and self-denial."

That is sound common sense, and it is to be hoped that Miss Agnes MacPhail has not been so interested in her election campaign as to miss the Synod's reply.

THE INSISTENT PROBLEM OF FUEL.

Thirty years ago anthracite coal for domestic use was at $9 a ton or less. Today it is from $16 to $17. While anthracite is dearer, and also inferior in quality to what it once was, our winters are not a degree less severe. We may therefore join those who, in a forward-looking spirit, are expressing concern over the fuel supply of the future, says the Ottawa Journal. It has come to be a genuine and insistent problem.

England and Germany are both looking with unfeigned anxiety at what is practically the end of their supply of domestic coal. Human genius is wrestling very earnestly with the matter of substitutes; and it is reported that German investigators are perfecting a process whereby bituminous coal may be converted into oil and other convenient combustibles. It would be good news to the world if it should transpire that they have succeeded, and that it will be available at a reasonable cost to consumers.

While we have no anthracite in Eastern Canada, we need not shiver with apprehension as we contemplate our winters. We have a tremendous store of bituminous coal in both eastern and western provinces, and its transmutation into a form suitable for the furnaces now in general use should not be an insoluble difficulty. If it came to the worst, we may be all assured that it could be readily converted into available and quite satisfactory fuel. That would mean, of course, the substitution of new methods of heating, and the cost of such a change would undoubtedly be very large.

If we should be compelled to make costly changes in our heating methods, we should be merely paying the righteous penalty for centuries of waste; for it is the literal truth that we have permitted more than half of the actual heat element in ordinary coal to pass up our chimneys. Perhaps we need not fear such retribution for our folly. The carbonization of soft coal into a fair substitute for the hard variety is now only a matter of time. The possibilities in that regard have been established by exhaustive experiments, and it now remains only for the researchers to find a formula that will put the manufacture of the briquettes on a satisfactory commercial basis.

THE MISSION OF CAILLAUX.

Joseph Caillaux arrived in the United States yesterday to negotiate a settlement of the war debt of France to America.

The mission of M. Caillaux, the French Finance Minister, to the United States marks the beginning of another stage in the protracted negotiations looking to a settlement of the international debts incurred during the war. Perhaps it is too much to expect that it will prove the final stage, for the complexity of the problem is such that only the intervention of a spirit of compromise not so far discernible could ensure a complete and satisfactory solution of it; but, at any rate, the circumstances attending the conference about to take place appear to be much more favorable than at any previous juncture.

The funding of the British debt to the United States, though in one sense a complication; the settlement arrived at, though not yet ratified, between the United States and Belgium, and the understanding recently reached between M. Caillaux and Mr. Winston Churchill in relation to France's obligations to Britain, have cleared the air and created a feeling of hopefulness in all the countries concerned that an adjustment of the United States' claims against her sister Republic will be an outcome which France can stand.

There has developed among most of the nations interested a disposition to recognize and appreciate each other's point of view, and there has been a closer approach to a formula acceptable to all. Nothing could at any time have been fairer than the attitude of Great Britain as shown in her ready acceptance of the American terms, onerous though they appeared to many, and as more recently defined in the French case by Mr. Churchill. "Our main idea," he declared at Birmingham, "has been a settlement. We have not sought to be judged upon this question by our ability to exact the uttermost farthing. We think it our duty to consider not only the capacity of the debtors to pay, but the circumstances in which these debts were incurred."

France, on her part, has indicated her willingness to meet her obligations on a similar basis. At first disposed to question whether she should be called upon to pay at all, having in view the circumstances in which her debts were incurred, she now not only acknowledges her indebtedness, but offers to pay according to her capacity. In other words, the question has emerged from the realm of sentiment into that of business, and that is a development which cannot fail to carry weight with the Americans, who have never been disposed to regard the problem as anything else than a cold business proposition.

To quote from a leading French journal:

"That France went into debt to support the burden of the war for the liberty of all peoples, that the richest part of her soil served as battlefields for the Allies, who fought their fight as well as ours, that France paid the heaviest part in blood, having lost a million and a half of her sons—all that, it seems, does not count with our American friends when the question is their money."

But since the question has resolved itself into a business proposition, official sentiment and press comment in the United States would seem to indicate a desire on the part of the Americans to be "reasonable" in their demands; as "reasonable," that is to say, as they claim to have been in the terms extended to Great Britain. Whether such doubtful generosity will appeal to France; whether, indeed, she can consider such terms, even with an extended moratorium, as is suggested in some quarters, is by no means certain. On evidence collected by the Institute of Economics at Washington, the capacity of France to pay her four billion dollar debt to the United States is sadly limited by the financial conditions that prevail in the Republic. The figures show that there is little or no likelihood of the French budget being balanced during the next few years, and it is estimated that for the fiscal year 1926 there will be a deficit of 12 billion francs.

Confronted with such a condition, the United States would be serving her own interests as well as those of France, and Europe generally, if, in being reasonable and just, she could see her way to be little generous.—Ottawa Journal.

A THOUGHT.

THE PROSPECTING PUBLIC WILL FIND THE VALUES.

Diversity of constitution or other circumstances vary the sensations of an individual, and to a person red pepper is cold and sour pickles are sweet. Fortunately, we all see things from a different slant and all find our individual course through the world in different ways.

What a catastrophe would follow if humans were all constituted alike—were all governed by the same conditions!

Some people have the perception or power to acquire knowledge through the medium of the senses, and we call this "intuition." Others must wait for experience to teach them.

All of which means that we should use the individual implements given us by Nature and not try to be somebody else.

About the only place where a person can successfully counterfeit or imitate is in playing the role of another character on the stage.

To accept the example of achievers as an inspiration is often necessary, but to try to mimic or imitate another is merely to ape.

1. Be yourself. The man that mocks another is merely a carbon copy, and you know this part of the correspondence is filed.

Your own personal success will depend largely on what you have peculiar to yourself. That which seporates your individuality from other individuals is exactly what makes you more interesting, and will, without doubt, be the very thing that will bring you the most recognition and reward.

The trouble is, when we ape, we probably lack the aptitude. When we imitate, we most likely lack the individuality.

Just be yourself. If the values are there, the prospecting public will find them.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press). — The export trade in all kinds of Canadian grain here on Saturday was reported quiet there being no improvement in the demand for foreign buyers and in consequence exporters showed little disposition to operate with the result that only a small business was done with local and country buyers and the market was quiet. The tone of the market for Quebec and Ontario oats was steady. No. 2 white in car lots selling at 50 cents, No. 3 white at 48 cents, and No. 4 at 46 cents per bushel, ex-track, while Ontario malting barley was dull and normally quoted at 81 cents per bushel, ex-track.

While the volume of business transacted in the Spring and Winter wheat flour markets was small, prices were steady.

A good steady trade continues to be done in all lines of mill feed and the undertone to the market remains firm. Standard grades of rolled oats were quiet.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 3,019 cases, as against 1,740 cases for the same day last week, and 551 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending September 26, 1925, were 13,038 cases, as compared with 11,630 cases for the previous week, and 9,107 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May first to date were 253,633 cases, as against 283,081 cases for the same period of 1924. The receipts last week showed an increase of 1,408 cases, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 3,931 cases with the same week last year, and for the season to date they have been 29,448 cases below a year ago.

Owing to the marked reduction in the production of fresh eggs throughout the country of late and the keener competition between buyers for supplies a strong feeling has prevailed in the market since this day week and prices scored a further advance of 2c per dozen, but there was no further change in prices for storage eggs. The consumptive demand has steadily increased and a larger volume of business was done with the result that the market was more active than for some weeks past.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending September 26, 1925, were 16,913 packages which show a decrease of 3,949 packages, as compared with the previous week and an increase of 2,086 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May first to date have been 44,996 packages in excess of the same period for 1924.

The strength which has characterized the market for butter since the first of the month was again the feature of the trade the past week and prices scored advances amounting to 4 1-2c to 3 3-4c per lb. and the market is now at the highest level for the season to date and fully 8c per lb. higher than at this date last year and the indications are that the peak has not been reached yet. This condition of the market may be attributed principally to the very large movement for export account this season owing to the heavy demand for supplies in the English markets from Germany and the fact that stocks here have been reduced considerable. In consequence of the above the competition between local buyers for the offering here has been keener than usual and on the whole an active business.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending September 26, 1925, were 52,655 boxes which show a decrease of 5,010 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 2,572 boxes with the same week last year, while the total from May first to date have been 59,239 boxes larger than the corresponding period a year ago.

The export trade in cheese was also active and the movement was the largest of any previous week this season to date. There was a good steady demand from foreign buyers and supplies of some grades on spot were well cleaned up owing to the fact that all offerings made by exporters were accepted at advanced prices with the result that a very strong feeling developed in the market and spot prices closed with a net gain for the week of 1 1-2c per lb.

CHEESE MARKET.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press). — At the United Dairymen Co-operative Auction Sale of Ontario Cheese held here on Saturday 2,611 boxes were offered for which the bidding was keen and prices were advanced 1 3-16c per lb. as compared with the previous sale, 1,460 boxes of No. 1 colored selling at 23 15-16c per lb., while 23 15-16 per lb. was bid for 1,151 boxes No. 1 white and refused with 23 7-8c per lb. asked.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 28. — Sterling Exchange rates were quoted here on Saturday as follows:
Sterling demand $4.84.
Sterling cables $4.84 1-2.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press). —Active selling, much of it from Winnipeg, pulled down wheat prices here on Saturday after an early advance. Reports indicated that nearly 100,000,000 bushels, a record-breaking total for this time of year had been delivered up to date at Canadian country points by farmers.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1 5-8 to 3 cents net lower, December $1.40 1-2 to $1.40 3-4 and May $1.43 to $1.43 1-4. Corn finished at 1-4 to 2 cents decline, oats a shade to 1-8 and 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents higher.

Final transactions in the wheat market were at virtually the day's bottom figures, with buying confined for the most part to previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. End of the month liquidating sales from holders of contracts calling for September delivery of wheat were an added burden on the market. Besides, failure of prices to hold any advance had much to do with turning away would-be buyers. So, too, did the fact that no export business of consequence was in sight, and that Argentina was offering wheat to Europe at cheaper prices than Canada. Reports of rain and snow in Canada, with cold weather predicted for this side of the Canadian border, were ineffective as a check on the late selling in the Chicago wheat market. Unexpected strength of quotations at Liverpool had helped to give an early lift to values here, but the rise was transient, the action of Liverpool being explained as due to prospects that world shipments for the week would be small. About the sole other stimulating factor was a settlement early from a leading trade authority that broadly speaking there was no pressure to market actual wheat any where in the United States.

Corn sympathized with the weakness of wheat, and was also influenced by talk of prospective heavy movement of new corn earlier this season than usual. Oats prices were steadied by knowledge that oats are being largely substituted for other high priced grain.

Packers buying put firmness into the provision market.

OPEN LETTER NO. 10

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

What are your feelings towards organized labor? Disregarding the radical element altogether, are you friendly towards the safe and sane element? Are you sympathetic with its objects, and are you disposed to aid it in the attainment of those objects?

I feel sure you won't answer the latter question in the negative! But will you definitely answer it in the affirmative?

If so, then I would like you to make clear to me how you square the tariff policy you have been pursuing with your desire to see trade unionism progress.

Among other things, organized labor is deeply concerned in improving the standard of living in Canada. Are you helping or hurting that endeavor by lowering the tariff on many of the things that organized labor produces? By facilitating the entry into our market of goods that have been produced by child and sweat shop labor, under a low standard of living, are you making it easier or harder for Canadian artisans, who produce the same class of goods, to maintain a decent standard of living and union rates of wages?

Shorter hours is another objective to which organized labor is striving. Its only hope of success lies in being adequately protected against foreign labor that works longer hours. But when you lower the tariff, thereby making it easier for long-hour workers in other countries to sell the products of their labor in this market, don't you creating a situation where trade unionism in Canada may have to drop its offensive, with the hope of gain, and assume the defensive, with the danger of loss?

Organized labor is opposed, under present circumstances, to any encouragement being given to the immigration of artisans. It fears the consequences of the skilled labor market being flooded. In this you actively support it, by placing restrictions upon that class of immigration. But wherein is the Canadian artisan really benefitted if you keep out the man who might steal his job, but fail to keep out the goods that destroy his job?

Labor unions are strongest when prices are high, and weakest when prices are low. Membership in Canadian unions mounted steadily from 1915 to 1919, corresponding with the era of advancing prices; since then it has been dropping away. Tariff reductions are undermining the strength of our labor unions, and causing them to lose prestige!

If you are really friendly towards organized labor, why do you persist in a policy that bars its way to the realization of some of its most cherished ambitions?

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

COL. AMERY SCOUTS TURKISH WAR IDEA

Rumor Was Fruit of the Disagreement at the League Conference.

LONDON, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press.—On his arrival in London last night from Geneva, Colonel L. C. M. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions, scouted the idea of the possibility of war with Turkey. Such a serious disagreement arose at the League of Nations Assembly over the Mosul question between these countries that rumors of the possibility of a clash at arms preceded the Secretary to London.

Colonel Amery admitted that it was administratively inconvenient that final settlement of the Mosul problem had been postponed for three months for decision by the world court of international justice at The Hague, but hoped that any danger of frontier incidents would be effectively averted by the presence of a representative of the League of Nations.

A NEW NAME FOR IT.

Few women have the gift of wit more highly developed than Lady Tree, widow of Sir Beerbohm Tree, famous actor.

A short while ago she paid a visit to the Tate Gallery, accompanied by a woman friend.

While strolling through the rooms, which happened to be practically empty, her companion laughingly called her attention to a well-groomed young man who, obviously unaware of their presence, was engaged in snatching a kiss from a very pretty young girl.

"Humph!" whispered Lady Tree. "They ought to call this the tete-a-tete gallery."

WEARING SUITS LONGER

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(United Press).—American visitors to London this summer have saved many a West End tailor from approximate bankruptcy. There was hardly an American visitor, it is said, who did not take back with him at least one suit, and some ordered as many as twenty.

Even with these sales, the situation in the tailoring industry is described by the Secretary of the Master Tailors' Federation as "almost catastrophic!"

"The trouble is," he continued, "that due to the shortage in money, people are wearing their suits longer than they used to do. In fact, it has become almost fashionable to be shabby. The renovating and pressing shops are prospering, but the manufacturing tailors are having the struggle of their lives to make ends meet."

UNAVOIDABLE

of that time has passed since the sinking. With the Monarch arriving at midnight, it was believed that the wreck of the submarine could not be brought to the surface before noon to-morrow at the earliest.

The reports of naval divers who were the first to reach the wreck last night, added to the hopelessness of the workers. Chief Torpedoman J. W. Ingraham, the first diver to go down, said there was no possible chance that any of the imprisoned men were alive.

CHATHAM, Mass., Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Little hope remains for the safety of the 34 missing members of the crew of the submarine S-51, sunk off Block Island in collision with the Steamship City of Rome, in the opinion of the three survivors who are under treatment at the naval hospital.

Six men trapped in the engine room when the submarine went down may have "an outside chance," the survivors said, because the water woldu reach that compartment last. Failure of the batteries controlling the air pressure may have removed that faint hope, however.

Saved from death almost by miracle, Alfred Geier, electrician's mate, second class, of New Bedford; Dewey Kile, engineman, first class, of Peoria, Miss., and Michael S. Lira, fireman, first class, of St. Louis, Mo., suffered relatively slight injuries and were to leave the hospital soon. Lira, as spokesman for the party, said that none of them knew how the accident occurred and that their recollections of the nightmare moments following the crash were hazy.

"I was awakened by the crash at 10.30," Lira said. "The three of us had been sleeping in the battery compartment forward. The first thing I heard was Lieutenant Dobson calling to quarters. We rushed for the deck and reaching the conning tower and from there reached the outside in some manner. The ship was well submerged and went down almost immediately.

"The last thing I heard as she plunged was the commander shouting to the City of Rome: 'Please throw us a line.'

"Geier and I became entangled in the radio antenna and were carried down as she sank. I felt that I dived a great distance. I came up astern of the City of Rome and dirfted around 45 minutes until picked up by the same boat that got Geier and Kile. I think the commander was carried down by the antenna, too. That may have happened to others who got out to the deck. The shock was so great it must have thrown overboard the five men who were on watch.

"The searchlight of the City of Rome was not working and that made it hard to see anybody floating in the sea. I heard shouts as I drifted about, but do not know where they came from."

The six men included in the "outside chance" to which the survivors referred, Lira named as follows: Allan Earle, engineman, Gloucester; Frank L. Mims, seaman, first class, Augusta, Ga.; Charlie G. Thomas, fireman, second class, El Paso, Texas; Paul D. Berk, engineman, Shoemakersville, Pa.; Rudy Firm, motor machinist's mate, first class, Klein, Monata; and Franklin P. James, chief motor machinist's mate, Stratford, Conn. Firm and James were in the motor room and the others in the engine room, Lira said.

MEIGHEN SPOKE ABOUT POLICIES

Large Audience Greeted Him on Appearance in Kingston Hall.

SUPPORTING ROSS.

KINGSTON, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, made his first appearance on an Ontario platform since his Maritime Provinces' tour, when he addressed a large audience in the Grand Opera House here last evening in support of Dr. A. E. Ross, Conservative candidate in this city. The speech of the Conservative leader was a condemnation of the Government for its fiscal policy and also for what he claimed was a lack of policy on such major questions as transportation and immigration. It was also a reiteration of the tariff policy which is supported by the Conservative party.

Mr. Meighen warned his audience that little was to be expected from a tariff commission should the next Parliament resemble the present one in its membership. The tariff was the creation of Parliament, he pointed out, and changes in the schedules must have the approval of Parliament.

On the railway problem, Mr. Meighen condemned the Government for discharging the former board of the Canadian National Railway system which, he claimed, was composed of non-political business men and replacing it with a board on which "there was a goodly number of political appointees." Such conduct meant the "death knell" of independent control of the system.

The first frame house erected in the city of Portland, Oregon, was manufactured in the State of Maine, and taken in a ship, in pieces, around Cape Horn, and set up in Portland in 1847.

EARLY INVASION MADE BY WOLVES

Presaging Early Winter in Russia—Many Animals Killed.

MORE THAN EVER.

MOSCOW, Sept. 26.—(Special by United Press). — Wolves have already invaded the Moscow district, presaging an unusually hard winter. There are daily reports of cattle and other livestock being killed and of narrow escapes of the peasants themselves.

The Department of Agriculture says that the number of wolves is unprecedented throughout all parts of the country, even exceeding last year, when 100,000 horses and cattle and 250,000 smaller animals were killed.

The country's losses from these "gray bandits," says the Department, exceed 5,000,000 annually, not counting the loss in human lives.

Bob and Caroline wandered away into the upland fields like two children out of school. Added to the softening lure of the day now was the bewitchment of her vitally young and refreshing personality; and under the combined spell Bob found it comparatively easy to put aside for the time being, at least, his scruples and his resolutions and abandon himself free-heartedly to the gay infectiousness of her moods.

On the rising flow of his reactions Bob's responsiveness to Caroline carried him even beyond the high water mark of her unrestrained vivacity: he was a youngster again, gleeful and sportive, merrily skylarking, twanging the strings of their joyousness to the utmost. They strolled and rested; they joked and laughed; they talked in blue streaked circles, or kept full silences—all as the spirit moved them. Bob pitched stones at signboards and other casual targets, wrestled with the sullen ram of a sheep herd on a rocky slope, and even walked on his hands along the edge of a cliff, delighting in the apprehensive squeals his "showing off" elicited from Caroline.

She, in turn, utilized the milder and more subtle little girl methods of showing off; she hid from him at every chance, she goaded him into playing tag with her and for a short distance would run so fast that he could not capture her. When her inferior strength gave out she forestalled his robust pretensions to the spoils of victory by taking refuge in shy confusion; and—she selected and picked the fairest daisy within sight and stuck it into his buttonhole with a possessive little pat.

They were in love, candidly and completely.

Caroline for days had been suspecting the extent of her attachment for Bob. When he had come to her at the gate this morning she felt sure of it; and now, swept from her feet by the indirect ardor of his wooing, she took it as a matter of mutual love for granted.

By noon they had gained the summit of distant Starling Hill, the one luxuriantly verdant spot in all that had mountain land. The excess of their exuberance had toned down to a sober appreciation of one another's presence. Bob had forgotten—that night before. It was hard to believe that the threat of trouble would not blow away. The past seemed very remote and the living present exemplified in this vital, overflowing girl at his side, was so real and wonderful; God was so palpably in His heaven, that all seemed right with the world.

They were constantly stealing shy glances of admiration, one at the other. Caroline felt a definite irresistibility running away with her cool-headedness when she looked at Bob in his strong and handsome youthfulness, and listened to his enthusiastic interpretation of his own moods.

"There are girl days and boy days," he told her once. "Bold, blustery March days are boy days; rare, warm, is the rarest June day of all, because it is like you. You are its distilled essence!"

Caroline, with a little gasp of delight at the perfection of it, chose a cool dell-like recess under a thick setting of high-limbed pines as an ideal spot in which to lunch. Bob fumblingly helped her to set out the picnic spread, marveling at the thoughtful choice behind the dainty delicacies she had brought, and lost in visions of a sort he had never had before—visions of a life together with this slender girl in a white cottage.

After lunch they stretched in luxurious ease at the edge of the grove, where daring and steady old trees grew dangerously close to the brink of a precipice. In drowsy, eloquent silence they watched the white powderpuff argosies of the summer sky dropping serenely toward the far horizon. Presently Caroline teased.

"You've done everything you threatened yesterday you would do except one thing, Bob—you've eaten pickles and you've watched the clouds sail by overhead—but——"

Bob reached for her hand. She gave it to him willingly, gladly—and for another long while they were silent in the pulsing thrill of love's first holding of hands. Bob leaned closer to her, on his elbow, and brushed hot lips caressingly across the back of her hand; it was like a spark that set up between them a flowing of magnetism that could no longer be denied. An instant later, lips to lips, they were straining into one another's arms.

Still in the madness of that first kiss, Bob gradually became aware that an intangible inward pricking was alloying the pure strength of his joy; invisible hands were dragging at him from behind, words grated harshly in his ears.

"I've searched for you all these years—I love you more than ever——"

Frantic, Bob released Caroline and jumped to his feet, striding away to the cliff edge where he stood tensely, with his chin pressed down on his breast and his hands opening and closing spadmodically.

Caroline, who had given herself freely and passionately to the embrace, sat up limply, quivering under the pounding of the stalled heat in her veins.

"Bob, what's the matter—Bob dear?" in a frightened, embarrassed quaver.

For perhaps half a minute Bob did not answer; did not, indeed, even look toward Caroline. He never forgot what he suffered in coming to the decision that brought him back, straightforward and manly, to his knees on the ground beside Caroline, facing her and telling her, in a discouraged and hopeless voice:

"Caroline, I must tell you of my past life——"

Caroline smiled in relief. So that was all? Then she smiled and said in a quick display of faith and trustfulness that caused Bob's eyes to lower in self-abased estimation of his own unworthiness:

"I love you for yourself, Bob—not for your past, however silly that may have been—"

"But you don't understand—you don't know Caroline! I must tell you—You cannot help but know, even from the short time that you have lived in Crater City, that I'm a person there under a cloud of secrecy and mystery—"

Caroline had all the woman in love's lack of jealous curiosity; which sprang from the keenly negative, matter-of-fact philosophy as old as the sex that it would be better for her peace of mind if she learned nothing more about him than she already knew; then, what she did not know would not worry her. She leaned close to him, smiling, and patted a warning finger on his lips.

"There now, there is no mystery to me except the miraculous mystery of our youth and love. For the rest, I'm not interested in any of Crater City's pet mysteries. But it's a wonder most of the cats there aren't dead, if curiosity is as deadly to the tabbies as tradition would have us believe!"

This generosity of spirit instead of having the intended effect of reassuring him, only served to make him unhappy and miserable, stubbornly determined to go through with his revelations. This was in his period of transition from his elevated mood back to his oppressed level of the sleepless night, and if he had been able to have his way a middle ground might have been attained by their newly confessed love.

But Caroline, thinking that she was acting for the best in saving Bob whatever pains or heart-throbs might be involved in the explanation he wanted to make, refused steadfastly to hear it. Before the matter could be argued to a conclusion, a sudden and startling interruption came in the form of an ear-splitting automobile siren on the road that ran on the other side of the grove, about a hundred yards from the thickly-shrubbed cliff edge where Caroline and Bob were seated.

Because this was an unfrequented road at best, traversed only occasionally by mountaineers' flivvers, and because the noise was so obviously different from the usual automobile horn and so plainly an alarm signal of some sort, it brought the lovers to their feet.

Caroline in terror, shrank into the arms of Bob, who said excitedly:

"That's the police patrol from town or I miss my guess! You know, they're transferring prisoners at the rate of a single carload a day from the old state jail to the new penitentiary up the line. There's been a prison coach attached to the westbound Limited each night for several nights past. One was laid up in the Yards this morning. I wonder—"

GILMOUR MEMORIAL.

A memorial service for the late Dr. and Mrs. Mann was held yesterday morning at the Gilmour Memorial Church. The Rev. W. S. Edgar preached a sermon from 2nd Timothy, chapter 4, verses 7 and 8: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." At the close of the sermon the pastor said:

"I cannot close this service without making a brief reference to the terrible tragedy that resulted in the deaths of Dr. and Mrs. Mann. The entire community of Peterboro and district has been stirred to its depths and shocked beyond measure by the appalling catastrophe. Dr. Mann, as a boy and youth, attended this church and Sunday school and received his first religious impressions here. He went forth from this place into the larger sphere of life with a character that was definitely Christian, and in all his after life he manifested that beautiful spirit of kindness and helpfulness that was beginning to reveal itself in his early days. Those who knew him best loved him most.

"He chose a noble profession in which to expend his life's energies, that of a doctor, and very many he was the 'Good Physician.' A doctor is one whose whole life is spent in service to the community, and Dr. Mann brought to his great task a richly stored mind, a righteous character, and a loving heart.

"I never had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Mann, but I understand she ably seconded the doctor in all his labors of love among the sick and the afflicted. They have passed out of our presence into the unseen and we sorrow not as those who have no hope, for we know that, by virtue of their faith in Christ, they have passed through death into that more abundant life. They have joined that great company of the elect souls of all the ages, the choice spirits of all the race who surround the throne of the Majesty on high singing the New Song of Moses and the Lamb. We commend the sorrowing relatives and friends to your sympathy and to your prayers.

St. Peter's Cathedral.

The text, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," from the Gospel according to St. Matthew, was the basis of the sermon preached at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday by Rev. P. Butler. The love of God, given with the whole heart and mind and soul, is the first requisite, to be followed by the love on one's neighbor.

"The standard set by God for our love of Him is very complete. We should love him with our whole heart and mind and soul. But the standard by which we are to love our neighbor is the love which we have for ourselves. We need no commandment to force us to love ourselves. We are all too much inclined to do that. But it is not a selfish love which God meant when He said: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." He meant that we should have a just appreciation of what we are and for what we are destined. We are made up of a soul and a body and each of these parts is worthy of our respect and consideration. A love and respect for the dignity of our soul, the value of which we should measure by what it cost, should be in all of us. Each soul was worth the price of the precious blood of Christ, shed on the cross for us. His sacrifice on Calvary was for each of us individually. God made this soul, God saved it, and God sanctifies it. The good desire to preserve their souls in their integrity. They endeavor to build up in their souls a love of God, to perform good works, and to live for the purpose of saving their souls. They remember the Scriptural admonition to lay up treasures in heaven, rather than on earth, "where the rust and the moth consume, and thieves break in and steal."

"The body also must be loved, because it is the instrument through which the soul works. 'You have been purchased at a great price,' says the Apostle. We should respect our bodies as the temples of the Holy Ghost, and not give them over to sinful pleasure, thereby driving out the spirit of God and allowing the devil entrance. A reason for our self love should be found in our origin, our redemption by Christ, and our sanctification, and this love of self should be the standard by which we love our neighbor. When pleasure is preferred to God, then one has no respect for oneself or for one's neighbor either. You cannot love your neighbor as God intends that you should unless you have in your heart a proper consideration of your own worthiness, and a full realization of the purpose for which God made you."

KNOX UNITED CHURCH.

Knox United Church is an institution that grew out of a Sabbath School in connection with St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. When the school developed into a Church, the members made use of the building in which had been housed the first Presbyterian Church in Peterboro.

After some years, a building was erected on Dalhousie Street between Stewart and Rubidge Streets. The lease of this property expired in 1902 and ground was bought on Park St. on which a church was erected. Opened on February 1st, 1903, as a mission of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the new congregation was called Knox Presbyterian Church. In October, 1906, in deference to the wishes of the members, Knox became an independent congregation.

The Rev. Henry J. Keith, M. A., B. D., was inducted as the first minister on April 11, 1907. Encouraged by a bequest which was supplemented by other large donations, the congregation resolved, in 1909, to build a newer and larger edifice. On Sunday, December 11, 1910, the labors of many month were crowned by the opening of the fine church that now stands at the corner of Rubidge and Wolfe Streets. The dedication services were led by the Rev. Dr. Marsh, Moderator of the Presbytery and the Rev. Robert Johnston of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal.

The building, interior and exterior is Tudor Gothic, is of solid red Brick with a finishing of Indiana limestone and is covered with a slate roof. Two towers add an appearance of massiveness and solidity to the building. The windows are filled with stained glass. Seating accomodation for six hundred is provided in the body of the church in circular pews, with quartered oak ends. Two main aisles lead from two doors at the back.

The gallery has a sitting capacity of 300.

The communion table was donated by Mrs. George Campbell in memory of her mother, Mrs. Emma Cox

The Young People's Guild presented the pulpit, and the Ladies Aid provided the carpets for the aisles and platform. The offering plates were presented by the Goforth Club and the pulpit chairs by the Sabbath School.

The pipe organ which cost over $3500 was dedicated on May 17, 1914 by the Rev. Dr. Hanson of Erskine Presbyterian Church, Montreal.

The Rev. M. C. Mackinnon was appointed minister of Knox Church in August, 1923.

Mark street United church was last night the scene of a unique and pleasing service of song, the programme being presented in its entirety by the choir under the direction of its leader, Victor Boor[illegible].

The selections were centred about the adventures of Christian as depicted in Pilgrim's Progress, and followed the theme of his trials from "The Gate of Good Will" to his perilous passage through the "Valley of the Shadow of Death, when Dawn came creeping to vanquish the tersors of the night. Mrs. Norton read the excerpt, as the choir interluded with a musical rendition of the central motif.

Two great crosses stood on either side of the pulpit. They were covered with massed flower heads and added greatly to the impressiveness of the service.

After the prelude, Mendelssohn's "Farewell to the Forest," the triumphant message of the Crusader's Return rang forth, followed immediately by the reading from Pilgrim's Progress.

Christian, having passed through the Gate of Good Will, went to the House of the Interpreter, where he was shown many things which were to be of value on his devious journey towards the Eternal City. He saw the Wise Interpreter sweep the dusty room first without water, and then making use of its allaying properties.

He saw the two children, Passion and Patience, the former desiring all, immediately, the latter willing to await its turn, to be allowed pleasures meted out. He heard the farewell words of the Wise One who admonished him that things seen were temporal, while things not seen were eternal.

Miss F. Stenton at this point sang "Willingly Wait" as a contralto solo, accompanied in part by a hummed obligato.

Christian then visited the fire which was unquenched by water thrown upon it by the Adversary because an unseen figure behind it fed the flames continuously with the oil of Grace.

A ladies' chorus then sang "Wonderful Love." The Interreter took him to the Golden Palace, which was carefully guarded by valorous soldiers. He witnessed one determined man hack a passage through the midst of the defenders and gain security within the gates.

The Interpreter here left Christian who pursued his way hemmed in by mighty walls until he reached a place where there was a cross. Having attained this point his burden rolled away down on a long slope into a sepulchre and was never seen again. At this juncture Mrs. Warde sang, "At a Wave of His Hand."

Christian next encountered the Three Shining Ones, who greeted him with a message of peace, clothed him and presented him with a scroll and a distinguishing mark. Continuing his journey he passed a sleeping trio Simple, Sloth and Presumption, and encountered two others who had invaded the sanctity of the pathway by climbing over the wall.

Misses Cain and Stenton sang "The Light Beyond."

Christian continued on his way obtaining comfort from the truths contained in the scroll and came at length to the Hill of Difficulty. Before beginning the ascent he drank at a spring. Half the distance up the which mean so much . . . commercially, socially, are gained this new way with gleaming, white teeth

Don't believe your teeth are "naturally" dull. Just accept this 10-day test. See how dazzling white teeth and healthy gums come when film coats go.

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth of the recent dental statement that dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, given dazzling whiteness.

In a few days you can work a great change in the color of your teeth. Can give them clear and charming gleam.

There is a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy looking.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to the teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lets your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, whiter teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then removes it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

NINE VITAL FACTS

Here, in brief form, we present for your information nine vital facts underlying the success of Dodge Brothers, and the goodness and value of their product.

Dodge Brothers (Canada) Limited, consider these facts so fundamentally important to the motor car buyer that they will be repeated, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in Canada may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brothers, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90% of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brothers have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in unanimously adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills.

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The purchase of an automobile is a serious and important business. The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth.

A few of these essentials are clearly outlined above. They go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

MUSTERING OF LIBERAL CLANS SHOWS CERTAINTY OF VICTORY

Hon. G. N. Gordon Explains Plan to Populate Peterboro County.

GIRD ON ARMOUR

R. R. Hall, K.C., Tells Concrete Facts of Textile Improvement Here.

Saturday night's gathering of the clans in the Liberal Committee Rooms on George street was so optimistic of the outcome of the General Election that one of the speakers was compelled to remind the audience that Hon. G. N. Gordon is not being returned by acclamation, and that there is still work to do. "But", he added, "if we buckle on the armour as we did in the memorable by-election we can carry on in the sure and certain fact that we have West Peterborough, and propose to have it for the next four years, for the Liberal party."

After discussing organization work in the city and riding, and commenting on the political situation throughout the Dominion, Hon. G. N. Gordon plunged into a comprehensive and detailed outline of the work the country has given him to do in managing its immigration and colonization affairs, indicating the importance of the office and the comprehensiveness and practicability of the plans he has already set on foot to populate Canada. He has arranged, he said, to see Sir Clifford Sifton, who brought immigrants to Canada in so great numbers, building up the west and providing employment in hundreds of factories in the east. "The only way to keep the factories working in Canada is to fill up the waste places", he declared, "so that the new comers will buy machinery to till the soil, cloth ing for themselves and their families, and all the various products that are included in the necessities of life." During the activities of Sir Clifford Sifton, Mr. Gordon pointed out, and due to them, the population of Peterborough grew 69 per cent, real estate boomed, business prospered, factories shipped merchandise west by the car load, departmental stores were busy.

But, he was quick to add, Canada should not go in wholesale for mere immigration. Careful selection, careful placing, perfect colonization, are his aims.

Peterborough County.

Right in Peterborough county, Mr. Gordon indicated, there are hundreds of farm holdings where only a small part of the land is cultivated. It will be his aim to ascertain whether the owners of this waste land are willing to sell small tracts to old country farmers who will be successful because of their intensive farming practices. He set the probable number of such tracts at 700, but announced his plan to bring in an inspector who will survey the county exhaustively and make a report on which Mr. Gordon will base his further actions. With this building up of homes at its very doors the city could not help but prosper, he said, and those who sell the land will be prospered by the transaction and by the shouldering by the new comers of some of the burden of township and county taxation.

"I think it is a mistake on the part of those who urge us to bring immigrants to the cities", Mr. Gordon said. "Some are anxious to benefit transportation, but I have announced the policy that we are not going to bring in that class of immigrant, and the Government has approved that policy. It would not be fair to the city workers to admit men to compete with them until the factories are so busy that the extra help is needed."

His scheme as outlined for the county—and it would be extended throughout Ontario and Quebec—would provide the farm labor demanded by the farmers. Everything is ready, roads, schools, railways, for this family colonization, and with 500 new families in Peterborough county owning their own farms, adding about 2,500 to the population, new business would be created that would open a new era of prosperity. The first step towards this end will be taken in a few days, the speaker intimated, when the inspector arrives from his department.

"Real Live Wire."

"It is easy to see that the Department of Immigration is in the hands of a real live wire," declared R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P., in commenting on the proposals outlined by Hon. Mr. Gordon. "What the country needs is increased population of the right kind to take care of the burdens imposed by the war."

Mr. Hall, too, was enthusiastic in his view of the possibilities behind the colonization plans of the new minister of that department, pointing out that the proceeds of this year's crop, about $600,000,000 is nearly equal to one third of Canadas' national debt. With increasing development in this and other industries year by year the Dominion would soon find its national burdens lighter, employment would increase, and economical conditions would be better generally.

The industrial development that started in June is astonishing, Mr. Hall said. It is true for a time the textile industry suffered as the result of readjustment, but in this Canada is not alone. There are records of unemployment all over the world, and Canada's condition is better than most countries.

As an instance of the revival in this business, Mr. Hall cited the Colonial Weaving Company, of which he is at present President. Buyers in Canada who formerly ordered labels by the hundred thousand are now ordering by the two hundred thousand. All garments have labels, and an index furnished by the increase in the demand for labels shows increased orders for garments and a vast improvement in the industry.

Old Time Progress.

"It is all very well for people to croak and find fault," Mr. Hall continued, "but business conditions are substantially bettering, and there is no cause for alarm. I believe the policy of the King Government will make an old time march in the can of progress that will be well for the people of Canada."

Referring to the candidature of Hon. Mr. Gordon, Mr. Hall said the city is being raised by the Conservative party "What's the use in voting for Gordon, even if he is a Cabinet Minister, since the King Government is going to be down and out." It is a seductive argument, Mr. Hall admitted, but wrong in its fundamentals. The fact is, he declared, that throughout the country there is no chance for Mr. Meighen to break into power. In Nova Scotia the provincial election is no criterion of the outcome of the federal election. The issues are entirely different and from information he has received he does not see why the Liberal party should not make gains in the Maritimes. In Quebec Mr. Meighen has only one leader, and his position is peculiar, since he is in the position of supporting neither Mr. Meighen nor Mr. King. Some even say Mr. Patenaude himself will not carry his own riding. In Ontario, with the increasing balance of trade in favor of Canada under Mr. King's administration, Mr. Hall did not see why there should not be Liberal gains. In Manitoba the Liberal party is strong in the confidence of the people, while in Saskatchewan the Conservative party is practically wiped out. In Alberta Liberal gains may be expected, and in British Columbia the party will hold its own.

The speaker pointed out that in order to have a majority of one in the House of Commons Mr. Meighen must gain 74 seats and not lose one of the 40 he now has. "All this talk is whistling to keep their courage up," Mr Hall declared of Conservative speeches, and urged in closing his address that West Peterborough people make certain of having Hon. G. N. Gordon in Canada's Cabinet for the next four years.

A Good Augury.

J. J. Hartley, president of the Liberal Association of West Peterborough, said the crowd present on Saturday evening was a good augury, and predicted a sure victory for Hon. Mr. Gordon. The riding had no reason to regret having sent Mr. Gordon to Ottawa, and would not regret returning him in October.

BIG FISH CAUGHT.

Thirty Pound 'Lunge Was Landed By George Wallace of Gore's Landing.

George Wallace, of Gore's Landing, was fortunate enough to catch a 30-pound 'lunge in Rice Lake this week. The big fish is being mounted that he may have a souvenir of his catch.

Anyone can talk but it takes a really clever person to understand.

Most successes are won by doing ordinary things extraordinarily well.

TELLS CANDIDATURE

J. J. Carrick, father of the dominion amateur golf champion, "Don" Carrick, has announced that he will run a candidate in the Port Arthur-Thunder Bay constituency in the coming federal election. Mr. Carrick was formerly mayor of Port Arthur and Conservative member of the Ontario legislature and of the federal House. Col Carrick was attached to the British headquarters staff in France during the war.

WATERMELON PRIZE SOFTBALL VICTORS

Teams Composed of Both Sexes in Spirited Conflict.

PETHERICKS CORNERS, Sept. 26.—Two old rivals met once more when Petherick's softball team journeyed to Shea's school and succeeded in piling up the score in their own favour. This game had been planned for school day fair, but was postponed on account of the hard bal play-off between Burnbrae and the English Line.

Petherick's nine were successful in carrying off the honours in hard ball before the holidays, while Shea's won the school fair parade by a few points over the Petherick school, so both teams worked hard and presented an excellent game of junior soft ball.

The Petherick team sought revenge when up to bat by sending a number of flies far out into the field, but the Shea's team was quite equal to the occasion, when a few excellent catche were made and so held down the score to 11-9.

The line-up:

Petherick's— Arthur Petherick, c.; Gerald Petherick, p.; Gerald Barnum, 1st base; Roy Simpson, 2nd base; Donald Kerr, 3rd base; Maggie Petherick, s.s.; fielders, Ruth Kerr, Gladys Mackenzie and Hazel Kerr.

Shea's—Don Watson, c.; Douglas Ingram, p.; John Clough, 1st base; Clare Ingram, 2nd base; Stewart Bedford, 3rd base; Susan Atkinson, s.s.; fielders, Violet Wright, Jessie Wright and Ada Millar.

The trophy for the winning team was a monstrous watermelon, donated by Mr. John Simpson.

After the ball game both schools sought shelter and after a short sing-song were dismissed.

Y. P. LEAGUE HAS A SOCIAL EVENING

Good Attendance Rewards Committee President.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 26.—The weekly meeting of the Young People's League was held on Wednesday evening, with a very good attendance.

The meeting was in charge of the social vice-president, Miss Verna Barnum, and consisted of the following items:

1—A duet by Miss Evelyn Barnum and Gerald Barnum.

2—Devotional talk by Mr. Fred Barnum.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 28.—Messrs. Garnet and Thomas Kerr have been away for some time showing their fine herds of Jerseys and Ayrshires respectively.

Mr. E. Aird, principal of Castleton School, visited friends in this community on Wednesday.

The threshing machine is still chattering; most of the farmers being fell satisfied with their returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Simpson, of Burnbrae, spent Tuesday evening with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson.

Miss Louise Anderson, of Winnipeg, and Mrs. John Garbutt, of Port Arthur, were called home recently on account of the illness of their father, who passed away on Wednesday evening.

The late Mr. Anderson was a prominent member of the Methodist Church, and took an artive part in all of its departments.

The remains were laid to rest on Friday afternoon in Zion Cemetery, in the community in which he had spent some 83 years.

BIG DECREASE IN POTATO CROP

Few of Small Size in Hills—Evidence of Rot Abounds.

FROST NIPPED PLANTS.

OMEMEE, Sept. 26.—The potato crop in this vicinity will be very much decreased from that of last year, according to acreage. The blight, which befell them, before maturity, is plainly evidenced by the numerous small ones. The late crops are not all dug yet, but many are commencing to dig them, and find much rot. One resident relates digging three hills to find only one sound potato.

The white frost this week nipped the tomato vines, beet tops and other tender plants, and these vegetables which in most places have been an excellent crop are being gathered in.

Owing to the hot dry weather the early corn for table use was a scarcity. Some stalks were seen to yield not more than two cobs. The field corn, however, has stretched up rapidly during the last few weeks, and many fields, which at one time looked hopeless are now very promising.

Owing to scarcity of barn room and waiting for the threshing machine, many farmers in this vicinity will suffer a heav loss, by the recent rains. One farmer has about 50 acres of oats, in the stook; another 30 acres of peas, and many more fields are out, all of which will be a total loss, as the grain is growing and turning black. One resident had a stack of oats in the sheaf which have produced such a growth as to put a green blanket over it, and still another farmer was seen throwing his oats out of the stook and setting fire to them.

Many acres of fall wheat have been sowed, and the acreage is reported to be larger than that this year. The price has slightly decreased having fallen from $1.25 to $1.16 per bushel.

The harvest apples have been a wonderful crop and the early fall varieties such as MacIntosh Reds and Wealthys are also abundant.

CONSERVATIVE WORKERS RALLY AROUND THEIR STANDARDBEARER

Meeting on Saturday in Mr. Peck's Rooms Drew Large Attendance

CAMPAIGN SPEECHES

Candidate and Other Leaders Addressed Electors on Various Policies.

E. A. Peck's committee rooms in the Opera House Block were a hive of activity on Saturday night at the first rally of the Conservative party since the nomination meeting on Wednesday. Both the small room downstairs and the large hall on the second floor were filled with voters and workers, and the addresses made by Mr. Peck and other leaders of the party were punctuated with cheers and applause. V. J. McElderry, president of the Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association, was chairman.

Mr. Peck thanked those who had helped in the work already done and reminded them and the others present that there was still a great deal of work, and that it was necessary for everybody who had the interest of the country at heart to work that victory might be attained. He then referred to Hon. Mr. Gordon's address at the Liberal convention and made answer to some of the arguments presented there.

"We have the statement of Mr. Gordon that the country is prosperous," said Mr. Peck. In reply, he asserted that the country is depressed, that industries are laboring under great difficulties and that men are not getting enough work to enable them to live comfortably. He said that he was not a pessimist, as he was confident that Canada had the resources and could recover from the ill-treatment or lack of treatment she had received from the King Government. He urged the return of a government that would consider carefully the condition of the country and try to find the best remedy for the conditions existing.

He quoted from a booklet issued by the Minister of Trade and Commerce on the balance of trade in Canada. One item to which he drew attention was that of settlers' effect, shown among Canada's imports. He said that these figures indicated Canada's loss of population and that a large movement was shown as in most cases a man leaving the country would not take a great many of his goods and chattels with him. In 1922 the figures were over $5,000,000, in 1923 they were $6,000,000, and in 1924 they had risen to $9,846,000, which, said Mr. Peck showed a enormous increase in the number of families leaving the country. It is possible, asked Mr. Peck, that Mr. Gordon is right when he says that these people have gone only for high wages? Rather, they are driven to go because they have no opportunity of gaining employment. He told of a man who had come to him to say good-bye, as he was going to the United States to get a job at good wages, which he had been unable to get in Peterborough. The new Minister of Immigration cannot coax such people to come back.

It is a very serious matter, said Mr. Peck, when the labor problem is not being solved, and that a man willing to work cannot get work and wages. This want of employment is due to the fact that the present administration is not giving proper protection" he said. "and it is on that point that I want to go to the people on October 29." He charged that there was no hope of getting proper protection from the King government, which claimed to be satisfied, and that there was no reason to suppose that the commission to be appointed to study the tariff would do any good.

Mr. Peck said that the industries of Canada are not sufficiently protected against the goods made in other countries, often under a low scale of wages and poor living conditions. The Canadian factories cannot compete with the low prices these countries can quote, he said, and gave a list of imports of goods that could have been made in Peterborough, such as carpets, $2,000,000; woollens, $40,000,000; machinery, $28,000,000; agricultural implements, $11,000,000. These, he said, could have been made here to the benefit of the workman and of the manufacturer.

Referring to the export of raw material from Canada, Mr. Peck said that it would be of tremendous benefit to Canada if the wheat and wood and other commodities were put through the manufacturing processes in the country. The 298 million dollars' worth of wheat sent out of Canada could have been milled here. No doubt there were difficulties in the way, but the King Government had never made any effort to have this done, said the speaker. Worse than that, three-fifths of the grain goes out through American ports, mostly going through Buffalo and New York, whereas it could go out through Montreal and the Maritime ports, said Mr. Peck.

Mr. McElderry said that Mr. Gordon had gone through a great deal of calculation to show that the figures on Canada's debt that Mr. McElderry had given at the convention were $36,000,000 out. The important thing, however, said Mr. McElderry, was not the error in the amount, but was in the fact that the King Government had made no attempt to reduce the national debt. Mr. Gordon had also said that it would be all right to put a tariff on to protect the natural products of Canada, but not on others, but Mr. McElderry pointed out that Great Britain had built up a great cotton industry, while she had protection, and the United States had built up a great rubber industry under protection, although neither of these was a natural product of the country. Tariff is a question of wages, said the speaker, and the high wages paid in the United States are due to the protection given the wage earners. It had been said that the tariff was for the rich men, and that under a protective tariff the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, but he called attention to the rise of such men as Carnegie, Schwab, or Ford, because there had been opportunities for them under protection.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., said that conditions are not good and that they haven't been good. This he knew, because a number of people had come to him to tell him of good jobs obtained in the United States after periods of unemployment here. With a government in power that would give protection to industry and create work, the people would come back. He quoted a newspaper headline that said Mr. Gordon was opposed to a tariff to foster freak industries, and asked if such plants as the Canadian General and the Canadian Woollens were freak industries. He said that he considered that a man who put his capital into a company was entitled to a chance to get a fair return on his money.

Referring to a statement that the automobile companies were not buying Raybestos brake lining, he asked why they should, when under the present tariff they were able to buy brake linings from the United States at a lower price than the Raybestos Company was able to quote. Peterborough, he said, depends upon her industries, and must have protection. Then the workmen would have full pay envelopes and the merchants would prosper with them. A tariff, he said, built up the United States, and with a proper tariff Canada will face prosperity. Everyone should get on the list and vote for Mr. Peck, and help to bring this about. There was no doubt, he said, that the King Government was done.

William Boulton spoke on the immigration policy. He said that he had read in the first part of Mr. Gordon's speech that the reason that so few immigrants were coming to Canada was because 10,000,000 had been killed in the war, and in the last part of the speech he had read that Mr. Gordon would bring in immigrants from northern Europe to fill up the waste parts of Canada. Where, if they were all killed off, is Mr. Gordon going to get them? he asked.

Mr. Boulton said that three years ago he had tried to rent a house and had had to take one of two, while to-night he had read the advertisements in The Examiner of 29 for rent. There would be, he said, a different condition in 1926, with a Conservative Government in power.

J. F. Strickland warned those present that the election would not be won by sitting still and patting themselves on the back. He said that Mr. Gordon had been a spoiled child of political fortune. He had won a five-cornered fight in 1921, but he would find that this campaign would be different, as it would be one of aggression. It had been amazing, said Mr. Strickland, to see the amount of indifference and the casual view taken of the election in 1921. Interest is now at fever heat over this election.

Referring to Mr. Gordon's pledges in 1921, Mr. Strickland said that Mr. Gordon had said then that he was a broader protectionist than Mr. Meighen, but that his actions had not proved him to be so. He had also promised to resign if the complaints of the war veterans were not remedied, but he had not done so. Now he was having a lot of work done on the Trent Canal just before the election. His efforts had been entirely directed to the glorification of G. N. Gordon.

C. H. Ackerman said that the election could be won if everybody took a hand in the work to be done. He said that it was necessary for the honor of Peterborough that Mr. Peck should be elected.

T. D. Johnston, M.P.P. for East Peterborough, said that the farmers were not in as dire straits as their city brethren, because their work consisted in putting the grain in the soil and praying for rain and a bad crop in the United States, which they had been granted this year. He was inclined to think that the inclusion of Vincent Massey in the cabinet would be hard to explain, although later Mr. McElderry stated that it made little difference to Mr. Massey whether farm implements were made in Canada or in Batavia, New York, as he had a large interest in factories in both places.

Roland Denne was the last speaker of the evening. He called on all those present to work hard for the election of Mr. Peck, and repeated the slogan of Peck, Protection and Prosperity for Peterborough, which had won favor with the party workers present. The meeting was closed with three cheers for Mr. Peck.

The whole town was a blaze of glorious autumnal colors. It was Saturday! It was Saturday! Which in that tone of voice, if said by Little John of the Merry Men of Greenwood, could mean almost anything which means Happiness.

Sure enough, the sun was shining warm and clear. Not a sign of a cloud. Somebody had a bonfire of leaves, over on some other street, for the smell of the happy smoke, made the tang in the air just that much more happy.

"Say, Jimmy," said Little John, as he joined Jimmy Britton on the way over to the Greenwood, "don't you hope it is as fine a day as this on Thanksgiving?"

No answer.

"What's the matter Jimmy?" continued Little John.

"If you don't stop calling me Jimmy on Saturdays, and remember that I am Friar Tuck of the Robin Hood band of Merry Men of the Greenwood, I'll get Robin Hood to change your name to some terrible combination like Forget-me-not Bonter, so remember that," growled Jimmy.

"Oh, what a jovial, jolly comical cut up of a Friar you are," said Little John, "you had better brighten like the day, and grin a little, or your name will be the Frowning Friar."

And so the conversation went on, until they reached Wess Johnson's, only to find that the other boys had been there and had become tired waiting and Wess and the rest were probably over in the woods.

It did not take Don and Jimmy long to get through the yard, over the rail fence and into the Greenwood. Fortunately, they could hear the other Merry Men making merry over somebody who had slipped and fallen into the stream. It was Big Bill Davis. He had tried to show them all how the rope walker walked over Niagara Falls, when a dead-fall birch, lying across the creek had put the thought in his mind. He made a great actor, until about the middle of the stream was beneath him, when the tree gave way, just as though it had been punk, or chocolate, or dried mud.

There was Big Bill, with all his clothes off, standing before a nice bonfire, getting warmed and dried, and he looked so cold, that any idea the boys had had of trying the swimming pool, vanished without a trace.

"I tell you fellows—I mean you Merry Men—that the sun is clear and bright, but the air is cool in these woods, when a fellow gets wet," said Big Bill. "Here, you, Little John, get a little hustle on and hold those pants where the fire will dry them, what do you think? Do you think I want the seat burned off them?"

Big Bill held the floor and intended to hold it, until he got dressed and dried and warmed and had time to examine that good-looking dead birch, to see how it could look so solid and be so rotten. "I tell you, boys—I mean Merry Men—that people who dress fine, are not always so fine when you get to know them."

And so it proved with the dead tree bridge. It had looked strong but it was punk inside, which sort of saved Big Bill's face, and kept the boys from kidding him, even though it had fooled him, for the simple reason that Wess was the only one who knew before hand that it was rotten and told them so, but "seeing is believing" and that settled it then, but, now, Big Bill says that Wess was right when he said you can look right at some things and have your eyes tell you things that you can't believe.

"What made that birch so rotten? We have a birch pole at our house, very old, too, and here this tree looks young and fine with its white bark, and it was punk," said Ned-the-Red.

Robin Hood decided it was time to clear the air, so he began: "I don't believe that any of the Merry Men of the Greenwood Forest centuries ago, would have been fooled by looking at something and not seeing it, or not knowing what was written on it. That bark fairly yelled a warning, but it was bark and white, and that is all you could read. You have to go to school in the woods, that's what is the matter with you Merry Men. I thought the tide at the ocean was still coming in, just because the waves looked like it, but I know that the waves may be coming in but the tide going out, for it ran out with my boat and we had an awful time, so you Men remember next time, that birch, and in fact most trees, rot very fast when they die and the bark is left on them. Father made a little pig pen years ago, out of some spruce logs, but he left the bark on, and there is nothing left of it now, for the damp and the bugs stayed under the bark and made mush out of those nice logs. Take a look at our old tool house. Mother says that it was the first home she and Daddy had. It is made of small size pine logs. First it was their home, then, when they got the new house, it became the bacon-curing house, or smoke house, then it finally was moved for the third time and became the tool house and it is just as good as new, because the logs were peeled and they dried hard and did not rot. So, all you Merry Men must go and have a look at it."

And the Merry Men went to the tool house, to see how nice and smooth and well preserved the logs were.

Now, it so happened that they missed the warm fire and the shelter in the woods. They had put the fire out before leaving, so why go back? The day was wonderful, but a stray cloud obscured the sun for a brief time and a gust of cool wind made the inside of the tool-house, with its nice big front window, seem so cosy. Then, just to add to the attractiveness of the little log house, Charlie Knight brought some coloured leaves with him and samples of different evergreens, and stuck them up around the walls, and Wess, who felt cool himself, lighted a little fire in the stone fireplace, a novelty for that corner, for it had not seen a fire for many years. The tools were piled in a corner and the boys all talking at once about how nice it was, how nice it would be in the winter and such like.

Somebody, Little John claims it was himself, suggested to Robin Hood that he ask his father if they might use it. Wess was being tempted to do so, when his mother burst open the door with a cry of half alarm. "What ever are you boys doing? I thought the dear old place was burning up." And before she knew it, Mrs. Johnson was inside, sitting before the tiny fire on the flat stone floor of the fireplace, talking about bears and bees and honey and maple sap and baked apples and what a lot of fun the boys could have in the tool house if they owned it.

If all the offers to shovel snow and bring in wood and take eggs to market, in return for the tool house, could be added together, Wess Johnson would never have to do any work or chores at all, and to all this coaxing, Mrs. Johnson said she would see what Mr. Johnson thought about it. And before the boys went home, Robin Hood promised to do his best to get the tool house for the Merry Men of the Greenwood.

BREAKERS AHEAD

By Eleanor Hope

The danger signal! But don't be frightened! The craft of life is strong enough to brave any dangers provided Love is there to help and guide you. Love dances and sports in the waves gleefully when you steer your craft through the troubled waters of Life. But be sure you keep Love close to you. For he will strengthen and guide you that you will ride the crest of the breakers safely to the smooth, untroubled waters of Happiness.

YOUR GARDEN

PLANTING BULBS

What true gardener does not go into ecstacies in the spring over the bright colors of the bulbs. How gay they seem, and attractive. To have the home grounds thus adorned in the spring one must plan now to put in the necessary quantity of bulbs. In order that they may be properly established before winter, they should be planted as soon as they can be obtained. This early planting allows them to make a satisfactory root growth, so that they can get a good start in the spring.

Bulbs may be planted in clumps in the perennial and shrubbery border naturalized under the trees or on the edge of the lawn, or may be used in formal beds. In the writer's opinion formal beds should be reduced to a minimum around the home grounds. The other or more natural treatment of planting in clumps is far better suited to average conditions and just as bright effects can be produced.

A mellow, rich, and well-drained soil is essential for success. They will not flourish in wet, heavy soils. No fresh manure should come in contact with the bulbs, so that only well rotted manure should be dug in below the bulbs in making the bed. That from a mushroom or old hotbed is good. Leaf mold and sand may be added, especially to heavy soils.

Distances.—In many bulb catalogues a very convenient chart showing depths and distances may be found and consulted. Bulbs the size of the crocus should be planted about four inches deep (to the base of the bulb) and of these the crocus should be placed three inches apart and the chionodoxa and snowdrop about two inches. The grape hyacinth, squill and tulip are planted to a depth between five and six inches, with the squills and grape hyacinths about three inches apart and the tulips about six inches apart. Hyacinths should be given a depth of about seven inches and six inches distance, while narcissi should go about half an inch deeper and the same distance apart. Aim to place the bulbs at the same depth or they will not bloom evenly. This is especially important in formal beds. Here the bed should be excavated to the proper depth, the bulbs placed at even distances over the bottom and then they should be covered to an even depth. Care should be taken in planting with a trowel to place the bulbs firmly on the bottom of the hole so as to avoid having them "hung" with an air space below. Such a condition will prove fatal as any roots produced on the bulb will be dried out. After planting the beds should be mulched to a depth of 4-6 inches with a layer of leaves or litter, to be taken off in the spring before growth starts. This should not be placed too early. Rather one should wait until a fairly thick crust has formed over the ground.

Lists of plants of any kind can be but suggestive and will not suit all tastes. For anyone making a start, however, and to save puzzling over the catalogues the following are recommended:—

Tulips (early or cottage)—Pottebakker (white), Belle Alliance (scarlet), Cottage Maid (pink and white), Yellow Prince, Cardinal (red), Rose Luisante (rose and white), White Swan, Kaiserkroon (yellow and red), Lematelus (pink), Prosperine (soft rose).

Darwin—Clara Butt (salmon pink), Margaret (light pink), Adriadne (fiery red), Psyche (soft rose).

Single late flowering—Elegans Alba (pure white), Caledonia (scarlet) Gesneriana Lutea (yellow).

The Darwin type of tulips are very useful. Blooming late, they are excellent for cut flowers and planting in clumps.

Narcissus—Sir Watkin, Emperor, Bicolor Empress, Horsfieldii, Von Sion, Orange and Sulphur Phoenix, Golden Spur, Poeticu (Pheasant's Eye), Poeticus ornatus, Sir Watkin, Barri Conspicuus.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

BEAUSTY DISTILLED.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

During a year there are conventions without number. Recently Chicago entertained the National Convention of Beauty Experts.

At this convention somebody presented statistics showing how much money our wives and sweethearts speed every year for cosmetics. It was stated that considerably more than two billion dollars is spent for powder, cold cream, perfumes, lipsticks and other aids of beauty and personal attraction. This sum of money equals that spent for automobiles. It is more than a quarter of the entire priceeds of the farms of America. It would pay the national debt in a few years.

Eighteen million boxes of rouge and seven million dollars' worth of hair dye were purchased to camouflage youth and health.

It is the laudable ambition of every woman to look her best. She isn't to be blamed for this. On the contrary, she is to be commended for her decent sense of self-respect.

I have no objection to cosmetics as such. They are harmless things, it may be said in general. Of course, there are certain hair dyes which are not safe to use. But most creams, powders and rouges are compounded of simple and safe ingredients.

The objection I have to cosmetics is that they are too commonly applied as a substitute for the color and clearness of skin which health guarantees. Too often they are used to cover up defects which the continuous use of soap and water would remove.

Every girl wants red lips, pink cheeks, good teeth, firm muscles, sparkling eyes, hair of lustre and a skin which is sweet to smell and pleasant to touch. She wants them as a girl and as she grows older she never gets over wanting them. When she gets past middle life she weeps if she does not retain them.

The chemists and beauty experts have done wonders. They have placed at the disposal of the fair sex boxes and tubes, jars and pencils, all the paraphernalia to imitate youth and vigor.

Simple and well-chosen food, plenty of water to drink and for bathing, sunlight and fresh air, exercise and regular habits—these are the things which will cut down the cosmetic bill. There is no color like the color of red blood showing through the transparent skin of perfect health. This color comes from no pot or tube. It is the result of the chemistry of nature, more perfect than the product of any human chemist, no matter how clever.

But if I were a girl, and didn't have what nature is willing to give, I should contribute my share to the two billions for cosmetics. And the ladies—bless their dear hearts—they will buy these anyhow.

Answers to Health Queries.

V.S. Q.—How can one reduce.

2.—What causes one to bite the nails and how can this habit be stopped?

A.—Restrict the diet in regard to sweets and starches and take plenty of exercise every day. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—This is usually due to nervousness. Try painting the nails with tincture of asafoedita. This is usually effective in breaking the habit.

ERIE WOLF IS SLAIN

After a reign of terror which extended over a fortnight and which resulted in the killing of more than a dozen sheep, numerous cattle, pigs and ducks, the animal above finally fell a victim to the guns of an organized band of riflemen, including about two hundred guns. Experts declare there is no doubt about the marauder having been a genuine wolf, although how it got at large in the Lake Erie country is a mystery. It weighed over two hundredweight, was more than six feet in length from the end of its tail to the tip of its nose, and was practically black in color with a sprinkling of grey hairs. It apparently killed for the sheer lust of slaying, as it left many of its victims untouched after bringing them down.

SECURITY PACT TO BE SIGNED LATER

German Oficials Believe Versailles Treaty Discussion Futile.

BERLIN, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press).—German official quarters do not expect that a security pact will be signed at the forthcoming conference to which Germany has been invited by the Allies, but it is believed that any arrangement which would be arrived at would have to be referred to the respective Governments and Parliaments and that a general conference will be convoked later for the purpose of formal ratification of the pact, together with other agreements concluded by the Foreign Ministers.

Informal discussions at the Foreign Office also indicate that the German officials are convinced of the futility of discussing the Versailles Treaty at the forthcoming parleys. One official declared: "We fully realise that none of the major signatories to the treaty will renounce their rights under the treaty, and, therefore, we can only hope to secure amelioration in its application."

That the Germans apparently are pleased with the impression made by Friedrich Gauss, chief legal expert of the Foreign Office, at the London conference of juridical experts, is reflected in a statement which has just been issued that the models of a security pact and arbitration treaties drafted by Dr. Gauss were adopted as the basis of future discussions.

The German note accepting the invitation of the Allies to the security conference will be despatched to Paris and London to-day. The decision to send German representatives to meet the Allied statesmen was taken at Thursday's Cabinet Council.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY MEETS A QUEER LITTLE FOREIGNER.

When Dicky walked down the path outside the cages of the Zoo he spied a queer little animal, all rolled up in a fur-like ball, hanging by its four legs on the underside of a limb of a tree.

"Now, what in the world could that be, I'd like to know?" he mused out loud.

"Did you speak to me?" laughed a merry voice, and Happy Giggles, the wee little elfin from Make-Believe Land, smiled up at Dicky from the tall grasses. "Did you speak to me, Dicky?"

"Oh, Happy Giggle!" and Dicky almost shook the wee elfin's hand off. "I wasn't speaking to you, but I was just going to wish for you. What in the world is that funny roll of fur up in that tree? I know it's some kind of an animal, but what?"

Happy Giggles smiled and blew softly on his magic whistle. The furry creature slowly unrolled and stretched out its neck. On seeing the elfin it came quickly, paw over paw, down the limb to the tip end right over Dicky's head.

"Hello, there, Mr. Sloth," laughed the elfin. "I just wanted you to know you had visitors. This is Dicky Dorn, Mr. Sloth. I don't believe Dicky has even seen a sloth before, have you, Dicky?"

Dicky shook his head and the furry creature laughed merrily.

"Then just go ahead and have a real good look," he chuckled. "I'm not much to look at, yet you'd be surprised to see how much attention I attract. You see, I spend all my life in the trees. I never even go down upon the ground for water. All the water I drink I get from the rain and the dew on the leaves."

Dicky had never seen anything like Mr. Sloth before. His hair was coarse and wiry, of a dull color that reminded Dicky of old dead grasses. His legs were joined to his body in such a way that they looked deformed, and his claws were so long Dicky was almost afraid of them.

"I haven't any cutting teeth or soles on my feet," laughed Mr. Sloth. "When I sleep I roll all up in a ball, hanging to the limb back downward. In fact, that's the way I walk—always back downward, going paw over paw on the underside of the limb. Why, do you know, I don't believe I could walk the way you call right side up for anything. It's much easier walking the way I do. Some folks think I look like a monkey, but monkeys have tails, and I haven't any tail."

"You're not an American, are you?" queried Dicky.

"Goodness, no," laughed Mr. Sloth. "They brought me to this Zoo from my native home in South America. I believe they say I have no relatives in this part of the country. Well, if you'll excuse me, I'll go and finish my nap," and nodding his funny head he scooted away down the branch to a shady spot near the trunk of the tree, and rolling himself in a ball, soon went sound asleep.

"Imagine eating and sleeping and climbing around upside down all the time! Why, I couldn't stand on my head for even a minute, and he lives that way," laughed Dicky to Happy Giggles.

"We look upside down to him," said the little elf. "He wouldn't know what to do if you stood him on his feet."

But when Dicky turned around to see just how Mr. Sloth was hanging, Happy Giggles disappeared. So, humming to himself, Dicky went down the path, hurrying home to tell his playmates about this queer friend he had just met.

In the independent State of Nepal, which is situated on the north-eastern frontier of India, there are very few of the advantages of civilization, and by the same token the inhabitants are free from its disadvantages.

For the very good reason that strong, brown Mongolian men and women come from the foothills of Thibet to carry the burdens on their backs or in baskets at the end of a pole.

Men Carry the Burdens.

Over the mountain passes, down dangerous descents, up the rockiest of narrow paths these burden-bearers go with their tremendous loads.

Without any evidence of weariness or of bad humor the coolies go all day long transporting loads of a hundred pounds and more. After the long journey they seem entirely satisfied when they receive fifty or sixty cents in the coin of India.

Food supplies, bundles of clothing, furniture, and even pianos are carried by these coolies.

One might surmise that all the inhabitants of Nepal are engaged in the task of carrying freight across the hills. But in the valley of Nepal, where every smallest spot is in cultivation, the men, women and children plant, cultivate and harvest the rice crops as well as other grains, vegetables and fruit. It would seem that the rest of the peasant class are engaged in soldiering.

Anyway, it takes very little of this world's goods to supply the simple needs of these Gurkhas, Newars and Bhutias.

The Government, although a monarchy, is a just one. The people are cheerful folks with soft voices and a love for color and harmony.

The relation with other countries is rather friendly, notwithstanding the fact that there are some portions of Nepal which are not open to outsiders and special permits must be secured before journeys can be made into the interior.

In the city there are evidences of ancient and modern civilization. During the festivals, which are a part of Nepal metropolitan life, the displays approach grandeur and the militia is always given an opportunity to parade in full regalia.

Even the coolies join in the festivities and disport themselves as though there were no burdens waiting to be borne across the mountain passes.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29.

A routine day is forecast from the dominant planetary operations, which are unimportant. It is suggested that care be exercised to guard against deception and fraud, especially in connection with new enterprises. All contracts and agreements should be carefully scrutinized for loopholes, for trickery or misrepresentation. Change may bring benefits if sufficiently safeguarded and the money be judiciously handled.

Those whose birthday it is may not look for a very important year, although they should be on the alert against all manner of fraud, misrepresentation and treachery. Change may be of benefit if properly considered, but new ventures are read as of great hazard. A child born on this day may be fairly clever, but it is likely to have a rather colorless career unless the hour of its birth indicates otherwise.

Devonport, England, home town of the Arctic explorer Captain Scott, has unveiled a memorial in his honor and that of his four companions who perished in the 1912 expedition.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

Silver Brocade and Cornflower Blue Satin for Pyjamas.

The ever present need of a comfortable costume for lounging finds inspiration here from the Orient. The jaquette, cut to flare so that it has a fascinating swing, is of maize yellowwith sleeves of silver brocade. Cornflower blue satin makes the trousers, with the mate of maize coming in at the bottom in a wide band. The brocaded panel at the front extends far enough under the cornflower-blue lapels to allow the jaquette to sway a little as one walks.

Hand sewing is again fashionable. To trimmed with real lace or the finest embroidery. Of course, all the wedding lingerie is handmade; that is, all that is not made of silk, and even that has hand stitchery to add to its daintiness.

Wools were never more fascinating in texture and color than they are to-day. All manner of throws and Afghans are being made, knitted, crocheted, embroidered on canvas and in hooked patterns on a coarse crash material.

Also the old crewel work is being revived and the museums are being searched for old patterns. The old patterns run principally to flower motifs, some in single flowers, some in baskets and some in the old-fashioned wreaths.

A fad in table linens is to have them embroidered to match the colors and designs of the pottery used. In the lovely Copenhagen ware we get floral designs that are charming done on the linens. In the Dutch ware we get the quaint figures and scenes that are characteristic and are done in the old blues and browns.

An odd set was recently seen with thistles embroidered on ecru linen with an applied hem of fine Scotch plaid gingham in the Campbell clan colors. Scotch pottery was used with the linens. Another charming set was white linen embroidered in green shamrocks, and the dainty Belleek ware china was used with it. There is a wide field in this sort of decorative table work and the hand work adds a charming color touch.

SECRETS OF CHARM
— By Lucrezia Bori —

MAKING HANDS ATTRACTIVE.

Ways to keep the hands white and soft are means of constant concern to the housekeeper.

Because it is fairly impossible to work with your hands throughout the day without putting them in hot and cold water and using them for rough scrubbing and polishing, you must do all you can to counteract these beauty-destroying effects when you have finished your work.

Of course, I recommend rubber gloves strongly, for they protect the housewife's hands as nothing else can. When you wash dishes, if you will make a habit of using rubber gloves and a dish mop, you can protect your hands to a large degree from the ill effects of hot water, grease and strong soap.

Also when you sweep and dust and wash woodwork and do various other such odd jobs about the house, you should wear gloves as much as possible. The best kind to procure is an old, worn pair of gloves, several sizes too large for you. Surely you can find such a pair, perhaps a discarded pair worn by some male member of your household.

Keep them in convenient drawers about the house, so you can slip them on at a moment's notice without losing any time looking for them.

Now, when your hands do become rough and red from constant use, you will find nothing better to restore them to their former whiteness than plain, unadulterated glycerine. Procure from your druggist a small bottle of glycerine. Keep it handy by the wash basin and proceed as follows:

Wash your hands in warm water with good soap. Rinse them in a second bowl of clear warm water. Then rub them almost dry with a soft towel. Do not dry them thoroughly, as the glycerine you are going to apply will smart less if your hands are not altogether dry.

Now tip the bottle so that you get a good amount of the glycerine in the palm of your hand. Then rub it thoroughly into both hands, rubbing them together as briskly as you can until the glycerine has had a chance to penetrate every pore. Your hands will become thoroughly dry after a few seconds of this brisk rubbing and you will be delighted to find that their former soft whiteness is returning.

Keep this treatment up every day. Never fail to apply the glycerine when you wash your hands after a siege of especially hard work with them and the results will be most gratifying.

Instead of going about with rough, scaly hands of which you are ashamed, you will keep your hands in such a condition that you will not mind having them scrutinized at any time. I recommended this beauty treatment to a housewife who said she was literally ashamed to shake hands with anyone and she was highly pleased with the results.

ADVICE TO GIRLS
— By Annie Laurie —

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

There is one thing that I want real bad, and that is an opal ring. People tell me to get any other but that, because it brings bad luck. I'm not superstitious, but so many have told me that I am perplexed. Kindly tell me what stone is for the month of June. Thank you. PERPLEXED.

PERPLEXED: That's an old superstition, my dear, and one which, personally, I regard as silly. By all means get an opal ring if you want it. Your luck is mostly of your own making, anyhow, and how can such a beautiful thing as an opal bring any bad luck?

The pearl is regarded as the birthstone for June.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen. They tell me I am good-looking. I have been keeping company with a fellow for six months. He is two years my senior. I like him very much. He is very good to me and would do anything for me. I think he really loves me. He has proposed to me. Should I say yes or no? Do you think I would be sorry for tying myself down too young.

TRIXY.

TRIXY: Your letter reminds me of the gentleman who was given a certain book to review, and, knowing the author, and wishing to let him down easily, although he did not like the book, he said: "This book will appeal greatly to the type of person who admires this sort of literature." Which means that if you are the sort of young thing that would make a good wife at nineteen years of age, you had better marry the young man. You do not say anything about love. If you think you are not in love with him, if you merely like him, you had better let him pass along and wait for someone else. However, if you are just looking for a permanent meal ticket and a roof free, and he has all the earmarks of a good provider, I would advise you to grab him. Good men are scarce.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy seventeen years of age. I met a girl four months ago who is about two years my senior. I think a lot of her. How should a fellow in my position go about to win him, how would she like me to go about it?

WONDERING.

WONDERING: At seventeen years of age, you should not be trying to win any girl, unless you are the sort of young man who has found the one girl and knows that no one else will do. That is hardly likely. I don't want to put a crack in love's young dream, but it is a matter of fact that the love of seventeen is rarely the love of twenty-seven. So why not just be as friendly as possible to the young lady, until you find out if you are really nursing a "grande passion," or merely one of those experimental ventures in romance which fall to the lot of the seventeen-year old and progress along life's path easy for many years thereafter. You know, Romeo and Juliet were immortal lovers at a very early age, but an unkind if truthful commentator on their case makes the statement that their creator, Shakespeare, did the only logical thing when he killed them both off, because they would inevitably have fallen out of love with each other in a few months' time and thus have spoiled one of the prettiest dramas in all history.

ARROW-SHY—AND WHY!
By Juanita Hamel

She sees the shadow on the wall of the two hearts on the arrow—and she's scared to death! Turning to run she sees Dan Cupid right beside her and she's more frightened than ever. Why? She's arrow-shy! Afraid that when her heart and someone else's are pierced with the same arrow from Love's quiver that all her good times will stop. For when Love's arrow finds its mark she has to stop the game of hearts she has been playing and settle down in earnest. And she's afraid! But Love will overcome all her fears and she'll regret that she didn't find him sooner, and be so ashamed that she ever was Arrow-Shy!

Stranger Than Fiction

IN QUEST OF A PONY.

BY M. B. LEVICK.

If it wasn't a dog they wanted it would be white mice or a chickabiddy hen, or something else. One of the children would always be wanting something of the kind, that being the way of children. Then the youngest of the four began pestering the family for a pony.

The head of the family saw in his mind's eye a little advertisement. It would be in a corner of the paper at the country seat: "Wanted—A gentle pony, good disposition, for child." And the printer would put after it his marks that nobody else could interpret: "3t-6-15-*"

It would be a simple little advertisement to please a child. Maybe a nice pony would come from it, but nothing else. Had he thought of it he would have said life would go on for him just as it had before, with the four children all snug and the home prospering, except that after a while the children would have to be watched to see that they curried the pony and fed it properly.

A thousand miles away from Western Pennsylvania and its possible ponies for a good child, an expert machinist prodded with a three-foot screwdriver at the intricacies of a locomotive. "That'll do," he said, and presently he watched the locomotive roll along the thin steel lines that bound Wisconsin with Pennsylvania. He knew nothing of ponies, and had he seen the advertisement he would have said it was nothing in his life

Before you decide to advertise for a pony there is a great deal to be said, even if you are a stepfather who is proud and happy to make such a gift. You say first, "Well, now, how many gears do you want on this pony?" And you do not admit the argument when the child answers, "Aw, how can a pony have gears!"

Then you say, "Well, maybe we'll think about it when the persimmons are ripe." And the child, after a moment's silent counting of fingers, month by month, protests. Why, the persimmons on the tree down the road are as green as cucumbers; they'd just make your mouth pucker up tight.

You ask how a pony could be managed at the square in Huntingdon; there used to be hitching-posts there, long ago, but now you couldn't get near them for the autos. That brings more wheedling assurances. Sure, the children say, they will be ever so careful, all the time.

So they go together to put in the advertisement. It is like a holiday. A youngster who is going to get a pony has a right to bubble over. The head of the family watches with amused pride. He wonders how things would be if they were his flesh and blood instead of his stepchildren. Perhaps he wonders about his first wife. She is undoubtedly dead. Would she have stayed at home if they had had children? Then he would not have these stepchildren; he would not be putting in the advertisement.

He thinks of distant regions where he searched for his first wife and of the twenty years since she left. But what is the use of wondering what may have happened in twenty years?

The advertisement is set in type, then goes forth: "Wanted—A gentle pony." The days pass. The children ask, "Isn't there a pony yet?" It seems to them that this miraculous pony must be grazing uncaught on the green hills of China or some other country very far away.

At last the stepfather says, "Well, maybe. We can't tell till we see it, you know; but this letter sounds pretty good." He shows them an answer that the mail has brought. It comes from over in the next township.

The stepfather goes to see the pony. On the way to the next township he speculates on which of many possible names the children will pick out for it, and how they will decide among themselves. He thinks of the children and of their mother, his wife, and perhaps he thinks again of his first wife, who must be dead, and how he searched for her in different parts of the country and never even found why she had left his home after they had lived nine years together.

The road along which he travels to the next township parallels a road that leads hundreds of miles from Wisconsin, and on that road also a man travels.

The stepfather finds the house of the woman who wrote the letter. He stamps a little at the front door before he knocks. He hears steps. The door opens.

The woman and the man stare at each other. She has gray in her hair now, but he does not see the grayness. He has wrinkles in his face, but she sees only the face of the man of twenty years ago. The thought of his second wife comes to him like a blow, for in the woman who owns the pony he has recognized his first wife.

She speaks, pointing past him.

"My husband is at the gate," she says.

The stepfather's suit for the annulment of his second marriage is set for trial at Huntingdon, Pa., on July 8. He is Charles H. Chilcote. His first wife disappeared without explanation in 1905, after nine years. In 1917 Chilcote married Mazie McMullin, mother of four children. In 1907, it is alleged, his first wife married William Howard at Pittsburgh, giving her maiden name and saying nothing of her first marriage. Howard became a railroad machinist at Milwaukee and later settled his wife near her former home in Pennsylvania, visiting her twice a year. Though living close to each other Chilcote and his wife of twenty years ago did not meet till she answered his advertisement for a pony. His suit to annul his second marriage is opposed by his second wife, who says their prosperity is due to joint efforts. She maintains that only the first wife could sue for annulment, and says she became unwittingly a party to this amazing tangle only because Chilcote told her his first wife was dead.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

The Boys' Band of Peterborough, under the leadership of Commandant Smith, came to Campbellford Saturday afternoon to hold special musical meetings for Capt. and Mrs. Stevens. They held an open air concert at the Montreal Bank corner in the afternoon and a concert at night in the Army citadel. The boys all are excellent players, and special mention should be made of the little six year old son of Stg. Major Brookes, who handles the kettle drum so well. Two concertina solos by Mr. Edmundson were well given. The band held a special meeting in the Regent Theatre Sunday afternoon and at eight o'clock in the Army citadel. Capt. and Mrs. Stevens are to be congratulated on giving the people of Campbellford such a musical treat.

No irritation for baby's skin

Do this and keep his clothing soft, pure and comfortable

Nothing is so sensitive as baby's skin! Even the slightest roughness in his diapers, shirts and bands will inflame and irritate it.

Much trouble is directly due to washing diapers with harsh soap—soap containing free alkali. The alkali clings to the little garments in the form of a fine, white powder—almost impossible to rinse out. This causes "diaper rash."

To save baby's skin, use Lux for washing all his clothes. It is the mildest, purest, gentlest cleanser in the world. Lux contains no free alkali, and the pure suds rinse out completely. Lux keeps baby's garments soft, clean, comfortable and safe!

Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto.

How to wash diapers

Remove solid matter at once and soak diapers in cold water. Whisk two tablespoonfuls of Lux into thick suds in a tub of very hot water. Let diapers soak a few moments, then dip up and down, pressing suds repeatedly through them. Rinse thoroughly in three waters.

QUAKER OATS WON PECK CUP FROM DE LAVAL

Donor Presented Trophy to the Winners of 3 to 2 Match.

DE LAVAL UNLUCKY

One Each First Half—Quakers Added Two and De Laval One.

Splendid weather auspices prevailed on Saturday afternoon for the Peck Cup tie between the DeLaval and the Quaker Oats at Nicholls Oval before a fair attendance. This ninety minute tussle went in favor of the Quaker Oats by the score of 3 goals to 2 in a well contested match that was full of excitement.

Mr. Peck Presented Cup.

At the close of the game three cheers were given to each team and Mr. Peck, who presented the trophy to the soccer code in 1912, was present to hand it over to the winners—Quaker Oats. In a few well-chosen words he complimented the two elevens for such an exhibition of clean and fast soccer and asked James Scott, captain of Quaker Oats, to accepth it for the season 1925. The receiver replied in a very reminiscent mood of how he presented the cup last year and wished to win it this season,, which had come true. He hoped that they would again win it next season, so as to repeat Canadian Woollens' achievement of the last two.

De Laval Dangerous.

Both elevens were at full strength. De Laval won the toss to compel Quaker Oats to face the sun. They were first to become dangerous through their left wing combination which culminated in Abraham sending deceiving shots that gave the Quaker custodian trouble. Then Hanson gained possession at the corner flag to give Curtis anxiety as he cleared to midfield. Scott transferred to the other end, where the judicious play of the De Laval offset the attacking forwards, as Gardner's dropping shot sailed upwards.

Altered Style of Play.

All of a sudden the Porridge boys altered their tactics, when the swinging passes held sway as the right wing and left wing mastered the situation to De Laval's cost. Bob Willshaw lifted over into the goal when Gardner opened the scoring.

Two Minute Equalizer.

No sooner was the ball set a-rolling again when Lindsay and Evens broke away to the Quakers' area. The outside man wasted no time as he centered into a mass of players in the goal, where Abraham breasted through the equalizer in the next two minutes. Both again on an even footing, resulted in the teams renewing with greater energy to gain the lead. In this respect, Dyer gained the sphere in midfield. He made tracks for goal, with the Quakers full backs in pursuit. Honor gave him the necessary bump as he made progress, but Jim Willshaw kicked the ball a corner when he was in the act of shooting about three yards out. The Quaker forwards retaliated with vim to Frick's goal, where Ward popped up many a time to check them very closely; also giving his full backs the opportunity of a free kick. Thereafter, exciting incidents took place in the vicinity of both goals without anything tangible accruing to either side, though Quakers' fortress was on many occasions saved only by the good work of William Curtis in goal, as Dyer tested him with all kinds of shots. The interval arriving with the score: De Laval 1, Quakers 1.

Half Time.

On resuming, the De Laval made play interesting around the Quakers' custodian, who was picking up and stopping shots from all angles. Smith dropped back to help his team-mates and when he tackled Pearson with the ball, the latter was knocked hors-de-combat for a long period. The De Laval were now playing with ten men as the injured man retired from the field of play to receive the trainer's attention, but resumed ten minutes later. The throw-up worked out to the Quakers' advantage as Williams initiated a movement on the left which Willshaw placed against Frost for an unsuccessful flag kick.

Called Offsides, But a Goal."

From the resulting goal kick, J. Willshaw placed Smith in possession, who drew the defence close upon him. But he slipped the ball to H. Curtis, who sent across to his left wing man. Quick as a flash, Willshaw, with a right foot drive, hit the upright but the ball came back against Hensby's head to go through. Frost claimed offsides decision, but the referee drew his attention to the fact that both his right and left half backs had retired back to make the attacking forwards in legal positions.

Penalty Missed.

Another raid brought the Quakers a penalty kick, which H. Curtis failed to convert, with a low grounder, that Frick pounced upon to divert around the post, for a fruitless corner.

De Laval Unlucky.

For a time there was little of interest to note until the De Laval came into the picture with raid after raid that brought forth no success. Candidly speaking, the De Laval forwards were more dangerous around goal, and Dyer tried various efforts to penetrate Curtis' citadel, but the wee fellow" between the sticks was in an unbeatable mood. On one occasion, the De Laval forwards all had a try at goal, but all they did receive was conceded corner kicks that went a-begging. At this point, Scott relieved the pressure, when he [illegible] his right half—Logan—who passed forward. Gardner and Ward both tackled for the ball, but instead received the walking orders" for the rest of the period. After Curtis had twice easily accounted for shots, the De Laval attack being more in a dominating attitude which left the reliable backs—J. Willshaw and Honor—the frustrating masters.

Logan's First Goal.

Another spasm in front of goal at the De Laval goal proved that their defence lacked first-time clearances which proved costly, as they gave away a corner kick that Willshaw placed in dead centre, De Laval players headed outside the bunch o W. Logan's foot who, made no mistake as he placed the ball far out of Frick's reach for number three.

Dyer's Well-Timed Goal.

After this success in favor of the Quakers, they became dilatory, but the De Laval was otherwise, when the Lindsay and Evens combination went clean through to give Dyer the credit of scoring with a well-timed shot inside the upright, and Curtis was a fraction late. A foul against Quakers let Hensby have a pot shot at W. Curtis. In the remaining minutes, the De Laval were the dominating team, but thanks must be given to Logan, Scott and Hepburn, who were the mainstay of their team which aided a faultless defence. Where the De Laval lost was in their half-backs, but they have a smooth forward line, with an erratic defence. Quaker Oats 3, De Laval 2.

Goal scorers—Quakers: Gardner, Willshaw and Logan. De Laval: Abraham and Dyer.

The Teams.

De Laval—Frick, goal; Frost and Hensby, backs; Smith, Ward and Harvey, half backs; Lindsay, Evens, Dyer, Abraham and Hanson, forwards.

NEW YORK, September 28. — Canadian Press. — Detroit defeated the New York Yankees 10 to 5 in the first game of a double header despite home run wallops by Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel. The second game was called at the end of the fifth inning with the score tie, 1 to 1, on account of darkness. It was Ruth's 22nd circuit drive of the season and Meusel's 32nd. SPECTACULAR SCORES IN HAGEN'S DEFENCE

Melhorn Weakened After 27 Holes of Superhuman Golf Effort.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 (Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen, of Passadena, Fla., by playing 31 holes in 114 strokes, or 10 under 4's, and six better than par Saturday successfully defended his title as professional golf champion of the United States. He defeated William Melhorn of Chicago, 6 and 5, although the latetr was three under 4's himself.

The contest, which probably has never been equalled for spectacular scoring in the history of golf, was played over 9 nurses three and four at the Olympia Fields Country club, and was watched by some 3,000 persons, who were drenched in a heavy rain during the last five holes.

It was only near the close, after struggling against the impossible for 27 holes, that Melhorn weakened perceptibly under the unmerciful and persistent attacks of the former British open champion, and lost his cunning. Naturally to shoot such superhuman golf Hagen had to have some breaks of luck. But even without this assistance he probably would have scored better than par and likely would have won for he not only captured an eagle three on the first hole, which is 515 yards long, but he bagged four birdies and shot perfect golf on all the other 26 holes.

Melhorn had a few bad breaks and made a few poor shots, but he also shot an eagle on the 515 yard second hole of the third course in the afternoon, snared four birdies and was above par on only six holes, playing twenty perfectly.

Toots Ward In Kitchener; Likely To Play Next Season

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 28.—The first move in the formation of next year's O.B.A. A. inter-county team was started here yesterday, when Toots Ward, former Oshawa third baseman, arrived in the city. Warde has secured a good position here and will in all probability play third base for the Kitchener team next year.

BIG PROGRAMME NEXT SATURDAY

Picked Ladies' Team and Athletes From Toronto Major League Coming.

TO PLAY C.G.E. GIRLS

A big day of sports has been arranged for next Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds. The C.G.E. Ladies will play a team from the Major Lodies' Softball League of Sunnyside in what should be one of the most exciting games seen here this year.

Then there will be a programme of races and field events. Grace Conacher and Myrtle Cook, who were first and third in the 100 yard hurdle race at Toronto Exhibition, when Miss Conacher broke the world's record, will give an exhibition of their skill in topping the barriers. These two ladies are among Toronto's best known lady athletes, and were on the Canadian team which went overseas and made such a fine showing in the International Games at Stamford Bridge. With Kay Flanagan, another of the overseas tourists, and Pansy Davis they will comprise a relay team which will run against another fast team from the Queen City.

A new sport will be introduced to Peterborough fans. Throwing the discus and javelin has never received any attention from Peterborough athletes, male or female. Janet Allen will show her skill with the javelin and Marion Honsberger will throw the discus.

The Toronto Ladies will arrive by car about four o'clock. The game and sports should take about an hour and a half, leaving plenty of time for the fans to eat and get to the picture show. The C.G.E. management spent a lot of money in taking the girls to the C.N.E. tournament and a large turnout of fans should show them that their efforts on behalf of athletics for ladies are appreciated.

TUNNEY DETERMINED TO MEET DEMPSEY

Are Going to Make Plenty of Noise If Dempsey Prefers Wills.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 (Canadian Press)—The heavyweight championship pot started boiling over last night with the arrival here of Jack Dempsey and two of his most persistent challengers, Harry Wills, giant Negro heavyweight, and Gene Tunney, conqueror of Tom Gibbons.

Wills, accompanied by Manager Paddy Mullins, came to Chicago ostensibly to appear at the White Sox baseball park this afternoon in a benefit programme for negro soldiers who were crippled recently in an explosion of an artillery piece at Camp Grant, where a Chicago negro regiment was in training.

Dempsey arrived from the south for a conference with Floyd Fitzsimmons, owner of the boxing arena at Michigan City, Ind., in regard to a match with Wills next July 4.

Tunney, together with his manager, Billy Gibson, announced their intention of remaining here and make plenty of noise if Dempsey attempts to close a match with Wills without first giving consideration to Tunney.

U. S. INVASION IN HOCKEY CIRCLES HURTS HAMILTON

New York Moguls Have Negotiations Afoot to Purchase Tiger Ensemble.

WHAT HAPPENS NOW?

National Hockey League to Have International Flavor.

NEW YORK, September 28. — By Canadian Press.—The National Hockey League, until 1923, an organization operating solely in the eastern provinces of Canada, has extended its circuit far into the Atlantic districts of the United States, and when hockey's opening whistle is sounded, some time in the early days of this coming December, the League is more than likely to have a decided international flavor.

The far-reaching step in the League's activities was considered at a special meeting of the hockey magnates in the city on Saturday, and although final ratification must await the annual session of the N.H.L. in Montreal on October 31, it is now practically assured that New York and Pittsburgh will operate hockey teams in the circuit this winter.

But when the heads of the League sit in at the annual meeting they will also have to decide the fate of Hamilton's club in the circuit. For in making their debut into the Canadian winter sport, the moguls of New York have practically closed negotiations for the purchase of the entire Tiger playing force, at a price reported at $75,000. Opposition to the sale by Percy Thompson, of his "stormy Petrel" team of last year was overcome at the last meeting, and the deal now only awaits the seal of approval from the Montreal meeting. The "final action" requisite for the two applications and the Hamilton sale is considered merely a matter of form.

However what is to become of Hamilton's franchise in the league also awaits the decision of the annual session.

In taking the "favorable action" clause to the Tiger sale yesterday the special meeting took over Thompson's franchise, and at present Canada's "ambitious city" is without a professional hockey team.

N.H.L. LIKELY TO BE EIGHT-TEAM CIRCUIT

Announcement That New York and Pittsburgh Will Be Admitted is Expected.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press). — The National Hockey League is likely to be an eight team International circuit this season with Canada represented by five playing bodies and the U. S. by three Delegates of the existing clubs of the N. H. L. met with representatives of the prospective members in a private session here and although nothing official was announced, word trickled out from the meeting room that New York and Pittsburgh would be in the league when the schedule is opened this winter.

PETER REPEATS.

Won $2,500 Horse Breeders' Futurity in Straight Heats —Horse Broke Leg.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28 (Canadian Press).—Peter Maltby, owned by the Arden Homestead Stable of Goshen, N.Y., yesterday duplicated his victory of earlier in the week when he won the Horse Breeders' $2,500 Futurity for two-year-old trotters in straight heats.

Only four horses turned for the money in the Chamber of Commerce 2.08 trotting stake, and both heats went to Trumpet in handy fashion.

After losing the first heat of the 2.14 pace to Minnie Wallace, Myrtle Baxter won the next two heats and the race. In the second heat Mag Abbe, of the Murphy stables, was leading on the upper turn when she broke her left hind leg. The mare was shot.

The 2.09 trot went to Peter S., in straight heats.

Patrons of the Yale-Harvard football game are hopeful that good weather will prevail on November 21, when this year's clash will take place in the Harvard stadium. During the past two years the gridiron battle between the Blue and Crimson has taken place in a downpour of rain.

Watson's retirement removes from active hockey not only a star of the first magnitude, but an athlete whose personality leaves a lasting impression upon Canada's greatest game. There is no necessity for going farther with Harry Watson's valedictory.

RUSSIA SEEKING UNDERSTANDING WITH JAPAN TO ENABLE REDS TO CONTROL ASIATIC DEVELOPMENTS

Basis of Far-Reaching Co-operation Has Been Established.

SECRET TREATY?

Political and Economic Facts Are Against Such a Pact.

By FREDERICK KUH.

MOSCOW.—(By Mail to the United Press).—The basis for a far-reaching co-operation between the Soviet Union and Japan has been established.

Many "authentic" reports of a secret treaty between Moscow and Tokio have been appearing in the American press. Both the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow and the Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs assured me emphatically that these reports were false, and that no such treaty exists. But an official denial nowadays carries small weight and, if my inquiries in Moscow led me to the conclusion that a secret agreement between the Soviet and Japan is today highly improbable, this is only because political and economic facts militate against such a treaty.

Japan is not in a position to ally herself with the Soviet at the cost of Anglo-American friendship. Japan's trade makes an outlet in British-American markets imperative. Those markets would be endangered were Japan to commit herself to a Soviet alliance.

On the other hand, Japan and the Soviet have discovered a wealth of interests in common. Japan has acquired half the oil of fertile Sagahaline; the Soviet and Japan are working hand-in-glove on this coveted island. Moreover, Japanese trade is assured of immense markets in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet, in turn, is making headway in the construction of the Russo-Japanese-Chinese block as a counter-poise to the anti-Soviet tendencies in the West.

Japan is looking to the Soviet Union for the oil that lubricates the wheels of empire. Aside from Sagahaline, where the Japanese retain a firm footing, Tokio is intent upon buying large supplies of petrol from Baku. No doubt, Japan would lunge at the chance to obtain a concession in Baku.

But the forces opposed to such a consummation are overwhelmingly strong. The great oil trusts of England and America need not warn Japan against attempting to acquire the Caucasian oilfields. The very existence of the Standard oil, Sinclair, Shell and Royal Dutch Corporations is enough to prevent a Japanese concession in Baku. But no one can hinder the Soviet Government from selling the Baku products where it likes. And the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Tanaka, assured me that his Government intends to purchase large stores in Baku.

Fundamentally, however, the basis of any Russo-Japanese alliance would be military. On the Soviet side, Japan must shift for herself. But in the inexhaustible man-power of the Soviet Union, Japan clearly sees a military factor of first magnitude. Were the Soviet her ally, Japan would gain a very tangible military asset through the concentration of Red troops along the Chinese border.

Nor is this possibility as remote and far-fetched as appears at first glance. The suggestion that a considerable part of the Red army might hereafter be allocated to the Far East is being made in responsible Soviet quarters. That development is even described as a likelihood of the near future.

Oddly enough, the realization of this military strategy in the Orient depends largely upon the Security Pact and other developments in Europe.

The Soviet Government is now seeking "a reconciliation with Poland and a parallel rapprochement with France." To wrest Poland from French influence would incur France's violent hostility for the Soviet. Hence, Moscow is trying to reconcile her differences with Poland and France simultaneously and thus drive a wedge into the alleged British scheme for a Europe-wide anti-Soviet block.

Without Poland, it is believed that a European anti-Soviet alliance would be impotent. British and French troops would scarcely be sent to fight on Russian territory in any future conflict.

Poland may soon become ready to bury the hatchet with the Soviet—or at least, to bury everything but the handle. The Soviet Union has grown stronger, militarily and economically, since the Russo-Polish war of 1921, and Poland today would submit to heavy odds in any conflict with the Soviet. Accordingly, Poland is inclined to find a modus vivendi with the Soviet.

All this has a direct bearing upon the Soviet's Far Eastern policy. As soon as Moscow has come to an amicable settlement with Poland and France it is conceivable that immense units of the Red army may be released from the Western frontier and stationed in the Far East.

The effect of such a military manoeuvre upon the Soviet's relations to China and Japan, were both her allies, is obvious. Since the Soviet's military strength in the East depends upon the growth or diminution of pressure from the West, it is necessary to understand clearly what chances favor Moscow's rapprochement with France and Poland.

MOST IMPORTANT MINE DISCOVERY IN YEAR IS ROUYN

Charles Ackerman, "Ike" Waite and Tom Montgomery to Join Financial Magnates.

ORE WORTH MILLIONS

Story of Discovery Reads Like Imaginative Chapter

(By LLOYD MOORE.)

(Financial Editor of The Globe.)

Lake Dufault, Que. (via Angliers, Sept. 25.—Discovery of the Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery mine along the line between Duprat and Dufresnoy Townships, in Northwestern Quebec, constitutes undoubtedly the most important mineral find of the year in Canada. The showing is a spectacular one, that has not failed to impress conservative mining men who have looked it over.

One of the most remarkable things in connection with the Waite is the rapidity with which it has been brought along from the raw prospect stage to the point where it can claim consideration as a potential producer of some magnitude.

Like Chapter of Fiction.

The story of the discovery reads like a chapter of the most imaginative fiction. To start at the beginning, one must refer to J. H. C. Waite, christened Cecil, and irreverently dubbed "Ike." Waite was one of the first professional engineers to undertake intensive work in the Rouyn copper-gold area, during and after the rush of 1922. He secured the Powell option for Noranda Mines Limited. On his own account he has prospected over a great part of the Rouyn area, and he has been one of those who were convinced of the possibilities of the mineralized belt. He actually prospected over the country between Beaver Hill, an imposing landmark north of the Waite, and the Horne claims in May, 1923.

Fire Aided Work.

Whether the ground on which the Waite was finally discovered received attention at that time seems open to doubt. At any rate, the valley on which attention is now concentrated had a heavy overburden at that time, and it was not particularly attractive territory for a prospector.

The next incident in the sequence of events was the fire that swept eastward from the vicinity of the Ontario boundary in June, 1923, and went as far as the shores of Dufault Lake and beyond.

If it had not been for the fire that Waite mine in all probability would be undiscovered still. The ten original Waite claims escaped attention during 1923 and 1924. Waite had this ground in mind, however, and Tom Montgomery staked the claims in March, 1925. The snow was still deep on the ground then, judging by the height of the blazing along the trail. The next event of importance occurred late in May, when Montgomery noticed that the roots of an upturned tree were covered with gossan (oxidized iron pyrites). Being an experienced prospector, Montgomery realized instantly the significance of the gossan. He found two outcroppings within a few feet of the spot.

Immense Deposit Uncovered.

Thirty-five additional claims were secured on options, which have been taken up since. Stripping and trenching commenced on July 27, and within three days chalcopyrite was shown over an area of 100 by 175 feet. Surface work was continued energetically until Sept. 1, and the showing was proved to be continuous over the entire area.

This ore showing is, therefore, equivalent to a vein 10 feet wide by 1,750 feet long.

There is nothing definitely known of the strike of the ore body, but the apparent trend is northeast and southwest. All the information that could possibly be secured by surface work was obtained by the beginning of September. The question that remains unanswered is the extent of the ore to depth. A diamond drill is now on the way to the property, and it will probably be on the ground within about three weeks. Six weeks hence there should be indications of the depth of the ore. A road is almost finished, over which a diamond drill will be taken from the Rouyn Gold Pan property. Shaft-sinking equipment will be well advanced before the end of the year.

Paying Values Are Assured.

The average assay results across five-foot channels show 40 cents in gold, 2.8 ounces of silver, 17.3 per cent. of copper, and 3.6 per cent. of zinc. Specimens have been secured running as high as 27 per cent. in copper, and channel samples show up to 22 per cent copper. Estimating copper at 13 cents and zinc at 6 cents a pound, which is quite conservative, the average value of the ore is well in excess of $40 a ton. Taking the ore body already proved, which is 100 by 175 feet, the mine has a gross value of $9,332,000 for every 100 feet in depth. It is entirely a matter of depth.

On a purely hypothetical basis, assuming that the values hold up as far as the 1,000-foot level, the gross value of the ore would reach impressive figures. The interests holding the Waite are making no extravagant predictions, but they are highly optimistic. The character of the ore is similar to both the Horne ore bodies and the Amulet surface showings. The Horne ore runs higher in gold, while most of the Amulet samples show a large zinc content.

Significant Location of Properties.

The relative locations of the Horne, Amulet and Waite are significant. The "A" group of Amulet is approximately four miles northwest of the Horne, and the Waite find is about two miles beyond. From an elevation on the Amulet claims the Horne is easily discernible, while Beaver Hill, on the far side of the Waite, lies about three miles to the northwest. The three groups are almost in a direct line.

It did not take long before the Waite gained attention from scouts of mining organizations, and a number of flattering offers have been received. One "million-dollar offer" was made, and a rival company offered to make even more attractive terms. Outright sale did not receive serious consideration, however.

Hollinger Interests in Control.

N. A. Timmins, President of Hollinger Consolidated, became interested, and a deal was made whereby he secured control, leaving a substantial interest to the Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery group. Charles H. Ackerman has been associated with J. H. C. Waite for the past year. Tom Montgomery of New Liskeard was engaged in prospecting work for this group under terms by which he received an interest in any ground staked by him.

The projected railway line from O'Brien to the Noranda property passes nearby the Waite claims, so transportation difficulties are close to solution. The Waite find has served to encourage prospectors in the Rouyn area. Three important finds within three years is tolerably good progress, and the optimism of the prospecting fraternity indicates that the end is not yet.

TWO SOCCER DRAWS.

Semi-Final of Glasgow Cup is Tied Up.

GLASGOW, Sept. 28 (Canadian Press).—In the semi-final round of the Glasgow Soccer Cup today, Celtic and Rangers drew, 2 to 2, and Queen's Park and Cyde drew, 1 to 1.

HOTELKEEPERS AND DEALERS

Very often it was much below its supposed strength, as the brewers were afraid of making it above the strength permitted by law. If Premier Ferguson went to the country at present, she thought he would be badly defeated at the polls. "He has lost the dry vote and about two-thirds of the wets who were his best friends." She instanced a case in Windsor, where a large beer garden had been erected, capable of accommodating 500 customers. In that large place she saw only two men drinking 4.4.

A. T. Johnston of the Windsor Hotel described the beer as being as "rotten as the Government that introduced it." The quality was wrong and the price was wrong. The opinions of the hotel proprietors were reflected by those of the dealers who are licensed to sell the liquor. All agree that there were good sales during the first three weeks after it was placed on the market, but the demand had shrunk to very small proportions. "A good drink for a hot day" was a general description, but otherwise "a dismal failure." Several comparisons were made between 4.4 and the 2½ per cent. which were unflattering to the former. J. M. Brooks said that it had some quality, but not sufficient for the price of 10c per glass. Those who ordered it did so because they could get nothing else. He said that a man had applied for permission to make 4.4 in a brewery here, but had been refused the necessary license. This refusal was the best thing that could have happened to the man, for 4.4 had never become popular. He did not think 4.4 had stopped the making of home brew. Where in former times there was one brewery, there were now thousands, he declared.

To sum up, the general opinion of those who are competent to speak is that 4.4 has fulfilled none of the hopes entertained concerning it at the time its manufacture and sale were legalized by the Provincial Legislature.

BOURASSA OPPOSED TO ANY CONFLICTS

Unless Territory of Canada is Threatened, He Will Fight Action.

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press).—In a manifesto made public to-day, Henri Bourassa, who has accepted nomination on the Independent ticket in Labelle County for the Federal Parliament, declares he is "resolutely opposed" to any policy of action "tending to drag Canada afresh into a conflict where her territory is not directly threatened."

He adds: "The supreme duty of all true Canadians in the present hour and for years to come is to live in peace and to work for peace, to readjust our budget to diminish the public charges, to re-populate the country, to re-establish the national unity which has been severely threatened by our Imperial and International adventures."

"BLOSSOM TIME" IS NOW IN ITS FOURTH YEAR.

"Blossom Time," the world-famed musical triumph which the Messrs. Shubert will present in this city at the Grand Opera House for a two performance engagement on Saturday, Oct. 3rd, is now in its fourth year of uninterrupted success. With a record of more than two years in New York, during which time the New York public saw alternately the New York and Chicago companies and a solid year to the credit of the Chicago company in the latter city, "Blossom Time" surpasses the record of any other musical play.

During the coming season, "Blossom Time" will be seen in every city and large town in the United States. It is the most successful musical play that was ever produced and in addition to its New York and Chicago achievements holds a record of twenty-two weeks in Philadelphia.

"Blossom Time" is based on the life of Franz Schubert and has Franz Schubert's own music worked into the score. It was adapted for the American stage by Dorothy Donnelly from the German success by A. M. Willner and H. Reichert. It was staged by J. C. Huffman under the personal direction of Mr. J. J. Shubert.

AT THE ROYAL.

"CAPITAL PUNISHMENT."

A Massey Hall at Action at the Royal To-Day.

"Capital Punishment" is that rare picture which impresses every reviewer and pleases every patron that enters a theatre. Here are more recommendations:

"An absorbing picture that forms the gamut of thrills and emotion. Is sure to get a hand from any audience whether it be in Centreville or Broadway. If you can see George Hackathorne as Danny O'Connor and not wipe a furtive tear, then I must say you are a better man than I am, Gunga Din. It ranks with the best of our recent Broadway productions."—Louella O. Parsons in the American.

"The story is well told and convincing. The picture is intensely interesting. Hackathorne is excellent."—Rose Pelswick in the Evening Journal.

"The plot is ingenious and carries suspense."—E. S. Colling in the Evening Post.

"You will be delighted with "Capital Punishment." The picture seizes your interest. George Hackathorne, Elliott Dexter, Clara Bow and Mary Carr give performances that are entirely convincing."—J. S. Cohen in the Sun.

"Infinitely more than a splendid picture. It is wonderfully dramatic. It grips your heartstrings with its essentially human pathos. We advise you to go and see for yourself."—Regina Cannon in the Graphic.

"ROMOLA" MARKS A MILESTONE IN HISTORY OF MOTION PICTURES

Lillian Gish Production Surpasses All in Point of Beauty

So many motion pictures are made each year that in the grist of a year's film entertainment a production has to be superlatively good for it to stand out in bold relief. Such a production is "Romola," Lillian Gish's latest picture, which opened at the Capital Theatre today for a run of three days. "Romola," a film version of George Eliot's immortal novel, is in fact a mile-stone of film progress. It surpasses anything heretofore seen in point of beauty.

Never before have we seen such gorgeous settings, such use of shadows, such completeness of feeling for old-world grandeur, such detail in the working out of art objects. The inspiration, of course, was present in that the story was laid in the Florence of the Renaissance, but nevertheless the director, Henry King, and his corps of technical experts are deserving of all the praise one can bestow.

Has Dramatic Kick.

Just beauty, however, is only one feature of "Romola"—it has also great drama and great players to interpret it. What a cast! Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Ronald Colman, William H. Powell, Charles Lane, Herbert Grimwood and a host of others not entirely distinguishable because they are Italian actors with the usual difficult nomenclature.

The Gish sisters are together in this picture for the first time since "Orphans of the Storm," and again they show that team-work is a fine art in itself. Lillian, of course, is Romola, and Dorothy appears as Tessa, the little peasant girl who lives so happily until she fall in love with the wicked Tito, and then is swept into tragedy. Both of the girls look more radiantly beautiful than ever before, and it is a delight to see them together again.

Ronald Colman Again

Ronald Colman, who was the hero in Miss Gish's "The White Sister," again demonstrates that he is an actor of fine bearing with a nice repression that is most pleasing, and rather flattering, to the audience. William H. Powell does the villain role with real suavity, and you rather like him after all; a fascinating performance.

The story of Romola is especially adaptable for screen use, and while it might be called a costume picture, the characters are such that you have no trouble keeping their identity in mind, the chief fault with films that are laid in the period of silks and plumes. "Romola" takes place in 1492, and they didn't wear plumes then to speak of.

AT THE REGENT

TROLLEY SMASHES INTO MOTOR TRUCK.

Matt Moore miraculously escaped with his life when the trolley car he was driving crashed head on into a heavily laden motor truck that was speeding down the opposite side of the street and had just swung around describing a wide circle. He was serving as the motorman of the tram car, and was so badly bruised that he had to be taken to the hospital.

This incident took place during the filming of "How Baxter Butted In," the comedy drama that Warner Bros. have just completed.

None of the occupants of the trolley car, all motion picture players, were seriously hurt when the two conveyances jammed into each other, and with the exception of several women, who became hysterical, when the grinding, tearing noise announced the collision, everybody enjoyed the novel thrill of a genuine accident without its accompanying suffering. Examination showed that considerable damage had been done to the engine and front mudguards of the motor truck and that the impact had smashed the front platform of the trolley.

John Darrough, the chauffeur of the truck only escaped injury by jumping from his seat before the smash occurred. He admitted that he had not seen the approaching trolley when he turned his truck to make the crossing.

This scene which took place on the streets of Los Angeles, tied traffic up for about two hours, during which time a wrecking crew removed the huge truck from the tracks, cleared the wreckage and towed the disabled trolley back to the car barn. The accident might have resulted in tragedy for the twenty or thirty people in the car but for Matt Moore's quick-witted action. He immediately shut off the power that controlled the trolley and thus avoided the horrible catastrophe that was imminent.

Matt Moore's courage at the crucial moment saved the day and marked him the hero he yearned to be in "How Barter Butted In."

The smash-up with the motor-truck is only one of the many dramatic, yet irresistibly comic incidents that make up Matt Moore' dreams of courageous deeds to place at the feet of Dorothy Devore, the charming maid he loves but is too shy to court.

Dorothy Devore, Ward Crane, Wilfred Lucas, Adda Gleason, Otis Harlan, Turner Savage, Virginia Marshall and Cameo complete the cast of "How Baxter Butted In," which was directed by William Beaudine, and will be directed by William Fine, and will be featured at the Regent Theatre for three days, beginning to-day.

Gorden Mein has sold to Cooney and Jopling the Comet bus and the service and goodwill which he has built up during the last three years. The transaction was effected on Friday, and the operation of the bus is under the new management. Mr. Mein built up a service which was of great convenience to many people in the outlying parts of the city, and it was one of his claims and perhaps a modest boast, that in spite of weather of all kinds, he rarely missed a trip.

hill was an arbor which invited him and he slept for some time in its enveloping shade. Waking in haste he hurried on his way refreshed, but regretting the time spent in such a profitless manner In his concern he left the magic scroll at the arbor. Undismayed by the stories of Timorous and Mistrust, who warned him of lions in his path, Christian pressed onward but soon discovered that he had not the scroll.

Perforce he partook himself back the long weary distance, recovered the roll and bemoaned his misfortune in being so remiss. While he was thus concerned he came upon the Palace Beautiful, whose gates were guarded by fierce lions. The Porter, however, reassured him and directed his entrance . . no harm befell him. The Porter then called forth the damsel Discretion, who in turn called her sisters, Prudence, Piety and Charity. Christian was welcomed into the family, fed, entertained and directed on his journey.

Down into the depths of Humiliation now plunged the valiant Pilgrim. He was accosted by the foul fiend Apollion, with whom he engaged in a deadly conflict. His trusty sword won for him the victory.

Nothing daunted by the dread tales of two who came running back Christian plunged deeper into the Valley of the Shadow of Death, where he pursued his journey in the dark, his pathway hedged on the one side by a deep ditch and on the other, a slimy and treacherous quagmire. Presently before him he heard a voice calling him. The Voice said "Lo, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for Thou art with me.

Soon came the comforting dawn, bringing the night of terror to an end and Christian's search was terminated with the vision of the City Beautiful.

The offertory, "The Lord is my Light," concluded the beautiful rendition of the great allegory.

BLEWETT HORSES IN WEST ONTARIO

"Silk Line," "Major Hal" and "Mr. Haley" Shipped to Welland.

For the next two or three weeks Stan. Blewett's string of trotters will be absent from Peterboro, while he clashes with the horsemen in Western Ontario. This morning he shipped "Silk Line," "Major Hal" and "Mr. Haley" from Marmora, where they cleaned up on Saturday, to Welland by way of Belleville. On Wednesday and Thursday of this week the horses will be entered in the Welland races, and from there they go to Ingersoll for two more days. Other points have been picked out in the western circuit before the three of them will be home again in their Hunter Street barn. The success of the Blewett string was increased recently at the Picton Fair, after that they were started at Marmora, and to-day are moving west.

PETERBORO MISSING.

Poor Representation at Athletic Meet at Oshawa Reported.

OSHAWA, Sept. 28. — School boy athletes for the district extending from Pickering on the west to Smithfield on the east, and from the Lake back to Lindsay and Lakefield, competed at Alexandra Park here on Saturday afternoon in the district trials to determine which boys should be sent from the area to the Ontario school boy championship meet to be held in Toronto on Wednesday.

Schools from all parts of the district were represented, the poor showing of Peterboro' being noticeable. There was not a student of the collegiate institute here, and only four Public school boys. Walter Knox was in charge of the meet, which lasted the whole afternoon, although some events were not run off.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 31 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

There are many golfers who unknowingly fall into the easy habit of letting their swing get slightly out of parallel with the direction line. One of the peculiarities of golf is that a slightly open stance appears to offer the turning twists of the body more freedom, so the player who discovers this naturally shifts into a still wider open stance until, seeking more swing freedom, he gets his swing out of parallel with his direction line. Then trouble begins and he may have a time getting back to the straight line again, if he doesn't know what is wrong. The swing in parallel with the direction line is shown in the sketch. How it can get slightly out of parallel is indicated in the dotted lines. This shows how the swing out of parallel cuts the club head slightly across the ball. This doesn't produce a slice so much as it does a ball badly and persistently off direction—to the right.

TWO CITY TEAMS ENTER IN RUGBY

Max Sloane Has Entry in Juniors and P.C.I. Line Up.

Peterborough will have two representatives in rugby circles this season. Max Sloan has entered a team in the Junior division of the O.R.F.U. and, contrary to rumor, the P.C.I. have again presented their entry to the Interscholastic O.R.F.U.

The Juniors have been practising for a week now, and have lined up a hefty bunch of experienced players who will, with proper coaching, most certainly combine into a strong team. Max Sloane was unanimously elected coach by the players, and he will have as his assistant, Joe Batten. It is hoped that Dr. Dick Sheehy will give the boys the benefit of his experience and also that Mr. C. S. Browne, the P.C.I. coach, will give the team some tips.

A uniform practice is called for this evening on Central Park. The posts on the parade grounds have been removed, and this will give the boys a great deal of more room and freedom for playing.

P.C.I. Outlook.

The outlook for the P.C.I. team is not as bright as it was this time a year ago. It is not likely that this year's team will prove as strong as that of last year. However, Coach Browne has the nucleus of a team that will make any of the High School squads in the Central Ontario group sit up and take the count. He has Aldin Bookhout, star halfback of the P.C.I. squad for the past three years; Walter Rye, captain and yard-gaining middle wing; Karl Wood, nimble outside wing and half-line utility man. Jack Amys, sub; Alex. Morrison, sub; and Dick Martyn, sub, of last year's team. Then there are many hurky youngsters who have gained some experience on the second and third teams, who will help to complete the team. These boys will make up with their enthusasm and pep their lack of experience, and with C. T. Browne busy on the coaching line, they will soon be well schooled in all the fine departments of the game.

Everybody laughed at him—then he burst into the limelight like a rocket.

When the "boob" in the office makes love to the belle, what happens?

He would a hero be, to sweep "her" off her feet—but he was so "awful" shy.

The dual personality of a brave, dashing buccaneer in the guise of a meek, stammering clerk.

A rippling, tippling stream of fun and laughs. That's "How Baxter Butted In."

ROTARIANS ARE URGED TO USE THE FRANCHISE

Should Set Good Example, is Advice of President Seels.

DOMINION DAY.

Proper Celebration of Canada's Natal Day is Advocated.

That Rotarians should not only see that they are registered on the voters' lists and that they use their franchise at the coming elections but should also endeavor to persuade other citizens to do these things, was the advice given by President J. H. Seels at to-day's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club in discussing some of the matters taken up at the 27th District Executive conference held recently in Brantford. President Seels, Vice-President R. G. Kingan and Secretary Ross Dobbin were Peterboro delegates at the conference.

President Seels said that among the important questions discussed was the proper celebration of Dominion Day and the paving of proper respect to the National Anthem. Rotarians were asked to take the lead in these matters and, to endeavor to bring about a fitting observance of Canada's national holiday as well as by their example, causing a more loyal attitude in connection with the National Anthem. He suggested that next year the Rotary Carnival might be held on Dominion Day.

Secretary Dobbin, reporting on the conference, remarked that the delegates had received much benefit from meeting other executive officers. Only one club in the whole 27th District was unrepresented at the conference, which was featured by some most inspiring addresses and splendid musical numbers.

Roy Thompson was welcomed as a new member of the Rotary Club.

President Seels expressed the regret of the Club at the fact that Dr. Bruce Marshall was leaving the city. He had been a real Rotarian in every sense of the word.

Rotarian Marshall declared that it had been a privilege to be a member of the Peterboro Rotary Club.

A committee composed of Rotarians Ross Dobbin, C. H. Rogers and A. L. Killaly was appointed to arrange for an inter-city meeting with the Cobourg Rotary Club.

Before adjournment, President Seels expressed on behalf of the Rotarians the sympathy of the club to the relatives of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Mann, whose tragic passing, he said, had cast a gloom over the entire community.

BIG AGENCY FOR FARM PRODUCTS

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Plans for a co-operative agency to stabilize farm product prices, housed in a $30,000,000 skyscraper in Chicago, have been divulged by Lawrence Whiting, a prominent Chicago banker, after a conference with President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. A new agency, which is called the American Agricultural Mart is intended to include in its membership all the granges, dairymen's leagues, growers' associations and dealers in farm implements and allied industries. The moving spirit, Mr. Whiting said, is the National Dairy Council, a co-operative group of 1,000,000 members.

Railway Union Leader is in Favour of Nationalization.

WANTS PENSIONS.

LONDON, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press).—A. J. Cook, general secretary of the Miners' Federation, who recently predicted a general election in the United Kingdom next year, as an outcome of the labor troubles among the miners and other workers generally, is now joined in this opinion of C. Cramp declares that unless the railway companies are prepared to discuss a general scheme of pensions he is not prepared to enter into any other negotiations with them. Cramp is all for the nationalization of the railways.

Singer Leaving Stage To Open Beauty Parlor

PARIS, Sept. 28.—(Special by United Press).—The theatre and concert hall will play only a secondary part in Lina Cavaliere's future career, the famous singer announced to-day. Although she may give a short series of concerts in the United States in December and January, the rest of her life will be devoted to keeping women beautiful. Miss Cavalieri is 51 years old, but her complexion is truly remarkable.
The singer has arranged to open a beauty parlor off the Champs Elysees, an investigation having shown her that "women are realizing more than ever that they must use beauty ointments and balms to hold the affections of friends and lovers, as did the women of ancient Egypt and Greece and Rome."

VANNEST—SCATES.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized Saturday, September 26, at 8 a.m. at St. James' Parsonage, when Marjorie Florence, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scates, 590 George street, became the bride of Arthur Vannest, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Vannest, 237 Princess street. Rev. J. D. Richardson officiated.
The bride looked charming in a dress of blue canton crepe, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Nellie Lemons, wore sand crepe trimmed with satin, with hat to match. Mr. Kenneth Shadgett acted as best man.
After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, to about thirty guests. As the young couple entered the house Mrs. Charles Clarke played the wedding march. The rooms were decorated with white flowers and bells.
Mr. and Mrs. Vannest left by motor for Niagara Falls, St. Catharines and Watertown, returning by way of Kingston, to reside in Peterboro. The bride travelled in a navy coat trimmed with sand with small sand hat to match.
The wedding gifts were numerous and costly, including a clock from the employees of the Bonner-Worth Company.

LEWIS—McGUIRE
"A wedding of more than usual interest in University circles was solemnized at 9 o'clock, Wednesday morning, September 16, when Stella, elder daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. McGuire, Yukon Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Lewis Hunter Campbell Lewis, son of Reverend and Mrs. J. G. Lewis, Dunbar Street, at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the father of the groom, assisted by Reverend A. E. Mitchell.
"Amid a setting of massed seasonal autumn blooms and tinted maple leaves the bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attired in a chic costume fashioned of beige crepe-back satin in the prevailing mode with cheapeau to match. Dainty flowers in autumn tints constituted her boufuet. Neither bride nor groom was attended.
"Following the wedding ceremony, immediate relatives were guests at the wedding breakfast. Later the young couple left on their honeymoon, spending several days in the Olympic Mountains.
"They will reside in Seattle, where Mr. Lewis has an appointment in the English Department at the University of Washington. Both principals hold their Master of Arts degrees from the University of British Columbia."—Vancouver Sun.
Mr. Lewis is a former resident of Ashburnham, his father, Rev. J. G. Lewis, having been pastor at Mark Street Church.

Uncertainty Noticeable On New York Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.— (Canadian Press.)— Alternating periods of strength and weakness characterized to-day's stock market, which was filled with puzzling cross currents. Conflicting judgment of the business situation and uncertainty regarding the trend of the money rates contributed to the general unsettlement of trading. Selling of high priced industrial shares, which fell back 3 to 6 points in the early dealings, quickly undermined the general list, although partial recoveries took place when aggressive bullish operations were attempted in the Motor, Food and Mercantile shares. The rise of several leaders in these groups to new high levels caused a retreat of short interests in other issues. Large scale buying was retarded by the heaviness of U. S. Steel and the absence of recent inquiries for investment rails. The entire market headed downward in the afternoon when the call money rate advanced to five per cent.

Tractions Are Prominent At Quiet Toronto Session

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (Canadian Press).—Traction issues were most prominent during the quiet session of the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The market showed a tendency to slightly lower price levels. Winnipeg Common advanced three quarters at 48 1-4, and Preferred a quarter; Twin city closed the morning a quarter lower at 59 3-4, and Brazilian eased down three eighths at 72 1-2. British Columbia Fishing sold down three quarters, and Smelters a quarter, while the Bank of Commerce dropped a point. Canadian Canners Preferred, a prominent issue, advanced a quarter, and Keeley, a leader in the mines, strengthened two points to 153.

Heavy Trading In Mines With Several Big Gains

TORONTO, September 28. — Canadian Press.—Trading on the Standard mining exchange this morning was heavy with transactions totalling 224,805 shares. Teck Hughes advanced two points to 197, and Tough Oakes was 2 3-4 points higher at 49½ under heavy sales. Lake Shore sold 10 points higher at 775 while Vipor was 6 points lower at 104. Keeley sold 4 points up at 1 and Mining Corporation was 4 down at 283. Argonaut, Barry, Holly, Hattie Preferred and Kirkland Lake, were fractionally lower at 25 3-4, 20, 4 and 36 respectively.

Wheat Drops To New Low On Reports At Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press). — All deliveries of wheat dropped to-day to a new low price record for the season. The amount of wheat afloat for Europe showed a material increase and advices were at hand that European importers were unwilling buyersexcept for immediate needs, whereas Canadian wheat was being offered freely in addition to offers from Australia and Argentina. There were also reports current that Montana farmers were selling stored grain. Opening 1 1-4 cents to 2 3-4 cents lower, December $1.39 1-2 to $1.40 and May $1.40 1-2 to $1.41 3-4 was followed by down turns which carried December off to 137 7-8 and May to $1.40 1-4.
Corn and oats gave way too with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1-2cent lower, December 76 3-4 to 77 1-8, the Corn Market underwent a sag all around, December touching 76 1-2.
Oats started unchanged to 7-8 cents down, December 38 3-4 cents to 39 cents. Later the decline became general.
Influenced by weakness of hog values and of grain, the provision market was easy.

TRADE OUTLOOK BEST SINCE 1919

Monthly Letter of the Royal Bank of Canada is Optimistic.

U. S. HARVEST LESS

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 28 (By Canadian Press).—"Because of the extremely important part which agriculture plays in the business life of Canada, September 1st might be regarded as the commencement of the Canadian business year. By this date, a large percentage of our crops has been harvested, and some idea can be formed of the cash returns which the farmers will receive. This year, the season is commencing under favourable auspices, and the prospects for Canadian business are the best we have had since 1919." says the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada for September.
Crops in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces are in general, satisfactory. In the West, a wheat crop approximately 100,000,000 bushels larger than the preceding one is being harvested from an acreage only fractionally greater than of 1924; and wheat prices are satisfactory.
The increased freight tonnage, which will result from large harvests and better business, will benefit the railroad and with them the country as a whole because a large part of every dollar received by the transportation system is spent in Canada for wages and material.
"Because of the reduction in the United States wheat harvest this year, that country will have only a small surplus for export; in fact, after a comparatively short time, there will in all probability be no export surplus so far as the better grades of wheat are concerned. Wheat futures in Chicago are well above Winnipeg quotations, a situation which will assist export business of Canadian millers, although it does not give them an overwhelming advantage because of the fact that favourably situated U.S. flour mills can import Canadian wheat to be milled in bond.
"In the above remarks on the Canadian business outlook," the letter adds, "We have stressed the favourable factors because in our opinion they justify the expectation of a material improvement in business as compared with the unsatisfactory period of 1923-1924. It would, however, be wrong to expect great prosperity from the results of one good season only. In the final analysis, the continued progress of this country depends on a reduction in taxation and an increase in immigration."

PROGRESS MADE CHILD WELFARE

President Tells of Work Done in Five Years of Council's Work.

CONFERRING TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28. —(Canadian Press). — The history of five years of the Canadian Child Welfare Council might be called the autobiography of an infant prodigy said Mrs. Charles Thorburn in her presidental address at the opening of the Council's Fifth Conference, here this morning. Great progress has been made in legislation and in awakening community consciousness to the necessity of child welfare activity, Mrs. Thornburn said. The outlook for the future was most promising. There was no limit tothe ramifications of child welfare work.
Mrs. Thornburn hoped the next Federal Parliament would at once ratify the League of Nations Child Committee Convention fixing the minimum age for children admitted to industrial employment.

FACTS ABOUT OPTOMETRY
Every Eye Does The Best It Can
Often its best is a very poor service. Every eye tries to overcome any abnormality that may exist in it, and this attempt means some sort of discomfort as a rule. These abnormalities can be overcome by the made-to-measure lens, and in no other way. So it is very unwise for a person to continue to strain the eyes when help is so readily secured. IMPENDING FEDERAL CONTEST IS WAR OF IDEAS VITAL TO FUTURE NOT FIGHT WITH LABEL BEARERS

Hon. George P. Graham Defends National System — Would Fill Vacant Places.

PROBLEM NO FOOTBALL

Massey Declared Conservative High Tariff Would Raise Prices.

NEWMARKET, Ont., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Defence of the Canadian National Railways, coupled to expression of his belief that the permanent cure for the deficit-productive situation lay not in amalgamation of the two great systems but in "putting on a genuine scheme for filling up our vacant spaces," formed the basis of the speech made here last night by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, to North York electors in the interest of Premier Mackenzie King, who is again Liberal nominee for the riding.

Hon. Vincent Massey, newly appointed Minister without portfolio and candidate for the riding of Durham, speaking from the same platform in support of Mr. King's candidacy, described the impending Federal contest as "a war of ideas underlying the very future of this country, not a mere struggle between two groups of men and women bearing the party labels of their ancestors."

Mr. Graham said that while the railway problem was embarassing it was not discouraging, and declared the deficit was not due to poor operation, instancing that the railways, since the King Government came into power, "had shown a substantial surplus in operating earnings every year."

"The railway problem is of too great an interest to the people to make a political football of it," said Mr. Graham, adding that one great object the Liberal Government had held in view was that of keeping the railways out of the political arena, an object, he said, in which they had succeeded until a few weeks ago. He averred that the operation of the system was above criticism, and that "up to date in this campaign there has not been a dint made in its good management."

"There never was a Canadian National Company in reality until the Liberals came into power," declared the Minister.

Commenting on Conservative criticism of the Canadian National Railways' Toronto property, Mr. Graham said: "With reference to the property on the corner of King and Yonge Streets, Toronto, the Canadian National Railways do not intend to build a building. It it bought property for $1,200,000 and sold it for $1,259,000. The object was not to go into the real estate business, but it was to hold the position for its ticket office on the corner of King and Yonge Streets, which the Grand Trunk had held for years. The sniping at the management for some

Man Found Dead in His Bed Clutching Unfired Revolver

LONDON, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press). — George Carle, who is believed to have been an old time prosperous fruit farmer at Toronto has been found dead under strange circumstances at Brixton.

Carle was discovered dead in bed, his fingers clutching a revolver which, however, was undischarged, none of the cartridges having been expended. Medical examination has resulted in the theory that he died from fright.

The deceased was a widower who with four children came to London six months ago. Lately he had appeared worried over finances.

Street accidents due to vehicles caused deaths or injury to 98,215 people in Great Britain last year. Of these 3,631 were fatal.

World Condemns Wilbur Says Navy Demoralized

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(United Press). — The New York World calls for the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur in its leading editorial to-day.

The editorial terms him a "Secretary of the Navy whose record has proved him neither fortunate nor wise; whose contribution to statesmanship has been to threaten cold steel to Japan; whose contribution to truth has been to misstate the facts in the case of the Shenandoah; and whose capacity and service to the American people is definitely ended."

The World demands a shake-up within the Navy, pointing out that the United States has lost twelve vessels in the Coolidge - Harding administrations, more than twice the country's war loss.

Such a series of disasters points to demoralization in the department, the editorial asserts.

Mr. Bourassa Announces That His Policy Will Be Amplified Later.

QUEBEC ACTIVITIES.

Selection of Candidates Proceeding Rapidly—Some Dilatory.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press.)—With the reentry into the field of Federal politics of such two outstanding men as Hon. E. L. Patenaude, former Secretary of State, as a Conservative with independent views, and Henri Bourassa, protagonist of Nationalism, as a candidate independent of any party, the political complex of Quebec province has become a feature of more than ordinary interest. Mr. Bourassa's manifesto, issued to-day, outlined his compete isolation from any of the old line parties and indicated that his course would be steered in conformity with his well-known convictions. Having thrown his gauntlet into the lists, the Nationalist leader stands ready to break a lance with all comers and his policy will be amplified within the next few days in a series of addresses that he will deliver in the constituency of Labelle, for which he has been selected. Mr. Bourassa's opponent will be H. Jodquin, who was named in the Liberal interests in the afternoon.

The selection of candidates is proceeding rapidly, although in the Metropolitan district the general desire would appear to be to make their quota, Mount Royal, Cartier and St. Antoine. The Government standard bearers are respectively, R. L. Calder, M.C., Teobule Rheaume, and V. J. Hushion. In the Opposition interests these three seats will be contested respectively by R. S. White, Hon. E. L. Patenaude, and Leslie G. Ball.

In the other fifty-two provincial seats only twelve constituencies have selected both Government and Opposition nominees, and in several instances additional piquancy has been contributed to the encounters by the advent of a third candidate. This is the case with the Chateauguay-Montmorency riding where P. F. Casgrain is being opposed by another Liberal, Arthur Leger, and also by a Conservative, Jules Cobell; in Kamouraska, where G. J. Bouchard finds himself confronted with another Liberal, Leon Casgrain, and a Conservative, Maurice Dupre; in Chicoutini, where J. L. Levesque faces J. E. A. Cubuc, a Liberal, and J. C. Gagne, Conservative; and in Portneuf, where both Simeon Delisle and Dr. A. Marcotte uphold the Liberal banner against C. P. Ducharie.

Bonaventure has completed its selection with Charles Marcil, named for the Government against

RELATION BETWEEN COMMUNISM AND BRITISH LABOR PARTY MOST IMPORTANT QUESTION AT MEETING

Chairman Condemns Talk of Revolution By Force as Antiquated.

RADICALS SET BACK.

Huge Majority Vote Against Admitting Communists to Party.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press). — The question overshadowing all others at the Parliamentary Labor Party conference, which opened here to-day, is that dealing with the relations of Communists and the British Labor movement. C. T. Cramp, head of the Railwaymen's Union, and chairman of the conference, in his opening address, said that Labor's fundamental task was not to wage war against individuals or any class, but to conquer the circumstances which had given rise to class warfare. There should be no revolution by force, he said, and the position of those who would apply the methods of force should be scrapped as antiquated, being about one hundred years behind the times. Much had been heard about it being the duty of Labor to condemn the Dawes reparation plan. He deprecated such oratism, the plan had been endorsed by various Labor conferences and to repudiate it would be equivalent to an invitation for German workers to destroy the precarious balance of European peace and plunge their country again into the horrors of military occupation. The radical section got its first set-back when, by 2,954,000 votes to 321,000, the conference refused to refer back to the Standing Order Committee its report which included a resolution that no member of the Communist Party be eligible to become a member of any individual section of any affiliated local Labor party, and another advising members that, when electing delegates to the conference, they should not appoint known Communists.

PREMIER KING APPEALS FOR UNITY TO DEFEAT THE COMMON ENEMY

Asks West to Send Him Strong Men as Ministers of Crown.

COMPLETE H. B. LINE.

Promises Re-organization of Cabinet and Railway Board.

NEEPAWA, Man., Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Premier King's first appeal to the West last night was an appeal for unity to defeat the "common enemy" here, in what was termed the heart of the Progressive stamping ground. He pressed that Progressives and Liberals should work together for the things they had in common. He indicated:

Reorganization of the Cabinet after the elections with the portfolio of immigration going to a Western man. Completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, providing sufficient Government supporters were returned in the West to ensure the carrying out of the Government's policies generally. Greater Western representation on the Railway Commission. On the reorganization of the Cabinet he observed that two members of the administration who had been appointed to the Senate, Hon. Dr. Beland and Hon. Chas. Murphy, would not continue in office after the elections. The portfolia of immigration now held by an Ontario man, Hon. G. N. Gordon, he thought should go to the West. "I appeal to you in the West," the Prime Minister exclaimed, "to send me strong men from whom I can choose Ministers of the Crown—men who will know and understand Western needs."

On the Hedson Bay Railway, he declared his belief that the time had come when it should be finished. If he received sufficient Western support to enable him to carry out Liberal policies generally, the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway would be one of those policies. "But," he added, "I am not going to promise to a Western audience that I will carry out only one particular policy that is of concern to the West, and to this part of the West primarily unless I can see my way clear to make good that promise."

"We are trying," he declared, "to bring the West nearer to the East, and we ask you to help us in an endeavor to bring about a united country." Here Mr. King quoted the lines of Clough: "And not by eastern windows only when daylight comes, comes in the lightfi in front sun shines low, how slowly but westward look, the land is bright." "That," he concluded, "is the message I bring to Western Canada; it is not from the east we want the light, it is the light of the West we want on the policies of our country."

Law Against Liquor and Bearing of Arms on Polling Day.

Since the appointment of Sidney Whatley, as deputy returning officer for Peterborough, he has held classes for the registrars who are compiling the urban voters' list, and will give similar instructions to the registrars for the rural sections of the rising. And his text book is a grey-backed volume entitled "Election Instructions," with the qualifying adjective "Complete" bracketed beneath the title. More than 250 pages are required to set out the duties of all election officials, the rights of voters, and their duties, and a mass of other detail, most of which the public is vaguely aware of.

Flags or Colors Barred.

For instance, do you know that it is illegal for any person to carry a flag or emblem, either on election day or for eight days before polling?

Ribbons or favors are not to be furnished or worn as party badges.

The whole Dominion goes dry for one day when the Federal election comes along. No matter how tipsy the electorate may be on the other 364 days of the year, it must sober up to make the momentous choice of its rulers for the five year term to follow. There is a special clauuse to the effect that "no spirituous or fermented liquors or strong drinks shall be sold or given at any hotel, tavern, shop or other place within the limits of any polling division, during the whole of a polling day at the election." Note that it is illegal even to give a drink to anybody. And not merely to a voter—to any person at all. It's a rigid dry law, that.

Rule Against Weapons.

There are also rules against the carrying of weapons or firearms, regulations that in their wording savor somewhat of the old days of open voting and brawling in the streets. No person who has not lived more

Missing Beatings Administered By Deserted Hubby, Mrs. Biddle Tells Court She Wants To Go Back To Him

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 29 (Special by United Press) Because 17-year-old Mrs. Gladys Biddle misses the beatings her husband, Charles Earl Biddle, 22, was wont to administer, she wants to live with him again, she admitted in Domestics Relations Court today.

Instead she received from the court an order for $5 a week for her support.

After eloping a year ago they lived with his parents. Then Mrs. Biddle, saying she was mistreated, took her baby and went to her parents. Today, she told the judge, "I miss his beatings," in explaining why she wished to return to her husband.

CHILD IS KILLED BY AUTO FENDER

Driver, Detroit Man, Released on Bond to Appear at Inquest.

THOUGHT SHE WAITED

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press.) — Grace Shand, six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shand, market gardener, on the London Road, was instantly killed early yesterday afternoon when she was struck by the fender of an automobile and had her skull fractured. The driver of the car, John F. Watson, of Detroit, was released on bonds of $6,000 to appear at the inquest which has been ordered.

According to High County Constable R. J. Whiting who was called to the scene, Watson, who was returning to Detroit, saw the little girl at the roadside and stepped on the brake. She looked toward him and thinking that she was waiting for him to pass he allowed the car to go ahead again. Too late he saw the little girl try to cross the street to the Meadow Lee school.

BID TO DINNER CAUSE OF RIOT

Jews and Communists Fought in Streets on Day of Atonement.

A SACRED DAY.

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—A riot yesterday afternoon on St. Lawrence Boulevard between Jews and Communists necessitated the intervention of a squad of thirty policemen and several motor cycle officers. The trouble started when the Communist Club, known as "The Workmen's Circle," invited all its Hebrew members to partake of a meal at the clubhouse, yesterday being Yom Kippur, or "the day of Atonement," sacred to those of the Jewish faith. It is understood certain pamphlets were distributed which brought matters to a head.

RUSSIA AND GERMANY ARE ASKED BY MUSSOLINI TO FORM ALLIANCE AGAINST FRANCE AND G. BRITAIN

New York Theatre Season To Be Most Profane and Naked

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). —Word has been received that the coming theatrical season in New York will be the "profanest and nakedest in history," according to a report made by the public moralist board of the Methodist Church. A report declaring "Is New York a menace," complains of the activities of the "un-American people who plague that city."

Approaches to Germany Have Not Yet Met With Success.

OPPOSES PACT.

Foreign Editor of London Daily News Makes Other Charges.

By Lloyd Allen
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 29.—An international sensation which threatens to involve all European capitals has been precipitated by Hugh Redwood, foreign editor of the Daily News, who in a signed article alleges that Benito Mussolini, Italian Premier, is making proposals to Moscow for an alliance with Soviet Russia.

Moreover, Mussolini, "so far without success, has sought to gain the adhesion of Germany to a projected treaty so as to constitute a new triple alliance directed mainly against France, but also against Great Britain," Redwood charges.

"Although Italy will be represented at the forthcoming security conference, Mussolini has used his most strenuous efforts to persuade Germany from entering the pact," the editor continues.

Redwood says he expects denials, but declares he makes his statements "on unquestionable authority."

The Daily News is rabidly anti-Fascist. Redwood's article is the first of a series on the completion of a tour throughout Italy. He says he talked with spokesmen of all Italian parties and predicts that Mussolini will soon be confronted with a recrudescence of the Mattoitti crisis. In succession of fiery denunciations, Redwood hurls the following charges at the Fascist leader:

"New documents in Mussolini's own handwriting have established beyond doubt his personal complicity in the Mattoitti crime."

"Mussolini is an epileptic, mentally and physically sick with a malady similar to that of Lenine."

"If a day comes when Fascism is seriously menaced by the Italian internal situation, Mussolini, without a scruple, will go to war as a diversion."

CONSERVATIVE LEADER STATES UNRESERVED FAITH IN PROTECTION

Never Have Industrial Progress as Long as Tariff is Plaything.

IS SYSTEM'S ENEMY.

Indicates Flight of Ministers to the Senate as Suggestive.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., September 29. By Can. Press Staff Correspondent. — "I believe in a tariff candidly and openly protective," said Mr. Meighen. "In resolutely pursuing such a policy, what we require and must have in Canada is not so much what our enemies love to call high protection, the first essential is to demonstrate that our tariff is to be dependably protective, that business men can feel themselves secure, and feel themselves on a rock of policy which they can build. You can never have an industrial progress as long as the tariff is trifled with by a process of dicker in parliament and not maintained on the basis of a sound and understandable principle."

Mr. Meighen claimed that the recent changes in the cabinet and appointments to the Senate were indicative of a "regular panic in the government ransk."

"Within the last three weeks no less than four ministers of the crown have fled from the contest and taken refuge in the Senate," he said, "to make room for the last senatorial refugee it was necessary to crowd five Senators into one single county in New Brunswick, the County of Westmoreland. In order to avoid certain defeat for Mr. Copp the government had placed one-half of the whole Senate representation from the Province of New Brunswick in one single county.

"What could be more significant than the flight of the Hon. E. Macdonald from the County of Pictou to the county of Antigonish-Guysboro, the only county on the mainlaud of Nova Scotia where a Liberal survived the recent Provincial election?"

One Bank Runner Shot Through Heart at Cambridge.

PAYROLL TAKEN.

Part of Money Carried By Niagara Falls Man Taken.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29 (Canadian Press)—Edward C. Ross, a bank messenger, was shot to death and his companion was wounded by three masked robbers, who held up the pair here yesterday and fled with a payroll of $10,266. The messenger, accompanied by Rufus Johnson, of Newton, was delivering a payroll sent from the Central Trust Company to the Ward Baking Company when three men swept up in a large touring car. As the bank representatives stepped from their delivery car, the robbers rushed them, firing seven or eight shots as they came. Ross was shot through the heart. A bullet grazed Johnson's head. Seizing the tin box containing the payroll, the three men ran to their car and drove away in the general direction of Boston.

W. E. TUMMON OF TWEED CHOSEN AS CONERVATIVE CANDIDATE AT CONVENTION IN SOUTH HASTINGS

Reeve of Tweed Secured a Majority on the Third Ballot Taken.

GUS PORTER RETIRES.

Former Member in Poor Health and Refused Nomination.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 29.—Leaning heavily on a cane, broken in health, E. Gus Porter, hero of many a political battle, and the idol of his party for nearly half a century, full of enthusiasm and fight as ever, yesterday declined the nomination for the made-over riding of South Hastings at the Conservative convention held in the City Hall. The large audience cheered Mr. Porter to the echo, and joined unanimously in a resolution, thanking him for his past services, but the 218 delegates ignored his counsel when he advised them to nominate a Belleville man, and added that the one resident of the city who could be counted upon to carry the riding was H. F. Ketcheson. The choice of the convention was W. E. Tummon, Reeve of Tweed, who led in every ballot, and on the third was declared the nominee.

A Large Gathering.

There were 218 delegates and these were seated according to the townships which they represented, and were carefully separated from the rest of the crowd by a stout rope stretched from one side of the room to the other. The rest of the hall was jammed to capacity, and crowds stood in the corridors and on the stairway until the last ballot was counted.

Called to Order.

The convention was called to order by President George Stokes, of Hungerford, R. H. Ketcheson, of Belleville, being the secretary. The vice-presidents of the various municipalities in the riding were called to the platform. It seemed that about one-third of the delegates were ladies.

The Nominations.

The nomination papers had been handed into the President so that no time was lost in getting down to business. There was an unusual incident at this stage of the proceedings, the names of a father, R. J. Graham, and of his son, Major R. J. S. Graham, being presented to the convention. The nominees were as follows: E. Gus Porter, barrister; W. C. Mikel, barrister, Mayor of Belleville; W. H. Ireland, M.L.A., of Trenton; G. C. Metcalfe of Deseronto; W. E. Tummon, manufacturer of Tweed; R. J. Graham, gentleman, Belleville; H. A. Thompson, Hydro inspector, Belleville; W. H. Nugent, county clerk, Belleville; Major R. J. S. Graham, barrister, Belleville; H. F. Ketcheson, insurance agent, Belleville.

Five Nominees Retire.

The nominees were allowed five minutes each to address the convention when Messrs. Porter, Ireland, Metcalfe, R. J. Graham and Nugent withdrew their names. Before the speeches all the nominees were lined up on the platform and each pledged himself to support the choice of the convention.

Mr. Porter gave a brief sketch of his political career, from the time 47 years ago, when he cast his first vote and made his first political speeech for H. Corby, former member for the riding, down to the date of his own defeat by Charles Hanna less than a year ago. He has always been a Conservative and during the 24 years he represented West Hastings, hundreds of thousands of dollars of the public money had been expended in Belleville.

"I am now broken in health," said Mr. Porter. I could not undertake another campaign. If I did and failed to redeem the riding I would never forgive myself. I withdraw my name, but I will be in the coming fight to the fullest extent of my ability.

Makes a Suggestion.

After a resolution complimentary to Mr. Porter had been enthusiastically adopted, the former representative said that in his opinion in order to win the riding, it would be necessary to nominate a business man, and recommended H. F. Ketcheson as the most likely man for the position, as he had been born on a farm and knew rural conditions.

Mayor Mikel Stays.

Mayor Mikel said he had taken part in 150 elections, and has spent over $10,000 helping to elect other people. He defied any one to question his fidelity to the party, and believed that on his record he was entitled to the nomination. He gave it as his opinion, that the election would be decided in Belleville, and that a man from the city should be chosen. The opposition has a clever politician, who must be reckoned with.

Mayor Mikel left the local field to allude to the exodus of young Canadians to the United States, and to the attempt made at the last session of Parliament to change the flag.

Major Graham said he had consented to have his name submitted to the convention, because he believed with his friends that a young man was needed to redeem the riding. Any man, he added, who could serve his country overseas, had surely the ability required to serve in Parliament.

H. A. Thompson, who also served in the Great War, allowed his name to stand and said that he believed that the party's defeat of last Fall could be overcome on October 29.

H. F. Ketcheson, said that while he believed he could carry the riding he would support any man chosen by the convention. He claimed to have the good will of the people in the city and in the rural districts as well.

The Balloting.

On the first ballot Mr. Thompson was eliminated, Mr. Tummon taking the lead, with Major Graham second, Mr. Ketcheson third and Mayor Mikel fourth. There were 218 ballots cast.

On the second ball Mr. Tummon led with Major Graham second and Mr. Ketcheson third.

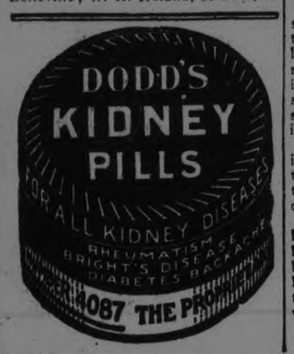
These three went into the third ballot, Mr. Tummon getting a majority of one over the united vote of his competitors. Of the 217 ballots cast the winner got 109.

On motion of Major Graham and Mr. Ketcheson Mr. Tummon's nomination was made unanimous.

The Nominee.

The successful candidate for the nomination was a veritable dark horse and as it was only within the last few days that his name was mentioned in connection with the honor. He is reeve of Tweed, where he is superintendent for Quinlan and Robertson, contractors for road building material. He is a successful business man of middle age and is a good speaker. In his address to the delegates he said it made no matter from what part of a riding a candidate came so long as the voters stood shoulder to shoulder behind him.

The Liberal convention for the riding will be held in Belleville tomorrow. No candidate, other than Chas. Hanna, elected a year ago, is mentioned.



CHURCH RE-NAMED

One-Time Methodist Edifice to be Known Now as Regent Street United.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 29. — The social held in the basement of the church, known for more than sixty years as the Lakefield Methodist Church ,on Thursday evening last, marked a new epoch in the history of the congregation and was also a most enjoyable social event to which every member of the church was invited. The attendance was large and fully justified the effort made by the committees to provide entertainment and refreshment.

The pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, presided and expressed his appreciation of the splendid manner which his suggestion, made at the entertainment held nine days before, had been accepted and made a pleasant reality.

The evenings programme was first held and began with a real old fashioned sing song, introducing many of the old familiars. The musical part of the programme was interspersed by readings by Mr. George Sherin, Mrs. O. H. McMillan and Mr. A. B. Burrows were in charge of this part of the entertainment.

The second section wos devoted to business and was in charge of the Pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, who explained that they wish to name the church. Since entering the Union on June 10th, the name "Methodist Church" was a misnomer and owing to the fact that Lakefield had two Union Congregations it was rendered expedient to name this edifice. The ersult of the vote was for the "Regent Street Church" and by that name it will henceforth be known.

The third part of the programme took the form of a contest under the direction of Mrs. (Rev). Grant and Mr. George Spence. Twenty eight photographs of well-known local people, taken years ago, were on exhibition and the matter of guessing the originals was a real puzzle to many. The coiffure and dresses of the ladies added to the difficulty but two ladies, Mrs. McConkey and Mars. Nathan Payne, guessed twenty six correctly and were awarded prizes.

Among those whose pictures were shown were Messrs. W.N. Casement Levi Payne, R. C. Strickland and John Kemp. After the fun which this unique contest provoked had subsided, Mrs. Geo. Spence and Mr. R. Little and their assistants provided a bountiful supper to which full justice was done.

The social was a very great success and more than one Regent Street voiced the wish that the Church would be the scene of many such gatherings in the future.

THE LIMITED MAIL

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

They exchanged significent looks, while the siren continued to draw closer and despoil the quiet mountain glen with its raucous warning. Caroline clung even closer to Bob, an unaware claim for a mate's protection; and Bob, thrilling to the warm contact of her young body, which quivered against him as a captive bird might in a man's clenched fist, felt a vast possessiveness—felt that he could successfully fight off a whole carload of escaped desperadoes, if necessary, to save her.

He shot an arm around her shoulder and stood alertly with his other fist doubled and ready when there came a crashing in the bushes nearby, and loud voices. Three uniformed policemen, with sawed off shotguns, broke through and confronted them breathlessly.

"Seen anyone—a man in convict stripes?"

"No!" said Bob calmly. "Why, what's the matter?"

"Matter enough if you stumbled into him!" said one cop in tones that denoted respect for the reputation of his quarry. "The most dangerous and vicious criminal who's ever been in the State bullpen escaped from the transfer car. We've traced him to this vicinity. I'd advise you, my friend, first of all to clear out of this neighborhood, and secondly to hold your peace if you should bump into him. He's bad medicine at any time—but by now he's hungry, desperate—and a damn sight more dangerous than a dozen catamounts!"

The police officers scoured on.

Caroline, upset and with nerves overwrought from the incessant shrieking of the siren, insisted on starting down from the hill at once; the picnic mood was gone from her for the time being. Bob, though assuring her that it was silly to be alarmed, humored her.

They had gone but a short distance down the shrub-massed cliff path, though the siren and the shouting of the skirmishing policemen were already fainter as they searched out a new section on the wooded summit above, when like a weird and menacing jack-in-the-box a striped and shackled figure uprose from a bush and stood leering in their path.

"Bob Wilson, take me oath if it ain't—an' quite respectable looking!"

Bob could not restrain a horrified recoil from the shock of recognition.

"Spike!"

"Ain't you clever to guess it!"

Caroline, meanwhile, a stifled scream dissolving in her throat as she heard the familiarity and equality in the greeting of this vicious looking criminal for Bob—her Bob—felt a sick bewilderment and disgust; it must be true, then, that there was something sordid and bad in Bob's past when its associations had been so base and unlovely.

Bob, looking at her in that tense, soul-stripping moment, read the concrete suspicions and distrust dawning in her eyes, and felt a rush of stubbornness at the injustice of Fate that was robbing him of the carefully hoarded strength of his exile. First Jane—now Spike. Spike, who had read—that poster!

Bob stared at Spike again, dully curious.

"I want yuh to help me, see!" growled Spike. "Hide me till thuh lousey bulls git outen here—" The sounds of the pursuing party seemed to be growing nearer again. This fact, coupled with Bob's hesitation, inflamed Spike, who shook his steel claw threateningly under Bob's white face.

"Hide me, Wilson—or I'll tell de lady friend about dat poster—"

Further hestitation on Bob's part; then, wetting his lips, he said evenly:

"Tell and be damned to you!"

The beast in Spike raged at this defiance. He leaped close to Caroline before Bob, taken off his guard, could interfere—tore her dress from her shoulder with his human hand and set the rapier point of his steel hand against her white breast.

"Promise you'll help me, or I'll rip her open!" he shrieked red-eyed, at Bob.

Caroline was frozen with terror in her tracks—mouth open and eyes starting as she looked at and shrank from the prick of the deadly claw. Bob, paralyzed, looked on in terror not less than her own.

But his return to full possession of his faculties, under the lash of tragic necessity, was lightning fast. He leaped forward and struck out simultaneously. His left fist reached its mark on Spike's jaw at almost the precise instant that his right hand, with athletic continuity of motion, pushed Caroline backwards out of harmful contact with the falling desperado's spike.

Spike was not knocked out. He had barely touched the ground before with a tigerish squirm he flung his muscular leg around in such a way that it snipped Bob's legs from under him, crumpling him to the ground beside Spike, who came to instant grips with him.

Bob knew Spike's method of old. He remembered the horror that he had been filled with upon the occasion of his first meeting with Spike, when he had reflected upon the possibilities of that steel claw as a weapon. Now, therefore, he instinctively grabbed for the spike. And not a moment too soon, for it came within a hair of slithering his throat.

The fight became a thrashing melee. Spike fought with the insane courage and cruelty of a maddened dog; Bob remained chiefly on the defensive, guarding his eyes, his throat, his heart from frantic jabbings of the steel hand. Now and again, Bob was able to get in a telling smash against Spike's face. But Spike met Bob on terms of equal strength, and had the advantages of his frightful claw and of experience in the dirtier points of rough and tumbling fighting, gained in many a low barroom and rough trackside camp.

Bob soon realized that he was face to face with a fight for his life. Caroline, with a suddenly discovered courage standing her in good stead as she witnessed the fight of her man for his very life, moved back and forth with the thrashing bodies as they rolled and tumbled around, gouging up the rocky turf.

At every chance she seized Spike, disregarding the back lashes of his flailing steel hand, and tried to pull him away from Bob—giving Bob every aid and advantage possible to enable him to get in a vital blow. She was so engaged when several members of the police posse rushed into the scene and made short work of jerking Spike to his feet, handcuffing him, and punching him into subjection under the threat of their murderously shortened shotguns.

Bob got to his feet unsteadily.

"You win, bo—but it's my turn next time!" snarled Spike over his shoulder. "Hell, you're wanted by the police yourself—" thing it had not done had two objects, one of which was to injure the Canadian National Railways, and the other along the same line to prevent, if possible, financing of the scheme of a company that proposed to re-erect the building. The same petty criticism applies to everything that has been said about the Canadian National Railway Company since the campaign started.

"I have never suggested," he said, "that Mr. Meighen was in favor of amalgamation, but I have said that his policy, as announced by himself, would, if carried out, wreck the system." A well-known man, the Railway Minister said, had stated that if amalgamation took place fifty thousand employees could be let out from both railroad systems.

Touching upon other issues, Mr. Graham said the French treaty, which Mr. Meighen discredited, provided Canada with an opportunity to obtain the same terms for the sale of her products in France as were obtained by the United States.

Referring to Mr. Meighen's views on the pulpwood export question, the Minister of Railways said the leader of the Opposition will find great objection in Northern Ontario to putting an export duty on the product.

As to Canada's financial position, said Mr. Graham, it must be remembered that a country's standing can be judged largely by what other nations think of it, and "the Canadian dollar to-day is worth one hundred cents or a little better, while in Mr. Meighen's time it was worth eighty-five cents and sometimes less."

Hon. Vincent Massey placed on record his opinion that national unity could not be achieved by "the correspondence school method."

"Let us remember this fact, as a fundamental truth lying at the base of the whole question," he declared; "you cannot achieve unity in this country by forcing the Prairie Provinces and the Maritime Provinces to accept a fiscal policy to which they have been diametrically opposed since they became self-conscious members of this Dominion. No unity can be achieved by attempting to fit this country into the straight jacket of a high tariff."

Mr. Massey contended that if more of the business community of the central provinces had first-hand knowledge of the westernr provinces there would be few who would dare support the policy of high tariffs in this country.

"But in addition," he said, "to those who honestly believe in high protection and are unconscious of the danger which would be the result of its acceptance are those honest-minded men who have succumbed to the panic propaganda of the last four years and the plausible doctrine of high protection perhaps with certain misgivings but because it seems to be the policy of safety first."

He added that he could see no analogy between Canada and the United States, a more self-contained country than this and one that could produce nearly everything required and develop without undue effort every type of manufacture.

"The United States," said Mr. Massey, "far from being an example of the blessings of high protest, is really an example of a union of forty-eight free trade communities."

Despite this, he averred, there is now a definite swing in favor of a moderate tariff in the United States, and added that "when one considers the Canadian problem, sweeping away catchwords and half truths, the case for the high tariff is impossible."

He declared that on those who would raise the tariffs rests the burden of proof that the established industries of the country requires them and he contended they had not made out their case.

"It is a matter of simple arithmetic," he said, "that the Conservative policy of a higher tariff would raise prices. To the consumer the cost of living would increase. Agriculture, our basic occupation, would gain nothing and would lose much. And this is one great reason why the high tariff is not in the interest of industry itself, because industry will prosper only in proportion to the prosperity of agriculture."

Mr. Massey said he was convinced Canada "is recovering steadily and certainly from those troubles which the war and its aftermath have given it, and if we have had mental anxieties it has been due to that smoke screen of doubt and gloom thrown in our path by professional pessimists through which the ship of state has had to find its way."

The newly appointed Cabinet member said Canada had suffered from a campaign of depreciation that was without precedent, and that such chronic melancholia might have been bearable only if it had not been given an air of depressing accuracy. Instancing the statements on Canadian emigration, he said:

If all the people had left Canada that we have been told had left, this country would by now be an empty desert beside which the Sahara would seem like an over-populated market place. It is easy to talk of depopulation and to make the citizen's flesh creep with a lurid picture of our vanishing young men."

Emigration, he conceded, had during the last two years been heavy, but contended the cause had almost entirely been agricultural depression, and that moreover the southward movement was no new phenomenon. Quoting figures on emigration from Canada to the United States for the six decades between 1850 and 1910, he showed from the statistics that the total loss to Canada during the sixty years was 1,500,000 persons, and that from 1880 on it had decreased materially in each succeeding decade. He believed, he said, that the emigration figures for the last few years would be less striking even than those of earlier crises through which the country had passed successfully.

Mr. Massey concluded with the statement that if Canadians had faith in themselves and a plan of action appealing to all the country could be said, "without any empty rhetoric," to be on the threshold of a new and real golden age.

DEPARTURE FROM

Theo. Paquet; in Brome-Missisquoi where W. F. Hay is opposed by an Independent in Dr. F. H. Pickel; in Champlain, with A. L. Lesaulners defending the seat against A. J. O. Bergeron; in Compton where J. A. Letellier contends in the Liberal interests against M. H. Hill; in Laval-Two Mountains, where Alban Germain, K.C., was selected yesterday to fight under the Conservative banner against Liguori Lacombe; in Levis where Dr. Etienne Dussault will have as his opponent Gedeon Gravel; Matane, where the Liberal candidate was named to-day in the person of L. J. Dionne, as opposed to Romeo Langlais, K.C., of Quebec; in Rimouski, where General Sir Eugene Fiset, who was victorious last year at the by-election, will again defend the seat against G. Simard, and in Temiscouta, where the late member, M. Pouliot will do battle with C. E. Dube, Conservative.

Some little doubt surrounds Maisonneuve in the Metropolitan district and three names have already been put forward, M. C. Robitaille, Liberal, M. Bumbray as a "Patenaude Independent," and W. J. Tremblay, as a Labor candidate.

Altogether sixty-nine names have been advanced out of the 130 or 140 who will enter the contest, while a number of conventions are scheduled for this week. It is probable that the end of next week will see the completion of the various slates.

Liberals will gather to-morrow to select candidates in Three Rivers and Laurier-Outremont, the latter to oppose Hon. Rodolphe Monty, while on Thursday at Lachute the Government supporters will name a standard bearer in opposition to Sir George Perley in Argenteuil.

Conservative conventions are slated for Joliette on Tuesday, where no candidate has been named for either party; for Dorchester on Thursday to select an opponent for Lucien Cannon; Chambly-Vercheres on Friday where the Opposition will name some one to contest the riding against Notary Langlois, who was selected in the Liberal interests to-day. A Conservative convention will be held at Nicolet the same day.

In Quebec City, the situation is somewhat obscure and to date no division has obtained its quota of candidates. The possibility of a three-cornered contest with two Liberals running in Quebec, is in prospect where Major C. H. Power, the late member, is being opposed by J. A. Gauthier, H. E. Lavigueur in Quebec county and George Parent in Quebec West are the only others to be named so far. The Conservative convention for Quebec South is slated for Wednesday.

All party leaders are industrious and Hon. P. J. A. Cardin has been scheduled to speak in many constituencies. To-morrow he will address the convention at Three Rivers, where Mayor Bettez is favored for selection.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheap

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

SETS A HIGH STANDARD.

However varied may be their opinion of the views set forth by Hon. Vincent Massey in his speech at Port Hope the other night, Canadians of all shades of politics who read the new Minister's remarks will agree that he set a high standard in political debate that might well be adopted by leading politicians in all the camps.

Mr. Massey contented himself with discussing the issues as he saw them.

There was no abuse for those who did not hold the same views as he did, no display of petulance and ill-feeling such as have marked many of the political addresses of the present campaign, no personalities, no mud-slinging.

It was a refreshing difference from some of the political utterances that have been heard recently, and the Examiner is quite confident that many electors would prefer Mr. Massey's style.

It should be possible to discuss the issues of the campaign dispassionately and calmly, leaving personal recrimination out of the question altogether.

TRY THE COMMITTEE ROOMS.

The pressure on the registrars caused by people inquiring as to whether or not their names are on the lists has been increasing, and some of the officials are advising voters to wait until their lists are posted when omissions can be corrected by appearance before Judge Huycke when the final revision takes place.

The rush is likely to be greater than ever tomorrow, the last day of the registration, for most people are wisely making sure of their vote now instead of perhaps having to go through the red tape involved in appearing before the judge later on.

The registrars, however, would be greatly assisted in the last day of their work if those who want to ascertain if they are on the list would make their queries at the committee rooms of one or other of the parties.

The Provincial lists used as a basis are available at the party headquarters, and the information can be secured there without interfering with the registrars.

Both parties will doubtless be glad to answer all such queries, and the Examiner advises all citizens who have not yet found out whether or not they are on the lists to make use of the committee rooms of whichever party they favour.

DOMINION DAY.

When delegates from the executives of the various Rotary Clubs of the 27th district, which includes Peterboro, met in conference at Brantford a few days ago a matter that received considerable attention was the necessity of Canadians properly celebrating Dominion Day, and Rotarians were urged to see to it that the children especially were reminded of the significance of the occasion.

This is in line with what the Examiner has consistently advocated, and it is gratifying to find the Rotary Club coming to the rescue.

For years Peterboro has not had a fitting celebration of Dominion Day.

It has been allowed to pass merely as a holiday, with all its historical significance lost sight of, and a golden opportunity to develop a national spirit among our citizens completely thrown away.

The Examiner is glad to know that this question has received the attention of Rotary and trusts that the local club will be successful in having a real celebration of Dominion Day held in Peterboro.

It is Canada's own holiday, and should be marked by ceremonies appropriate to the occasion so that newcomers to the country and the children will learn that Dominion Day stands for something far beyond a day off from work.

STILL GOING UP.

It not only costs more to be born and to live in Ontario than it used to, but from the 6th of October on it is going to cost more to prove when you were born.

An order-in-Council comes into effect on that date providing for changes in the charges for service supplied by the Registrar-General's branch of the Provincial Department of Health, doubling the rates formerly charged.

The changes adopted are as follows:

1.—That no charge be made for (a) search of the records, and issue of the certificates, required under the provisions of the Mothers' Allowance Act; (b) search of the records, and issue of certificates, required in obtaining pensions for disabled soldiers, or for the payment of pensions of deceased soldiers' dependents, properly entitled thereto.

2.—That a charge of 50 cents be made for each search, covering a period of three years.

3.—That an additional charge of 50 cents be made for each additional three years, or part thereof, required to be searched.

4.—That a charge of one dollar ($1.00) be made for the issue of a certificate.

5.—That a charge of two dollars ($2.00) per name, per year, for each year searched be made for a search of the records covering the whole Province.

THE STUDENT BODY.

A New York statistical shark has taken the trouble to ascertain that whereas forty years ago there were approximately 60,000 college and university students in the United States, the number today is approximately a half million, says the Hamilton Spectator. The increase is thus shown to be about 700 per cent., in comparison with a population increase of 70 per cent. This would seem to answer the plaintive query, "What are our young folks coming to?" To the professions, it seems. On the basis of total population, the increase in the percentage of those taking higher education in the United States is duplicated in Canada, where for years the overcrowding of the professions has been pointed to with alarm. The statistical expert whose figures we have quoted declares they prove that the "ideal of an educated democracy" is being achieved, and, he might have added, but didn't, if the increase persists it will not be long before horny-handed sons of toil become extinct. That nine-tenths of the present student body are the children of parents who did not themselves go to college is easy to believe, and the number of college-trained grandparents is conservatively estimated at less than one in a hundred. With the ideal of an educated democracy is actually achieved, who will be left to do the manual labor? The remarkable advances made in the field of automatic machinery are no doubt responsible for the youngsters turning to the white-collar jobs for a livelihood, and it may be that by the time everybody has a college education machines will be developed that will run without attention. Changes are being effected so fast nowadays it seems anything can happen.

THE BASIS FOR THE PRESENT STOCK MARKET.

A reaction has set in on the New York stock market, which has not as yet made its appearance in Canada, while most stocks here are just holding their ground, the favorites have continued to advance, so that average prices still rise.

Undoubtedly a business recovery is under way, but it is not of great proportions, and was fully discounted by the stock markets months ago. This view, which has already been expressed in these columns, is confirmed by the latest New York Times Market Review, written by A. D. Moyes. He points out that there are two kinds of "bull" markets, the one "marked by a general and fairly uniform advance in prices for shares of all producing and distributing companies, it has usually accompanied the coming into sight of a robust nation-wide trade revival, and it has had as its evident basis the buying orders of experienced investors and business men who foresee the rapid coming change in earning power of their enterprises."

"The other description of bull movements," he goes on, "commonly occurs, not at the beginning, but in the later stages of the 'business boom.' Its cause is always the same; it results from the 'capitalizing' by professional Wall Street speculators and by adventurous financiers whom the rise in stocks and the larger company earnings have enriched, of the enthusiasm and excitement which the sight of tangible prosperity instils into the minds of the speculative outside public. Appealing as such a movement of prices does to the imagination rather than sober business judgment, it practically never affects the stock market uniformly and as a whole. Shares of companies which attract conservative investors, whose earning power is easy to judge from adequate reports and the accompanying trade statistics, cannot be easily driven up in price to such heights as the speculative mind conceives; if they were, the new and fantastic prices would invite realizing sales by investors better able to gauge the future earnings of the enterprise than is the group of Wall Street manipulators. . . . Any broad view of the present industrial position belies the theory of an unavoidable 'inflation movement'; the idea of which indeed has arisen wholly from the fact that large facilities for increased credit have been accessible if needed.

"That situation certainly exists, but it existed in even more impressive shape during 1924 and 1923 and 1922, and there is not the least sign of its present operation outside of Wall Street. The country's real prosperity is attested by many convincing evidences, and that prosperity was foreshadowed by the stock market months ago. But nobody hears prosperity assigned as the basis for the present market. Nowhere is it better understood than on Wall Street that what has been fully 'discounted' once on the Stock Exchange cannot be discounted again, and that is the sufficient reason why the fuel for the existing speculative movement is 'amalgamation rumors,' 'split-ups,' 'stock dividends' and a host of similar appeals to imagination. All of these arguments for higher prices had similarly exclusive possession of the field and for similar reasons, in 1919 and 1916 and 1902, and the outcome is a matter of Wall Street history."

The above was written a week ago, and during the interval, prices in New York have kept slipping down. This indicates that the above analysis was correct, and suggests that a turn may also be expected in our Canadian markets. Here also rumors of amalgamations, split-ups, and new dividend declarations have been the basis of the recent advances. There has, for instance, been no important change in the asbestos industry, but Asbestos Corporation shares have trebled in price solely on the strength of the merger negotiations under way. Similarly, British Columbia Fishing and Packing, which has not paid a dividend since 1921, has doubled in price, largely on the strength of a rumor that a pool is operating with the stock. There are similar factors in connection with Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Canada Bread, Montreal Power, and several others.

It is quite in reason that some importance should be attached to rumors and reports, but still they are often untrue, and in any case should not over-balance the facts as shown by past earning and dividend paying records. Altogether it is a dangerous market to speculate in.—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Get your names on the lists now—and vote on October 29th.

Peterboro Rotarians have been advised to use their franchise at the coming election. It is good advice for everybody.

With all three political leaders to speak in the West this week, the Prairie Provinces cannot claim they are neglected at election time anyway.

Three-cornered contests are not as popular as they were in 1921. Probably too many candidates in that campaign lost their deposits.

A THOUGHT.

GIVE THEM CREDIT.

Not long ago a man said to me, while pointing to his business partner: "He is the man the public think I am."

But there are to-day in many business organizations women who are very important factors in the success of the business, and because they are women, some small men cannot, or will not, pay them their just reward in praise or in money.

What would the stores, the hotels, the business offices or the homes do without women?

Only recently I ventured to speak in praise of a worthy and capable woman that holds a responsible business position, when the junior partner smiled a sickly smile, curled his upper lip a little and hesitatingly, weakly, said: "Yes." But the approval had the rising inflection that sounded to me like a question mark.

The fact is that the woman in that organization is the person the public gives the owner credit for.

1. Give women in business the same number of years of experience as we men have had and some sign will read over some door: "Brown, Black & Helen White."

I will admit that most girls may have marriage as their ultimate goal, but when a woman does settle down to business, she has her field and usually fills her position as well as and often better than a man.—Silent Partner.

KEENE PERSONALS.

KEENE, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Bertha Wilson has returned from England after visiting the British Isles during the past thirteen months.

Miss Leona Johnston of New York is visiting her mother at Keene.

Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Clarke of St. Catharines are spending a week at Serpent Mounds shooting and fishing.

Rev. Mr. Downs and Miss Downs of Tyrone returned home on Friday last after spending a few days at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Andrew McLauchlin.

About a year ago Mr. Wm. McNevan had a fine black team of horses, when after a couple of days of sickness one died. A short while ago the remaining horse took sick and died, entailing a heavy loss for Mr. McNevan.

In spite of the bad weather a good congregation attended the Rally Day services on the United Methodist Church circuit. The former Methodist Church of Keene was exquisitely decorated and great credit is due to the Decorating Committee.

At the former Presbyterian Church a good congregation listened to an inspiring address by the Rev. John Archibald.

A sewing meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Howson on Tuesday afternoon.

A congregational meeting will be held in the United Methodist Church on Wednesday evening.

The Rev. John Archibald will exchange pulpits with the Rev. Wesley of Norwood, the former taking the anniversary services at Dummer.

Farmers are fairly well advanced in their fall wheat seeding. Some of the fields are already showing exceptional growth.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press). — Wheat prices suffered a hard tumble yesterday to a new all around low prices record for the season with wheat and every other grain selling under the level that prevailed a year ago. Big receipts of wheat at Winnipeg, the largest ever known at this time of year, had much to do with forcing values down. The Chicago wheat market closed unsettled, 4 to 4 3-4 cents net lower, at about the day's bottom figures, December $1.36 to $1.36 1-8 and May $1.38 3-4 to $1.39 with corn unchanged to 1 1-8 cents down, oats unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 26 cents.

Announcement of 3,845,000 bushels increase of the United States visible supply of wheat as against only 740,000 bushels increase a year ago acted as an additional weight on the wheat market and so, likewise, did prospects that the Canadian crop movement would continue heavy for some time. Throughout the day, there was persistent selling on the part of houses with Eastern connections, houses that were prominent as buyers of late at prices much higher. The Northwest was also said to have sold here today on a liberal scale.

Many standing orders to stop wheat losses at various definite set limits were automatically forced into operation as values here continued to crumble. Meanwhile, the amount of wheat afloat for Europe showed a material increase and report were current that farmers in Montana and elsewhere Northwest were selling stored grain. It was estimated that based on to-day's prices of December delivery here, the principal grain crops of the United States have declined in value during the last month.

In sympathy with wheat September and December corn and September oats established a new low price record for the season. May equalled the previous low price record. Owing to a close relation between corn prices and hog values, however, the corn market displayed much resistance to selling pressure.

Weakness of grain and hogs had a depressing influence on provisions.

GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was extremely dull. The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was reported very quiet on account of the continued weakness in the Winnipeg market. The only business of importance reported was a sale of some No 1 feed oats at 41 3-4 cents per bushel C.I.F., Bay ports, and sales of odd cars of Ontario and Quebec oats were made at 50 1-2 cents, No. 3 white at 48 1-2 to 49 cents, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47 cents per bushel, ex-track.

"In His Quiet Moments"

A True Story

Always 'the life of the party' everybody admires Ted Carruthers for his breezy good nature and winning personality. He is a real man through and through.

But in his quiet moments—

Poor Ted has his personal problem from which he cannot shake himself free when alone. A recent illness, the price of overwork, left his health impaired. The doctor says it is only a matter of time.

He now has only a few short years in which to provide for Mary and the children. What is he to do? He is not able to get life insurance and cannot save much more than $300.00 a year. In five years this will be but $1,500.00—not nearly enough!

'Tis now he realizes just what it would have meant if he had insured when able, to provide for his wife an income of at least $100.00 a month ($1,200.00 a year) as long as she lived. At his age (35) $6.40 a week with the London Life would have guaranteed it, and worry would not now be further sapping his strength, killing any chance he may have had of recovery.

The future may easily be made safe for loved ones by insurance, and worry removed from those who have dependents.

O.M.L. OFFICERS TO PREFER COMPLAINT

Irate at Action of Police in Discommoding Tourist.

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 29.— Local officers of the Ontario Motor League intend to carry to Toronto a complaint against the action of police authorities at Ingersoll in causing an American motorist wanted in that city on a charge of spedeing to be thrown into jail here Friday night after his car had been stopped at the border.

The League was prepared to defend the tourist at Ingersoll Saturday but as an adjournment was about to be ordered and in view of the fact that defendant was anxious to get back home a plea of guilty was entered and sentence suspended on payment of costs. When local league officers heard of the incident Friday night they did everything possible to get the defendant out of jail but without success. The instructions received here from Ingersoll intimating that he was to be kept in custody.

LEAGUE COUNCIL CLOSES SESSION

General Laidoner Appointed to Investigate Mosul Situation.

INVOKED GOOD OFFICES

GENEVA, September 29. — Canadian Press. — The Council of the League of Nations yesterday adjourned its 35th session after appointing General Laidoner of Esthonia, to proceed to Mosul to investigate the situation there. Council members said to-night they hoped Turkey would give the League agent permission to visit that section of Mosul held by Turkey, thus ensuring an extensive and impartial inquiry, and would use its good offices to prevent incidents calculated to endanger peace, pending a definite decision on the sovereignity of Mosul.

COMMUNISM STRONG ALL OVER ENGLAND

Sunday Schools Destroy the Faith of Children in God.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (Canadian Press).—Lady Cowan, President of the British Women's Patriotic League, and wife of Sir Henry Cowan, Inter-Parliamentary Union delegate, said yesterday that the British Communists have established Sunday schools throughout England for the purpose of undermining the faith of the children in God and the Government. Communism, she said, is stronger in England than in almost any other European country.

LABOR GROUP MAY PLACE BAN ON COMMUNISM

Opinion States That Big Issues Will be Left Unsolved.

COMMUNIST CONFLICT

If Recommendation is Carried Out No Members Are Eligible.

LIVERPOOL, England, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— The Parliamentary Labor Party's annual conference will open here to-day. It has importance as showing to what extent the extremists of the labor movement will be able to impose their policy on the Parliamentary leaders.

Informed opinion is that, like the British trades union congress, which concluded its session at Scarborough September 12 without grappling closely with the big issues, no very definite move will be made at this conference, but matters will be allowed to drift.

For one thing, the political left wing has no universally recognized leader to take command. Moreover the nomination for the new executive committee contain only a few left wing names. Perhaps the most interesting conflict from the viewpoint of the general public will be that concerned with the communists.

The executive committee's report includes a recommendation that no member of the communist party shall be eligible to membership in any affiliated local labor party. If this recommendation is carried it will confirm the ban imposed by last year's conference, and the issue will be finally settled. But there is a belief in some quarters the ban may be removed to the extent of admitting individual communists as rank and file members of the party, but excluding anything in the shape of a communist group or party.

DENIES CHARGE

Sales Manager Says Ridiculous That Alberta Wheat Pool Charges Less.

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press.) — "The charge that the Alberta wheat pool has quoted foreign markets the same cargo at three cents a bushel less than Vancouver exporters could get the same grain for is ridiculous," stated George MacIvor, Canadian Co-operative wheat producers' western sales manager, in the course of an interview yesterday, when shown an article which had been published to this effect. Mr. MacIvor said that the pool had no other object in mind than to sell their wheat to the highest responsible bidder, irrespective of nationality.

"If the pool has any wheat for sale, just as long as Vancouver exporters will bid on an equal basis with other buyers they will get their share of pool wheat," he declared.

LOCARNO TO BE DISCUSSION SITE SECURITY PACT

Town Having One Telephone Line and No Telegraph Was Chosen.

NO INDISCRETIONS

Date Announced for October 5th After Detailed Discussion.

PARIS, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press.)— Serious negotiations between the allies and Germany for a security pact will begin in the rather inaccessible town of Locarno, Southern Switzerland, on October 5, a week from yesterday.

The date and place of the conference were confirmed officially this evening after Herr Von Hoesch, the German ambassadors, had spent an hour with Foreign Minister Briand in discussing the details of the organization of the conference.

Locarno was finally chosen, it is understood, because it was considered by the diplomats as offering the best possible guarantees against indiscretions. The town has only one telephone line and no telegraph. The desire of all the negotiators, it is said in official circles, is to avoid outside discussion and polemics in the press over the thorny points of the problem until a basis of agreement is reached.

Officials here are silent as to possible complications arising from the intention, attributed to the German Government in Berlin dispatches, to make the negotiations for security dependent upon previous evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead and elimination of the paragraph in the Treaty of Versailles fixing responsibility for the world war on the Reich.

Inquiry at the Quai D'Orsay on this point to-night elicited the reply that M. Briand and Herr Von Hoesch had discussed only the details regarding the organization of the coming meeting.

United Kingdom Has Greatest Market for Canadian Product.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29 (Canadian Press).—An increase of 22,397,900 lbs. or $1,252,847 in value, is shown in the export last month of Canadian refined sugar, as compared with August, 1924.

The United Kingdom proved to be Canada's best customer, having imported 34,716,000 lbs. worth $2,154,917. Belgium ranked second with 915,000 lbs. valued at $34,176; while France was third with 448,000 lbs. worth $26,656.

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press). —Terrific rain storms have paralyzed all naval operations along the Moroccan coast. This port is closed.

A Levanter of extraordinary violence accompanied by torrential rains has stopped ,for the present at least, all maritime operations.

The telephone lines leading into military head-quarters are down. The Chemorro River has risen so fast as to isolate Dar Quebdani, Spanish military post. Telegraphic communications still is interrupted and only urgent messages are accepted for transmission.

FEZ, French Morocco, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press) — Continued rains along the French front in Morocco have rendered the roads impracticable for motor transport and are severing the telegraphic and telephonic communicatios between Fez and Taza, on the eastern part of the front. The rain appears to have halted operations on the French side.

The Riffians, however, made a counter-attack in the sector of Kel-El-Loun. They also made a spirited attack on the French positions at El Bibane, in the central part of the front. Their attacks, French reports say, were scattered by machine gun and artillery fire.

FUNERAL OF DR. AND MRS. MANN

1st Corinthians: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" laying emphasis on the doctrine of immortality as set forth in Holy Writ. "Our bodies," he said, "were merely the tents, the tabernacles wherein resided the soul." The body was not the man or woman, any more than the coat that was worn or the house that afforded rest and shelter, but the spirit within was that which was immortal, indestructible and which survived the grave. The sting of death had been taken away by Christ's sacrifice. No one feared the reptile whose sting was removed or the lion that had lost its power to devour, so why should the Christian fear death? He thought professing Christians had a great deal to learn from the ancient Pagans, in their attitude toward death, and instanced Socrates awaiting death, and answering those who asked him where he would like to be buried. "You may bury wherever you like if you can catch me. By that time, I shall be far away." Those around whose bier they were all gathered had merely moved into the higher sphere.

Dr. Mann was born in the neighborhood and was a son of a fine old U.E.L. family, one of those families of good citizens that have helped to make Canada the country it is today. He was a son of Christian parents, was brought up in a religious atmosphere of which he proved himself worthy in his later years. He chose for his profession that of a doctor, and he was known to many as the "Good Physician." Mr. Edgar said he had never met Mrs. Mann but from those who had known her, he had learned that she was a worthy helpmate to her husband in his work among the sick and suffering. She accompanied him in all his travels, and was loved by all who knew her. Truly of them, could it be said, in the words of Scripture, "They were lovely and pleasant in their lives and in their death they were not divided."

The Rev. J. A. McKenzie said that the large concourse of people was an eloquent testimony to the love and esteem in which were held their friends to whom they had met to pay the last tokens of respect. He spoke of the lovable character of the doctor. He had always a smile and a pleasantry for everyone with whom he came in contact. His character was such as to endear him to all his wide circle of acquaintances. Rev. Mr. McKenzie spoke of the trials and compensations of a doctor's life. The doctor was with us at all times, he said. The doctor witnessed the maternal pains and the maternal joys; he was with us in sickness and with us at death. The minister spoke feelingly of his friendship with the dead, and alluded to the hope of immortality and life beyond the grave.

Mr. McKenzie then engaged in prayer. The caskets were brought out. Hundreds among the huge crowd were visibly affected as the caskets were placed within the hearses, each of which were covered with wreaths.

Ninety-seven automobiles comprised the procession to Little Lake Cemetery, where all that was mortal of two of the best loved citizens of Peterboro was committed to the dust.

Pick Me Up
MINTO TEA

What a muddle and a mess!

All yesterday, I worked tooth and nail, to get Nature Lore straightened out. Those wild would-be friends of mine had worked tooth and nail to scramble notes as best they could, and it is no joke.

It took me parts of many days, to gather notes of what the wild things are doing in the woods in September, and what they are likely to do in our own town gardens, when they happen to land there, and just one night's playful frolic has made all my work look and read so funny that the newspapers would be put in the madhouse if they tried to print it. Parts of September birds have been mixed with nuts and suet for birds in December.

I worked all day and was just getting the notes arranged again and the torn ones re-written on clean paper, when I heard a dull sort of a puff at the door. It may have been a mild kind of grunt. At any rate, I looked that way, and lo—and—behold, if that stupid story muddler of a porcupine was not sniffing at the door, apparently coaxing for more toasted marshmallow. He looked fresh and happy, just as though he would gladly say, "Good morning," and I felt just as though I would gladly have thrown him into the lake, and added a "Good Night!" to the operation.

After more toasted marshmallows, I got the fat old fellow far enough away for the day, then began again to try to find the story planned for to-day. I found three quarters of it, and was just looking about outside the door, in case the playful things had scattered the rest of it there, when Mickey, the crow, came to the door from inside the shack, with several scraps of paper in his bill. He has entered the back window as I went out the front door. I grabbed the papers away from him, for which he squeaked and scolded, while I took a hasty glance to see if they were the missing part, hoping, at last, my story would be assembled, and, to my utter confusion and chagrin, they were what Mickey had left of the part I thought I had saved. I threw up my arms, slammed the doors and windows, took my bote-nook and went into the woods for fresh stories.

WILL NEVER BE WAR BETWEEN BRITAIN AND U.S.

British Member Refers to 110 Years of Peace Between Two Countries.

COMMON IDEALS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— The visiting British statesmen exchanged felicitations with their brethren of the United States over toasts with ice water at a dinner given by the English speaking union last night to the delegation of forty members of Parliament on their way to the Inter-Parliamentary Union conference at Washington. The fellowship of Briton and American, Anglo-Saxon brotherhood and the common ideals of the two nations furnished the keynotes of the addresses. John W. Davis, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, was toastmaster.

"I am a firm believer that war will never take place between the British Empire and the United States," siad Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, Conservative M.P. from Plymouth and principal speaker. "History has shown that both countries have the same ideals, the same love of fair play and in the 110 years which have passed since the Peace of Ghent, whenever we have both had the misfortune to be engaged in war, it has been side by side.

Electors' Duties Defined.

than six months in the polling division "shall come into such polling division armed with offensive weapons of any kind, such as firearms, swords, staves, bludgeons or the like," and no person is allowed to arm himhelf with such weapons and approach within a mile of the polling place, unless called upon by the lawful authorities to do so.

The returning officer or any of his deputies may on nomination day or polling day demand that any such weapons held by any person within half a mile of the polling place be handed over.

Duties Many, Pay Light.

The duties of the deputy returning officers are set out in great detail. They are listed and printed in bold black type in two columns. The list has no fewer than 40 items. On his appointment, the deputy returning officer has seven different things to d ; before the polls open he has six more, at the opening of the poll there are six more items for him to look after, and 21 specified duties after the polls close.

The list of the 21 may be worth quoting: 1. Admit witnesses. 2. Pack age unused ballots. 3. Package spoiled ballots. 4. Certify number of voters. 5. Count the votes. 6. Package ballots. 7. Swear oaths. 8. Prepare three statements of poll. 9. Put one in D.R.O's pocket. 10. Put one in envelope. 11. Put envelops in ballot box. 12. Prepare certificate of poll. 13. Deliver copy to each agent. 14. Address copies to candidates. 15. Package remaining papers. 16. Lock, seal and address the ballot box. 17. Put ballot box key into its envelope and this into another. 18. Prepare polling station account. 19. Put it into an envelope with key. 20. Despatch ballot box and envelope to R. O. 21. Post certificates of poll to candidates.

And the recompense that the deputy returning officer gets for this day's work, is $7. The poll opens at 8 a.m. and closes at 6. It's a lo. day for the money.

They Use a Code.

One of the interesting features of the instruction book is that it contains a code in which the election officials are to send any communication they may have to transmit to Ottawa in regard to the election forms. Each of the 119 forms is known by a code name and is so to be referred to in the correspondence. Not that secrecy is desired, but as a matter of convenience in dealing with the election matters does the department insist on the use of the code. It is said it greatly simplifies the handling of so much correspondence.

The duties of the revising officers are also set out in detail. There is provision also that if any persons who when asked to take the oath refuse to do so, having on religious belief, they may be asked to solemnly "affirm" without the Bible being used, and this is accepted as of the same value as an oath. Any voter refusing to take the oath when he is entitled to vote, if challenged, is not to be given a ballot paper.

WEDDING BELLS.

CARDWELL—THOMPSON.

A very quiet marriage was solemnized at the Mark Street Parsonage on Saturday afternoon, September 26th, when Thomas Walker Cardwell and Mary Jane Thompson, both of Westwood, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. R. T. Richards.

HART—DERRY.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a diamond pin, to the bridesmaid a string of pearls, to the soloist a bar pin, and to the groomsman a pair of cuff links.

CAMERON—KENNY.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—A very quiet early autumn wedding took place in St. David's Anglican Church at high noon on Wednesday, Sept. 23, when Elizabeth Jane, second daughter of the late Dr. William Kenny, Lindsay, and Mrs. Kenny of 14 Eaton Avenue, was united in marriage to Angus Charles Cameron, Oshawa, eldest son of the late Duncan Cameron and Mrs. Cameron, Beaverton. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. H. A. Bracken, rector. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. James P. Lawder, of Lindsay, looked smart in a sleeveless French frock of blonde silk crepe, made in the prevailing flared silhouette, with cape back and trimmed in contrasting shades. French hat en suite and fox fur. She wore the groom's gift, a linked bracelet of white and yellow gold, and carried a prayer book bound in white kid. Miss Dorothy Kenny was her sister's bridesmaid, and she looked very winsome in a short-waisted bouffant frock of flowered georgette over Chinese blue crepe de chine and chic French hat of the same color. She carried the groom's gift, a silver vanity chatelaine. Mr. J. E. Whitfield of Oshawa was best man. The wedding luncheon was served at the Old Mill, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left on a motor trip to the States. For travelling the bride chose a knitted frock in rose and top coat of brown suede leather trimmed with beaver.

SCULLY—COURNEYEA.

The marriage was solemnized by Rev. P. Costello at eight o'clock this morning, at St. Peter's Cathedral, of Helen Courneyea, of Peterborough, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Simon Courneyea, of Tweed, and William Scully, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Scully, 346 Aylmer street. The wedding march was played by Miss L. Hurley, who also sang several times during the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of mauve georgette with purple hat and coat of brick color, trimmed with fur.

The bridesmaid, Miss Stella Courneyea, was also in mauve, with hat to match.

Peter Spencer acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Scully, Aylmer street. They left this afternoon for a honeymoon in Toronto, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N. Y. They will reside in Peterboro.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a leather club bag, to the bridesmaid a pearl bracelet, and to the best man a pearl tie pin.

GERMANY DAZED CONCERNING NEW PHASE OF PACT

Stresemann Instructed Ambassadors to Raise Question of War Guilt.

PRESS UNPREPARED

Foreign Office Stated Parties in Pact Must Be Equals.

BERLIN, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press). — The fact that the German Foreign Minister, Gustav Stresemann, instructed Germanys ambassadors at London, Paris, Rome and Brussels to accompany formal acceptance of the invitation of the Allied powers to a security pact conference by a verbal note raising the questions of war guilt and reservations respecting entry into the League has left German politicians, press and public virtually dazed. Not only was the German press unprepared for this, but it is also asserted that the federal premiers and foreign relations committe were left in the dark. The unexepected action seems to have occurred at the very moment the committee was dabating whether to approve the Government's acceptance.

There is general confusion in Berlin as to whether the verbal note merely had reference to Germany's position on the war guilt question, Cologne evacuation and entry into the League, or whether the note insisted that Germany would not sign a security pact unless her position on these matters was accepted.

The Foreign Office, aroused by the demands for clarificatio is, now states through officially inspired diplomatic correspondence that the reason for the verbal note was the fact that the Allies had demanded that Germany enter the League before the pact could be concluded.

"A pact can only be concluded between equals enjoying equal rights, not between parties, one of whom is weighted down by the stigma of heavy moral guilt," the correspondence declares in explanation for raising the war guilt issue. "It is self-evident that positive results may be expected from the conference in an entirely different manner once this moral blemish is removed from the German people."

In political circles it is declared that Italy did not object to the German position on war guilt, that Belgium remained indifferent and that while Britain was somewhat taken back at first, she seemed inclined to leave the matter to M. Brian, the French Foreign Minister.

On the question of Cologne evacuation, Germany contends the Allies are illegally holding that territory, and it is therefore their duty to give evidence of their good faith by withdrawing, or otherwise the Germna people would feel that the Allies can do anything they please with them.

With respect to entry into the League of Nations, Germany argues that her reservations laid down in the memorandum of September 19, 1924, which chiefly concerns her inability to participate in military executive action, still hold good.

PREMIER KING

Another Portfolio.

Interviewed by The Examiner today regarding the announcement by the Prime Minister to the effect that the portfolio of Immigration might after the election be assigned to a Western Cabinet Minister, the Honorable G. N. Gordon said that when he accepted the portfolio of Immigration and Colonization, the arrangement was between the Prime Minister and himself that he would accept another portfolio instead of continuing as Minister of Immigration and Colonization, if a satisfactory Cabinet Minister from the West could be obtained to take the portfolio of Immigration.

Better Service.

The Honorable Mr. Gordon said that he was not at liberty to discuss what portfolio would be assigned to him in lieu of Immigration, but he said it would be quite as important and valuable as the portfolio of Immigration. In fact the Honorable Mr. Gordon said he thought he could give better service in the portfolio that he would receive after the election than as Minister of Immigration.

It was pointed out to The Examiner that the announcement made by the Prime Minister is not a new departure, but was presaged in Canadian Press despatches of September 5, when it was reported: "It is understood that in the event of the Government being returned to power Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan will be brought into the Cabinet, and other important changes occur."

HOME TRAINING IS NOT WANTED

Australia Would Prefer To Train Farm Workers Herself.

DIFFERENT METHODS.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 29—(Canadian Press).—The Commonwealth immigration authorities do not favor the British Government's plan of training intending emigrants to Australia so that they will know something about farm work before leaving the home land because the machinery used on Australian farms and farming methods generally in Australia are different from those in England. Australia prefers to do the training herself.

WORK IN FULL SWING MOROCCAN FRONT

Rainfall Has Stopped and Troops Are Active Again.

FEZ, French Morocco, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The rainfall of yesterday has stopped and the work of moving French troops into position and the bringing of supplies of food, ammunition and material to the front again is in full swing. Little fighting is reported along the front. Abd-El-Krim, Moroccan War Lord, foreseeing that an attack against his forces is imminent, is busily engaged in further strengthening his already strong positions on the western end of the line, and also in harrassing the French posts.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—L. C. M. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions, and one of the principal British delegates to the recent League of Nations Assembly in Geneva, declared in a statement to newspapermen to-day that there was no suggestion or question of war with Turkey over Mosul. He did not believe Turkey was prepared to go to war to enforce her demands or would refuse to accept any decision unfavorable to her.

country. It is being given special prominence by the London newspapers because they see a vital conflict between the official Labor leaders and the Communists for the control of the Labor Party.

Anti-Socialist organs for days past have been stressing the impending battle. They have asserted that former Premier Ramsay MacDonald would throw down the gauntlet to the Extremists by moving as a resolution the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the Parliamentary Labor Party that no member of the Communist Party shall be permitted to join any affiliated local Labor party. The Laborite organ, the Herald, which refers to the recent booming of relations of the Labor Party with the Communists as "a stunt which wildly exaggerates its proper significance," recalls that last year's conference decided against the affiliation of Communists and against the adoption of Communists as Parliamentary or local Government candidates, and declares that according to the Labor Party's standing orders, these two questions cannot be opened for three years. The Herald admits, however, that attempts will be made in Liverpool to set aside this standing order.

RALLY DAY AT UNITED CHURCH

Sunday School Pupils Received Rewards for Attending Service.

MANY PRESENT

MILLBROOK, Sept. 29.—The annual Rally Day service in connection with the United Church was held on Sunday morning, the superintendent, W. F. Fallis, being in charge.

The special programme, "He Shall Have Dominion," was used throughout, Mr. Monk of Bethany taking the responsive Scripture reading and Rev. Joseph Wilks leading in the opening prayer. The choir led in the singing of the hymns chosen, which included "O, Worship the King," "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," "This Is My Father's World" and "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult."

The recitation, "What Can a Little Chap Do?" was taken by Arthur Howard, Carl Deline giving "Build Him His City."

The "Wide Awakes," C.G.I.T. group, enacted a pageant, "World Fellowship," the characters being: Peace, Jean Burnham; Immigrant Girl, Wilma Fallis; Africa, Elsie Spence; Japan, Helen Larmer; China, Jean Stinson; India, Hazel McMahon; Philipine Girl, Alvira Davis; Canadian Girls-in-Training, Margaret Howard, Flossie McMahon and Elma Davis; Canadian School Girls, Pearl Davis, Eleanor Fallis and Annie McMahon.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston presided at the organ for the pageant, soft music during the entire time it was being given adding much to the effectiveness of the whole. Just before Peace repeated the final prayer, Mrs. Johnston sang, "The Story Must Be Told," Miss Ella Elson being the accompanist.

The significance of the Christian flag, which was used in the closing scene of the pageant, was explained by Rev. Mr. Howard. The white ground is emblematic of purity, the blue square in the upper right-hand corner typifies faith and truth, while the red cross on the blue symbolizes the sacrifice of Calvary. The salute to this flag, coupled with the salute to the Union Jack, forms part of the opening ritual of all C.G.I.T. groups at their regular business sessions.

Immediately after the offering, which on Rally Sunday goes to aid the United Church in establishing Sunday Schools in needy territory, and in support of other work of the Religious Education Council of Canada, the rewards for those members of the Young Worshippers' League who had attended church twenty-five Sundays and over during the year were given out. The pastor read the report of the league, urging the parents to have their children enrolled for the current year, which begins next Sunday. Fifteen years is the age limit, but no child old enough to be brought to church at all is too young to join. Miss Wilma Fallis is Secretary and marks the attendance each Sunday morning. Being present at the evening service only does not count in the record kept.

The eighteen who received prizes on Sunday were: Mary Burnham, 48 Sundays; Marshal Fallis, 48 Sundays; Arthur Howard and Gerald Todd, 47 Sundays; Madeline McDowell and William Skitch, 38 Sundays; Elwood Fallis, 33 Sundays; Dorothy McDowell, Allen Earl and Jean Stinson, 32 Sundays; Marian and Martha Earle and Annie McMahon, 30 Sundays; Helen Mitchell, 27 Sundays; Jack Stinson, George Sayles and Gordon Muspratt, 26 Sundays; Bryar Edmunds, 25 Sundays.

Suitable books are the rewards given, and no special recognition is made of members who attend less than 25 Sundays out of the 52.

In place of the regular sermon, Rev. Mr. Howard gave an interesting and helpful address on "The Right Investment of Life," prefacing his remarks by a drill, under the command of B. B. Dawson, the five boys taking part being: George Sayles, Buster Raper, Jack Stinson, Arthur Howard and Reg. Edmunds. The varying types of guns used in the drill gave the speaker the illustrative material from which he drew the lessons he desired to impress. A gun is made for one purpose, to shoot; "God has a definite lifeplan for every human person, girding him visibly or invisibly for some exact thing which it will be the true significance and glory of his life to have accomplished."

A gun must be loaded to be effective. God has given energies and powers, physical, mental and spiritual, intending that these be used in the interests of His Kingdom. The aim is important—don't spoil your aim in life by placing between you and God some object, liquor, cigarettes, love of the world, that will cloud the sight and write failure on the years' endeavor.

W. G. Rowland read the Secretary's report showing twenty-five teachers and officers present, with 260 scholars, and an offering of $11.30. The quarterly report gave a total attendance of 1,737, an average per Sunday of 134; verses recited, 805, an average of 67; collections, $62.43, an average of $4.80.

A baptismal service was held immediately following the distribution of the weekly literature, Mr. Fallis pronouncing the benediction. The three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy of Zion were baptized by Rev. Mr. Howard, the names being William Frederick, Joyce Marjorie and Audrey Mary.

The Sunday School will continue next week to meet at 10 a.m., with church at 11 o'clock.

NEW YORK, (Canadian Press). —"I hate to see you work so hard for me," William Hayes wrote in a last message to his wife before he committeed suicide. He was a veteran of the Great War and the effects of gas poisoning he received in action forced him to quit work. His wife had been supporting him.

Further plans were made for assisting the Children's Shelter in Belleville. A barrel of fifty jars of fruit is now being packed and a box of second-hand clothing. As word had been received that the Shelter was in need of pillow cases, each member was asked to donate one. This will bring the total to about sixty, and these are to be brought next Thursday when the ladies meet to sew.

Arrangements were made concerning the booth which the Institute purposes holding at the Madoc Fair on Oct. 6th and 7th. Lunches will be served and bananas, ice cream, soft drinks, etc., will be sold.

PETERBORO GIRL TELLS OF JAPAN

Mrs. Penlington is Authority on the Drama of the Island Empire.

WRITING BOOKS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 29.—(By Canadian Press).—Zoe Kincaid, a Peterborough girl who is now Mrs. John Penlington, addressed the Women's Press Club on the subject on which she is an authority, for she has intensive studied the Japaneses theatre. For 12 years Mrs. Penlington acted as dramatic critic for the "Far East" a British Weekly, which she and her husband founded and edited in Tokio until the city was destroyed in the great Japaneses earthquake, and she amassed material for a number of books on the subject of the Japanese theatre, one of which entitled "Kabuki," the name of a famous native stage, is being published this autumn. Pictures of actor personalities among the Japaneses were presented by the speaker who explained that the actress is very much in the minority, with men taking the parts of women cleverly and gracefully. An actor of 60 years in the role of a winsome girl of 16, thrills his audience and demonstrates the Japanese skill in creative art. She told of the doll theatre, 250 years old, located in Tokio—where Yoshida Bungoro, the famous doll handler, has devoted his life to the management of female marionettes. Although woman has at present an insignificant place in the dramatic life of Japan, some years ago a woman's theatre, which boasted women actors alone, flourished until the death of its enterprising manageress. The popular theatre of Japan had its beginning with a woman, O'Kuini, a sacred dancer of Kyoto, and Mrs. Penlington believes that there is a field for women's theatres in the future.

C. OF C. APPOINTS NEW SECRETARY

Frank G. Stinson Succeeds to Offices Formerly Held By Leon Frazer.

GOOD WAR RECORD.

Last night, at a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, the appointment of Frank G. Stinson as secretary was confirmed. The duties of secretary of the Chamber of Commerce have been carried on conjointly with those of the secretaryship of the Ontario Motor League, the Trent Waterways Association and affliated organizations. Conferences with these bodies have resulted in Mr. Stinson's appointment to all the offices which were held by Leon Frazer, who left Peterboro for Toronto at the beginning of the present month to take up the position of secretary of the Tourist Association of Ontario.

Mr. Stinson, who comes of a family that has been located many years in Peterboro, enlisted in 1916 at the age of 16 in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and served overseas for three years. He was formerly employed as an accountant and as collection manager of the Peterboro Cereal Co. He belongs to the Corinthian Lodge of the Masonic Order, and is a member of the Kiwanis Club. He is also a Lieutenant in the 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons.

FELL OFF BALCONY ESCAPING BLAZE

Woman Dazed By Smoke Had Narrow Escape—No One Burned.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Dazed by smoke in her burning home last night, and with escape by way of the stairs cut off, Mrs. Dalton McEwen, of Woodroffe, near here, groped her way to a verandah on the first floor, and leaning over a balcony gasping for air, fell twelve feet to the ground below. Her husband seized two sheets from his bed, knotted them together, and with one end fastened to the leg of the bed, climbed with their baby to safety. Mrs. McEwen was uninjured.

SLADE BEGINS HIS CAMPAIGN

Liberal in Northumberland Assisted By Sam Clarke, M.P.P. and W. F. Huycke of Peterborough.

Campbellford, September 29. — (Special.) — Fred Slade, the Liberal candidate in Northumberland, opened his campaign at Menie last night. With him were Sam Clarke, M.P.P., and Wilfred Huycke, of Peterboro. About sixty five men and women attended, and gave close attention to the claims for supporting the Liberal party, as advanced by the three speakers. The hall was well filled although some of the farmers were a little late in arriving, and the meeting did not begin until half past eight. However, this is a condition which will likely be encountered at most of the rural meetings, as the farmers are busy threshing, and are engaged in other late work. Mr. Slade was well received. He spoke of the achievements of the Liberal Government in behalf of agriculture, in reducing the cost of implements used in farm work, in securing new foreign markets for farm produce, and in taking up the problem of freight rates.

MOB THREATENS TWO POLICEMEN

Their Car Crashed Into Another, Badly Hurting Woman.

SAID TO BE DRUNK.

MONTREAL, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press). — When an automobile in which two constables were driving this morning, crashed into the rear of a stationary car on Craig Street, badly crushing Miss I. McGinnis, a mob of some five hundred persons rapidly assembled and threatened the officers, whom, the ring leaders declared had been drinking.

The two men took refuge in the Witness building, about which the crowd surged in an endeavour to reach them.

Police Chief Pierre Belanger stated that a most rigorous investigation of the affair would be made. The injured woman is expected to recover.

MAN FOUND DEAD; BELIEVED SUICIDE

Had Been Shot Through the Head By Shotgun—Was Alone at Time.

TILBURY, Ont., Sept. 29 (Canadian Press):—John Hall, aged about 50, was killed by the discharge of a shotgun in his home on Fort Street this morning. Indications point to suicide, although he was alone at the time.

Mrs. Hall, returning from a trip down town, found the body of her husband lying on the floor of his bedroom in a pool of blood. Blood was also spattered about the walls and ceiling. The charge entered his head from below.

Hall leaves a widow and two small children.

LOG DERAILED CAR.

Small Boys Blamed For Mishap to George Street Car.

A log thrown across the street street railway track at the corner of Lock and Braidwood avenue last night derailed one of the street cars, and temporarily interfered with the service from the far south of the city.

Provincial Constable Maker was investigating the matter this morning. It is believed that the youths of the neighborhood were responsible for this bit of vandalism, and although there was no injury to the car the action is a serious breach of the law and involves a grave penalty.

Wheat Prices Swing Up After Last Week's Break

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press). — Grain prices took an early upward swing to-day. Much of buying which accompanied rise was based on opinions that 16 1-4 to 18 1-2 cents a bushel break in wheat prices within a week showed that selling had been overdone and that a substantial rally was to be looked for. Purchasing of wheat was led by houses with Eastern connections numerous commission firms meanwhile advising against selling on any further set backs. The opening which varied from unchanged figures to 1-4c higher, December touching 137 to 137 1-2 and May 139 1-4 to 140 followed by material gains all around, December touching 139 1-8 and May 141 1-2. Corn and oats moved with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1 1-8c higher, December 77 3-8 to 78c, the corn market scored a decided general advance, December reaching 19 1-8.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c higher, December 39 1-8 to 39 1-4. Later, all delivries showed an upturn.

Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.

JAPANESE PRINCE LEADS EXPEDITION

Will Search For Relics of Mesolithic Age in Japan.

TOKYO, Sept. 29. — (United Press.)—Relics of the mesolithic age are being sought by a scientific expedition to Iwate prefecture in Japan, headed by Prince Kashiwa Oyama.

The Prince is a son of the late Field Marshal, Prince Iwae Oyama, who led the Japanese to victory in the Russo-Japanese war. Aside from being a captain in the Japanese Army, the Prince is a scientist, being known as a leading archeologist in Japan and as the author of scientific books."

He believes the present expedition may unearth relics that "may have an important bearing in determining the existence of the mesolithic age in the prehistoric period of this country. We have no evidence so far that Japan was inhabited in the 'meso' or middle stone age. I am eager to find something in the caves which might reveal something of this middle stone age."

RALLY DAY SUCCESS

All Sunday School Members Take Active Part in Special Service.

WARSAW, Sept. 29.—The rally day service for United Church Sunday school this evening, was well carried out. The programme, sent out for all schools, was used. The Sunday school members gathered in the basement and marched into the church.

Ivan Clements recited; three little girls recited a verse each; primary class sang, "I am so glad," and the intermediate classes sang, "Gather them in"; Ivan Drain and Harold Payne took the offering.

Rev. Mr. Herrington explained the uses to which the rally day collection was put.

The address by the minister was on "Loyalty to Jesus." Loyalty, he explained, meant being faithful and true, especially under trying circumstances. Continuing, he endeavoured to show how one could be loyal to Jesus in the home, in the community, in the world at large and in the church. One cannot be loyal and do things displeasing to Jesus, or fail to attend to one's church. Also one cannot be loyal and not help missionary work, for one of Christ's commands was, "Go Ye Into All the World."

NOT ENOUGH MEN JOIN TERRITORIALS

War Office is Not Satisfied With the Militia Strength.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Recruiting figures, while more satisfactory, are still short of what is desired by the Territorial Association and the War Office. The Regular Army is receiving practically all the recruits it wants for all branches, but the ranks of the Territorials fill slowly. To the Northumbrian Division—comprising the east and north ridings of Yorkshire and the countries of Northumberland and Durham, there falls the distinction of requiring fewer officers and men to complete its peace footing, than any of the fourteen divisions into which the Territorial Force is divided.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(United Press)—One of the first fur-trimmed cloth dresses seen on Fifth Avenue is an example of what will be worn on the street this Fall. This dress was made of tan kasha cloth in the popular two-piece jumper model. The V-shaped neckline was finished with a narrow collar of this fur adorned one side of the jumper with a cluster of tan ermine tails acting as a pocket finish. Small turn-back cuffs which finished the slender sleeves were also of ermine.

The vogue for fringe trimming is seen in a chiffon evening gown of orchid shade where rows of silk fringe of six-inch width extend from hip to hemline. The fringe begins at the hipline in the exact orchid shade of the bodice and the rows deepen in color terminating in deep violet at the hem. This gown is straight-lined and unbelted, has rounded neckline and is sleeveless.

Rust, copper, reseda green and almond are among the lighter shades which Paris is sponsoring for dressy afternoon wear. Crepes, satins and velvets are materials featured in these colors.

A specialty shop in New York is showing rubber jewelry for bathing purposes. Earrings, bead chokers and bracelets of colorful rubber are among the items. The earrings are made of two round loops of brilliant rubber attached to the screw-on top. Bracelets are three rings of different colors held together with a rubber bow or rubber flowers. Chokers are large rubber beads on elastic cords.

Hat pin and ornaments of semi-precious stones such as jade, aquamarine, rose quartz and crystal are adorning up-turned felt hats.

Home-Making Helps

THE SUNNY KITCHEN.

Decorators have turned their attention to the kitchen at last and with the idea of making it a cheery spot they are using the peasant colorings in a riotous degree.

A perky sunny kitchen is the yellow one. The side walls painted a real corn color, the ceiling a little lighter in tone, and the woodwork glossy white. The brick back of the range should be red and parked off with white lines. The floors painted the same shade of brick red.

On the floor of the sunny kitchen lay the raided rugs in oval shapes in different sizes. For the curtains, use the color-colored theatrical gauze with yellow oilcloth, with a little pointed lambrequin across the top.

Next we bring in the furniture which is painted yellow with small white decorations in motifs and straight lines. In the armchair is a comfy cushion covered with the yellow oilcloth like the curtains. If the paint has a glossy finish and it can be washed and kept beautifully clean. The same colors are carried into the breakfast alcove which makes a very harmonious whole. Here is a big four-fold screen. Its frame is painted white and its panels of yellow oilcloth which may be used to cut off the view of the stove.

The yellow and white coloring may be carried out in the selection of pottery and food containers for the sunny kitchen a successfully and at small cost. It takes so little color to change the whole atmosphere of a room.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.

A day of activity and steady progress is the presage read from fortunate positions of leading planets. With Saturn, the planet ruling industry and labor of every nature, in strong influence by both solar and lunar direction, there should be substantial reward for application and endeavor. This augury is fortified by the benefic place of Jupiter, emphasizing the financial prospects, and by Mars strongly inciting to enterprise and initiative and stimulating the mind to acuteness by its aspect to Mercury. Personal affairs also should flourish under the friendly Venus rays.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and prosperous year, with increase of money, steady return for industry, and personal happiness. The mind will be keen and the energies bent toward important affairs. A child born on this day will be industrious, energetic and have an alert and resourceful, as well as a studious mind. It will succeed in its undertakings and have a happy and prosperous domestic life.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND.

When Betty had to move from the great, big white house into the little red house down at the foot of the hill, she pouted and fretted most of the time.

"I hate this old house," she mused as she sat on the steps of the porch. "I hate a little house like this," and great big tears rolled down Betty's cheeks and splashed on her apron.

"Well, well, well," laughed a merry voice, and Gocomeback, the wee Travel-elfin, perched himself on the porch rail and tipped his tall, pointed hat. "Why all the tears?"

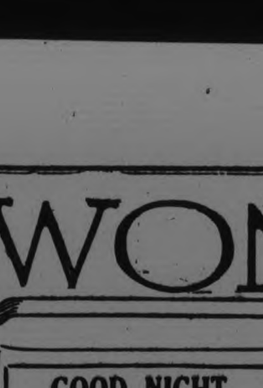
toMy! How he laughed when Betty told him why she was crying, and without answering, he caught hold of her hand and away they sailed through the air to a strange, strange land.

As far as Betty could see, there wasn't a sign of a house, yet the queer looking folks, of a dark brown color, seemed perfectly content roaming in and out under wall-less sheds, as Betty called them.

"Where are we anyway, Gocomeback?' she laughed. "And what do these folks do when it's bedtime?' Where are their homes?"

"Nothing like asking questions," laughed the elfin. "Well, Honey, we're in Guiana, and these sings you call sheds are really Waru houses. Let's look at one," and he led Betty under the one nearest to them.

It had no walls. Four posts stuck into the ground supported a palm-leaf roof. Pans, paddles, clubs, guns, bows and arrows were hung from the corner poles. Hammocks swung from the posts,



"Sleep in those hammocks."

one above the other—there must have been at least thirty in all.

"Do you mean to tell me, they sleep in those hammocks?" Betty whispered.

"Surely, they do," laughed Gocomeback, "and you never saw a happier, more care-free race than the Guiana Indians. Why, no matter what time of the day you pass this way, you'll always find some of the hammocks filled, for they are rather a lazy tribe."

"But, goodness, the mosquitoes," laughed Betty. "I should think they'd be eaten up alive."

"I guess they would be if they didn't build great big fires in the center of their houses every night," replied Gocomeback. "Then they take turns getting up and stirring it. Why sometimes the smoke is so thick you can't see from one side of the house to the other, but as long as the mosquitoes don't bite, the Guiana Indians don't mind the smoke."

"My goodness," Betty laughed. "I know our big white house isn't nearly as nice as the little red house, but I have no cause to complain when I see the way some folks live. I'm really ashamed of myself. I'm dreadfully sorry."

Like a puff of smoke Guiana with its queer little homes vanished and Betty found herself sitting once more on her own front steps in good old America. She laughed merrily and ran into the house to help her Mama. She never complained again of the little red house.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

Is you scalp so clean and strong and healthy that it is able to grow beautiful hair?

I really feel that such a scalp is within reach of every normally healthy person who wishes to have it and is willing to take care of her scalp with persistent effort.

This does not mean that the acquiring of such a scalp will be a hard thing to accomplish. It simply means that if you give your scalp a chance, by allotting to it a normal amount of beauty care, you will be well rewarded for your efforts.

Now, it seems to me that dandruff is one of the commonest scalp ailments, and one which can rob otherwise lovely hair of all its claims to beauty.

It is normal for the healthy scalp to have a very, very small amount of dandruff, and many of us find some of this when we give our hair its regular shampoo. But the head which contains so much dandruff that small flecks of it dot the hair and make it look spotted and dirty is very objectionable, and a serious obstacle in the way of beauty.

The best dandruff remedy I know is a good old-fashioned home treatment which I am going to recommend to you. If you have bobbed hair, you may find that your scalp contains more dandruff than it ever did when your hair was long. This is often the case because the person who has bobbed hair has to shampoo it more often to keep the short hairs fluffy, and the frequent shampoos dry out the scalp and rob it of its proper nourishment. It is a mistake, I think, to shampoo your hair oftener than once every two weeks.

If you have been accustomed to washing it oftener, try the two weeks' method. Your hair may seem very oily the first time you wait this long, but it will soon adjust itself. The following dandruff remedy will work wonders:

All you need is a small amount of coal oil.

By this I mean the regular old-fashioned coal oil which our forefathers burned in their glass lamps. Heat this coal oil till it is slightly warm.

In the meantime, have your hair parted thoroughly, so you can apply the oil to your scalp. Then take a small bit of absorbent cotton, dip it into the oil and rub the oil thoroughly into your scalp. You should go through this treatment at night. Tie a towel over your head when your scalp has been thoroughly saturated, and sleep with the towel on all night.

Next morning, wash your hair in the regular way. If you go to business, it will be worth your while to get up extra early in order to wash your hair before you go.

Try this very time you shampoo your hair for a while and see if you do not find a decided beauty improvement in your scalp and hair.

SHE DISCUSSES A VELVET FROCK FOR WINTER AFTERNOONS.

"Do you know," chattered Veronica, "if I don't see one of those black flares that this whole establishment says is the newest line of the year I shall begin to think there is no such thing."

"Cheer up," I said, "Madame is going to show us one in a minute."

"Come close, all of you," said Madame, "and I will show you how a handful of black chiffon velvet can be cut to perfection."

"Godets," breathed Haidee. "Three of them, and all in the back, the while the front is perfectly straight." (Haidee can always be counted on to recognize the most striking feature of any frock.)

Madame smiled approvingly. "It does give an entirely new silhouette, doesn't it? I can say quite certainly that it will be the most popular dress note of the year."

"Do you really think so, Madame?" came a voice from the door. "Then let me come and see." It was Mrs. Livingston, one of the most discriminating patrons.

"Oh!" she cried admiringly. "Isn't it different. Do you really think it will be as popular as flares all around, flares on the side and flares in the front have been?"

"Indeed, yes, Mrs. Livingston." Madame swept several yards of lace from a chair so that her distinguished visitor might be seated. "It seems strange to you now, but I warn you that no woman will feel quite happy without a back flare of some kind before the year is out."

"Well," she reflected with her head at a critical angle, "it really has a strikingly piquant air. And is that a scarf around the neck?"

"Not exactly," I answered, "though, of course, that is the intention. The scarf arrangement is fastened to the dress doubtless so that the satin will stay as the designer intended, with one floating free down the back and the other down the front."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

My best boy friend wants to write to another girl "Just for fun." She is my very dearest chum and I love her, but don't want everyone else to. Oh, yes, I suppose I have plenty of other friends, but none quite like these two. I know he wouldn't write if he knew I didn't want him to, so how can I be so silly and selfish? Yet, the fact remains that he wants to, I guess I'm jealous, so just give me a good scolding Dear Annie Laurie, and wake me up. Please remember I like them both very much.

"Loving Two Pals."

"LOVING TWO PALS". I don't think you need a scolding. It is quite natural to object to such a procedure. The only thing you can do is to make up your mind to either of two courses. You can make a very strong objection to your boy friend commencing this correspondence and either of two things will happen. He will do as you wish and you will probably be contented, or he will do what he wants to do, and you will merely be the member of one of those triangular affairs that cause a lot of trouble, especially when this girl is your dearest chum. Or, you can take a philosophical view of the matter and let them both go ahead and see what happens. You know, they say the best way to manage a man is to leave him absolutely alone. If you adopt the latter course, however, I advise you to cultivate some other young man's friendship right away. What is sauce for the gander is also very good sauce for the goose.

Does Your Oven Do This?

A cake baked higher on one side is lighter and tastier on one side. It doesn't look attractive. It is hard to ice—the icing runs down the slant.

Burnt and dry—
A cake that is burnt and dry on the bottom while under-done at the top is a grief to any good cook.

Soft, soggy undercrust:
A pie that is browned at the top, yet with a soft, soggy, under-done lower crust, is the result of an uneven oven.

The even oven of the Gurney bakes a cake evenly, to the good cook's delight.

And it bakes a pie with a nicely browned top and a perfectly cooked undercrust.

DOES it bake a cake higher on one side than on the other?

Does it burn it on the bottom before the top is baked?

Does it bake a pie too brown on top and leave the bottom crust soft and soggy?

If your oven does any of those things, it is because the heat is unevenly distributed.

I feel sorry for the woman who has to bake in an uneven oven. It's heart-breaking to take so much care in making a beautiful cake or pie and then have the oven spoil it.

The best advice I can give her is to make sure her next gas stove is a Gurney.

We've gone to no end of trouble to make the Gurney Oven an even baker.

We've designed a range which prevents the oven getting too hot at the bottom and equalizes the heat at the top and sides.

The oven burners, too, are designed to spread the heat rather than concentrate it, and the flues to assist in distributing the heat evenly around the oven.

The oven is also of the correct size and shape to heat up evenly with the size oven burners used in each Gurney range. It is a scientifically designed and built oven—not a guesswork oven. We've taken the guesswork out of our oven. We've given you instead a uniform oven—a perfect baker.

Cakes baked in a Gurney oven rise up evenly. They are baked exactly right top and bottom. Pies have the undercrust done right at the same time that the top is nicely browned.

No matter which size or style of Gurney Gas Range you select, I promise you a uniform oven. And I promise you a range that is easy on gas, convenient, satisfactory and durable.

Wouldn't you like this kind of a gas range?

Yours sincerely,

Holt Renfrew

OPENING ROUND OF MEDAL GOLF TO A CANADIAN

Mrs. Fraser Won Gold Trophy—Broke Course Record.

2 OTHERS QUALIFY

Previous Record Set by Miss Glenna Collett—Bettered by 2 Strokes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 29 (Canadian Press).—Canada featured the opening round of the women's national golf championship here yesterday, Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, winning the gold medal with a 37—40—77, setting a record for the course and for qualifying scores in the event. Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto scored an 86, and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen took a 91, both qualifying.

The previous best score in the championship qualifying rounds was a 79 last year by Glenna Collett over her home club at Providence. And that was the first time the women had ever broken through 80 in medal competition.

Miss Collett was one stroke better than last year, taking 78 with a fine 37 on the second nine to win second place.

These were the only two players to score under 80 on the 6,408 yard links, which has a par for women of 40—41—81. Two other players, however, broke par, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, defending champion, tying at 80 with Edith Cummings of Chicago, a former titleholder, who equalled Miss Collett's 37 on the second nine.

Mary Browne, of Los Angeles, who was the runner-up to Mrs. Hurd last year, and Mrs. Audrey Faust Wallace of St. Louis, tied for fifth place at 82. Seventh place went to Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, who had 84. The next best score of 85 was shared by Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wisconsin champion, and Mrs. Harley Higbie, Detroit, Mich., titleholder. Miss Mackenzie, who recently defeated Mrs. Fraser in the finals of the Canadian championship, finished in tenth place.

Mrs. Fraser, who as Alexa Stirling held the title for five successive years while a resident of Atlanta, was back in her old-time form and started so well that she bagged four birdies on the first nine and took three strokes off par in spite of going one above perfect figures on the 183 yard third hole. This score was only two strokes above men's par. She got three more birdies on the way home, but was one above perfect figures on the two short holes, totalling 40, or one better than womens' par.

Champion And Challenger Are To Sign Fight Articles

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 29 (Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills will sign articles for a match in 1926, here this morning, according to an announcement last night by Rob Roy Benton, Dempsey's secretary.

The announcement was made at the conclusion of a five-hour conference attended by Dempsey, Benton, Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager, and members of the local syndicate which is financing the fight. This group is headed by Andrew Weisber, local hotelman.

Benton did not make public any of the details of the proposed match.

Dempsey and Wills remained here last night.

MASSEYS DEFEATED C. P. C. 3 TO 1

Mayette Was the Outstanding Man—Game is Protested.

The fast junior aggregation, the C.P.C. met their first defeat in junior circles on Saturday afternoon by the Massey to the tune of three goals to one in the Charity Cup match on King Edward Park. The decision of this game has been protested by the losing eleven through Sullivan's participation.

First Half.

The Masseys won the toss and Capt. Hotston decided to make the C.P.C. face the sun. From the kick-off, Mayette outwitted the defense to make Montgomery throw himself at the ball to prevent a tally. C.P.C. retaliated in great fashion but could not get within shooting distance. A break-away by Massey forwards found the opening in the goal when Bromley connected from a pass by Mayette after twenty minutes play. This success did not last long because James and Co. pressed continually with shots at Bartley who had to admit defeat when his full back equalized to his own disadvantage. Half-time: C.P.C. 1, Masseys 1.

Half-Time.

On resuming, the C.P.C. raised a barrage upon the Massey's goal without any result. Dilatory play gave an opening to Hotston who upset the C.P.C. defense when he went right down into their territory to pass across to Sullivan who did the needful with his head. Exchanges were even thereafter until Mayette on an individual effort went right through to put his team ahead with a third goal about ten minutes before the final whistle. Masseys 3, C.P.C. 1.

C.P.C.—Montgomery, goal; Grant and Halliday, backs; Laidlaw, Carmichael and Buchan, half-backs; Mitchell, J. Downer, W. James, Cross and Foster, forwards.

Masseys—Bartley, goal; D. Walker and Linsey backs; Westlake, Roberts and McGrath, half backs; Mayette, H. Walker, Hotston, Bromley and Sullivan, forwards.

Referee—Alister Mitchell.

cases which show an increase of 5,373 cases as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 459 cases with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date show a decrease of 1,650 cases with the same period for 1924.

There was on change in the condition of the market to-day the undertone being firm and prices for all grades maintained. The demand was steady for supplies and a fair amount of business was done for local consumption. The receipts to-day were 959 cases as compared with 2,058 for the same day last week, and 1,128 for the corresponding day a year ago.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for potatoes owing to the continued small supplies coming forward on account of the wet weather in many sections of the country. There was a moderate demand and the bulk of the offerin met with a fair sale at unchanged prices. New Brunswick cobblers in car lots sold at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

The export of butter from the port of Montreal for the week ending September 26, 1925, were 15,952 packages which shows an increase of 545 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 8,123 packages with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date have been 163268 packages in excess of the same period for 1924.

The feature of the trade was again the strength that prevailed in the market and prices scored a further advance of 3-4c to 1c per lb. which was attributed to the continued steady demand for supplies from all sources and a fair amount of business was done. The receipts of butter were 1,138 packages as compared with 3,050 for the same day last week, and 4,606 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The exports of cheese from the port of Montreal last week were the largest on record for the season to date there being 86,908 boxes shipped which showed an increase of 16,762 boxes, as compared with the previous week ,and an increase of 10,913 boxes with the same week last year, and the total shipments for the season to date have been 143,239 boxes larger , than a year ago.

The undertone to the market continues strong and prices have been marked up another 1-4c to 3-4c per lb. The volume of business for export account was fair owing to the fact that the bulk of the offerings made over the week-end were accepted by English importers and in addition to this there was some trading between houses on spot with the result that the market was moderately active.

The receipts of cheese to-day were 14,400 boxes as against 12,903 for the same day last week, and 6,659 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Beans wer steady at $2.30 per bushel.

LOCAL BOYS AT OSHAWA MEET

Won Two First Prizes in Schoolboy Meet in This District.

GO TO TORONTO.

Oshawa despatches complained about the poor showing made by Peterboro school boys in the district meet in the motor city on Saturday. They broadcasted the news that Peterboro had been represented by only four public schools boys and no collegiate scholars, and made no mention of the showing made by the boys who went.

On a hurry up call received towards the end of last week, which was the only notice received, four boys, R. Sturgeon of Peterboro Collegiate and J. Sturgeon, Dormer and Dorington of the public schools, were chosen because they had made a good showing in the city championship events held at the Exhibition Grounds. R. Sturgeon won the high jump, while J. Sturgeon took the pole vault, and Dormer was second in the 220-yard dash. The first places entitles the boys to go to the Provincial meet in Toronto tomorrow.

Messrs. Dearborn and Steer of the public school staff accompanied the boys to Oshawa.

C.P.C. have lodged a protest against the Masseys playing Sullivan in their team on Saturday last when the later were defeated by three goals to one in the Charity Cup match. This subject was discussed in every form and from every angle. The said player—Sullivan—was also a signed man for C.P.C. and played for them against Masseys in a league game. On Sept. 5th, Masseys signed said player and took part in the game—now discussion run away in many direction. "In dealing with any protest the Directors may take into consideration the possesion by the protesting club of any knowledge which if properly used, might have obviated the protest.

Billingsley is also a signed player for the Masseys and partook in a game for the C.P.C. without getting a transfer.

The question of the protest was left over until next Monday evening when all data, players, officials and directors will be present to settle the dispute.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The three great essentials of the swing are: 1—hit with the center of the clubhead. 2—hit with a square impact and, 3—hit into the direction line. It is very easy to hit the ball with an apparently solid effect and yet be losing distance and accuracy because the clubhead at the impact is slightly changed from a square impact. If the clubhead is tilted forward slightly, through a tendency of the right hand to roll over at the impact, a persistently low ball will result—with good distance but an unsatisfactory flight. If the right hand collapses at the impact the clubface will fall away and a skied or sliced ball will result. Keep the club face square and exert a tendency to hit from the inside out, which makes the clubhead follow after the ball on a straight line.

ONE KILLED, 3 HURT AS AUTO SWERVED

Woman Thrown Through Windshield to Crash Against Bridge Guard.

MONTREAL, September 29. — Canadian Press. — Berthe Jacques, 26, of Montreal, was instantly killed, Gabrielle Galout, 25, also of Montreal, and George T. Templeton, 37, of Simcoe, Ont., suffered serious injuries, which may prove fatal, when the automobile in which they were driving crashed into the railing of a bridge on King Edward Highway, about 15 miles from Montreal last night.

The accident occurred as the driver of the automobile, which was a hired taxicab, swerved slightly in an attempt to find the road, which he thought was near by.

The shock caused the occupants to be thrown out of the automobile, some of them going through the top, the dead woman through the windshield, and her head struck the railing of the bridge. The driver of the car was not injured.

McBride & Franks Explain What "Factory to Home" Selling Means.

In an interview with McBride and Franks, of the Factory-to-Home Furniture Store, 224 Charlotte Street, these enterprising local merchants report business good and expanding month by month. They attribute such satisfactory conditions due largely to their economic policy of selling top-grade home furnishings direct from factory to the user, which, they claim, means a considerable saving in cash to all who favor them with their patronage.

And now, with the advent of the fall season, for the benefit of those who have not yet patronized their store and reaped substantial advantages in out-of-the-ordinary values, McBride and Franks offer a word or two in explanation of their business slokan, "Furniture from Factory to Home":—

This firm does not stock heavily, but sell mainly from the newest factory samples and from catalogues. When the samples are purchased they are at once replaced, and when a sale is from catalogue the merchandise is shipped direct from the factory to customer. Such a plan spells economy to the firm's patrons, for, with McBride and Franks, the overhead saving thus effected by a quick turnover, together with the elimination of interest charges on the capital investment necessary were a large stock carried, is passed on to their customers in correspondingly reduced prices.

This local business house also wishes to emphasize that they meet all mail order prices. Consequently a great many Peterboro citizens who previously shopped at mail order stores are now buying from McBride and Franks, and thus leaving slogan, "Furniture from Factory to money which would otherwise find its way to other cities.—(Adv.)

ROAD TO MARMORA MAY BE IMPROVED

County Roads in Good Condition Except Easterly End.

Because of the gradually increasing traffic between Peterboro and Marmora, W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., told The Examiner to-day that he intended to consult highway officials about improving the eastern end of the road between the two communities. There has been no complaint about the condition of the road between this city and Norwood and also to Havelock, and for a mile or two beyond that, but the easterly section close to Marmora is not satisfactory, and certainly not conducive to communication by automobile.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

FROM MR. BURNHAM.

Sir,—The lengthy article in the Toronto Star from Peterborough, written by a Star staff reporter, describing Mr. P. as a quiet, harmless, amiable gentleman, and Mr. Gordon as a man of force and ideas, with various slaps at my humble self, may be true enough. I am not going to dispute it. But surely the policies at stake and Canada herself should be our objective, not one personality or another. We have got so local and parochial here that we are like the swamp fox which carries everything, including chickens, latch keys, old old clothes and even a piano leg away to his own lair. It doesn't matter to that animal so long as it is getting something from somebody else, whether there is any sense in it or not. For goodness sake let us be big enough to think of something bigger than ourselves once in a while and here is our chance.

Though I do not blame The Examiner which in all fairness I must say is scrupulously fair in local political and party matters, for such an article as that referred to, I think in justice to the Conservative party's candidate, and that party, he should be treated by government press with more respect, especially as the Liberal press were manifestly most anxious to get him into the fight. Was the object to make it a fight of personal comparisons rather than policies?

DEALERS IGNORE SOFT DRINK TAX

Government Officer Visits District With Intention of Prosecuting Delinquents.

There's a rod in pickle for grocers and other retailers who have refused to comply with the law respecting the taxing of soft drinks.

T. P. Eversfield, Provincial luxury tax inspector, told The Examiner this morning that although the Department was reluctant to prosecute those who were dilatory about this duty, an example had to be made of some of the offenders.

"There are quite a few of them throughout this district," he said. "Some are in business in Peterboro, some in Lakefield and Warsaw, and they must be taught that the luxury tax on soft drinks is required by legislation which cannot be ignored with impunity. I am hoping that we may yet find it unnecessary to prosecute these dealers."

A fine of $25 and costs, with an option of ten days in jail, was imposed on a Toronto grocer a short time ago, but even an example of that kind has not been sufficient to impress on all local dealers in soft drinks that they are accountable for the luxury tax on any soft drinks they sell.

COMPETITION RESULTS

Arthur Edwards Won First Place With Wisconsin No. Seven.

WARSAW, Sept. 29.— Silo filling began in this district on Friday —Wm. Hawthorne's corn was cut, Wm. Dunsford's engine.

The following is the result of the corn competition, held by the Dairo-Dummer Agricultural Association: 1st Arthur Edwards, Wisconsin No. 7; 2, Allan U. Payne, Wisconsin No. 7; 3, J. A. Crowe, White Cap Yellow Dent; 4, J. Hawthorne, White Cap Yellow Dent; 5, Fred Morgan, Wisconsin No. 7; 6, Gordon Payne, Wisconsin No. 7; 7, Wm. Hayes, Wisconsin No. 7.

The points obtained are not to be published until after the returns come from the Department.

There are several fields of corn that were not entered that make a splendid showing. Among them Mr. P. Fitzpatrick's, which is on the north side of a hill.

It is many years since the corn was so generally whitened by frost.

Allan U. Payne sowed sunflowers among his corn and the field is a gorgeous display of the great yellow heads; they are taller than the corn, and many stalks have several heads. They do not make the corn any more easily handled. Last year Mr. Payne planted sunflowers and liked them so well, he sowed them a little more trickly this year.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

THE GISH SISTERS IN "ROMOLA"

One observer who saw "Romola" at the Capitol Theatre last evening compared it to an opera. The grand, somewhat sombre atmosphere of the dramatization of George Eliot's famous novel has a good deal of an operatic touch about it. The sequence of events seems to move to music. It is not so much like a tale of real life and real people as of some far-off dramatic, imaginary occurrences brought to life on the screen to allow a glimpse of long-ago times and manners. The ways and thoughts and feeling of Italy and its jewel city, Florence, at the time of the Italian Renaissance, are depicted on the silver sheet in a fashion artistic and memorable.

Lillian Gish is as superb as ever. She appears to be one of those unusual actresses who subordinate their own personality to the delineation of the character they happen to be portraying at the moment. The audience does not see Lillian Gish. They see "Romola," the "Lily of Florence," a beautiful, serene maiden into whose sheltered and remote life, passed amidst the bookish hours of her blind father, Bardi, comes the showy and treacherous Greek, the handsome Tito Melema, saving her father from a street rabble and then worming his way into the old, blind man's confidence.

Tito is the villain of the piece, and he gives a wonderful characterization of the adventurer of mediaeval days, the swashbuckling politician who uses the forces of church and state to advance his cause. Allying himself with schemers who seek to overthrow the rulers of Florence, the Medici, Tito double-crosses his companions, then finds himself in the toils of his own weaving and escapes, only to plunge to a sudden death in the waters of the Arno, pressed beneath the waves by the hand of a madman who has long nursed a grudge against the treacherous youth.

Woven through the tapestry of Tito's life is the double love story of his own seeking, the marriage with Tessa, the pretty seller of garlic and milk on the market. This marriage is kept secret and Tito is enabled also to marry the patrician Romola, and become master of her palace and riches.

The part of Tessa is played by Dorothy Gish, who gives it a jaunty, fascinating touch. But she has yet a long way to go before she can achieve the art of her sister, Lillian, a superb actress who conveys in silent, quiet moments impressions of sorrowful, tragic reactions to strong emotion.

There are some wonderful episodes in this picture, not heightened to spoil the general effect, as so many producers do with high lights of their pictures, but sufficiently impressed on the minds of the audience. There is the throw back picture as the old man tells his story in the banquet hall; the scenes of pirate ships fighting on the open sea and there is the mighty, shadowy hand in the sky at the moment of the burning at the stake of Savonarola, the monk who thwarts Tito's purposes.

It is a memorable picture, one of those artistic productions that have no jarring notes and appear to move on oiled wheels to a satisfactory finale, and gives one throughout the impression of exhaustive research on the part of its makers to achieve the finished effect. The figure of Lillian Gish centres it at all times. She is the mild, cultured Florentine maiden of ancient days, always kind, even to the last moment when she is confronted by her husband and his wife and child, and turns to point out to him his last desperate refuge. As a keyhole picture of forgotten days and ways, of times when history was in the making, "Romola" is exceptionally well worth while.

An extremely effective foil for the dignified feature is the comedy which precedes it, a Walter Hiers outburst, with the fat comedian in mirth-provoking situations as a policeman entrusted with the care of a small infant. Anyone who likes a real good laugh should see this portly young man try to play a Sousaphone in a street parade and comfort a crying baby on his left arm at the same time.—Jeanette.

AT THE ROYAL.

CIVILIZATION INDICTED.

Frenchman Says Best Proof Is Capital Punishment.

In an exhaustive treatise upon "Capital Punishment," Prof. George Le Fevre, eminent French criminologist, voices the startling opinion that hundreds of prisoners, convicted through circumstantial evidence of crimes they did not commit, yearly meet death upon the gallows or in the electric chair.

This statement is in direct line with the theme of "Capital Punishment," the B. P. Schulberg production now showing at the Royal Theatre.

Facts and figures bolstered by citations of indisputable authenticity are submitted by Prof. Le Fevre who is a recognized "anti" of the death penalty for crime, in corroboration of his statement. In Russia, Germany, France and England, he computes more than seventy "legalized murders" to have been perpetrated last year upon victims of the capital punishment system.

"The enormous strides of applied science and practical philosophy through four centuries past toward the gaol of humanitarianism," says the criminologist in the course of his paper, "makes more appalling the lagging of the race for human betterment in our system of courts and jurisprudence. As regards the punishment of wrong doing, the checking of crime, we are yet in the Dark Ages.

"BLOSSOM TIME" A RED LETTER EVENT

Few Attractions of This Calibre Visit Smaller Cities.

The visit to the Grand on Saturday of "Blossom Time," that most tuneful of all musical plays which is based on the life of Franz Schubert and contains some of the famous composer's best known music, will be a red-letter occasion for Peterboro playgoers. Very seldom does an attraction of this calibre make its way to the smaller cities and when a production like "Blossom Time" with a complete metropolitan cast and scienc investiture visits us a capacity audience should be confidently expected. Peterboro will have nothing better in the theatrical line than this attraction, and if it is not well patronized, it is not likely that there will be an opportunity of seeing any production on this scale for some time.

SHUBERT MUSICALES FOLLOW IN WAKE OF "BLOSSOM TIME"

If a custom that is gaining in vogue in other cities is carried out here, music lovers will no doubt organize to hold a series of "Schubert Nights" following the presentation shortly of the world-famed musical success, "Blossom Time" which the Messrs. Shubert will present at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, October 3rd, matinee and evening.

"Blossom Time," with Franz Schubert's own music, with the story based on the actual life of the famous composer, is stimulating increased interest in the works of Schubert wherever the play is being presented and has invariably been followed by a series of "Schubert Nigths" at which only the works of this gifted composer are played.

The same custom swept through Europe shortly after the young musician's death, as it was not until after he had died that the real significance of his works was felt by the public. Franz Schubert died when he was only 31 years old, the author of more than 600 compositions. A great many of these have not been played in public although the interest in Schuberts music, stimulated by "Blossom Time", has been the cause of bringing a great many of his lesser known compositions before the American public.

WEDDING BELLS

CROWLEY—WOLFF

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding at an early hour this morning, when Mary Myrtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Wolff, 542 Donegal Street, became the bride of Mr. Joseph J. Crowley, son of Mrs. Laura Crowley and the late David Crowley. Rev. P. Costello performed the ceremony. Two small brothers of the bride, Ernest and Gregory Wolff, acted as acolytes.

The bride wore a pretty dress of beige flat crepe with trimmings of lace and gold. She wore a black velvet hat, trimmed with French flowers and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Wolff, was in shot turquoise taffeta, with hat to match and bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Clair Wolff acted as best man. After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast, catered for by Messrs. T. H. Hooper and Sons, was served at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowley, who will reside in Peterboro, left later on an extended motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City. The bride travelled in a smart suit of navy broadcloth, trimmed with sand and gold, and hat to match.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
There are many gods, and many lords, but only one Almight; Jehovah God, and only one Lord Jesus Christ. Theer are a number fallen angels, the chief one being Satan, who called Satan, the Devil. Sin is disobedience to the law or will of God. The penalty for sin is death. Death is total extinction of life. If mankind has been redeemed from the penalty of sin in this age. As in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive. It is easily seen that the penalty for sin in this age has been cancelled, else there would be no resurrection. When Jesus comes to reign here on earth, all who are willing and obedient will enter into eternal life, and it shall be that every soul that shall not hearken to Jesus, shall be utterly destroyed, or die the second death, from which there is no resurrection. When Jesus comes to reign there shall be a restoration of all things, the curse shall be lifted, paradise shall be restored, and all mankind shall come to a knowledge of the truth, and shall have the one supreme chance of having everlasting life in a state of happiness.—T. T. Butcher. 1d76 2214

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of Pte. Walter V. McIlmoyle, killed in action Sept. 29, 1918:
Across the sea in a distant land,
Beside his comrades brave,
Our boy lies quietly sleeping
In an unknown warrior's grave.

May the heavenly winds blow softly
O'er the sweet and hallowed spot,
Though the sea divides his grave from us
He will never be forgot.

Hard was the blow that compelled us to part
From one whom we loved so dear to our hearts,
We do not forget him, we loved him so dearly,
For his memory too from our eyes like a dream.,
Lips need not speak when the heart mourns sincerely,
But grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

DR. EMBURY OPENS CAMPAIGN IN PETERBORO-HASTINGS RIDING WITH AN ADDRESS AT NORWOOD

Introduces Himself To Electors of Old East Peterboro and Denies Rumors.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Mrs. H. T. Fallis and Mr. J. F. Strickland, of Peterboro, Discuss Election Issues.

(By an Examiner Staff Reporter)

NORWOOD, Sept. 30.—Dr. A. T. Embury of Bancroft, the Conservative candidate in Peterboro-Hastings, came to Norwood last night to open his campaign in the new riding. The Town Hall was comfortably filled with an audience composed of men and women from the village and many others from the surrounding country. In his introductory appeal to the electors, Dr. Embury was assisted by Mrs. H. T. Fallis and Mr. J. F. Strickland of Peterboro, and the evening meeting was preceded by an assembly of about sixty-five women in the afternoon addressed by Mrs. Fallis.

Mr. E. C. Squire, president of the Peterboro-Hastings Liberal-Conservative Association, fulfilled the duties of chairman very acceptably.

Coming as a stranger to most of the people of East Peterboro, Dr. Embury dealt largely with personal matters relating to himself and his nomination.

"My sympathy is with the people of East Peterboro whose old constituency has been joined to part of Hastings," he said, "but it is not the fault of the Conservative party that that condition exists. At our nomination, we had to choose a candidate to represent both parts of the new riding and I advocated that the East Peterboro people put a candidate in the riding, but when I was chosen they came over to support me to a man. The only complaint I have heard since coming among you has been a rumor about my character. I have had to defend myself against a rumor of being a bootlegger. How that rumor started I do not know, but certainly I do not impute it to my opponent. However, I have conducted a drug store for many years. I started as a farmer, then peddled milk for eight years. Then I set out to be a doctor and have practiced for twenty-seven years. I have been a druggist also in Bancroft for twenty-eight years, and I run a garage, for I am the Ford agent. And along with that I have heard it said that I am a bootlegger. The rumor may have started from the fact that druggists are allowed to sell liquor, but it is two or three years since I have handled whiskey. While I was overseas, no alcohol was sold in my store. My assistant, who conducted the business while I was at the war, decided not to handle it, because we had soldiers training in the town. As a druggist I could sell all I liked of it within the law, but I found that a man could not run a drug store and sell whiskey without evading the law. I could be making $3,000 a year as easy as rolling off a log selling whiskey and have the protection of the law, but I wouldn't do that. I wasn't brought up that way. I am a temperance man. I'm in favor of

No Attempt To Kill King Scotland Yard Reports

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press.) — Concluding their holiday at Balmoral Castle, King George and Queen Mary returned to Buckingham Palace to-day.

A published report that an attempt to assassinate the British ruler had been revealed to Scotland Yard was characterized to-day by officials of that organization as "a flat canard."

The Home Office also told the United Press that the report was "absolutely without foundation."

Pious, Unthinking Talkers Make MacDonald Impatient

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 30. (Canadian Press). — Ramsay MacDonald, speaking at the Labor Party conference here, said the older he grew the more impatient he became at the expressions of piety he frequently heard. He heard people talking yesterday afternoon in a very enthusiastic manner about the "subject races," but not one of these individuals had ever devoted five minutes to trying to understand what he was talking about.

In an ironical tone the former Labor Premier exclaimed: "What tremendous value those delightful talkers are to the forces of re-action." Were he a reactionary, Mr. MacDonald added, he would pray nightly that there might be more and more pious and unthinking talkers about.

PREMIER APPEALS FOR SUPPORT WHILE PRAIRIE BLIZZARD HOWLS

Dunning Declared Regret For Split in Low Tariff Supporters.

EXHORTS FOR UNITY.

Calls Upon People's Common Sense To Keep Conservatives Out.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—In the capital city of Saskatchewan, Premier King last night again pressed his appeal for Western support. The night was the stormiest of the whole campaign. Wind and sleet in the early morning turned to heavy snow; by evening a blizzard was sweeping over the city.

Supporting Premier King and also urging united effort between Liberals and Progressives was Premier C. A. Dunning of Saskatchewan, whose name has frequently been mentioned as a Federal Cabinet possibility.

Premier Dunning declared that no one regretted more than he the division of the low tariff forces in Western Canada. "Divide and run is an old Tory axiom," he urged, "and the principle is being followed to the limit in Canada to-day."

On a straight fight between Liberals and Conservatives, Mr. Dunning

QUEBEC LEADER AT CONVENTION JOLIETTE RIDING

Hon. Mr. Patenaude Says That War of Prejudice" Must Cease.

SUPPORTS TARIFF.

Replies To Speeches Made By His Opponent in Cartier.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Declaring that the "war of prejudice" must cease in the Province of Quebec, Hon. E. L. Patenaude, former Secretary of State and nominee as Conservative Independent in the Cartier division of Montreal delivered another campaign addressed yesterday afternoon at Joliette, where Emery Ladouceur was named by the convention to contest that riding. Mr. Patenaude made a vigorous onslaught on his opponents and particularly on Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Theodule Rheaume, his Liberal antagonist in Cartier for their addresses last Sunday at Lachine, charging that his opponents in an hour of national gravity had replaced the serious discussion of public questions by mere pleasantries.

The Provincial leader also asked where Quebec Liberals stood in the light of the Prime Minister's promise to the west to complete the Hudson's Bay railroad and to perform his pledge of Senate refrom, thus in Mr. Patenaud's words," undermining the pact of Confederation at its base." He asked what the Quebec bloc's attitude was to the statements of ex-Premier Norris, of Manitoba, who, supporting the Prime Minister, had stated that the orientation of the government's policy toward a lower tariff was a step in the right direction.

MESSAGE FROM BISHOP.

Rev. P. Costello Reads Telegram From His Lordship Bishop O'Brien.

At St Peter's Cathedral, this morning, Rev. P. Costello, read to the congregation a cablegram received from His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, who to-day, the first feast day of the recently canonized Ste. Therese of Lisieux solemnized Mass at Lisieux in France, the birthplace of the "Little Flower." As Continental time is about six hours ahead of that of the Dominion of Canada, the congregation at early Mass were enabled to learn of the Bishop's remembrance of them.

TWO ACCIDENTS HURT CHILDREN

Irene Rumary and Thomas Snowden Knocked Down By Cars.

NOT SERIOUS.

Two accidents happened in Peterboro streets yesterday evening between 5 and 6 o'clock, and both accidents were curiously similar in several details.

Irene Rumary, 3, was injured by being knocked down at 5.20 by a motor truck belonging to C. H. Mann. The truck was driving north on Water Street, and the child suddenly darted out from the house, followed by her father, who endeavored to stop her from crossing the street.

The child got in front of the car, and was knocked down before the truck could be pulled up. She fell between the wheels, one of which, however, ran over her. Her foot was badly bruised, and she was hurried to Dr. Wood, who dressed her injuries. It is stated that the truck was proceedingly very slowly at the time of the accident.

At 5.30, Thomas Snowden, 12, Otonabee Street, was knocked down by a car driven by Edgar G. Ball, of Toronto, on George Street, opposite The Examiner Office. Young Snowden was crossing the street to enter The Examiner Office, and, losing his head in avoiding other cars, got in the way of the Toronto car, which upset him before being brought to a standstill. The car passed over him, but he was untouched by the wheels. Ball picked him up and drove to the Police Station, where he was instructed to take the boy to the Clinic. Dr. I. M. McCulloch, who examined him, reported no serious injury other than a bump on the back of the head, caused possibly by the fall. Dr. McCulloch also stated the boy complained of a feeling of dizziness, which might indicate a slight concussion. After the boy had been treated, Ball drove him home. Mr. Ball also paid the doctor's fee.

More Robbery With Violence Oskall Stabbed For Crock

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 30. — (United Press).—Purchasing a pint on a physician's prescription is pretty nearly as precarious a process as transferring a payroll in this prohibition era.

John Oskalf learned this to his sorrow as he stepped from a south-end drug store with a bulging hip pocket. Three men held him up, stabbed him thrice in the left shoulder, and escaped with a pint of whiskey which he had just bought for medicinal purposes.

600 MEN FIGHT FOREST FIRES

Huge Blaze in Southern British Columbia Burning on Eight Mile Front.

BRIDGES DESTROYED.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press). — Six hundred men were pressed into service last last night in efforts to stem a huge fire spreading over the logged-off lands north of Port Haney, in the Fraser Valley. The fire is stated to be one of the most serious on the lower mainland this season. It is burning on eight mile front and two small bridges have been destroyed.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED FROM SUNKEN SUBMARINE BY DIVERS

Care Essential to Avoid Entangling Mesh of Wireless Antenna.

LIGHTS WILL HELP.

Huge 6,000 Watt Lamps For Depth Work Will Aid Workers.

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, NEW LONDON, Conn., September 30. — Canadian Press. — The struggle with the great bulk of the submarine S-51 was still on last night, four days after she was sent to the ocean's bed when she was rammed by the City of Rome.

Two bodies were brought up from the sea yesterday, the first of the 33 men who went down with her that the undersea craft had given up. They were found by the deep sea divers who crawled through the tangled mass of wreckage surrounding the vessel and entered one of the compartments.

The bodies recovered to-day were those of John L. Gibson, engineman, first class of Portland, Oregon, and William Charles Terschamer, seaman, first class, of Bangor, Pa. The latter, a youth of 19, was a twin. His brother was believed to have been at have been at the helm of the S-51, and to have been washed overboard when she went down.

The divers worked in pairs, each couple working an hour at a time. But their time beneath the water was considerably more than that as an hour and a half was required each time the men were brought to the surface. Dangling at the end of their lines, these men had to be drawn up slowly to accustom themselves to the varying degree of pressure at the different depths.

Just what part of the submarine was entered by the divers was not made clear in the message from Rear Admiral H. H. Christy, in command of the rescue workers. The most generally accepted belief was that they went through the battery compartment hatch, just forward of the conning tower. The Battery compartment was filled with wreckage, the message said, and the divers could see that a door leading to the control cabin was open; whether the door aft leading to the torpedo compartment was closed or not, could not be determined.

It was in the battery compartment that most of the crew was sleeping, when the crash came Six of the men were on duty in the engine room aft. The divers have not yet been able to investigate that part of the submarine. It is there that the naval officers have held until to-day that men stood more than an even chance of being alive. They had not given up hope, even to-day, notwithstanding that the generally accepted limit of 72 hours that the available oxygen could last, expired last night.

Last night plans were being made to assist these men with six huge 6000 watt electric lights, designed especially for work at the depth of 123 feet at which the S-51 lies. They were brought to the submarine base by T. T. Anderson of the Westinghouse Electric Company, who offered his assistance in rigging them up at the scene of the work. Whether it was possible to get them in use before the night was over was uncertain.

Last night the divers were forced to stop their work because of strong tides that swept them near the tangled wires of the submarine's antenna, and in the darkness they were unable to accomplish much. With the lights however it was believed they could carry on the work whatever the tides might bring.

LOG THROWN ON TRACK BY GANG

Six Young Men Curious To See Street Car Fender Pick It Up.

TO TELL MAGISTRATE.

Provincial Constable Makes has cleared up the mischief that caused the derailment of a street car at the corner of Lock Street and Braidwood Avenue on Monday night. His investigation led to six youths of about 16 years of age who acknowledged the deed and will likely have a further chance of explaining it to Magistrate Langley.

"They admitted throwing the log across the rails," the Officer told the Examiner. "Two of them said they carried it out onto the street to see the street car's fender pick it up."

The fender didn't make a good job of the picking, for the railway tie was ground up under the wheels the conductor was thrown out and although no serious damage or injury resulted that fortunate chance will hardly excuse the young men if they are charged with the offence. It is also understood that they admitted a recent depredation at St. James Church when tiles were removed from a pedestal.

TRADE WORSE.

Authority Says Condition in Britain Worse Than in Spring.

LONDON, Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The summary of British trade for September as published by the United States Chamber of Commerce in London, quotes Stanley Machin, president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, as saying: "The condition of trade is now more serious than it was earlier in the year, and the position of the coal trade is deplorable."

STILL DIFFER ON FUNDING TERMS

French and U. S. Commissions Have Not Yet Reached Agreement.

SAIL TO-MORROW.

WASHINGTON, D.S., Sept. 30 (Canadian Press). — Developments in the French debt settlement negotiation with the United States today were expected to determine very largely whether they are to have a successful conclusion. With barely more than twenty-four hours remaining for the negotiations, unless the French change their plan of sailing for home tomorrow night, the situation appeared fraught with possibilities of a sudden turn in either direction — toward agreement, or deadlock.

As the status of negotiations is now understood, there is still a difference of more than $50,000,000 between the amounts suggested by the French and the United States commissions as the average annual payment for France over a 62 year settlement basis.

DUFFIELD-HUYCKE WEDDING IN BEAUTIFUL TRINITY CHURCH

Profusion of Flowers Decorated Sacred Edifice for Occasion.

MANY FRIENDS THERE

Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson of Belleville Performed the Ceremony.

Trinity Church was beautifully decorated today with a profusion of autumn leaves, hydrangea and yellow 'mums, the choir loft banked with palms and ferns, woodland vines covering the trellises and white hydrangea tied with white ribbon marking the guest pews, for the wedding of Audrey Primrose Kathleen, youngest daughter of His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, of "Engleburn", and Mr. William Lindley Duffield of London, Ontario, son of Mrs. Duffield and the late J. C. Duffield. The ceremony was performed at one o'clock by Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson of Belleville, former pastor of Trinity, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, from the city and from out of town, who filled the sacred edifice.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March from "Lohengrin", played by the organist, Mr. George H. King. She wore an exquisite gown of ivory brocaded cut chiffon velvet, made in straight-line effect, back and front, with the prevailing flared silhouette in the godets at both sides, and tong, tight sleeves. Her train was of white kittens' ear crepe, lined with white georgette, and her veil of old Point de Venise lace, an heirloom in the family, and worn by three generations of brides. It was arranged in cap effect, with clusters of orange blossoms over each ear. The train was edged with lace and orange blossom bands. White velvet shoes and silk stockings were worn, with a necklace of pearls the only ornament. The bride's bouquet was of lily of the valley and orchids.

The bride's six attendants were gowned alike. They were her sister, Mrs. James Blaiklock of Montreal, as matron of honor, and Miss Agnes Duffield of London, Miss Elizabeth Cutcliffe of Brantford, Miss Helen McGarry of Niagara Falls, Ontario, Miss Agnes Bigelow of Regina, Miss Ruth Field of Cobourg. They wore frocks of gold lace over brown crepe slips, with long, tight bodices and long sleeves. The long-waisted skirts were plain in front, made with circular godets at sides and back, and were topped by points laced with brown chiffon velvet, tying in front in a large flat bow with pendant ends. Scarfs of gold lace were worn, tied under the left ear, and small hats of brown velvet with flaring brims, the crowns encircled by wide bands of crushed gold metallic ribbon, ending in a drooping bow at the right of the brim. Brown velvet strap slippers and gold stockings finished the costume, with armfuls of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Colin Duffield of London, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Ushers were Colonel G. E. Reid, Colonel G. W. Little, W. A. Mitchell, D. W. Weld, D. B. Weldon, all of London, and Mr. Wilfrid Huycke of Peterborough.

Enrolls In College At 76 To Brush Up Few Subjects

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 30. — (United Press). -- Seventy-six-year Abigail King, retired business man of Wellsville, N.Y., today enrolled as a freshman at Boston University. "I just wanted to brush up on several subjects," the septuagenerian explained, "but thought I might as well sign up for the regular first year programme. One is never too old to learn, you know."

The subjects on which King is concentrating are English, mathematics and marketing.

Since his retirement from business five years ago, King has served as a member of the board of assessors in his home town.

MEIGHEN MAKES APPEAL IN WEST ON PROTECTION

Addresses His Constituents in Portage La Prairie on Tariff.

IS MAIN QUSTION.

Condemns Mr. King's Speech at Neepawa on Railway.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—"There is one cause, I believe, to appeal on. That cause I believed in years ago, and that cause I believe in to-night, and if I cannot be elected on it I don't want to be elected at all." Thus spoke Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in addressing his constituents in Portage La Prairie last night on the question of tariff protection. That cause I broached to you in 1921, and I still believe it is the main question now before the public. There might be other questions before the electorate, but they should not be allowed to obscure the main issue.

As for the Hudson Bay Railway construction, he said, there had never been a "grosser affront" to the people of Western Canada than Premier King's offer at Neepawa which was, he said, practically a promise of a "bribe," that if Western Canada would send back enough Liberal supporters to the House of Commons, he would appropriate enough dollars to complete the railway. Where could there be a grosser affront, he asked, than the suggestion that the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway depended on the vote of Western Canada and not on the right of Western Canada?

REDS RECEIVE ANOTHER BLOW AT CONFERENCE

Resolution Aimed at Ex-Premier MacDonald Was Thrown Out.

BADLY DEFEATED.

Asked That Apology Be Sent to Soviet Because of Zinovieff Letter.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The Red section of the Labor party received another set-back this morning with the defeat of a resolution by which they planned to open up the attack upon J. Ramsay MacDonald for his procedure regarding the notorious Zinovieff letter while he was Prime Minister.

One part of the resolution, which was a composite one, demanded that the Labor Executive send an apology to the Soviet Government and M. Zinovieff, through Mr. MacDonald, since the Executive had been unable to prove the authenticity of the letter which advocated the overthrow of the British Government. The resolution also urged the Labor party to withdraw from Parliament and force the resignation of Premier Baldwin's Cabinet. The next Labor Government, it affirmed, must appoint trusted working class representatives to take charge of all administrative departments.

The resolution was overwhelmingly rejected by a show of hands.

GLAD HANDS GUESTS

Village Erects Signs to Assure Welcome and Bon Voyage.

STIRLING, Sept. 30. — All those who enter our town or pass through it will be confronted with a sign—no matter by what road they enter—welcoming them to our midst and bidding them—bon voyage as they continue their journey. The employees of our street committee were busy erecting these signs this week.

NEW YORK, (Canadian Press). —Miss Birdie Maloney, a housemaid, entered suit against a former employer who, she declares, accused her falsely of theft of some family jewels. She estimates the damage to her feelings and reputation at $75,000.

Actresses Threaten Strike Costume With Old Corsets

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(Special by United Press.)—Corsets caused a near strike on Tuesday at the Birmingham Theatre. Bernard Shaw's "The Phylanderer" was being produced. The costume was of the "90's," the period in which the play was written when long, straight, inflexible corsets were in vogue. As soon as the curtain was rung down the actors went to the manager in a body and told him if the play were to run for more than a week they would quit unless the armour plate corsets were replaced by modern and more yielding garments.

"Now I understand why mother never laughed," said one of the rebels, who said that she herself could not have laughed even if she had wished to.

FRENCH ATTACK IS SUCCESSFUL

Important Heights North of Kifane Taken Easily.

STILL ADVANCING.

FEZ, Morocco, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The French began a new offensive against the Riffian tribesmen in the eastern sector this morning. The weather conditions which had halted military activity during the last two days have improved. The operations which have as their objective the straightening of the line north and east of Kifane, were quite successful, the French claim, their troops easily taking the important heights of DeKerkour, north of Kifane, on the rough bank of the River Chaouia.

The French continued to advance, under artillery protection, in a direction dominating the Djebel Aknoun.

PRISONERS FAMILIES MUST BE CARED FOR

Hon. W. F. Nickle Says Provision Must Be Made For Destitute.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press.)— If we are going to imprison for crime as a protection for the state, as an incentive to the prisoner for better conduct, and as an example to other men ,the state should fearlessly face the problem either of securing occupation for those incarcerated or of making some other provision for the wives and families thus left destitute," said Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General for Ontario, speaking at the child welfare conference here last evening. Mr. Nickle, however made it plain that he was not speaking officially or for his government, but purely as an individual.

SAM CLAKE, M.L.A. AND F. J. SLADE HOLD MEETING AT TRENT BRIDGE

Provincial Member For West Northumberland Forecasts Results in West.

SPOKE ON TARIFF.

Liberal Candidate Told of Work of the King Government.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 30. — Sam Clarke, M.L.A., for West Northumberland for the past 28 years, who spoke at Trent Bridge last night at a meeting held in the interests of Fred J. Slade, the Liberal candidate in Northumberland made a forecast of the election results in the West with the conditions of which he is familiar. Mr. Clarke believes that 85 per cent at least of the members elected in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Aleberta will be Progressives and that means that they will stand for low tariff. The progressives have been blamed for supporting the Liberal party but how could any one who knows the situation expect them to vote with Mr. Meighen who would if returned to power raise the duty on everything that the Western farmers have to buy.

A Matter of Business.

Mr. Clarke admits that after 28 years in public life he is not nearly as much of a crazy politician as he was at the beginning of his career. He has become convinced that politics is a business instead of a matter of principal. The wise elector, no matter what you call him will vote for his own interests for the protection of his business and his home. The Western farmer cannot be blamed for voting with the low tariff party when he has to pay from $40 to $60 more for a machine because it is made in Ontario than it would cost him if purchased across the border only a few miles away.

The Farmer's Future.

Mr. Clarke in satisfied that the young man who stays on the farm is going to have in time about the best business going. The cities with their offers of high wages, not so high when living expenses are taken into consideration, are lureing boys from the land until out of every 100 in the population, there are about 35 producers for 65 consumers.

The Two Candidates.

Discussing the merits of the two candidates, Mr. Clarke said he had known Fred J. Slade all his life and was also acquainted but not so intimately, with Milton S. Maybee, the Liberal - Conservative nominees. What is the difference between these men, one a Grit and the other a Tory? Mr Slade will, if elected, vote for a square deal for all of Canada, while if Mr. Maybee is again successful, he stands pledged to vote to limit the square deal to the manufacturers. How can Mr. Maybee, asked the speaker, tell you that a high tariff is good for you

"We have been feeding the manufarturers for years," said Mr. Clarke. If you had five boys in your family one of these should not live at the expense of the others. All are entitled to a fair show. If one boy gets sick or into difficulties, we should help him, but not extend that help to him for all time."

In spite of their high tariff the Americans are not better off than the Canadians. Ex-Premier Meighen congratulates the Protection-Liberals who support him, and he should be just as ready to praise the independence of the voter who will renounce that policy of high tariff and vote for the policy that he knows will be in the interest of himself and his home.

Other Speakers.

Reeve Thomas Curtis of Havelock presided, and in his opening remarks praised the attitude of Hon. Mr. Massey, the new Cabinet member, when in a recent public address he stated that the East had no right to force upon the West a fiscal policy which the latter did not want.

The Candidate's Address

Mr. Slade, in his address, created a favorable impression and was given an attentive hearing. He is evidently familiar with the leading questions of the day, and discussed the tariff, the C.N.R. problems and dealt particularly with what the present Federal Government has done to secure a better foreign market for dairy and other farm products, so that these may hold their own in competition with the products of Denmark and other countries that have an entry to the British markets. Canadian articles intended for shipment are now standardized. Bacon from this country that formerly sold at about five cents less was now equal to that shipped from Denmark.

Supports Mr. Slade.

Mayor Meyers of Campbellford was at the meeting to speak on behalf of Mr. Slade, the latter referring to him as a good sport for coming to his assistance and after being his opponent in the convention where the mayor lost out by only five votes.

Mayor Meyers praised McKenzie King as a leader, the one man qualified to succeed the late Sir Wilfred Laurier in that capacity. The speaker said the Progressives and Liberals are not far apart, and that they are out now to close all breaks in the ranks to forget all past differences and to redeem the riding; the great object of the united elements being to secure the control of the country for Liberal principles and policies. The mayor dealt extensively with the American tariff on wheat, the reduction by the Liberals a year ago of the duty on agricultural machinery and closed with a complimentary reference to Mr. Clarke, and an appeal to the electors to support Mr. Slade at the coming election, as a vote for him means a vote of Premier King and all that the Liberal party stands for.

BIG MERGER OF BAKERY FIRMS

Four Big Companies in United States to be Consolidated.

TAKE IN OTHERS.

NEW YORK, September 30. Canadian Press. — The baking industry, one of the last fundamental manufacturing processes to come to Wall St., is about to witness another consolidation. It will involve approximately $200,000,000, and be the largest consolidation the industry has experienced. In its final form it will include supply companies, flour mills, sugar refineries and dairy companies.

General Baking, Southern Bakeries, Continental Baking and Ward Baking, are the four companies mentioned in the latest merger.

A new company will be formed to take over the Ward Baking Company. It will offer cash payments or exchange of stocks to General Baking and Southern Bakeries. After this deal has been completed, Continental Baking Company will be taken in.

When these four bakeries, including several other concerns, are welded together, the combination will next take in flour mills, sugar refineries, dairies and similar industries.

HOLD INQUEST ON DEATH OF MINER

John McGillivray Was Killed When Charge Exploded Too Soon.

ALONE IN SHAFT.

COBALT, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press).—An inquest will be held here into the death of John McGillivray, the victim of a blasting accident at Boston Creek.

He had loaded three holes and was lighting the fuse with matches when the first charge exploded. McGillivray, whose home was in Nova Scotia and who was alone in the shaft, received the full force of the blast.

LESS GAIN IN POPULATION.

Although the population of the United States is now at the high-water mark of 114,311,000 people, the advance over last year was less than the average advance for the last five years, according to recent estimates of the National Bureau of Economic Research. The once rapid advance, it is believed, now has slowed up definitely.—Popular Science Monthly.

BRACEBRIDGE IS THREATENED BY SERIOUS BLAZE

Heavy Wind From the East Fanned Fire in Planing Mill.

TOWN IN DANGER.

Fire Brigade Had To Be Called From Gravenhurst.

BRACEBRIDGE, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press).—Fire broke out in John T. Shirs' planing factory last night, totally destroying the building and contents. The wind shifted to the East and so hot became the fire that help from Gravenhurst was called. Soon both brigades were fighting to save the business section. Warehouses in the rear of Main Street caught fire, also the Dominion Hotel and the Dominion Garage, but 20 streams of water saved these buildings. A warehouse owned by the Whitten Company and occupied by Robert McCaw was partially destroyed. The stable belonging to N. Mauro and Company was burned. Only the hard work of the brigades saved the south end of the business section. The loss is heavy.

RALLY SERVICES.

NORHAM, Sept. 30.—At a meeting of the Trustee Board, in conjunction with representatives of the Ladies' Aid of Norham church, held in the League room on Monday evening, it was decided to hold the regular anniversary services on Sunday, October 25. Rev. Charles C. Daniel, of Campbellford, has been engaged for the services and will preach in Norham United church on the above date at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. At the meeting arrangements were made to make some changes and do some renovating to the League room. Some improvemetns in the heating of the church were also provided for. The finances of the congregation were found to be in splendid condition.

Rally Day services were held in the United churches of the Norham circuit last Sunday and in spite of the inclement weather were well attended. The churches were all nicely decorated with potted plants. The official programme was followed throughout. The children and young people took part, singing in the choirs specially trained for the occasion, giving readings, recitations and singing solos. The offering was in behalf of the work of religious education and amounted to $17.00.

without those interests being heard; second, the order must be based on a policy either of creating additional railway deficits to be made up by taxation or one of forcing the railway companies to lower wages, the importance of the question in either case being such as to demand the consideration of the whole Board; and third, that confirmation of such an order would seriously endanger the usefulness of the Railway Commission by affecting the respect in which its deliberations and judgments had been held throughout the country.

Eugene Lafleur, K.C., for the Montreal Board of Trade, led the argument against the order, maintaining that the course followed was contrary to all precedent, and that it was ultra vires of the power of two commissioners to issue such an order. He contended that it was contrary to the letter and spirit of the Order-in-Council requiring the Railway Commission to hold a general inquiry into railway rates and to establish a new rate structure on the basis of equalization, the Order-in-Council having clearly intended that the whole matter of rates should be dealt with by such general inquiry.

Premier J. E. M. Baxter of New Brunswick charged that the principle behind the order must be either that of creating additional deficits on the railways—supplementing the existing deficits on the Canadian National with deficits on the C.P.R.—to be met with increased taxation or that of forcing the railway companies to meet the labor situation by lowing wages. In the latter case, he argued, the whole transportation question would be thrown into a chaos of strikes and labor troubles and a serious situation created.

Isaac Pitblado, K.C., appearing for Winnipeg City and Board of Trade, solemnly expressed the fear that should the order be allowed to stand, it would seriously endanger the usefulness of the Commission by prejudicing the respect in which it had been held.

any sane legislation in regard to temperance, and I don't believe in the use of alcohol as a beverage."

Dr. Embury recalled that Hastings had been traditionally Conservative, and the new part of Peterboro, he understood, was also strongly Conservative. "In this election I ask you to support me as the Conservative condidate according to the old traditions of the Conservative party." He declared the emigration problem, pointing out that in three years under the King administration 600,000 Canadians had gone to the United States. They had gone where they could obtain steady work and high wages. The natural wealth of the United States was not so much greater than Canada's, but the population had grown to 105,000,000 in 1923, while Canada in that year had a little more than 8,000,000. The very best of those who had gone into the United States were from our own country, Dr. Embury asserted.

"We believe that this condition is due to the difference in the tariffs. Since 1911, when the reciprocity pact was defeated the trend of the United States tariff has been steadily upward, while in Canada it has been downward."

Dr. Embury proclaimed his loyalty to the Hon. Arthur Meighen, and said that he would refer to the general issue of the campaign as it proceeded.

Early in the meeting and while Mr. Strickland was speaking, a man in the audience asked how the Conservative party reconciled its tariff policy with that of the Western farmers.

Mrs. H. T. Fallis

Appealing to the women to take an active interest in politics, Mrs. Fallis said she had met some women who asserted that they did not ask for and did not want the franchise.

"I do not quarrel with that answer," she said, "because, for that matter, I did not want the franchise myself, but when I lived in the West and saw so many Germans, Galicians, Swedes and Italians who had the vote, who were allowed to mark their ballots to chose the men who made the laws under which I must live, it was then that I became interested in politics."

The connection between politics and the laws and government of Canada was emphatically brought home to her, Mrs. Fallis said, in those circumstances. Sketching the enfranchisement of the women of this province, she remarked that if they had not obtained it so easily, if they had had to fight for it, they might perhaps place more value upon it.

Taking up the question as to how she reconciled a tariff policy for the East with the needs of the West, Mrs. Fallis pointed out that the clever statesmen of Canada had for twenty-five years been trying to bring the needs of the East and West into agreement and had not as yet succeeded.

"So why should I attempt it," she asked, "when men like Mr. Meighen and Mr. King have been trying. I couldn't take such presumption upon myself."

Mrs. Fallis said she was convinced that if she put that question at a Liberal meeting, she would not expect to get an answer that would satisfy her. Besides, this meeting was for the purpose of discussing the problems of the country, and their solution from the Conservative point of view, and if the remedies proposed did not suit the questioner, he would have the opportunity of hearing the tariff discussed from a different viewpoint when Mr. Brethen spoke in Norwood.

In a personal reference, Mrs. Fallis said she was the wife of a farmer living three miles from Peterboro. Before that, she had lived for eight years on the Prairie in Central Saskatchewan.

Hopes in Conservatives.

"I am interested in bettering the conditions of farmers, and I say to you in all honesty, that I would not be here tonight if I did not believe that the Conservative party is and always has been a true friend of the farmers of this country. My husband and I were regarded as curiosities in the West because we did not join the Progressive party, then at its crest. I know that movement started from a feeling in the heart of the Western farmer that he had not received a square deal from the two old parties. It spread to Ontario, and I believe the men and women who supported it were sincere in their aims. The new party was to strive to attain the ideals in which the old parties had failed. But that day has passed. Has the Progressive party been true to the ideals for which it was created? Has it steered a middle course in Canadian affairs? If that is so, how do you justify the fact that Liberals and Conservatives are avoiding three-cornered contests in this campaign. And I ask you, how does Mackenzie King expect to get a majority if he does not put Liberals in the field? How do you justify the fact that at Port Hope, Mr. Vincent Massey asked why the Progressives should not support the Liberals, for their objects were closely alike. And I should like to ask where does the Conservative-Progressive come in. I have no quarrel with the Liberal-Progressives, for they at any rate support Mr. King at Ottawa, but it seems to me that it is time the Conservative-Progressives opened their eyes. In Victoria and Muskoka there are no Liberal candidates, and in Durham there is no Progressive. If that is not an alliance between the Liberals and the Progressives, then I don't know what an alliance means."

An Industrial Failure.

Mrs. Fallis cited as an example of the effect of the operations of the tariff upon farmers and urban dwellers to the failure of a woollen mill at Rockford near Guelph. Sixty per cent. of the men of that little town were dependent upon that factory for their employment. Its proprietor had kept it going for two years by drawing upon his savings, but he was forced to close his doors last spring when the King government still further reduced the tariff on woollens.

"I ask you whether in that instance it was just the manufacturer who was affected?" Mrs. Fallis continued. "I venture to say that he suffered least of all. If he had lost everything, he still had his ability and business training to use elsewhere. But what of the six hundred men and their families, of the merchants of that town, and of the farmers who sold their produce there? By the closing of just that one mill the whole life of that community was disrupted.

Mr. King would tell you that the main object to be reached is to reduce the cost of living and the price of foodstuffs. But did you ever know of prosperity going hand in hand with a low price of foodstuffs? Ask the business men whether they would rather see the farmer getting a low price or a moderately good price."

Mrs. Fallis declared that rural and urban workers were interdependent. If the farmer was receiving a fair price for his produce, he could afford to buy from the merchants, and if the city workers were busily employed at a fair wage, they could buy from the farmers.

"In 1921 the Liberals in Peterboro said they believed in free food and an untaxed dinner table. They sought the votes of the factory workers and they got them, but I assure you that many who cheered that night in the Opera House are today walking the streets of Peterboro out of work or are in the United States looking for a job. What does it matter if eggs are but 5 cents a dozen and butter 20 cents a pound if men haven't the money to buy them? And, as for free foodstuffs, that too was realized by the women and children who ate the bread of charity last winter and will again be in line next winter."

Mrs. Fallis said that Mr. Meighen's policy was not to cut the price of food nor to flood the country with cheap importations. He proposes to enforce a policy of protection that will run the factories again and will keep out cheap imported goods, to employ the workingmen, thereby building up the cities and providing a market for the farmers at our own doors.

In conclusion, Mrs. Fallis said that Mr. Meighen's solution for the conditions besetting Canada was reciprocal concessions by East and West. If the West would concede to the East the tariff its industries need, and if the East would concede to the West certain advantages of freight rates, these concessions would make for national unity.

"That is Mr. Meighen's solution, and we hope to accomplish it," said Mrs. Fallis, who closed with a compliment to Dr. Embury, whose war record she especially praised.

J. F. Strickland.

Mr. Strickland, alluding to the composition of the new riding of Peterboro-Hastings, said it had been arranged to make a safe seat for the member for West Peterboro. Mr. Gordon endeavored to make the way soft and easy for himself, but he was already seeing the hand-writing on the wall. Conditions had materially changed since 1921, and the nomination of Mr. Peck was an evidence of the strength of the Conservative party and of the enthusiasm that united it.

"The Toronto Globe today carried a news despatch of Mr. King's first speech in the West, in which he said that the Minister of Colonization and Immigration should be a Western man, and he pleaded with the West to please elect a man for that position. Was that a dignified attitude for the Premier of Canada and was it dignified toward Mr. Gordon?

Mr. Gordon has been announcing the policies he was going to put into effect as Minister, but before he does anything the President of the C.P.R. comes out with an announcement of an arrangement by the Government with the two railways. Then The Globe takes Mr. Gordon to task, asking him since when it has become the practice for the president of a private railway to announce the policy of the Cabinet? Mr. Gordon's answer was that at Espanola and Belleville he made it public, but whatever Mr. Gordon said must have been lightly regarded, because he was mentioned in the news reports as simply having also spoke."

Mr. Strickland declared that the Australian treaty was a detriment to Canada. It offered advantages to the salmon packers and paper manufacturers but at the expense of Canadian farmers. It provides for the admission of dressed beef into Canada at a duty of half a cent a pound, while the Australian government allows a bounty of $2.40 a carcass for export and the cost of producing it averages $29 a carcass. In eggs and other farm products, the treaty would work to the injury of the farmers of this country.

Mr. Strickland told of pricing a German watch in Toronto at one dollar, which could be laid down in Canada for 64 cents. A similar watch could not be manufactured in Peterboro for anything like that price. It was made in Germany by workmen receiving 88 cents a day against the 90 cents an hour paid to Canadian workmen.

being allowed to permeate the Labor Party to the extent that they had.

Arthur Henderson explained that the resolution against individual admissions excluded nobody, but was only an appeal to the members to refrain from something.

J. Bromley, for the opposing camp, said the resolution meant the beginning of heresy in the ranks of the trade unions.

Ramsay MacDonald and J. H. Thomas, who was a member of the MacDonald Cabinet, had to listen to sneers from the Communist Pollitt against those who dined at Balmoral and went yachting with capitalists.

An interesting resolution, which was carried by a strong majority, declared that the subject of birth control was not one which should be made a political issue, but should be left to individual convictions. This was the conference's answer to the desire of many delegates that the party should openly advocate birth control.

It was announced that A. J. Cook, the miners' representative, who has been on the executive for the past year, had withdrawn his candidature. No reason was assigned.

PREMIER APPEALS

did not think Saskatchewan would return a single supporter of Mr. Meighen, "with the prospect of three cornered contest," he proceeded, "there is Torv activity even in this Province."

"While dissension among like-minded people is unfortunate, I am convinced that the same commonsense of the Western people will see to it that whatever else happens, Meighen candidates shall not be allowed to slip in because of it. I cannot dictate or influence the course to be taken by Liberals or Progressives in any constituency, but I can plead that both display a sufficient interest in the welfare of the country to sree to it that their rivalry does not result in the election of Tories supporting a policy absolutely opposed to the great majority of our people."

Mr. Dunning referred to Mr. Meighen as offering a species of horse trade by way of alleged but very indefinite compensation in railway rates to the West and the Maritimes for the extra taxation involved in his tariff proposals. Mr. Dunning thought such a form of compensation so futile and impracticable as to be unworthy of serious discussion.

"The very man and party making the proposition," declared Premier Dunning, "having been opposed to and are to-day opposing the measure of Maximum freight rates for years guaranteed by statute to be part of Canada under the Crow's Nest Pass agreement."

THE ROAD TO MARMORA.

The attention of Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., has been called to the condition of the road between Peterboro and Marmora, and the local member has promised to take up the matter with the Highways Department.

This will be welcome news, both to many Peterboro citizens and to the people of the Marmora district.

With the ever-growing use of the motor car the traffic between Peterboro and the section around Marmora has naturally steadily increased, and road conditions that were good enough ten years ago no longer suffice.

The Peterboro-Marmora road, particularly the section from Havelock to Marmora, requires considerable work, and undoubtedly should receive attention in view of the fact that the road is in much greater use than it was two decades back when travel between Marmora and Peterboro was done chiefly by train.

MR. DRURY'S CHOICE.

The acceptance by Mr. Drury of the Progressive nomination in North Simcoe where he will be opposed by W. A. Boys, the Chief Conservative Whip, settles the uncertainty as to whether or not the former Farmer Premier was to return to the leadership of the Ontario Progressives.

For the present at least, the Provincial arena is not for Mr. Drury.

He has chosen the Federal field, and if he can persuade a sufficient number of the electors in North Simcoe to accept his views, his address after October 29th will be Ottawa.

His decision to abandon Provincial politics will be viewed by most people as equivalent to a confession that the Progressives, as a factor in the Ontario situation, have ceased to exist.

It is thought that had Mr. Drury any reason to believe that the Farmer party could "come back" in Provincial politics, and that there was any hope of material success at the next Provincial election, the former Premier would have accepted the leadership.

His acceptance of a Federal nomination is, therefore, taken as conclusive proof that the party which held the reins of power in Ontario but a few short years ago has passed from the picture.

EASIER TO VOTE.

With a public half-holiday declared throughout Canada for the afternoon of election day, there will be little excuse for a small vote on October 29th.

The holiday will make it easy for industrial workers especially to record their vote, and it should be possible to secure a much more general expression of opinion than usual.

It is hoped, too, that the declaring of a half-holiday will in itself impress upon the electorate the importance of the occasion and the desirability of a much larger percentage of the voters using their franchise.

One of the present-day mysteries is the indifference shown by so many electors toward the right to vote.

If an attempt were made to deprive these citizens of the privilege of the franchise they would be immediately up in arms, yet thousands of them deliberately disenfranchise themselves at each election.

It is refreshing to note that such clubs as the Kiwanis and Rotary are paying much attention to this question at the present time, and in the general interest a successful culmination of their efforts is to be hoped for.

The slackers among the electorate, whether it be in a municipal, Provincial or Federal campaign, are an element that act as a brake upon progress.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

Next week is set apart by a proclamation of His Excellency the Governor-General as Fire Prevention Week, and it is hoped that the people of Canada will unite in making the campaign a success.

There is no need of elaborating upon the necessity of such a campaign.

The fire waste in this country is criminally large; the contrast between the losses here per head of population as compared with those in European countries is so great as to defy explanation.

Experts, however, agree that three out of every four fires in Canada are the result of sheer carelessness.

Fire Prevention Week, therefore, so far as the average citizen is concerned, should be a time when he will decide to be more careful in his habits and to remove from his home or place of business the fire hazards that threaten the destruction of his property.

It is not for somebody else—it is for you.

In almost every home there are conditions that might be improved.

Rubbish, often inflammable in character, is allowed to accumulate under stairways or in attics or cellars, facilitating the outbreak or the rapid spreading of a fire.

People are careless about matches, cigarette ends, the use of kerosene and gasoline, and electrical appliances.

Next week will be an excellent time for all citizens to check up on these things.

THE BIG FARM PASSES.

The laws of economics apparently have led to the passing of big farms on the plains of the West, says the Ottawa Journal. There was a time when it was believed such huge farms as the Dalrymple, with 100,000 acres in Dakota, would be the pattern for successful agriculture on the prairies. There were also the Grandin, Hillsboro, Cooper and other big farms, with from 17,000 to 61,000 acres, each under cultivation. All have been broken up into small holdings, or relatively small. The big farms did not pay.

In 1883 the Northern Pacific Railway received a grant of 11,000,000 acres in North Dakota. Ten years later the failure of Jay Cooke left many investors with securities on their hands which had but little immediate value, and the Northern Pacific people induced some of them to exchange their stocks for land. In that way the big farms arose. They were picturesque in their proportions; but, as has been said, they were unprofitable. Big business seemingly could not be applied to farming.

Canada was also prodigal in her land grants to railway companies; and between 1881 and 1895 alienated 31,864,074 acres in that way. This did not, however, lead to the starting of farming on a gigantic scale. It was wisdom on the part of the railways to encourage the farmer who would be satisfied to till and crop from 160 to 320 acres. That made for a larger population; and it is a productive population which creates traffic. Today the three Prairie Provinces are sustaining well over 2,000,000 people.

Nevertheless, the situation in the Western Provinces is unbalanced. The population of 2,000,000 is served by 16,000 miles of railway, which figures out at 125 persons to the mile. That is an exceedingly low population ratio. Ontario has 11,000 miles of railway for a population of 3,000,000, or at the rate of 273 to the mile. The United States as a whole has 437 inhabitants to the mile of railway, while New York State runs as high as 1,235. European countries show an average of 2,009.

The Western situation could, however, be balanced. What is needed, quite obviously, is more people on the prairies. Then the ratio of railway mileage to population would rise to a point which would produce economic soundness.

A LIGHT ON EVERY VEHICLE.

The Examiner yesterday advocated the passing of legislation compelling all vehicles to carry lights after dark.

In this connection the Ontario Motor League has issued a statement, as follows:

"Lawmakers at Queen's Park have decided that next year all drivers must be licensed, that motorists henceforth must pay millions annually in gas taxes; they have multiplied traffic regulations, even stipulating the minimum candle-power of bulbs in tail-lights and the maximum candle-power of bulbs in head-lights; they have voted tens of millions for road-building and given a great deal of time to the question of public safety and convenience on the highways, yet they have passed up what practically all motorists and even the legislators themselves individually will admit is the most urgently needed addition to Provincial traffic laws—provision for the compulsory carrying of lights at night by horse-drawn vehicles.

"This question has been before the Legislature for twenty years—a plain duty—easy to perform, but the hands which have confidently essayed gigantic undertakings in other directions have wavered on the compulsory carrying of lights by all vehicles. Why? Because it has become a tradition in the House that lights on all vehicles is dangerous politically; that the farmers would go to the polls in battalions to vent their indignation on the hapless members who would vote to compel them to put lights on their horse-drawn vehicles when using the highways at night.

"Times are changing, however, and today there are owned on farms in Ontario over one hundred thousand motor vehicles. The farmer has grown accustomed to the idea of lights on vehicles and realizes their protective value. The old tradition is dying out—is nearly dead. This was evidenced last fall at a meeting of the Wardens of the counties, at which a resolution was passed recommending that all vehicles be required to carry lights at night when in use on the Provincial highways. The Wardens did not act without a knowledge that rural sentiment today would largely support such a measure.

"Yet, even with this encouraging resolution, the Legislature, at its last session, felt that it could not do better than put on the statutes some enabling legislation whereby Councils of counties, cities and separated towns might pass local bylaws requiring lights on all vehicles.

"Under the enabling legislation, it is probable that a number of counties will pass bylaws, requiring lights on horse-drawn vehicles, thus paving the way for a Province-wide law.

"It was not until the cities were given power to pass local lighting bylaws several years ago that any tangible progress at all was made by the Ontario Motor League in its unceasing campaign for lights on all vehicles. In Toronto, the issue was bitterly contested, and the City Council decided to test public opinion on the subject by a vote of the electors. The result of the balloting, the only one on this subject ever taken in Canada, was a total of 31,460 votes in favor of requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night, and a total of 13,356 against—an overwhelming majority of 17,893. The City Council at once gave effect to the popular will. The opposition has since disappeared and the lighting law is now accepted as a reasonable precaution by all who use horse-drawn vehicles at night.

"So many lives are being lost in accidents occurring by reason of the lack of lights on horse-drawn vehicles that one may well ask the question—Is life to be held cheaper than light? Coroners' juries every few weeks have placed the blame for accidents, in which motor vehicles and horse-drawn vehicles were in collision, on the lack of lights on horse-drawn vehicles and have recommended legislation remedying this situation. Indeed the courts appear to be in advance of the Legislature, for recent decisions would indicate that judges regard the carrying of lights on horse-drawn vehicles as a reasonable precaution, and that those who go driving at nights without lights assume, in a large measure, legal responsibility for any accident which may happen.

"The Provincial law requiring lights on all vehicles, so badly needed and so long delayed, cannot be written into the statutes any too soon from whatever standpoint, private or public, this vital question may be regarded."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Get on the lists—and vote on October 29th.

Remember that after election day you will have no chance of deciding Canada's policies. Yours it will be merely to dig down into your pockets and foot the bills. Make use of your franchise.

To many people the best thing about the election campaign is that it only has another month to run.

It is evident that few candidates will have the pleasure of slipping in without a campaign. There will not be many elections by acclamation.

All the wild guesses are not confined to the political campaign. Some people say there were 22,000 people at the Lindsay Fair on Saturday.

EXPANSION FOR FISH BUSINESS

Government is Bringing in Settlers From Hebrides.

BORN FISHERFOLK

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press).—The fishing industry of the west coast of Vancouver Island is expected to undergo important expansion as a result of the programme of the British Columbia Government to bring in a large number of Hebridean settlers.

The settlers will probably be located on Barkley Sound, which is at present the centre of the fishing industry of the Vancouver Island west coast. Twenty-five families will be brought out next spring.

Hebrideans have been fisherfolk through many generations, and the Vancouver Island settlers will follow that pursuit. It is the aim of the Government to have the industry operated exclusively by white people. Many Orientals now are engaged.

A THOUGHT.

"NOT THE OLD MAN"

Your Father, whom you affectionately call "Dad," may look a little threadbare when it comes to the question of fashionable clothes. His trousers may bag at the knees and his fingernails be a little long and not polished, but remember, my boy, he is not "The Old Man."

You may call him "Governor," but he is the man the greatest woman in all the worl elected to a high office in the home circle. To call him "The Old Man" is not only disrespectful, but it discounts you.

Your father's hair may be thin and gray, his pipe a bit strong when compared with your perfumed cigarettes—he may pack a phil full of dents and doughnuts, but should you dare to call him "The Old Man," you harm yourself.

He may be too tired after dinner to sit up and wait for your early-morning return, but he will be up and on the job the next morning while you are probably sleeping off that tired feeling.

Keep this little line always before you:

"Whoever makes his father's heart bleed,
Shall have a child that will avenge the deed."

Father is not "The Old Man"—your deal old "Dad" is "Some Man."

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press). — On the heels of a warning ot the Board of Trade to take immediate steps to adopt proposed reforms, lively buying of all grain set in yesterday and a decided advance ensued after a week of declining prices. Aside from Secretary Jardine's warning, the fact that wheat values had fallen as much as 18 1-2 cents a bushel led many traders to act on opinions that selling had been overdone, and that a substantial rally was to be expected. Wheat closed strong, 2 1-2 cents to 3 1-4 cents net higher. December $1.38 7-8 to $1.39 and May $1.41 7-8 to $1.42, with corn 2 1-2 to 5 cents up, oats at 5-8 to 1 1-4 cents gain, and provisions varying from 35 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Belief that the action of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine might possibly have been to a considerable degree responsible for to-day's advancing prices was expressed by some authorities, but other observers were inclined to ignore the secretary's statement so far as regarding it as an immediate market factor. In any event, a notable letup in liquidating sales of wheat was apparent and there was agggressive general buying, much of it on the part of previous sellers. On the other hand, word of 20,672,000 bushels increase of the world's available supply total led at one time to a material setback from the day's top prices. During the sag of values, however, offerings became scarce, and with a renewal of active buying the wheat market rapidly advancing again in the late dealings. Minneapolis wired that flour business showed an appreciable increase and there were also indications that wheat export business had been a bit improved.

Corn and oats advanced with wheat. September delivery of corn bulged 5 cents a bushel, influenced more or less by meagreness of country offerings and by shipping demand here from the east.

Lower quotations on hogs tended to weaken the provision market.

CHICAGO BUTTER.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press). — Short supplies of fresh goods and good demand locally and from outside points caused an advance of 1c in the butter market yesterday. The tone of the market following the advance was steady to firm. Trading was quiet and most dealers were offerng top scores, as available, freely at list prices. Lower grades, particularly 87 and 88 scores were very scarce and the market was firm on this class.

The centralized market continued quiet and steady. Few cars were available.

Fresh, (92 score), 51; (91 score), 49c; centralized, (90 score), 48c; (89 score), 46 1-2c.

CANADIAN GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press).— There was little improvement in the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday. Exporters in some cases received cables offering to sell them No. 1 Northern wheat at 2 1-2 cents per bushel below what they could lay it down in London for.

There was no change in the condition of the domestic market, business in all directions being quiet, but the undertone was firmer owing to the strength that developed in the Western markets and prices for Ontario and Quebec grades were maintained with car lots of No. 2 white quoted at 50 1-2 cents, No. 3 white at 48 1-2 to 49 cents, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47 cents per bushel, extrack.

In sympathy with the weakness that prevailed in the cash wheat situation on Saturday last and Monday, local millers of spring wheat flour reduced prices 20 cents per barrel bringing them down to the lowest level of the year to date. There continues to be a steady demand from foreign buyers and a moderate amount of business was transacted. The local trade was fair.

There was no change in prices for Winter wheat flour, but the undertone to the market was easier in sympathy with the above. The volume of business for local and export account was small.

Considerable business was done in all lines of mill feed and prices were steady. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

A very firm feeling prevails in the local egg market and prices show no important change. There is somewhat of a scarcity of strictly fresh eggs at present, but supplies of storage grades were ample to meet all requirements. The demand was steady and a fair business was done. The receipts were 1,022 cases as against 1,552 for the same day last week, and 5,398 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of potatoes showed no improvement and in consequence supplies on spot were none too large to the requirements with the result that firm feeling prevailed in the market, and prices were fully maintained. A fair trade was done with sales of New Brunswick cobblers in car lots at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

The receipts of butter yesterday were 1,798 packages, as against 967 for the same day last week, and 6,724 for the corresponding day a year ago A firm feeling prevailed in the market at the late advance in prices noted, but the volume of business was somewhat smaller and confined principally to local requirements at it is claimed that at the present level of values export trade was out of the question, and in consequence the market on the whole was quieter.

CHEESE MARKET.

The receipts of cheese were 9,166 boxes, as compared with 11,709 for the same day last week, and 10,728 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was firm under an improved demand from spot buyers for supplies and a moderate amount of business was done.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press). — On the local surb market yesterday there were 500 packages creamery butter and 2,500 boxes cheese offered. Sales of No. 1 pasteurized were made at 45 1-4c per lb., and No. 1 Creamery at 44 1-4c per lb., and the cheese brought 23 1-8c per lb., delivered here.

ST. PASCAL, Que., Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press). —The offerings on the Board were 230 packages creamery butter which sold at 43 9-16c per lb., showing an advance of 2 11-16c per lb., as compared with a week ago, and 100 boxes cheese brought 23 3-4c per lb. or 2 7-8c per lb. higher than the previous sale.

TEST B.C. WHEAT FOR MILLING QUALITIES

Industry Flourished Until Development of Big Prairie Mills.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The flour milling qualities of British Columbia wheat are shortly to be tested following the shipment from the Growers 'Exchange at Armstrong to the mills at Medicine Hat.

Many years ago, before fruit growing in the Okanagan country replaced wheat as the main source of the farmers' income in that section, wheat was grown there extensively for milling and the flour commanded a ready sale in the province. Competition of the large prairie mills was too much for the British Columbia mills and they went out of business.

The growth of the co-operative movement, however, has made it possible to produce and market British Columbia wheat on a more economical basis than formerly and it is hoped to send regular shipments to the mills if the tests now being made are satisfactory.

IMMIGRATION MINISTER DEPLORES PESSIMISTIC VIEW OF CONDITIONS QUOTING EVIDENCE TO CONTRARY

Says 54,000 Canadians Have Returned From U. S. Since April 24.

UPWARD TREND.

Says Peterboro Manufacturers Opposed to Increased Tariff.

STOUFFVILLE, Ont., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Decrying what he alluded to as the pessimistic attitude toward the country's affairs, Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, speaking here last night in support of Premier Mackenzie King's candidacy in the latter's own riding of North York, quoted departmental figures showing that 54,000 Canadians had returned from the United States since April 24, that double that number of farmers had come from the United States to seek Western Canadian locations for settlement during the past year and that the newcomers had brought $10,000,000 in goods and money into the country.

"There is," he said, "a general upward trend in business throughout the Dominion."

Referring to the tariff question, Mr. Gordon declared that manufacturers in general throughout the country do not want the tariff increased. Instancing Peterboro manufacturers in particular, as being in his own constituency and with whose affairs he was naturally most familiar, he said they were opposed to tariff increases which would enhance the cost of raw material, thus raising the ultimate price of the finished product.

"The whole thing," he averred, would result in export difficulties, and make it harder to sell in world markets. The Quaker Oats Co., the General Electric, the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, all these I know. They are large export manufacturers, their goods sell in the markets of the world, and they do not want any increase in tariffs to cripple their business, hamper their industry and thus react upon the prosperity of those employed by them."

Touching upon Mr. Meighen's chances of going into power, Mr. Gordon predicted that it could not be done.

"Mr. Meighen's party had forty-nine seats in the last Parliament," said the Minister of Immigration. "This means that he would have to win seventy-four more, and without losing any at all, in order to gain a majority in the House of just one seat—and he can't do it."

In the elections of 1921, declared the Minister, Mr. Meighen and his followers were defeated by an aggregate of 1,008,000 votes. That, he said, was the minority the Conservative party polled on the last occasion, and he added that they had appealed to the country on the same issue then that they are placing before the people to-day, presented in 1921 in precisely the same way as it is being presented in the present campaign. Mr. Gordon said he ventured the prophecy that the defeat of the leader of the Opposition would be as emphatic in the coming election as it was in 1921.

LOGGER WON FIGHT WITH GRIZZLY BEAR

Axe Was Only Weapon Possessed by Lumberman.

BUTEDALE, B.C., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Pres).—A logger armed with a double-bitted axe engaged in fierce battle with a huge grizzly bear near the Sully mine camp and won only after narrowly escaping death.

The logger was leading an Indian pack train over the mining trail when he separated two cubs from the mother bear. She immediately started after the man, and when the bear was in touching distacne, he swung the axe, wounding the animal. Rearing on her hind legs, she resumed the attack. A second blow brought the bear to the ground and a bullet from a gun carried by another member of the party finished the job. The cubs, almost fully grown, escaped.

The district has been visited by many big game hunters this season, Dr. F. J. Leavitt, of Los Angeles, left here recently with a grizzly skin measuring 10 feet 10 1-2 inches.

He was a veteran of the late war, having served with credit in France. His remains were laid to rest on Friday, the funeral services being conducted by Miss Shotter, Anglican deaconness, of Highland Grove.

REPLY OF FRENCH GOVERNMENT STATES QUESTION OF WAR GUILT IRRELEVANT TO PACT DISCUSSION

France Considered That Problem Settled by the Versailles Treaty.

NO MODIFICATION.

Other Considerations Dependent on Solutions Propounded By Germany.

PARIS, Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The French Government has replied to Germany's acceptance of the Allies' invitation to attend a security pact conference, saying that the questions of war guilt and the evacuation of the Cologne zone are in no way connected with the discussion of a security pact and cannot be taken up at the conference, which is fixed for October 5 at Locarno, Switzerland.

The Quai d'Orsay refused yesterday to discuss reports from Berlin that the German Government had determined to make the negotiations for a security pact conditional on the revival of the war guilt question, but it is taken for granted in political circles that the German Government has merely asked the Allies an open question before going to Locarno.

M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, declared yesterday that the conference would meet at Locarne October 5, confirming the impression that the French Government is satisfied the opening session will be held on that date despite suggestions to the contrary from Berlin.

The French reply expresses satisfaction at Germany's acceptance, and adds that the French Government takes note that Germany's adhesion carries no reservation.

It points out that the verbal declaration by the German Ambassador, Herr Von Hoesch, to M. Briand Monday, referred to two questions which could in no way intervene in the Locarno negotiations, having no connection with the discussion of a security pact.

"Concerning the first observation —responsibility for war guilt"—the note continues, "the French Government considers that question settled by the Versailles Treaty, to which, as the French Government plainly indicated in its past notes the security pact conference can bring no modification.

"The second, relative to the evacuation of Cologne and the disarmament of Germany, with which it is bound up, the French Government suggests that it depends upon Germany herself to hasten the solution thereof by fulfillment of her engagements, and can only refer to the Allied note of May 13, 1925.

"The French Government takes cognizance that the German Government is in accord upon the fact that the verbal observations presented in Herr Von Hoesch's memorandum must be considered as involving neither conditions nor reservations preliminary to the conference."

BATTERY OF CRITICISM LOOSED ON RECENT COMMISSION DECREE

Under Order Grain and Flour Movements Are Equalized.

Declared Ultra Vires.

Eugene LaFleur, K.C., Said it Was Contrary to All Precedent.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Maritime, Montreal and Winnipeg criticism of the recent order of the Railway Commission handed down by Chief Commissioner McKeown and Commissioner Oliver was heard yesterday when the hearing of the application of the Montreal Board of Trade for recission of the order opened before the Commission. Under the order, grain and flour moving west enjoys the same railway freight rates as similar commodities moving from the Prairie Provinces to the East.

The representatives of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have not yet been heard except on a preliminary point raised by G. G. McGeer, K.C., counsel for British Columbia. Alberta and Saskatchewan are supporting British Columbia in defence of the order.

The Montreal Board of Trade, the Provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and the City of Winnipeg and the Winnipeg Board of Trade presented their argument against the order yesterday. The order was attacked on three principal grounds: First, that it was contrary to all the precedents of the Railway Commission for two commissioners to decide a case affecting interests through the country and

COMMUNISTS NOT PERMITTED ENTRY IN FOLD OF LABORITES

Resolutions Were Passed Regarding Affiliation or Individual Membership.

MAJORITY 9 TO 1.

Ramsay MacDonald Said Unwanted Element Should Form Own Party.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press).—In no uncertain way the Parliamentary Labor Party, in conference here, yesterday registered its refusal to countenance the admission of Communists to the party. The Executive Committee's resolutions against either affiliation or individual membership were carried by majorities of about 9 to 1, the first vote being 2,964,000 to 321,000.

Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier, put the matter quite plainly in declaring that the Communists' thesis "that the workers should prepare, not for an easy Parliamentary victory, but for victory by a heavy civil war," was an impossible thesis for the Labor party. He argued that the proper course of the Communists was to create their own party. He thought they had already been treated generously in

SEEDS FROM COAST REFOREST BRITAIN

More Than Ten Tons of Seeds Shipped in Four Years.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press). — British Columbia supplied practically all of the 39,000,000 tree seedlings which are being set out this year in Great Britain by the British Forestry Commission. Two hundred millions of these seedlings have been planted in the British Isles during the past five years.

Since 1921, when the Dominion forest seed extraction plant was established at New Westminster, nearly ten tons of the more important varieties of commercial timber tree seeds native to this Province have been shipped to Great Britain.

Sixty-five per cent. average germination is reported, and this is regarded as highly satisfactory. Even better results have been obtained from British Columbia seedlings planted in various European countries. Douglas fir and Sitka spruce are the principal species.

New Zealand has recently entered the list of British Columbia tree seed customers.

Look For Me In Airplane, Says Old Man As He Leaves

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 30. —(Canadian Press).— Captain Francis Milne, eighty years old, expects to celebrate his one hundredth birthday by travelling from England to the Pacific coast in an airship. He has just left here for the Old Country "to spend the next twenty years."

"Just wait long enough and you'll see me back again," said the veteran navigator. "When I come it will be in an airship and the trip from England will take only a couple of days or so."

Sixty-six years ago Captain Milne made his first trip to Canada as an apprentice seaman on a windjammer. He has travelled almost every sea on a sialing ship and sighs for the old days when full rigged ships were being blown along every trade route.

"The old romance of the sea is gone", he said. "The new romance of the air is just at hand."

Questioning Bruins Visit Farms Paying Respects

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 30.—Excitement ran riot here Monday evening when two husky black bears came to pay their respects to the community.

Their presence was first known when George W. Dunk proceeded down the lane to bring up his cows. He espied the two hulking forms near the fence and when they arose quickly to view the intruder, he beat a precipitate retreat, calling upon the neighbours to aid him. A number responded to the S.O.S. and the hunt set forth. The orchard was carefully beaten and the bears were observed to fall back in goodorder to the nearby forest. As darkness had fallen, the chase was abandoned, so the intended victims escaped uninjured. They have been seen several times, but have not yet met anyone prepared to cope with them.

B. C. POLICE SEEK CO-OPERATION WITH AMERICAN AUTHORITIES

Smuggling Both Ways Across the Border Bothers Officials.

LIQUOR TO STATES

Well Organized Gangs With Swift Boats Are Engaged.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 30. — (Canadian Press). — Co-operation with the United States authorities in ending the menace of border smuggling is being sought by the British Columbia Provincial Police, and it is expected here that before long the system of border patrol now in operation will be rendered very much more effective.

The American authorities are even more anxious than the British Columbia Government to improve the system, for the United States is hit hardest by the lawless element which operates along the land and sea boundary in the West. The smuggling is invariably from Canada to the United States. Most of the contraband is liquor, although large quantities of narcotics are said to have been surreptitiously shipped across the border, as well as aliens from the Far East.

Liquor smuggling from British Columbia ports to Washington State is well organized, and the smugglers are well financed and equipped. Their launches in which they transport liquor and other contraband are usually speedier than the vessels whose business it has been to pursue them, with the result that the dry agents and police have been severely handicapped. The United States prohibition enforcement forces recently placed several armed speed craft into commission and these have been effective, but the area that must be patrolled is so great that vast stretches of coast line have to be neglected.

The use of airplanes has now been resorted to by the smugglers, and in an effort to strike back, it is being recommended that Government planes be put in service. Canadian aircraft is at present being used in northern waters to prevent fish poaching, and the Provincial Police is now negotiating with the Federal authorities for the use of an airplane at present stationed at the University of British Columbia in emergency cases where quick pursuit is necessary.

British Columbia authorities are more interested in running down bandits and other fugitives from justice than in chasing dope and rum runners, although the latter is of primary concern to the United States forces. Within recent months several big robberies have been staged on Vancouver Island, and it is known that in at least one case the bandits made a successful getaway by using a high-powered launch. An airplane, if available at short notice, could have overtaken the launch before it had reached safety at a point along the Washington coast and forced the desperadoes into submission by machine-gun fire.

Friday afternoon is the only time when a Moroccan wife is permitted to leave her home unattended. Then she may only visit the cemetery, from which men are excluded for that afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid of the Manvers appointment held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. James Connell on Thursday afternoon. There were twelve members present and two visitors. The chair was taken by the President, Mrs. Alex. Potts. The meeting was opened by singing, "This Is My Story." Mrs. Norman Porter presided at the organ. This was followed by the Lord's Prayer in Unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Harold Thompson. The principal business was planning for their anniversary services. They decided to have the services on Sunday and Monday, Oct. 18 and 19. Rev. Mr. Poulter of Bethany will take the services afternoon and evening. There will be a concert on Monday night.

Mr. Charlie Webb has been hauling potatoes to Peterboro the past week, price being much in advance of last year, although the potato crop is not as large as last year.

A number of the farmers have threshed around this vicinity and report an abundant yield.

Rally services was conducted by the superintendent, W. Henry, on Sunday, Sept. 27th. Mrs. Glennie's and Miss Evelyn Payne's classes sang, "Jesus Loves Me," very effectively. A recitation was given by Eric Russel. A special Rally Day offering was taken up, followed by an excellent address by Rev. H. Wilkinson on "Loyal to Jesus."

The importation of copies of the Bible into Soviet Russia is still prohibited.

RALLY DAY HELD BY NORWOOD CHURCHES

Large Congregations Were on Hand at All the Services.

NORWOOD, Sept. 30.—Rally Day was observed in the Baptist, the Union and the Presbyterian Churches on Sunday morning.

A large congregation attended the Presbyterian service, and a very interesting address was given by the pastor, Rev. G. Bennett.

In the United Church the choir loft was occupied by some of the older pupils of the school, while the adults and the primary class occupied the middle pews of the church. A duet by the two little daughters of Reeve Scott of Asphodel, who are pupils of the Elgin Sunday School, was very much enjoyed by the large congregation in attendance. Recitations were given by Masters J. Buck and R. Bongard. A number of the pupils on the cradle roll were received into the school, the ceremony for the reception being quite impressive. Little Eleanor Marks recited "Open the Gates," and at the close of the recitation Margaret Brethen and Ruth Pakenham, two of the primary class members, opened two white gates and admitted the new members into the space set apart for the class.

Three children were baptized by Rev. F. Stillman, the pastor, Mortimer Clarke, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fennell, also the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rogers and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Lobb, were the children baptized.

An address on "Loyalty" was given by the pastor, Mr. G. A. Brethen, M.P., superintendent of the Norwood United Sunday School, and Mr. Harry Wildman, superintendent of Wildman's Sunday School, assisted in the service.

CANCER DUE TO THOUGHTLESS FOOD SELECTION.

Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane of London, one of the foremost surgeons of the world, has written to the London Daily Mail, and he has also a letter in a recent issue of a Canadian Medical Journal, charging that cancer is caused by our idiotic refinement of our chief foodstuffs, the grains. He lays especial blame upon white flour and refined cereals.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, Editor of the Dietetic Age of New York City, a journal circulating among physicians, has been teaching this for years, and, because he was convinced of this fact and also that food deficiencies cause a lot of other of the diseases of civilized peoples, he invented Roman Meal, a food made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, these blended scientifically in proportion to make a balanced human food It supplies the deficiencies of flour and other refined "ghost cereals" and should be used in some form daily, or at least several times each week. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Because of its growth-promoting properties, it is especially valuable in feeding nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th month. At grocers.

LIVE 150 YEARS, HE SAYS.

At the cost of 12 cents a head, the span of life may be extended to 150 years, according to Sir Ronald Ross, noted British scientist. He declares that the allotted span of threescore years and ten should find a man in prime of life.—Popular Science Monthly.

HARVEST FESTIVAL HAVELOCK CHURCH

Rev. G. J. Bousfield of Peterboro Was Special Preacher.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 30.—Rev. Geo. J. Bonsfield of St. Luke's Church, Peterboro, was the special preacher at the Harvest festival services held at St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday. At the morning service the text was taken from 17th chapter of St. Luke, verses 17 and 18, "And Jesus answering said, 'Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine? There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger.'" There are so few who returned to give thanks unto God for the bountiful provision he has made for mankind. People should always be thankful and at this season it should just be a summing up as it were of the many blessings.

In the evening the theme was based on Deuteronomy 8, verses 17 and 18, "And thou say in thine heart, 'My power and the might of mine hand hath gotton me this wealth.' But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth that he may establish his covenant which he swore unto thy fathers as it is this day." God does not condemn the getting of wealth, but he does condemn it if in eagerness to obtain it one forgets Him. The speaker likened Canada to Canaan as a land of plenty, flowing with milk and honey.

The attendance at both services was good, in spite of the inclement weather, and the number of communicants has never been larger. The church was magnificently decorated with grain, vegetables and fruit, and special music in keeping with the season was rendered by the choir, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Jean Moore.

At Knox Church.

Mr. James Dutton of St. Paul's Church, Peterboro, conducted the services in Knox Continuing Presbyterian Church on Sunday in the absence of the minister, Rev. J. Lennox, who had charge of the services in Brighton Presbyterian Church.

Personals.

Mr. Denike Fennell left on Sunday to attend Toronto University.

Mr. S. T. Wilson has purchased a new car, and Mr. H. T. Mathison has exchanged his old car for a new one.

RALLY AT BETHANY.

Sunday School Pupils Were in Charge of Church Service.

BETHANY, Sept. 30.—On Sunday evening the service in the United Church was in charge of the Sunday School scholars, it being the occasion of the annual fall Rally. The church was tastefully decorated with mottoes, flags and an abundance of asters and marigolds. The programme was given entirely by the children, with the exception of the address, which was given by the pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, his subject being "Loyal to Jesus." A pageant by 13 girls, with Miss Verna Belle Lee taking the part of "Peace," was well given. The offering of the evening was for the work of religious education of the United Church.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Wilson and Caroline Dale are on a picnic together when they are startled by the incessant blasts of a motor car siren. A moment later three policemen appear, searching for an escaped convict. Bob and Caroline, withdrawing, soon meet the convict—Spike—who calls Wilson by his name and demands protection from him. As a threat he aims the steel spike that serves in lieu of a missing hand, at the girl. In a desperate struggle Wilson beats the culprit, who declares he'll "get even."

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

The policemen glanced at Bob sharply. He faced them unflinching and morose, but remained silent. Then the officers laughed incredulously, and one pushed Spike roughly, starting him off toward the road and the patrol wagon.

"What are you raving about, insulting Bob Wilson like this? Why he's one of Crater City's leading citizens."

Now Spike and the officers were gone; Caroline and Bob were left alone. A troubled and questioning look pleaded from her eyes; there was so much now to explain. But complications had become hopelessly entangling, and Bob's mood for confession was gone. He nourished in its place a sullen and ingrowing conviction that it would be futile to combat the ironical tempers of Fate. So, while he was solicitous and kindly in his reassurances that restored the half-hysterical girl to a certain mood of calm, he maintained for the most part a moody and uncommunicative silence during their rather nervously hurried walk home.

It was twilight when they reached the O'Leary gate, tired and dustily hot of body—even wearier and more fevered of mind, from the after-noonlong conflict of taut and restrained nerves. Caroline, looking into his drawn and troubled face, tried to comprehend; Bob, looking into her eyes so filled with sweet concern, tried to talk. Neither succeeded.

He requested her to ask the Widow to continue in charge of Bob through the night; he wanted to be alone, he said, unbothered by the care of the youngster.

"Can't I help you, Bob, in any way? Do you want to come in a while and rest and talk?" she offered hopefully.

He hesitated, for he did want to; but he was not this moment the master of a pliable will. The jolts and the fears of the day, climaxed by the upsetting encounter with Spike, had set his heels far back in a morass of old inhibitions. He dully said that he must be going, and he went—without a soft word to compensate her for the clean heart she had opened to him; left her trembling, tearful, uncomprehending, at the garden gate staring after him.

Far down the street, near the centre of town, an itinerant minstrel was grinding out of his hand-organ the undesignedly ironical strains of "The End of a Perfect Day." The cloying sentimentality of the music caused a bitter, choking laugh to rise in Caroline's throat. She turned and ran forlornly into the house—for a tossed and wakeful night, and a perplexed morning after.

Bob did not call for her, though she waited vainly up to the last possible minute and then loitered all the way to the depot hopeful that he might overtake her. Nor did she hear from him or of him up to the time she finished work for the day.

Though it had been a comparatively easy day, she was tired and listless when, in mid-afternoon, she emerged from the rearside door of the lunchroom into the dinky street that paralleled the tracks and started for home.

A rattle and racket on the cobblestones and excited squeals in a familiar child's treble attracted her attention up the street along the unfenced Yards. She saw scampering across the street and into the Yards a large, black alley cat and helter-skelter in full cry after it Bobby's dog, harnessed to a little cart in which Bobby sat holding on for dear life and screaming gleefully, enjoying the thrill of his young life.

The cart swayed and pitched dizzily, but Bobby held on; all four wheels left the ground, and Caroline, watching, caught her breath for fear it would turn turtle when it bounced over the low curbing, but by some miracle of the laws of motion it recovered balance and plunged on, rightside up.

The dog, stupid in his mad chase, never hesitated at the margin of the Yards, but started across the tracks. He came to grief in a hurry, though, on the very first track, where the cart skidded and became securely stuck with a suddenness that jerked the dog back upon his haunches and almost catapulted Bobby headfirst to the ground. The cat, with tail swollen and straight, made good his escape; while Bobby excitedly encouraged the dog in its lunging efforts to free the cart and continue the pursuit.

Caroline sighed with relief when she saw that the dangerous career of the youthful driver was halted. She hurried up the street, calling to him to desist in his attempts to carry on the race. At the same time, Jim came out of a store on the far side of the street and, locating Bobby after a quick and perturbed visual search, also started toward him.

So far Caroline and Jim had not seen each other; but they did see, simultaneously and with equal horror, a new danger that suddenly loomed over Bobby—a puffing switch engine bearing rapidly down upon him. Bobby, unaware of the peril, sat laughingly in the little wagon prompting the attempts of the dog to tug free.

The engine, moving fast, was within a few yards of the marooned youngster and it seemed futile for either Caroline or Jim to hope to reach Bobby in time to snatch him to safety. But they tried—each screaming to him, each unaware of the other's approach. The engineer of the switching engine had his back turned, watching the signals of his brakeman on the long line of empties he was hunting about. There was no hope of him seeing Bobby in time, for even now the engine was too close to be stopped.

Then, with startling suddenness, the danger was over as quickly as it had arisen—for the engine crossed a switch to the next track, within ten yards of where Bobby sat in his cart. With a momentum that could not be checked at the last moment Caroline and Jim raced to the spot of averted danger, arriving at right angles to each other and in unison reaching down to snatch Bobby out of the cart. At the instant they did so the tugging dog finally succeeded in his efforts to move the cart—and although he progressed no more than a foot or two, it was enough to make Caroline and Jim miss their aim and collide plump into each other's arms. They straightened up in a daze, arms around each other, taking in what had happened with bewildered glances—the switch engine chugging harmlessly down another track, the dog with his mind at ease and off the cat now seated on his haunches scraping his tail on the cindered roadbed, and Bobby wagging his finger at them in glee.

"Shame—shame—Daddy Jim is hugging the lady!"

SOLUTION OF CROSS-WORD PUZZLE IN LAST ISSUE.

Caroline and Jim became awkwardly conscious of the truth of Bobby's charge, and the more so because startled looks around the general vicinity revealed more than one laughing Yardman watching them also. Caroline quickly separated from Jim, laughing to clock her embarrassment. Jim was flustered, too; and relieved himself in the physical work of lifting Bobby, his cart, and his dog off the track on to the safety of the street.

Caroline and Jim fell into step behind Bobby, who drove his steed now at a sedate pace. Both were breathless, with nerves still quaking from the excitement.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds — and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

Every man has his price but they are not all worth it.

STUDENT PREACHED AT UNITED CHURCH

Mr. Johnston Told of His First Visit to Hastings.

HASTINGS, Sept. 30.—Mr. Frank Johnston, a student of Albert College, took charge of the services in the United Church on Sunday. In introducing himself, the speaker said that this was not his first time in Hastings, he being here when but a boy. In 1916, during the war, when the 235th (the Northumberland Battalion) visited Hastings when they were on their trek, he was one of the 400 soldiers who camped here for a few days as they did in several places through this part of the county.

In both services, Mr. Johnston gave excellent discourses.

Little Betty Prest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prest, broke her collar bone on Friday. Betty was playing with her little playmates in a swing and accidentlly fell from the swing, breaking the collar bone.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

AUSTRALIAN GENERAL ELECTIONS AROUSE EMPIRE-WIDE INTEREST AS RESULT OF SEAMEN'S STRIKE

Dissolution Was Brought About Because of Amendment to Immigration Act.

AIMED AT WALSH

Labor Party Fought Bill Calling for Deportation of Foreign-Born Leaders.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept 29.—(By Canadian Press).— The Australian general election which will be held on November 14 will be watched with considerable interest in other parts of the British Empire as well as in the island continent in view of the fight between the Bruce Nationalist Government and the Labor Party as the result of the unofficial strike of British seamen in Australian waters. Indeed the election has been precipitated by the strike, and the appeal of the Premier, Stanley Melbourne Bruce, to the country is in the nature of a challenge to the extremists of the Labor Party.

The reecnt passage in the Australian House of Representatives of the amendment to the Immigration Act providing for the deportation of any person who is not of Australian birth, who has been found guilty of fomenting labor trouble precipitated a crisis. The bill had a stormy route through the House because of the opposition of the Labor Party, led by Matthew Charlton, member for Hunter, New South Wales. Incidently there was a wholesale issuance of warrants for the arrest of 600 striking British seamen. All this aroused such strong criticism of the Government that Premier Bruce decided on the dissolution of the House and an appeal to the country.

The bill providing for deportation and the appointment of a deportation board to carry out the measure is generally regarded as having been aimed chiefly at Tom Walsh, President of the Australian Seamen's Union, known as an extremist in the Labor Party. Walsh and J. Johannsen, another labor agitator, have been asked to show cause why they should not be deported for their activity in the seamen's strike. Labor Leader Charlton and his supporters in the House of Representatives, in opposing the bill, declare that this was an infringment on the liberty of the subject.

The outcome of the election may have a far-reaching effect, and the result may depend to a large extent on whether or not the seamens strike is settled in the meantime.

Premier Bruce classes President Tom Walsh of the Australian Seamens' Union as a Communist. A short time prior to the Premier's announcement that he would dissolve parliament and appeal to the people for a mandate he made a speech in which he attacked the Communists. He declared that they had gained control of trades unionism in Australia and were using it to aid in bringing about a social revolution and the establishment of a dictatorship by them over the whole of the Commonwealth. The Premier said the Government was determined to fight Communism with all the means at its disposal, and the Government would not permit any section of the community to arrogate to itself the power to enforce its will on the people against their consent. He demanded a mandate to enact measures "necessary to maintain the supremacy of parliamentary government and law and order."

Matthew Charlton, the Labor leader, in an address replying to a former speech of Premier Bruce denouncing Bolshevism in which speech the Premier, referring to the seamen's strike, said "the viper of Communism has raised its head," declared that the press and many public men were endeavoring to overshadow "the real issue by trying to scare the people into believing that Australia was on the brink of a social revolution.

Mr. Charlton, criticizing the Government for having passed the deportation bill, referred to the fact that the British seamen's strike had occurred in Great Britain, New Zealand and South Africa, as well as in Australia, and said that no such drastic legislations as this had been passed by any of these other countries. He said he thought the ordinary penalty for law breaking should serve within Commonwealth, without resort special measures.

The Bruce Government succeeded the administration of William Morris Hughes, K.C., after the last general election, and the Bruce cabinet was formed on February 9, 1925, with S. M. Bruce as Premier and Minister of External Affairs. Hughes was Premier of Australia from October 27, 1915 until his Government was overthrown in the general election and Bruce succeeded him on February 9, 1923, as stated.

MR. PECK TO THE ELECTORS

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

In soliciting the support of the Electorate of West Peterborough in the pending election, I desire to present some of the reasons which prompted me to accept the Nomination of my party as its Candidate.

With many others, I have observed for some time the gradual slackening of the activities of the industries of the country, accompanied by a growing despondency upon the part of those affected thereby, indicated by a steady increase in the numbers of those migrating to the United States on account of these depressing trade conditions.

In dealing with these conditions I here reproduce to you certain statements prepared and issued by the present government and furnished by it to the public, dealing with the amount of employment and the exodus.

First I submit figures showing the value of the construction contracts awarded in the last three years. In 1922 the value of such contracts was $331,000,000.00; in 1923, $314,000,000.00; and in 1924 only $276,000,000.00.

Dealing with the exodus above referred to, I note that in the statement of exports prepared each year by the government, there is contained an item entitled: "Settlers' Effects", representing goods and personal belongings taken by persons removing from Canada to the United States and proposing to make their homes there. In the year 1922 the valueu of these effects was placed by the Government Returns at $5,346,000.00. In the year 1923 this value was increased to $6,635,000.00, and for the year 1924 this value, for that year, amounted to the large sum of $9,846,000.00.

This and other facts, which will have come to the notice of many of my readers, clearly support the following conclusions, namely:

(1). The value of construction works in Canada has been gradually falling in the past three years, so that the value of such works in 1924 fell below that of 1922 by over $55,000,000.00.

(2). There has been a very extensive exodus of our citizens to the United States, extending over the last three years.

(3). That exodus is increasing and not diminishing.

(4). These conditions were necessarily fully known to the McKenzie-King Administration.

What can be more serious to contemplate than the immense loss of population due, evidently, to lack of employment in this country, and what must be the feeling of those finding themselves, owing to labour conditions, forced to break up their homes and leave their own country for a foreign land.

The government is not only responsible for the existing conditions, but also has not made the slightest effort to deal with the problems involved.

The Premier's claim that he could do nothing because he had only a small majority is puerile, for he could ,at any rate, have submitted his policies (if any) to the Parliament for consideration, and gone to the country if they had been rejected. Instead, he has hung on to office for four years to the great loss of the country. Even now he has nothing to offer to improve conditions.

What is of course necessary, is to take steps to protect the labour interests of this country.

This can be done—wise legislation can effect it.

But none such can be expected from the present Premier, who still persists in contending that the country is prosperous.

It is the duty of every citizen, not merely on behalf of himself, but also for his fellows, to put into power a party which will actively deal with these and our other problems. In many different ways labour interests are suffering under existing conditions.

One of these is failure to receive adequate protection by means of tariff against the importation of foreign manufactured goods, which could and should be manufactured in our own industries. We imported, last year, over $600,000,000.00 worth of manufactured articles, while we have factories, shops and machinery capable of producing similar goods. Amongst other articles included in these importations, were goods of woollen manufacture to the value of $40,000,000.00, including nearly $2,000,000.00 worth of carpets and rugs. Of goods of cotton manufacture were imported $38,000,000.00; of roliing mill products, $49,000,000.00; hardware and cutlery, $3,800,000.00; clocks and watches about $2,000,000.00; of machinery, including such things as sewing machines, carpet sweepers, washing machines, mining machinery, cash registers, cranes and derricks, machine drills, etc $28,000,000.00, and this is only a partial list. It is perfectly obvious that some increase in our tariff is necessary to protect the employee in shops engaged in such manufactures.

Particularly is protection necessary as some of such imported goods are manufactured where the standard of living and wages are lower than with us.

Then in other respects our labour interests suffer. We export large quantities of raw material, which could well be manufactured in this country and exported as a finished product. Of wheat not required for home use we only manufacture into flour less than one-fifth. Our railways, and other means of transportation, also suffer in this respect. They are not used as they should be in the carriage of our exports. Of the grain exportation to Europe and other continental countries, three-fifths goes by the port of New York, instead of by Montreal, and our other ports. Again our labour suffers.

The advantage to those engaged in agricultural pursuits in retaining our manufactures and building up our urban centres is manifest. This will improve their home market and tend to counteract the effect of the high American tariff against agricultural products. I will deal with these and other important issues at a later date.

I am not pessimistic. I KNOW THAT WITH A WISE GOVERNMENT A GREAT FUTURE AWAITS CANADA.

With her climate and vast resources she is capable of becoming the home of a great nation.

I would ask from the electorate a careful consideration of the statements contained in this address and also its support at the coming election on the 29th of October.

Sincerely yours,
E. A. PECK.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

HOW WIGGLY WORM HELPED THE MILK WEED CHILDREN.

"Oh, dear; oh, dear," complained a tiny soft voice. Wiggly Earth Worm heard and hurried over to the spot where a tiny brown seed was nestled in the ground. "How can one expect to live in such a dark, dark place as this? Where am I, anyway?" she asked when Wiggly Earth Worm wiggled up to her side. "Why don't we have a little light?"

"Because you couldn't grow in the light, little Milk Weed Seed," said Wiggly Earth Worm softly. "It takes darkness to make little brown seeds swell and grow. If the ground seems tight around you, I'll loosen it up a bit," and without waiting for an answer Wiggly Worm wiggled in and out of the dirt around the little brown seed until he had the black dirt all nice and soft. "It takes just this kind of dirt to make you grow into a lovely plant."

"Plant! Plant! What's that?" queried the tiny brown seed. "Will I be a plant when I grow?"

"Surely you will," laughed the happy Wiggly Worm, "and you'll soon put out long green shoots that will run up through the dark ground into the bright sunlight if you're a good little brown seed."

"And will you grow up into a green plant, too?" queried the brown seed.

"No; I'll always be a Wiggly Worm," replied the happy little fellow. "I must always live under the ground this way."

"I'll Always Be a Worm."

"What a horrible life it must be," sighed the little Milk Weed Seed. "Always down in this dark, dark ground. I can't see how you can be happy."

"That's what makes me happy, serving others," chuckled Wiggly Earth Worm. "Why, it has made me happy to be able to help you grow. Look, your seed case is burst and little shoots are running out this very second. My goodness!" and Wiggly Worm caught hold of the little brown seed and twisted her around. "You almost sent your head down in the ground and your roots up in the air." He straightened the wee little brown seed around. "Now, there, you are pointed the proper way. It won't be long now and you'll be shooting up above the ground into a great tall plant with great green pods, filled with lovely brown seeds. And let me tell you a secret—each tiny brown seed will have lovely pure-white sails on it, and the gentle breeze will take them off into the meadows. I'll loosen the dirt above you," and Wiggly Worm wiggled above the little brown seed and helped her send her soft green shoots out into the bright sunshine.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

FROM MR. ACKERMAN.

To the Editor of the Examiner;

Sir: Your report of the meeting held in the rooms of the Liberal candidate on Saturday night, should not be passed without comment, and a warning to the unsuspecting farmer who will shortly be canvassed by a Federal representative from the Department of Immigration.

A warning is or should be unnecessary, but in case there may yet be a few unsuspecting farmers who have at some time fallen under the spell of the spell-binding politician, this letter is addressed.

The Minister of Immigration, vested with unlimited authority, so far as suggestions go, has intimated that a very early date, the farmers of the County of Peterborough will be canvassed by a government official and will be asked to put his own price upon any portion of his farm which he may feel like disposing of to some old country farmers, skilled in intensive agricultural development.

The interest of these farmers can only be secured after they are reasonably convinced that it is possible the government will buy that portion of their property which they do not require. They could hardly expect to have the government act as our intermediary through whom their farms could be sold to these Old Country emigrants. This is the carefully considered scheme of the Hon. the Minister of Immigration, about to be launched in his own constituency, and if sales are effected, either by the prospective Old Country agriculturists or by the Dominion Government, every other constituency in Canada will be a contributor towards the campaign tactics of Mr. Gordon by virtue of their financial committment.

It has been anticipated by the writer that any objection to his scheme might be used by his political opponents as a weapon against his critics, for spoiling a prospective sale. There is but little danger of this, as the writer has sufficient confidence in the ability of the farmer to see the bait that is being used.

When these representatives arrive, ask them the following questions:

(1) Do you think the Minister of Immigration really wishes to sell a portion of our farms to Old Country settlers when they can secure farms in the West at little cost or nothing?

(2) What assurance can you give me that this scheme will be carried out by Mr. Gordon in view of the statement of the Prime Minister, at Neepawa, Man., on the night of Sept 28th, that if the present government was sustained that Mr. Gordon's successor should be a Westerner?

(3) Have you the assurance of your departmental head that this offer is being made to me in good faith on the eve of an election?

In conclusion, in view of the unemployment in the cities, in spite of the migration to the United States of many thousands of our best artisans, it is not the intention of the Conservative party to encourage immigration of that class. The new government under the leadership of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen will select as a Minister of Immigration a man whose past experience will tend to qualify him for that portfolio; he will be a man who knows his Canada and will be primarily interested in the development of the First Dominion of the British Empire.

Yours truly,
C. H. ACKERMAN.

FROM MRS. FALLIS.

R. R. 3, Peterboro.

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Your issue of Sept. 25th contains this statement:

"Mr. Gordon says Mrs. Fallis had quoted the number of factory failures in Canada last year at 2,000. I don't know where Mrs. Fallis got her figures, but at any rate they are not from Dun's report."

I do not object to criticism, any speaker on a public platform expects that. I do object to deliberate misrepresentation. Never in Peterborough or any other place have I made the statement attributed to me by Mr. Gordon. What I have said repeatedly, and I hope to say again, is that during the four years of the King administration over 2,000 factories have closed their doors, and my authority is Dun's report plus the Toronto Globe.

The Toronto press some days ago quoted Premier King as saying: "Mr. Meighen is a man who has no regard for right, truth and honor," and Mr. Gordon saying "All the liars are in the Tory party."

One can scarcely expect fair play from men who start a campaign in this spirit. I do not intend to enter into any controversy during this campaign, but I wish to emphasize to the public and to Mr. Gordon in particular that I have never yet made a statement on a public platform that was not taken from an authentic source, and I never intend to do so, even though I do belong to the "Tory" party.

IVA C. FALLIS.

OBITUARY.

MRS. DAVID MINNS.

OMEMEE, Sept. 29.—News of the death of the late Mrs. David Minns, a former resident of Omemee, reached here last week and came as a shock to her many friends. Mrs. Minns was returning in a car from visiting friends in Utterson when death overtook her.

Deceased lady was born near Meaford, being a daughter of Robert Clarke and Elizabeth Joyce. When a young girl, she taught school, being a most capable teacher. On December 30, 1885, she was united in marriage to Mr. David Minns, their first home being in Omemee. Here they resided for a number of years, three children having been born to bless this union. They have since lived in Orillia, Gravenhurst, Utterson and Bracebridge.

The late Mrs. Minns was a lady of marked ability, she took a special interest in her church and all work that was for the good of the community and thereby won the admiration of all who knew her. During her sojourn in Bracebridge for the past four years, she was president of the Knox Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society, also a life member of that Society and of the executive of Barrie Presbyterial, in all of which she will be sadly missed.

About twelve years ago her health became impaired and although she has been feeling fairly well at times, she has never since been in good health. Being of exceptionally bright and cheerful disposition, those outside her home never knew her feelings.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and Christian mother are her husband and her three children, Mr. H. Joyce Minns, Miss Bessie Minns, who is a nurse in Toronto, and Mr. Bruce Minns, principal of Bracebridge Public School, also her grandson, Clarence Minns, who has lived in the home since the death of his mother when only two years old.

The sincerest sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. Minns and members of the family in the great loss of a noble mother.

The funeral was held from her late residence in Bracebridge on Thursday afternoon, interment taking place in the Church of England Cemetery. The service was conducted by her late pastor, the Rev. J. A. McConnell.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1.

According to the generally adverse places of the ruling planets, this may be a day of difficulties, disturbance and anxieties in many directions. The hostile influence of Mars, strong by lunar and mutual aspect, may incite to quarrels, strife and litigation and render accident possible. Travel, change and removal would best be postponed until a more auspicious time for both business and the physical safety. Likewise, the home should be safeguarded against inharmony and danger. Sign all papers with caution.

Those whose birthday it is are under a rather menacing rule for the year, with threat of strife, litigation and accident, unless every precaution be taken to overcome hostile astral forces. Avoid change and travel and safeguard the home from danger and inharmony. A child born on this day will have a rather restless and fretful nature and be headstrong and high-temppered. It will require the most rigorous training and discipline in infancy in the matter of self-control, and later in the matter of truth and honesty. If born in the forenoon, it may not have so much to overcome or contend with.

Masks which are supposed to indicate the character of the wearer are the latest fashion fad of society women in London. The masks are donned at special midnight supper parties.

WEDDING BELLS.

MARCOTULLIO—CUPOLI.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral, this morning, when Mary eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs. John Cupoli, 529 Elm street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Louis Marcotullio of Windsor, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Costello. Miss L Hurley played the wedding march and sang an Ave Maria during the Nuptial Mass. Vocal choruses were also given by members of the Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The bride wore a lovely gown of beaver brown flat crepe, made with circular godet flares and ornamented with a large medallion of gold beads Her small hat was of brown velvet, the upturned petalled brim worked heavily in Oriental embroidery. A brown fox fur scarf was worn, brown satin shoes and brown silk stockings. The bride's bouquet was of ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, a sister of the bride, was Miss Lucy Cupoli, wearing apricot canton crepe with flounce and panel of self-colored flat crepe, black velvet hat and black shoes and stockings, grey fur chocker, and bouquet of columbia roses.

Mr. Thomas Cupoli, the bride's brother, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Marcotullio left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon in Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, after which they will reside in Windsor. The bride travelled in a sport suit of purple balbriggan, with brown velvet hat and long coat of reindeer needlepoint, with fur collar and cuffs.

The young couple received many pretty gifts, including some handsome flat siver from the employees of the Peterborough Lock Works. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid a gold ring and to the best man a gold penknife.

COE—BROOKING.

WELCOME, Sept. 30.— A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. D. R. Clare at the home of Mr. George Brooking, Wesleyville, when their daughter, Edna, was united in marriage to Mr. George Coe, of Port Hope. The young couple were assisted by Miss Alice Brooking as bridesmaid, and Mr. Arnold Thorndyke as groomsman.

The bride was gowned in gray crepe de chene and carried a sheaf of carnations. The parlor was decorated by mauve and pink dahlias, while the color scheme of the dining room was pink and white.

The young couple went to their new home in Port Hope that evening.

TODAY'S FASHION
—By Vera Winston—

Daytime Frocks Continue to Favor Pleated Effects.

Dove gray crepe with lustrous pearl buttons forms the street costume which attracts many eyes on the city streets no matter what time of year. This model depends on the smartness of its tailoring to give it distinction. The pleating is confined to the front to avoid the worry of pleats which will come out when sat upon. The double tiered skirt is one of the Fall's indispensable designs.

The same youthful cut is equally pleasant when seen in the pastel shades of popular sport wear, honeydew, shell pink, citron green. It has the added attraction of being flattering to almost any type of figure.

WOMEN SHOWING SLIGHT INTEREST

Paucity of Registrations Would Indicate Lack of Initiative.

40 PER CENT. READY.

MONTREAL, Que., September 30.—Keen disappointment is expressed in political circles of the Metropolis over the apparent lack of interest displayed by women generally in the election campaign now in progress. That lack of interest is manifested in the paucity of registrations, which gives evidence that, although complete figures are not available, the women of Montreal are not placing that value on their enfranchisem. it that it was hoped that they would do. The statement is made that the number of registrations on Monday alone exceeded the total for the three days of last week when the various bureaus began to function.

TETUAN SHELLED.

Capital of Spanish Morocco Bombarded By the Riffians.

TANGIÉRE, Sept. 30.— (Canadian Press.) — Tetuan, capital of Spanish Morocco, was heavily shelled by the rebel Moroccans, using 75 millimetre guns, on Monday night, according to advices reaching here to-day.

The civil population of Tetuan is uneasy as a result of the bombardment. However, the important communicaions with Ceuta, to the north, and Tangier to the northwest, have not been affected.

British Columbia is now importing anthracite coal from Wales, a distance of 6,000 miles by way of the Panama Canal.

LADY LIBERALS HEAR ADDRESSES ON POLICIES ADVANCED BY PARTY

Joseph Wearing Says Women's Vote Has Great Influence.

TALKS OF TARIFF.

Messrs. Dewart, Jarvis and Duffus Also Spoke to Ladies.

"Women have different ways of doing things from men, but they get there just the same," acknowledged Joseph Wearing in a very fine address to the members of the Liberal Women's Association in their rooms last evening. "The matter of the women's vote is having a great influence in public life. Women are not ignored as they once were. Candidates on every side are going to great lengths to secure their votes. There are two things in which the influence of women will be felt. They will demand purity in public life and they will ask that policies be adopted that will be helpful to the home and family. And that is one thing that has always impressed me about Mr. Gordon in my long association with him—that is the wonderful relationship existing between him and his home. He is just the kind of man, considered from the standpoint of a husband and a father, that you women want to get into public life, and I can tell you that there are some in Ottawa who are not just of that sort.

"The women of the country, when they understand matters clearly, can never support the high tariff policy of Mr. Meighen. No matter what party is in power, we must have a protective tariff, because you have to take conditions as you find them. It is just the same as the Government of Great Britain, that supports an army and navy, not because she wants to, but because she is compelled to in self-defence. There is a vast difference between the policy of Great Britain and Germany in this regard, as carried out before the war. Great Britain kept up her army and navy just sufficiently to defend herself, if necessary, but Germany built up an enormous war machine, for a sinister purpose.

"It is just the same with the tariff policy of the Conservative Government as contrasted with that of the Liberals, who wish to keep up the tariffs bars sufficiently to compete successfully with the products of other countries. The Conservatives, however, wish to build up an unnecessarily high tariff wall, and for a sinister purpose. What is this sinister purpose?

It is simple and self-evident. To give such protection to large financial corporations and individuals in this country as will enable them to pay large dividends to those who wish to make millions at the expense of the rest of us. The contest between Mr. Meighen and Mr. King represents the age-old struggle between the few and the many. Mr. King has done his best to prevent the large financial interests from making too much money at the expense of the people, while giving them sufficient protection to maintain them, and to make the instruments of production necessary to the farmer and the miner as cheap as possible.

Reason for Liberalism.

"Can you give a real reason for being a Liberal?" is a question that I find very easy to answer. I can understand how others can be Conservatives. If I had been born in the class of certain privileged individuals having a monopoly on some portion of the wealth of this country, and doing their best at all times to keep as much wealth as possible in their own hands, I would be a Tory too. Fortunately or unfortunately for me, I was not born in that class. We Liberals believe in the democracy of the people, believe in give and take, believe in the woman in the home getting things as cheaply as possible, believe in the manufacturer having a square deal, believe in the farmer getting high prices as possible for his products."

Mr. Wearing referred to a passage from Hansard of about ten years back, in which, in a conversation in the House between Hon. R. R. Bennett of Calgary, then an independent Conservative, he accused Mr. Meighen of being merely a gramaphone for the MacKenzie Man interests, and said that Mr. Meighen still remained a mouthpiece for the big interests and desired to rule and govern this country for their good and his own.

"They use the catchwords of protection and high wages to influence the workers in the factories to vote for them and take the bread out of their own mouths. There are always those who are easily led by catchwords and they play on the brains of these poor people in the same way as they disloyally waved the Union Jack in 1911 and led them to do things they have regretted ever since."

Mr. Wearing referred to the wonderful ability, the capacity and the strong personality of Mr. Gordon, as evidenced in the choice of him as a Cabinet Minister, an honor which was only conferred on one who had proven himself to be a stateman of the highest calibre. He also introduced in very complimentary terms the speaker who followed him, John Dewart, as one who had received the Military Cross for gallantry on the battlefield, and who had made a wonderful fight also in a previous election campaign.

Promises Sustained.

Mr. Dewart spoke of the implementing by the present Government of the promises they had made in their election campaign, alluding to the lowering of the national debt charges, to the re-constituting of the management of the National Railways in such fashion as to turn them from liabilities to dividend-paying assets, and to the lowering of tariff on the instruments of production in the four basic industries; agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing, to the consequent bettering of conditions, not alone for workers, but every man, woman and child in the Dominion. A refutation of the claims made in 1921 by the Conservative party that the election of a Liberal government would result in the shutting-down of industries was the present successful condition of the same industries, and a brilliant example of the fallacy of their expressed charges was the inclusion in the Government's ranks of Mr. Vincent Massey, one of the largest manufacturers of farm implements in the world and noted also for his strong Imperialism, who would not think of joining Liberal ranks if the oft-repeated canard of the Tories were true that Mr. King was in sympathy with annexation of the Dominion by the United States.

Mr. Dewart also spoke of the task confronting the Conservatives wishing to overthrow the present government. They would be obliged to hold every seat they have at present and gain 74 more to give them the desired majority in the House, which will hold 245 members on its next assembly.

C. Jarvis, of London, a visitor to the city, spoke for a few minutes, extolling the attainments and characteristics of Mr. Gordon, and adjuring the ladies to increased labors on his behalf.

Mr. Duffus' Address.

J. J. Duffus gave a brief, pithy little speech, in which he spoke of the honor brought to the city by the inclusion of Mr. Gordon in the Cabinet, and to the wisdom to be shown in electing a man who was a Cabinet Minister in a Government which was sure to be sustained. He spoke of Mr. King as a statesman with vision and understanding of the problems of every section of the country, and of Mr. Meighen as one of the weakest and most short-sighted of men.

"It is a criminal thing to allow a man of his type to go about the country, keeping out thousands of people from the Dominion. I do not think the people will want him for their Premier, nor do I think he will be elected in his own constituency. He is using that one poor plank in his platform, the old wooden horse of the tariff that he has been dragging about for years. A protective tariff was a necessity forty-five years ago and was looked upon as such by both parties, but the industries it was destined to help have been babied long enough. I don't believe in protecting some and letting everyone else suffer. The merchant and the farmer is also entitled to consideration. Mr. Meighen finds fault with everyone except a privileged few. His policy is for the few, not for the good of the greatest number of the people."

Miss Luella Jobbitt, president of the Women's Liberal Association, who was in the chair, announced the holding of open meetings in the rooms every Tuesday night hereafter when special speakers will address the ladies. The rooms last night were crowded with an attentive audience of women.

During the evening, Mrs. George H. King sang in excellent voice, "The Market" and its encore, "My Laddie," with accompaniment by Mrs. Cecil Cragg.

MAY CONDEMN HOUSE.

Ten Persons Living in Three Rooms in East City.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton will probably recommend to the Board of Health the destruction of a house in Ashburnham, which he visited yesterday. It may be that extensive repairs would redeem it, but the building appeared beyond the relief of carpenters' efforts. Ten persons live in its three rooms—two bedrooms and a kitchen, and in that scant accommodation the dormitory arrangements must be a problem. Daylight peeked through chinks in a bedroom, and other conditions left the inspector wondering how the landlord could ask for the rent of six dollars a month. In the middle of the kitchen the floor sagged until it touched the ground, and the general evidences of dilapidation were depressing.

DUFFIELD-HUYCKE

Miss Mathilde Masson, wearing peach ombre crepe and georgette, trimmed with vari-colored French flowers, with scarf of the same and black hat and corsage bouquet of roses and lily of the valley, sang "O Perfect Love."

Before leaving the church, the bride placed a sprig from her bouquet on the tablet commemorating the memory of her brother, Lt. Arthur Huycke, who died in the Great War.

After the ceremony, the bridal party, the bride and bridegroom driven in a carriage drawn by white horses, were entertained at a reception held at "Engleburn", where the interior of the house was decorated with roses and autumn flowers. Refreshments were served in a marquee on the lawn, the bride's table done in sunset roses and pink candles, the bridesmaids' table in yellow.

Mrs. Huycke wore black chiffon velvet, trimmed with black georgette and embroidery, with black velvet hat, ostrich trimmed, black fox fur and corsage bouquet of lily of the valley and orchids. Mrs. Duffield, mother of the bridegroom, was in black chiffon velvet, the chiffon panels beaded in cut steel, grey hat, and corsage bouquet of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffield left on the afternoon train for Toronto, en route for a motor honeymoon through the United States, after which they will reside in London, Ontario. The bride travelled in a smart costume of Bokhara crepe, made with white vestee and touched with metallic embroidery. With this was worn a small French hat of the same purplish shade, black patent leather shoes and gunmetal stockings and coat of Queenbird needlepoint in matching hue, with panels and collar of moleskin.

ADVICE TO GIRLS
—By Annie Laurie—

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl sixteen years of age. I am not homely and I dress in the style, but the boys do not take an interest in me. Please tell me how to make them interested in me.

H. A. E.

H. A. E.: You have a sort of wholesale atmosphere to your query, H. A. E. You are evidently not so interested in one boy, as in a lot of them, which is quite all right, at sixteen years of age. I wouldn't worry too much about your problem. Perhaps you do not see the type of boy you like, and the ones who don't suit you don't appear to take an interest in you. Even if you are not homely, and dress in the style, you may not have enough animation to attract the attention of the average youth. Why not get interested in some form of sport, like tennis or bowling, or skating, that young men are interested in, and get enthusiastic about it. A good recipe for making people interested in you is to be interested in them and show it when you are talking to them. Also, forget yourself, first, last and always.

Sloths spend the whole of their existence upside down, walking and sleeping while clinging to branches in this position.

TWO CANADIANS SURVIVE ROUND

Mrs. Fraser Took Third Honours By Defeating Miss Klotz.

MISS COLLETT BEST.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, yesterday showed no signs of relinquishing her title of woman golf champion of the United States. She shot the best golf of the day in the first match round of the title contest at the St. Louis Country Club and won by the widest margin when she defeated Mrs. Jay Cassriel, of Chicago, 7 and 6.

The champion went out in 37, or three better than par. She did not complete the round for a possible score of around 75. This left the best score for a completed round to Glenna Collett, of Providence, R.I., a former champion, who not only had the second easiest match in defeating Mrs. Caleb Fox, of Philadelphia, 7 and 5, but scored a pair of 39's for her second 78 in two days.

Third honors went to Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, Canada, medalist, with a 77, who had to shoot par 40-41—81 to down Miss Dorothy Klotz, of Chicago, by the slender margin of one up.

It was only by an inch that Miss Klotz lost at the home green, for, had her shot from the deep trap at the green hit the high bank an inch higher, she would have had a birdie four to tie the match. Miss Klotz got two birdies, and she snared an eagle 3 at the 400-yard eleventh, where the Canadian had no fewer than six.

The Canadian contingent lost one of the trio who qualified when Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto, yielded 4 and 3 to Mrs. F. C. Letts, of Chicago, formerly Western champion.

In addition to Mrs. Fraser, however, the Dominion had a second promising contender left in Ada Mackenzie, Canadian champion, who recently defeated Mrs. Fraser in the finals. Miss Mackenzie shot a fine 38, two under par, on the first half, and, finding Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago, off her game, got a lead of 4 up.

The Chicagoan played better on the homeward trip, but the Canadian champion would not yield more than one hole, up to the 16th, where she became winner, 3 and 2. Both players were close to par on the second nine.

OLD BOYS GIRD LOINS FOR FRAY

Team of Pre-War Vintage Will Battle New Squad.

GORDON SHOWS PACE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Allan F. Argue has been appointed manager of the McGill Old Boys, who will meet the intercollegiate team in the annual exhibition at the Stadium Saturday afternoon. Dr. Argue has lined up a team which will include several of the players who were members of the title-holding squad in the years preceding the war; also a number who were with the championship team of 1919, and a hefty number of those who played on the more recent first teams of the University.

Back in 1912 and 1913 "Pud" Argue was the efficient manager of the McGill rugby squad, intercollegiate champions at that time.

Of the pre-war champions there will be Dr. Lorne C. Montgomery, Pringle Seath, Ross Laing, Dr. Norman Williamson, Buster Reid and Dr. Joe Donnelly; of the 1911 championship squad there will be Doug. Ambridge, Vee Heney, Dr. Cyril Flanagan, Gordon Nicholson, Dr. "Punch" Parkins, Tommy Hall, and Noah Timmins. Others on the list from the more recent graduates are Dr. Bill Baker, Dr. "Bones" Little, Dr. Sid Harris, Eddie Grain, Andy Rutherford, Sid Pierce, Don Baillie, Dr. "Sonny" Dier, Jeff Notman, Don Foss, Leo Timmins, Charlie Robertson and Dr. Armour.

The exhibition Saturday will be the first heavy task for the McGill Senior team in its pre-season campaign, and will be followed the next week-end by a game with Royal Military College here. In preparation for the contest and in keeping with the general scheme of training, Coach Shaughnessy has started the week by increasing the work of the squad.

Scrimmage practice played a bigger part in the drill today than heretofore, and the players were set at a faster gait. Lapses by the candidates were more closely checked as was indicated by the revival of the time-honored punishment of "around the track" for those who failed to do their tasks properly—and there was a fair parade once around.

One of the outstanding features of the scrimmages this week has been the smashing line plays of Ney Gordon, the McGill flying wing. Gordon is showing better form in attack than he has done in past years. Always recognized as a great secondary defence man, he has now come forward as a superb ball-carrier and in getting down under the long punts of St. Germain, generally follows the way to the remainder of those selected for down field work.

WINGED WHEELERS PECK OF TROUBLE

Coach Nicholson Laboring Under Many Adversities—Players Deserting.

MANY INJURED.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press).—Coach Nicholson is having his worries in rounding out the Montreal squad for the opening game in the Big Four against Ottawa at the Capital Saturday. Injuries to players have been overcome in a fairly satisfactory manner, but now there is the possibility of the Winged Wheel leader having to develop for rush delivery a substitute quarterback as a relief for Captain "Chick" Mundell. For the past two nights Weir Wright, who has been working on and off as relief quarter and outside wing for the Wheelers in the past three seasons, has not shown up for the workouts and there is a possibility of the general utility player turning in his equipment for the season. Efforts are being made to have Wright get back into harness and he may yet be seen in action in the opening game at the week-end.

While Bert Adams is lost to the squad for the best part of the season, due to a dislocated elbow, the other players who went on the injured list in the past two weeks are rounding back into condition. Clarris Booth was out tonight shaking the stiffness from his leg muscles—the result of a kick received in the Queen's tussle. Booth will be ready for the Ottawa game. Bert Ryan is gradually recovering from the effects of a "Charley horse" which developed after he wrenched his leg near half time on Saturday, while Lewis, who injured his leg playing for the Intermediate M.A.A.A. team against C.N.R. two weeks ago is again in harness and will be ready for a turn on the line Saturday. With these men struck off the casualty list and the addition of Carl Work and Walter Dickson to the outside berths, the losses in players sustained by the local Big Four team have been offset.

ENORMOUS BONE FOUND

Discovery of Great Interest Made in British Columbia.

SALMON ARM, B.C., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press). — A discovery which will prove of great interest to scientists and students of the province was recently made near here when a workman on the Turtle-Valley-Squilax road found a bone or abnormal size embedded in the ground at a depth of eighteen feet.

It was found to be a thigh bone, probably of some animal long extinct, with a knuckle bone nearly twelve inches in diameter.

WORLD RECORDS BROKEN WHEN AILEEN GUY WON FEATURE RACE

Speedy 3 Year Old Stepped Two Miles in 2.03 1-2 in Futurity.

SENSATIONAL TIME.

Crawford, in Buckeye Stake, Stepped Mile at Two Minute Clip.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—World records were broken yesterday when Aileen Guy, the speedy three-year-old daughter of Guy Axworthy, won the American Horse Breeders' Futurity, the feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit card.

To win she easily stepped the two miles in 2.03½. These two miles constitute a record for the Horse Breeders' Futurity; they also set a new record for two heats for a three-year-old trotting filly and they are the two fastest heats trotted this year in any futurity by any three-year-old.

Sensational time also made made in the first two heats of the Buckeye $1,800 stake for 2.12 trotters by Crawford, the winner of the event. In the first heat he stepped the 5-8 mile in 1.14½, better than a two-minute clip. In the second heat of 3-4 mile he trotted the distance in 1.30 3-4. The third heat at a longer distance was won by Thompson Dillon.

The Arch City Pacing Stake also had two heat winners. The favored Frank Worthy won the first and third heats, while the second one went to Star Ruth, whose chances in the final heat were spoiled by a bad break.

The 2.17 pace, a class event, went to Norman Grattan in straight heats, the fight being for second place.

The most exciting race of the day was the 2.15 trot with the largest field of the meeting. It required four heats before Wanita Ward was returned the winner. A $10 result ticket on her paid $855. By finishing second in the second heat, Davenport also furnished a surprise. A $2 ticket on him to place repaid to the extent of $193. The summaries:

PITTSBURGH CLUB AFTER STICK STARS

Darragh, Conacher and Cotton Among Present Aggregation.

WANT BILLY BURCH.

NEW YORK, September 30. — Canadian Press. — Monday night a 'hotel room' conference was held, with hockey magnates of New York and the "Smoky City" sitting in, and although nothing official was forthcoming, authoritative sources had it that Pittsburgh representatives are putting forth attractive offers for two of "Tex" Rickards' players. One of the New York club's lieutenants declared that Henry Townsend, backer of the Pittsburgh hockey venture, had offered a sum totalling $50,000 for the player rights on Joe Simpson, the flashy defence man of Edmonton and Billy Burch, centre ice man for Hamilton last year. The New York sport sheets are styling Burch as the "Babe Ruth of Canada's winter sport" because of the price the New York club is reported to have paid for his contract. The price for Burch while not disclosed, was said to have been a record figure.

DEMPSEY AND WILLS TO FIGHT NEXT YEAR

Party Went to Niles and Did Everything in Shipshape Fashion.

NILES, Mich., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Articles of agreement for a world's heavyweight championship match were signed here last night at 6.20 p.m., in a country doctor's office, between Jack Dempsey, the champion, and Harry Wills, negro challenger.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills came to terms late yesterday afternoon for a heavyweight championship fight in Michigan City, in the fall of 1926, and left immediately for Niles, Mich., just over the Indiana State line, to sign articles.

Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager, signed first, followed by Wills, Dempsey and Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the match. The party stayed at Niles only long enough to sign the papers, and then motored back to South Bend. The trip to Niles was for the purpose of signing in a state which legalizes boxing, prize fights being prohibited in Indiana. The principals decided to take no chances on legal technicalities.

LINE-UP PRACTICE ABSORBS SENATORS

Shifts Leave Uncertain Feeling as to Team Selection.

WING IMPROVED.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press).—Formations were the big item in the programme of the Ottawa Senators at yesterday afternoon's practice. The squad was divided into two teams and sent through a brisk line-up practice for an hour and a quarter.

Coach McCann Concentrated his attentions on the line men and drilled them plenty in formations they will likely employ against the M.A.A.A. team here on Saturday. The line was shifted a couple of times, and this leaves the selection of the team as much a guess as ever.

It was announced at the practice that the Senators had secured the services of "Irish" Monahan, star middle wing of the Brockville O.R.F.U. team last season. The locals are planning on starting the Island City plunger with Jerry Timmins mating him off on the other middle wing. The improved work of the outside wing candidates is one of the pleasing features of recent practices and Ottawa should field a really strong team for the opening tussle with the Winged Wheelers.

Art James had the quarter assignment on the main string again yesterday and it now looks as if he will bark the numbers for the first period at least. Jerry Rult and Bill Anderson are both strong candidates for the pivot position, but the latter may get a chance at flying wing.

GENEROUS GAME TO GROVE TEAM

Total of 76 Runs Collected in 9 Innings Play—Busy Session.

GLASS CRACKED, TOO.

LAKEFIELD, September 30. — An enthusiastic and generous game of ball was played in the rink last night between the Grove and Douro. Runs were gathered in clusters and the bombardment of base blows in addition to accounting for the score which swelled to such huge proportions, two panes of glass, and a light bulb fell victims to the ardent batsmen.

Both teams played a brilliant offensive game but the defence was absent. Runs were hoarded regardless of any attempted opposition, and the end of the ninth seance witnessed an aggregate of 76 tallies. The Grove was represented by 43 while the Douro allotment was 33.

A good crowd witnessed the debacle and urged on the duellists to fresh efforts. For Douro it might be said that their full regular crew was not present and it was their first appearance under artificial light.

Masons and business men will try conclusions on Thursday evening.

Score by innings:
Grove .. ..(13)97331610—43
Douro .. ..526300584—33

The line up:
Grove: Moore p; Robertson c; Earl 1b; Young 2b; Barnard 3b; Griffiths and Loosemore ss; Pullen rf; Miall lf; Cockburn sub.
Douro: Coughlin c; Darling p; Wannamaker 1b; Fitzgerald 2b; Junkin 3b; McHugh and J. Allen ss; Carlow rf; B. Allen lf; Corvey sub.
Umpires: Graham, Jr., Morrison.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

One of the oldest rules of golf, the one the player hears oftenest and the one he most frequently forgets about — usually unconsciously — is the admonition to hold the head still. Holding the head still, but not rigidly so, enables the player to maintain his center of gravity. This is what controls balance, so necessary throughout this physical exertion. The idea of the head being held still is not, as many golfers think, to so fix things that the clubhead will go back to the ball—that is, that is not the direct object of the head still rule. The golfer who has the idea of absolutely fixing his head, to keep it still, will have it rigidly held. That is bad because the head is heavy. A good interpretation of this rule for the average golfer is: Maintain your center of gravity—or balance—by controlling it with the head. The player who does that will have little trouble from his head moving.

HOCKEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—After firing the opening guns in a campaign to secure formidable and experienced material with which to bolster up a team to start in the National Hockey League this winter should they be allowed entry, representatives of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, who have been dickering for the last two days with the New York Club, have left for home. Although it was said that no final basis had been reached from which a sale of New York players would be made to the "Smoky City" magnates, T. P. Gorman, secretary for Tex Rickard's team, admitted that bids for certain of his men were being considered.

The special meeting of the N.H.L. delegates in this city Saturday reported favorably on Pittsburgh's application to operate a team in the circuit but left final ratification of the application up to the annual meeting of the League in Montreal. Saturday's meeting did, however, empower the backers of the Pittsburgh venture to sign contracts on any of the men who played for the amateur team of that city last year.

While Pittsburgh's amateur squad embraced such stars as Harold Darragh, of Ottawa, and Lionel Conacher and Harold Cotton, of Toronto, it is pointed out that none of these boys has ever played in fast professional company. Henry Townsend, figurehead of the Smoky City's new professional club, and Howard Rigby, his lieutenant, appear to have realized that one or two seasoned players would strengthen their team greatly and the negotiations with the local club ensued.

Just which players the Pittsburgh men are after could not be learned, but unofficial advices are to the effect that Billy Burch, former Hamilton man, and Joe Simpson, of Edmonton, are the players sought. The possibility of Gorman allowing either of these stars to go, however, is considered very remote.

TORONTO VARSITY GRIDIRON KNIGHTS

There is great activity at Varsity Stadium these days, and it it will not be the fault of the gentlemen shown above if the U. of T. is not well represented on the gridiron the coming season. The coaching of the various squads is in most capable hands, and the prospects generally are most favorable. Those pictured above are: "Red" Murray, "Ronny" McPherson, "Biddy" Barr, chief coach; Les Blackwell, Herb Taylor, Les Pearson and Frank Fisher.

CANADIAN NURSES PROUD OF EXHIBIT

Was by Far Best Shown at International Nurses' Conference.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 29.—(By Canadian Press)—Miss Jean Brown, one of the Canadian delegates to the International Nurses Conference at Helsingfor, Finland attended by fifty-two Canadians, gave some glimpses of this event to the Graduate Nurses' Association of this city. Finland, said Miss Brown, captured the imagination of the Canadian and the conference would always be memorable for its outstanding graciousness of spirit. Its central figure was the International Fresident Baroness Sophie Mannerheim, a Finnish lady of strong personality, commanding presence, keen intellect, nimble wit and kind heart.

"The Canadian nurses were justified in feeling proud of the Canadian exhibit," said Miss Brown. "Both in quality and quantity it far exceeded that of any other county. Prepared by Miss Hersey of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, it included exhibits from every Provincial Public Health Department in Canada, an excellent display by the Victoria Order of Nurses, and an admirable collection of Training School portfolios for all the Provinces. The next convention will be held in China, although an invitation was also received from Canada. The Chinese delegates were so earnest in their desire, feeling that it would mean a great deal to their country, that their invitation was accepted.

KING ASKS FOR MEN FROM WEST

Speaks at Regina and Appeals For Progressive Support.

MAY TAKE DUNNING.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Premier King last night renewed his appeal for Progressive support. He announced that it was his intention to have a Minister of Immigration devoting his whole time to immigration, and he expressed his hope and desire that the portfolio would go to a Western man. He indicated his intention to invite Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan to join his Cabinet after the elections. He would like Saskatchewan to have two Ministers in the Cabinet, and he added: "I may venture to ask the good people of Saskatchewan to allow me to take to the wider councils of this nation, the Premier of Saskatchewan.

"I want the West to have adequate Cabinet representation provided the West sends me a following out of which I can make adequate representation," warmly proceeded the Prime Minister.

GIANT CORN PROBLEM.

How to Harvest and Prepare For Silo is Causing Worry.

STIRLING, Sept. 30.—The continued weekly rains have retarded the final harvest work, but farmers were busy ploughing and corn cutting. Silo filling has begun with some, others are wondering how they are going to handle the corn crop, it having grown to such a height that the work is greater than usual to get it ready to haul to the silo.

The price of cheese at Belleville on Saturday reached the high price of 23 9-16c. The flow of milk keeping up for this time of the year, the patrons are drawing good substantial cheques for milk products.

The apple crop seems to be good in this vicinity judging by the number who are peddling them around town.

The potato crop is not the best with everybody, early potatoes are a failure and some are complaining of the later ones rotting. On account of this condition the price will be good for those who are fortunate in having more than they need for their own use.

INDIAN SUN DANCE IN FILM THRILLER.

The weird ceremonial dances and rites of the Indians who roamed the West before the advent of the white men are depicted in a fascinating manner in "The Scarlet West," a First National picture coming to-morrow to the Capitol Theatre, Manager Crowe announces.

Pdobably the most impressive of these rites was the "sun dance," for the red men worshipped the sun as their god, and it was the object of all their primitive reverence and awe. Preparations for it were extensive, as it was a prolonged and complicated affair.

The whole tribe gathered on the scene just before dawn and the actors in the strange drama took their places, facing the East. As the sun rose above the horizon the mad and fantastic contortions began, the dancers whirling and leaping until they fell to the ground exhausted. The vigor with which they gyrated was explained by the fact that in this manner they were able to demonstrate their right to be called "braves." The weaker ones — those who gave in the quickest — thereafter were scorned by the warriors.

Just as awesome was the "war dance," staged on the eve of an assault upon another tribe or against an army post. This dance took place at night, amid many camp fires.

The story of "The Scarlet West" is a vividly gripping one, combining romance and adventure. It was produced by Frank J. Carroll in the south-western portion of Colorado, and four thousand persons appear in the cast.

LILLIAN GISH IN "ROMOLA" PROVES TO BE GREAT HIT.

A large audience came, saw and was conquered when "Romola," Lillian Gish's latest picture, was shown at the Capitol both Monday and Tuesday. This production, directed by Henry King, is a film version of the famous novel by George Eliot. It is undoubtedly one of the outstanding achievements of an outstanding year in motion picture advancement. For beauty, drama and thrills it stands at the top.

Lillian Gish, as ever, is superb in the title role, and the picture has an added attraction in Dorothy Gish, who is seen with her sister for the first time since "Orphans of the Storm." Ronald Colman, of "The White Sister" fame, is the hero, and William H. Powell is the villain. Others in the cast include Charles Lane, Herbert Grimwood, and Amelia Summerville. "Romola" was filmed in Florence, Italy, the locale of the story, and this authenticity is very apparent. It is an Inspiration picture, Charles D. Duell, Jr., president; distributed by Metro-Goldwyn.

"Romola" will be shown again to-night for the last time.

AT THE GRAND

"BLOSSOM TIME" COMING.

"Blossom Time", the greatest musical success the stage has had in years, has been booked for an engagement of two performances at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, October 3rd, matinee and evening, under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert.

The story of "Blossom Time" deals with the love of Franz Schubert. The scenes are laid in old Vienna and the story is told in three acts. The original theme of this story was discovered in a half-fiction and half-biographical life of Schubert which was published shortly after his death. This material was worked over into a musical comedy by Willner and Reichert. Miss Dorothy Donnelly has entirely rewritten the Viennese book and has supplied a new set of lyrics. It is altogether a charming love story that has been used in this incident of Schubert's life in old Vienna.

The first act occurs at an outdoor restaurant in the famous Prater Park in May, 1826. At this restaurant there gather three pretty little maids, Mitzi, Fritzi, and Kitzi. They are famous over Vienna for their beauty and charm. Fritzi and Kitzi go to meet their sweethearts and Schubert falls in love with Mitzi. There is some doubt as to the girls' love, as to whether it is true love or only admiration for the composer's abilities. Schubert's friend, Baron von Schober, fails in love with Mitzi and Bellabruna, a prima donna friend of the Baron, hoping to seperate him from Mitzi tell the girl that 'F.S.' as she refers to the Baron, is her sweetherat. Mitzi takes "F. S." to be Franz Schubert. Schober sings a love song to Mitzi that Schubert has written for her, and she falls into his arms. Schubert, crushed beyond description accepts his fate without a murmur. In sheer desperation he seeks refuge in his music.

"B. P. Schulberg has taken one of the most timely subjects, one which is discussed wherever the literati, the intelligent, the plain people, in fact, everybody get together for the discussion of world problems. We feel that many folks are going to do a lot of deep thinking after viewing "Capital Punishment." But don't get the idea that the feature is sermonizing for it isn't. There is a story here with enough suspense and thrills for a half a dozen average pictures and some acting that stands out like an oasis in the desert.

Production Highlights: The acting. Comedy in vision scene. The powerful climax.

Direction: James P. Hogan is to be congratulated. He has "stepped on it" every inch of the way and has produced a picture that is going to have most audiences sitting on the edge of the seats.

Summary: A picture that has a message to tell and starts right in to tell it in a short, snappy, powerful manner. A production that is practically without padding and boasts of a cast of the first water. Filled with fine performances and dramatic moments."

—Frank Elliott in the Motion Picture News.

"Remarkable entertainment. It is human it is funny, it is dramatic, it is sensational. Almost any audience can find in it that ingredient which they like best in a motion picture."

—Summer Smith in the Moving Picture World.

"There is no doubt that this film will prove a successful box-office attraction. It may best be described as sure-fire stuff."

—Exhibitors Trade Review.

"It cannot fail to win the interest of thousands of movie-goers wherever the picture is exhibited. "Capital Punishment' has a successful career ahead of it unless I am greatly mistaken. Its message leaves an impression that will outlive scores of other stories."

Arthur Eddy in The Billboard.

"Few pictures have been released lately that make one "feel" as 'Capital Punishment' does. There are moments when one is made to imagine as if one is present in a real life occurrence."

—Harrison's Reports.

BETWEEN YOU AND TREACHEROUS ROADS

Safety as well as comfort depend on the tires you choose. There is a safety lesson in the example of the great racing drivers, whose lives are dependent on tire-performance. Over a period of three years, these "aces" of road and track have driven to victory on tires built by the Firestone Gum-Dipped Process.

At the Canadian National Exhibition Firestone Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons won the most important race of the meet while in the West this summer, new Canadian records were set on Gum-Dipped Cords.

In the construction of Full-Size Balloons—the easiest riding and safest tires ever built—this extra process is no less vital. It puts the extra strength into the thinner sidewalls needed to withstand the extra flexing strain. Gum-Dipping insulates every fibre of every cord with rubber—minimizing destructive friction and giving greater mileage and added economy.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Balloons give a cushioning, gripping protection that will carry you over fall and winter roads with amazing comfort and safety. See your nearest Firestone dealer. He will equip your car quickly and at low cost.

FLOWERS AND PLANTS

Magnificent Lot of Home-Grown Stock for Peterboro's Own Decoration at Jordan Bros.' Glass Gardens.

One of the interesting places to visit is the extensive range of greenhouses of the Jordan Bros. on Argyle street. At the present time the benches are loaded with a magnificent stock of potted plants and bench plants for cut bloom, that will bring brightness and cheer to many a city home during the coming fall and winter. A 200 foot house, 30 feet wide contains 3000 sturdy looking carnations, while the center bench, 200 feet x 6 ft., is full of asparagus sprengeri, which supplies the cut green for use with the cut flowers. Shelved above them, and also elevated in the adjoining house are 1000 grand cyclamen, just potted into 6, 7 and 8 inch pans. They already show the buds for the coming flower crop, that make these plants so popular for house decoration. Passing into the next house a long bench containing what looks like a solid red mass of bloom reveals itself as the stock of nearly 2000 Begonia Luminosa and Schmidts Ideal, the latter a decided improvement on the former, though color of bloom is the same. There are 1500 Primulas of marvellous quality, grown from seed from Europe's greatest specialist, Blossfield, and called his latest. Individual blossoms in some cases measure 2 inches across.

House after house contains new surprises, in one corner are 800 cinerarias, just getting settled after being potted from the bench, and showing extra fine quality. The rest of the house and parts of others is filled with a grand lot of ferns in 5 inch pots, and ready right now to decorate the homes of the firm's customers. Two houses are devoted to growing the "Mums", which are well advanced and showing buds. Outdoors, in cold frames are hundreds of flats planted full as they can hold with the bulbs that are to be forced into bloom during the winter. Staggering numbers are mentioned quite casually by the growing staff, such as 10,000 paper whites, 10,000 daffodils, 20,000 tulips, etc. A peep at the beds being got ready for spring flowers discovers a splendid lot of Sweet William and a large corner being prepared for a "few thousand" pansies.

Evidence of continuous hard work by the growers, is seen everywhere, and the result must be a source of contented satisfaction to all of them, when the harvest is such an abundant one.

This splendid stock of flowers and plants, will all be reserved for Peterboro's own use, and sold at the firm's two stores, 428 George, and 216 Charlotte streets.

The most of the trading however was in later deliveries, attention focusing largely on advices from Buenos Aires.

HON. G. N. GORDON'S MESSAGE TO WEST PETERBORO' ELECTORS

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH,

Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a Minister of the Government now in power and as your representative in Parliament, I wish in presenting by claim for re-election to remind you of what the Government with which I am associated has done for Canada during its four years in office. The statements I have already made from the public platform will be here repeated in part so you may have them in black and white, and they may all be substantiated by reference to any recognized authority.

IN THE FIRST PLACE I WISH TO ASSURE YOU THAT CANADA HAS NOT GONE BACK ONE INCH DURING THE TERM OF THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT. ON THE CONTRARY, THE COUNTRY HAS ADVANCED IN TRADE, IT HAS BEEN PUT ON THE HIGHROAD TO PROSPERITY, AND IT IS NOW FARTHER ON THE WAY TOWARD COMPLETE REHABILITATION THAN ANY OTHER NATION WHICH MADE EQUAL SACRIFICES IN THE GREAT WAR.

The National Debt of Canada, exclusive of railway obligations, was reduced by $36,000,000 during the term of the present Government.

According to Dun's report there were over 19,000 more firms doing business in Canada in 1924 than during Mr. Meighen's regime, but there were 10 per cent fewer failures in 1924 than in 1921.

In the last year of the Conservative Government Canada had an adverse trade balance of $33,000,000. In the fiscal year ending March 31 this year, that adverse balance had been wiped out and Canada had, instead, a favorable balance of $285,000,000.

The Liberal Government pared down the annual expenditure by $114,000,000, with a consequent economy of $14.06 a year for every man, woman, and child in Canada. And out of every dollar of this present expenditure there goes 55 cents for war liabilities.

Taxation, which amounted to $41.90 per capita in 1920-1921, was reduced to $31.38 in 1924-1925, which means that the people today are paying $3 in taxation where they paid $4 under the Conservative administration.

Canadian men, for the protection of their families, were able in 1924 to spend $100,000,000 more on life insurance policies than they could afford in 1921.

The Canadian dollar, which was worth only 85 cents in United States exchange during the Conservative rule, was carried by the Liberal Government above par, leading the way for the nations of the world.

THAT IS PART OF THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT IN WHICH I HAVE SERVED YOU. CANADA WAS A SICK COUNTRY WHEN THIS GOVERNMENT TOOK CHARGE OF AFFAIRS. BUT SANE TREATMENT HAS TIDED HER OVER THE CRISIS AND A STEADY IMPROVEMENT HAS BEEN OBVIOUS FOR SOME TIME.

Agriculture is in a flourishing condition. Foreign and domestic trade have alike expanded. We have a favorable balance of trade. The Canadian dollar is worth one hundred cents in every market. Business has expanded, and a measure of relief from taxation, tariff and otherwise, has been afforded the consumer without injury to the great manufacturing interest in the country. The steady stream of emigration to the United States which exceeded 752,000 persons under the Borden-Meighen governments, has been checked, and the flow has turned. Wholesale immigration of undesirables and of men who would compete in the industrial centres with tradesmen and mechanics has been sternly discountenanced. Wasteful extravagance of the public revenue has been replaced by rigid economies in every branch of the Public Service, so that Canada is at last in position to balance her budget. Trade treaties have opened to Canadian exporters rich markets hitherto undeveloped. Taxation has been reduced and the cost of living lowered.

A SPIRIT OF NATIONAL UNITY AND CONCORD HAS REPLACED DISCORD AND SUSPICION EAST AND WEST. LONG ANTAGONIZED BY THE MACHINATIONS OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, ARE NOW ALL ONE CANADA. THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT BELIEVES IN CANADA, IS PROUD OF CANADA, SEES A GREATER CANADA YET TO BE DEVELOPED.

Contrast with this spirit and with these achievements the record of the Conservative party which asks your support. The only policy that party now has is the one it announced in 1921 —higher tariff. But in its three years of power after the war, why did it not apply this policy, this panacea for the ills of Canada? By its lack of backbone and by its bad business management, it let Canada drift until towards the end of 1921, the Government feared to meet Parliament and went down to defeat before an enlightened electorate. In the session of 1921 one of Mr. Meighen's supporters, Mr. W. G. McQuarrie, M.P., put upon record in Hansard: We have bread lines in nearly all the cities." Mr. Meighen himself, in his 1921 manifesto to the electors, declared: "Our dollar is already at a serious discount in the United States, mainly because of our excessive purchases there compared with our sales."

THE GOVERNMENT WHICH I REPRESENT DOES NOT COME TO YOU TODAY WHIMPERING OF FAILURE, MAKING EXCUSES IN TREMBLING ANTICIPATION OF DESERVED CASTIGATION. IT COMES IN THE FULL PRIDE OF CONQUEST, HAVING PULLED CANADA FROM THE MORASS INTO WHICH THE CONSERVATIVE LEADERS ADMITTED AT THE END OF THEIR TERM THEY HAD PLUNGED IT.

In the spirit of a greater Canada, built up on business lines, with continued increase in prosperity and continued lowering of taxation and the cost of living, I request your support for me personally and for the Government in which I am a member.

To the Women of West Peterborough I make special appeal, not alone because of the important part the Liberal party played in gaining for them the franchise, but because of the intrinsic value of the policies Liberal Government offers. Love of country, love of home, love of achievement; these are attributes of womankind since the beginning of time. In the Liberal party women find expression for their love of country through the opportunity to make it better by constructive legislation; they are helped to make home more comfortable and prosperous by the measures sponsored by this Government towards decreasing the cost of living; and in this party, as in no other, they are offered avenues for the exercise of their peculiar qualifications that lead to genuine achievement, worthwhile because done for the country and the homes they love.

G. N. GORDON,
Minister of Immigration.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Mother, who passed away on Sunday, Sept. 28, 1924, at Kenwood, Man.

Now the labourer's task is o'er,
Now the battle day is past;
Now upon the farther shore,
Lands the voyager at last;
Father in Thy gracious keeping,
Leave we now Thy servant sleeping.
—Inserted by her daughters, Mrs. P. J. Elliott and Mrs. A. E. D.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written on the death of Mr. George Forsyth, who died September 27, 1924:

Dear Geordie has gone from our circle,
On earth we will meet him no more;
He has gone to his home in Heaven,
And all his sufferings are o'er.

But I know Geordie you are dwelling,
In a fairer and brighter land,
Where no pain can ever enter,
You are cared for by God's hand

Loving Geordie, thou art sleeping
In the cold and silent tomb,
Calmly sleeping, gracefully waiting
The glorious resurrection morn.

Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spot that death has won,
We should at his solemn parting,
Calmly say 'Thy will be done!'

Though cast down we're not forsaken,
Though afflicted not alone,
Thou didst give, and thou has taken,
Blessed Lord Thy will be done.

MEIGHEN STATES ENFORCEMENT OF ONE-TENTH OF PROGRESSIVE POLICY HARMFUL TO INDUSTRIES

Addressed Electors at Portage la Prairie Constituency.

PERSONAL MATTER

Answered Charges of Obtaining Exemptions for Young Men.

OAKVILLE, Man., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—"Even in the Progressive party there are protectionists to-day," declared Hon. Arthur Meighen in the course of an address to electors of his constituency of Portage La Prairie here yesterday. The Liberals were, and always had been faithful, he said, in their allegiance to free trade policies. The enforcement of about ten per cent. of the "blessed Progressive policy," had resulted in the crippling of many Canadian industries and the stagnation because of uncertainty of many more. "Are you satisfied with this result?" he asked. "If you are, just vote for another four years of drift."

In spite of rain and sleet and mired roads, the hall was well filled. Hon. Hugh Armstrong, former member for Portage La Prairie in the Manitoba Legislature, was the first speaker. He found himself unable, he said, to find that the Liberal Party in Federal politics had any policy at all. The building of the National Transcontinental road seemed to him to be the outstanding achievement of the Liberal Party during its terms of office, and this railway, he said, had resulted only in an addition to the national debt.

He expressed the conviction that the policy of the Progressive Party had been barren of results and that it was "time for a change." He would not "take off his hat to Uncle Sam and beg for reciprocity," but would give a business government in Canada a chance to employ in Canada the same fiscal policy which had brought prosperity to countries which competed nationally with Canada.

Mr. Meighen, in opening, asked permission to refer to a personal matter. It had been reported in the constituency four years ago, and it was being rumored again now, that during the war days he had tried to obtain exemption for certain young men from military service in the district. He offered "the deed of this building" to anybody who could prove that he had ever interfered with the work of the exemption tribunal for the district. He would give a great deal, he said, to know who were circulating such rumors.

Passing to "subjects that really count," Mr. Meighen asked his audience if it did not find that "most of the talk about iniquities of the tariff is all humbug." He said that H. W. Wood, leader of the Alberta Farmers, had recently declared publicly that the tariff was not the real issue in this election, and that its importance was being greatly exaggerated.

Even in the Progressive Party today there are protectionists, he said. "With the whole Liberal Party faking on it and with some of the Progressives going the same way, do you really think you were right in 1921?"

The Progressives in the Federal House, he said, had been "merely an appendage, hanging on to the Government's coat-tails and excusing the Government's failure to carry out anything except about ten per

HEAVY WAR DEBTS

PARIS, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press). —President Gaston Doumergue received Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Canadian Senator and President of the Assembly of the League of Nations, at the palace here yesterday and they engaged in conversation for half an hour.

It is understood that when asked by the president what practical result the Canadian representation had achieved at Geneva, Senator Dandurand replied that it had enabled the Dominion to justify her non-adherence to the protocol owing to her past heavy war expenditure and present railway drain. Until these were adjusted, he said, Canada could not consider indefinite further commitments. This attitude, he added, was appreciated by the participants in the Assembly of the League of Nations and acknowledged by his election as president of the Assembly.

The Canadian representation at Geneva, Senator Dandurand continued, also had enabled the Dominion to work with Empire ministers on the international field of diplomacy, each giving the other's point of view. For example, in response to a suggestion that Canada might have done more for imperial defence than she had done, it was pointed out that in her past war expenditure the Dominion had incurred future annual taxes to a much greater extent than Great Britain had expected for such defence.

Again, the European diplomats considered that Canada's signing of the Fisheries Treaty at Washington was an indication of drift from Empire treaties, which should be signed by ambassadors, with force behind ythem. The Canadian representation held that in the final analysis ambassadors were only servants of the governments affected by the treaties. If force were necessary as a background to every treaty, why sign Force was never in mind when treaties were made between North American governments, the Senator said.

In conclusion, the Canadian representation at the Assembly of the League of Nations had enhanced the prestige of the Dominion, and this will bring about practical business results, the Senator said.

Senator Dandurand will sail on the Mauretania.

TRYING TO BRING UP SUNKEN SUBMARINE

The above photograph shows the rescue operations being conducted over the spot where the U.S. submarine S-51 is lying in 13 feet of water. The submarine S-50 is getting into position next to the divers' boat so that it may pump air into the sunken vessel. The S-51 is located below the divers 'boat on the left of the picture. Rough weather compelled postponement of the rescue work.

New British Law Makes It Hard For Minors To Marry Permission Of Both Parents Must Be Obtained First

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press). —Young people who desire to rush into matrimony without their parents consent will be up against a new act of parliament which came into force today.

Under the guardianship of infants act, a marriage license will be refused for persons under age of 21 unless a written consent of both father and mother (where both are living together) has first been obtained.

Provision is made that in the case of "absence, in accessibility or some disability" on the part of either father or mother, the other may give the sanction where a minor cannot obtain the consent of both parents to a civil marriage, the case may be referred to the Registrar General who will, if he deems it wise, dispense with the dissenting parents consent; or, should he refuse to adjudicate, the persons seeking a marriage license may take the case to a court of summary jurisdiction or to the higher courts.

UP-GRADE TREND IN CONSTRUCTION

Years Aggregate Leads 1924 —Total Second Largest Since 1913.

QUEBEC THRIVING

For the second month in succession the total value of construction awards have exceeded those for the corresponding months of 1924. Throughout Canada the contracts awarded figures, as compiled by MacLean Building Reports, Lt., totalled $29,746,400 compared with $22,506,300 for September a year ago. Residential building accounted for 25.7 p.c. of the August total and amounted to $7,651,300. Business buildings totalled $7,376,800 or 24.8 p.c., industrial buildings $354,400 or 1.2 p.c., and public works and utilities $14,364,300 or 48.3 p.c. The activity was distributed among the province as follows: Quebec, 51.8 p.c.; Ontario, 33.4 p.c.; Prairie Provinces 10.9 p.c.; British Columbia 2.6 p.c., and the Maritime Provinces 1.3 p.c.

To the Province of Quebec goes credit for the large contracts awarded totals recorded during the past two months. In fact the cumulative figures from month to month for that province have been consistently larger than those for last year; the increase of over $6,000,000 is due to increased development in the pulp and paper industry and in bridges, roads and other engineering projects. Ontario lags behind last year when grand totals are compared but in the building classifications, omitting engineering contracts, an increase of over $7,000,000 is shown. The Western and Maritime Provinces continue slightly ahead of 1924.

Prices Steady.

With prices of building materials and labor on a level with August a year ago and practically no fluctuation intervenient it is reasonable to assume that prices have reached a working level where they will remain for awhile at least. It is considered by many that prices are now where they would have been anyway had no war boomed prices artificially. The small natural increase shown in years previous to 1913, if unchecked, would largely account for similar increases.

Tota' construction started from January 1st to September 30th. Has amounted to $208,677,400 compared with $201,712,300 during the corresponding period of last year. During this period Residential Building shows a rather unexpected increase of 14.8 p.c.; Business Building a decrease of 5.4 p.c.; principally on account of less warehouse and hospital space being built; Industrial Building an increase of 52.9 p.c., largely attributable to power and paper developments in the Province of Quebec; Public Works and Utilities a decrease of 8.4 p.c. The activity was distributed among the classes as follows: Residential 35.0 p.c.; Business 26.9 p.c.; Industrial 8.9 p.c.; Engineering, $29.2 p.c. In related sections of the country the activity is shown as follows: Ontario 42.5 p.c.; Quebec, 37.0 p.c.; Prairie Provinces 8.5 p.c.; British Columbia 8.3 p.c.; Maritime Provinces 3.7 p.c. The total for the Dominion is greater than last year by 3.4 p.c.

Proposed new work reported as contemplated during September had an estimated value of $38,662,900. For the first nine months of this year the contemplated total stands at 449,185,900 compared with $285,000,800 for the same period in 1924.

TIGHTEN BORDER FOR SMUGGLERS

Canada and U.S.A. Make Arrangements For Suppression.

HOLD UP LIQUOR.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press). — Regulations for the suppression of smuggling between Canada and the United States approved recently by the Governments of the two countries, were made public last night. Provisions are announced to prevent clearances of small motor boats and similar craft for points in Cuba and Mexico, where it is suspected that the cargo is intended to be smuggled into the United States or Canada; and for the exchange of information regarding persons engaged in the narcotic traffic.

The regulations also contain restrictions respecting shipments of liquor while in transit through Alaska into the north-western part of Canada. Further provisions deal with the return of property stolen in one country and smuggled into the other and for the obtaining of evidence for the conviction of smugglers.

WEATHER

This is the first day of October. October, as the name signifies, was at one time the eighth month of the year, but is now the tenth; September (from the Latin "Septum" seven, was the seventh month). September will go down in weather records as having a record for wetness. The rainfall for the month gave a total of 5.52, almost 6 inches. This is the heaviest September rainfall I have a record of. During the last 30 years it has only been exceeded during the following months:

	Inches
July, 1902	8.65
June, 1906	6.75
May, 1912	6.89
August, 1915	6.87
October, 1917	6.24

Some people take a great interest in old proverbs, and have a most implicit faith in the same. For the benefit of such I here give a few:

"As September, so the coming March."

"A wet September, drought for next summer."

"Much rain in October, much wind in December."

"Warm October, cold February."

"As the weather in October, so will it be the next March."

"If October brings heavy frosts and winds, then will January and February be mild."

The warmest day in September was the 1st, with 86 degrees. The coolest was the 26th, with 29 degrees. The first time freezing point was reached was the 22nd. Rain fell on 17 days. At the close of the month the foliage on the trees had changed but little, and the grass had the fresh green color of early spring. This morning the temperature stood at 29 degrees, with a heavy white frost. —W. P.

BIG INDICTMENT AGAINST FRUIT FIRMS OF WEST

Grand Jury Handed List of 863 Charges on 16 Counts.

42 FIRMS NAMED.

Charges Cover Many Means of Cheating Growers and Consumers.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Eight hundred and sixty-three charges involved in an indictment of 16 counts against 42 fruit firms and 11 individuals in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, were handed to the grand jury at the Assize Court here yesterday afternoon by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald, presiding judge.

Theft, fraud, falsification of books for purposes of deceit, market juggling and price manipulation, restraint of trade, interference with sound business competition, syndicating and general conniving to cheat the grower and consumer with serious injury to the fruit-growing industry in Canada are contained in the charges.

The trial of the fruit interests of Western Canada in Vancouver will take place at the instigation of the Federal Department of Justice.

The jurisdiction of the court has been extended to cover the territory ranging from the coast to Winnipeg.

BRITISH FLEET GUARDS IN EAST

Admiralty Orders Powerful Fleet to Be Maintained in Asia Minor.

MEET AT CRETE.

LONDON, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Strong British naval forces will be maintained in the Near Eastern waters during the next few weeks, under amended orders issued by the Admiralty to the Mediterranean Fleet.

Under new instructions, the Third Battle Squadron, the Third Cruiser Squadron and the First and Third Destroyer Flotillas will concentrate in Suda Bay, Crete, on October 8 to remain a week.

After their departure for Malta the battleship Queen Elizabeth will arrive at Suda Bay, and she, in turn, will leave for Malta October 20.

FRENCH OFFER NOT ACCEPTED

Statement Issued By U. S. Secretary of the Treasury.

NO AGREEMENT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—The French proposal for settlement of her war debt to the United States has been found unacceptable. This was indicated in a statement issued by Secretary of Treasury Mellon this morning, which declared: "No proposal acceptable to the United States Commission had been made."

Mr. Mellon's statement denied that President Coolidge had been called upon to referee a difference of opinion among the members of the United States Commission as to the acceptance of France's latest offer. Reports which had been circulated to the effect that an agreement had been reached were also denied.

RIFFS RETIRING BEFORE FRENCH BASE IN DANGER

Rebel Chieftain Forced to Suspend Attack on Spanish Stronghold.

TROOPS DIVERTED.

Spanish Forces Are Drawing Steadily Nearer Adjir.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press). — While French troops operating in the Kifane region against the rebellious tribesmen are reported as continuing to sweep forth methodically, breaking down such opposition as is offered by Riffians, advices have been received at military headquarters here that the Spanish troops are getting nearer and nearer the Ajdar base of Abd-El-Krim, the Riffian leader.

It is asserted that Abd-El-Krim has been obliged to suspend his offensive against Tetuan, the Spanish capital, and rush troops to danger spots in the south.

TURKS CALL OUT MANY RECRUITS

Four Classes, From 22 to 25 Years of Age, Called to Colors.

OFFICERS EXAMINED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Four classes of recruits, ranging from the ages of 22 to 25 years, have been called to the colors. Officers of the first and second reserves are to undergo a medical examination.

NO NOTICE TAKEN.

LONDON, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—British official circles profess to see no indication of deviation in the Turkish policy in the news from Constantinople that four classes of recruits have been called to the colors.

It is pointed out that the policy of the present Government of Turkey is based on the military defence of her frontiers and it is believed that the summoning of recruits cannot be interpreted as pointing to a bellicose attitude.

There is no idea in official circles here that the move is connected with the Anglo-Turkish dispute over the territory of Mosul, which is in the hands of the League of Nations.

BETTER SERVICE IN POST OFFICES

Two Sub-Offices Now Give Full Service, Including Sale of Money Orders.

MOTOR DELIVERY.

Starting to-day full postal service will be given from a second of the four sub-post-offices in the city. Vincent Sullivan's drug store, sub-office Number Four, will now issue and cash money orders and postal notes, handle registered and insured mail, and take in parcel post mail. Some time ago sub-office Number One, at Brownton, started to give this service.

At the beginning of this week a motor truck painted red and decorated with the Royal Arms, started to deliver the parcel post packages around the city. This has materially speeded up the service, and retires "Dobbin" from another field of service in the handling of mail.

In only one department does he now reign supreme, and that is in collecting from the mail boxes around the city. In this part of the work a trained horse can teach a great deal and the route, covering the circuit without missing a box.

LABOR LEADERS HOPE TO EVICT BALDWIN GOVT.

Ramsay MacDonald Would Seize Opportunity of Minority Tenure.

BALLOT BOX REVOLT

Urged Followers to Keep Noses to the Grindstone of Constitutionalism.

LIVERPOOL, England, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—The leaders of the Labor party have hopes of turning out the Baldwin Government a great deal sooner than the public believed possible a year ago, when the Conservatives came back into power. This was made clear yesterday in the discussions of the Parliamentary party conference.

It was hinted by J. Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier; J. H. Thomas, also a Labor Cabinet Minister, and others that if Labor gets a chance to get in the saddle again, even as a minority government, it will take it, and not bide its time until it can be a majority government.

Mr. Thomas told the convention that he was convinced the Baldwin Government was going to be brought down on its industrial policy. Both he and Mr. MacDonald opposed a resolution offered by Ernest Bevin, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, asking the conference to take the stand that it would be inadvisable for the party to accept office again while in a minority in the House of Commons.

Mr. MacDonald said this was an absurd resolution that would put the party in a silly position, while Mr. Thomas talked about the prospective toppling over of the Conservative Government. The convention took their side and defeated Bevin's motion 5 to 1.

By an equally overwhelming margin the moderates in the party put down several other proposals of their more radical brethren. One was a resolution demanding that the Labor executive, through Ramsay MacDonald, send an apology to the Russian Soviet Government in connection with the notorious Zinovieff letter, which advocated the overthrow of the British Government, and which was made public when the MacDonald administration was in power.

Another resolution urging the Labor party to withdraw from parliament and force the resignation of the Baldwin cabinet was similarly rejected, by a show of hands.

Addressing a party demonstration tonight, Mr. MacDonald declared that the way revolutions would have to be effected in this country was through the ballot box. He urged his followers to keep their noses to the grindstone of constitutionalism—"not the flabby kind of merely bringing down and taking what comes, but the constitutionalism of men who see the great problems of poverty in front of them."

The party at a private session tonight is understood to have decided to double the levy imposed on every affiliated society of the trades union for the purpose of raising party funds. Affiliated memberships number about 4,000,000, and the levy would be raised from threepence to sixpence, and thus yield about £100,000 yearly.

ZEPPELIN PILOT LAYS BLAME ON SHIP'S OFFICERS

Captain Heimach, Who Instructed Crew of Shenandoah, Says Lansdowne Responsible.

WAS AVOIDABLE.

Officers Failed to Heed Danger Signals That "Shrieked Out Loud."

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—An opinion that the primary cause of the breaking of the airship Shenandoah was the failure of officers in charge to heed the danger signals that were "shrieking out loud" was expressed to the Naval Court of Enquiry here yesterday by Captain Anton Heinen, former German Zeppelin pilot, who instructed the crew of the American dirigible. Declaring that the disaster was "entirely and very easily avoidable," Heinen, under direct questioning by the court, placed the blame squarely on the shoulders of Commander Zachary Lansdowne, who went down to death with his ship.

FATALLY INJURED IN HARVEST FIELD

Belleville Youth Went West To Earn Money For University.

REGINA, Sask., October 1. — Canadian Press. — Douglas Moore, 18 years of age, of Belleville, Ont., who came to Saskatchewan and worked in the harvest fields to earn sufficient money to attend Toronto University this winter, died last night, in the Regina general hospital, from injuries received when he was kicked by a horse at Imperial, on September 21st.

The boy is the second of his family to meet a violent death in three years. His father was killed in a level crossing accident near Belleville Ont., in 1923, when riding in an automobile.

CRISP AUTUMN WEATHER FAVORS SUCCESSFUL FAIR IN LAKEFIELD

Exhibits Markedly Lighter in Hog and Cattle Classes—Horses Feature.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Rival Political Candidates and Supporters Make Bid for Prominence.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 1.—Sunshine tempered the Autumn chill to a comfortable coolness for the annual fair of the Lakefield Agricultural Society yesterday, and the bright, crisp afternoon brought out a big crowd from the village and neighbouring townships and from the city of Peterborough. Among the notables present were the Hon. G. N. Gordon and Mr. A. E. Peck, the political adversaries of the new riding of Peterboro, some of their prominent supporters, including Mr. J. J. Duffus and Mr. Roland Denne.

The County Council was also represented in the House of Refuge committee including Warden Rye, Reeve Breckenridge of Belmont and Reeve Corkery of Ennismore, who held their quarterly meeting at the Fair Grounds.

The exhibits this year were generally lighter than usual, but in this respect Lakefield's showing is similar to that of most fairs in the district. The sheep classes were well filled, but the hogs were light, and the cattle display did not threaten the societys' record in this department. Horses provided a bright feature of the directors, and the judging of the carriage and agricultural entries held the attention of the crowd throughout most of the afternoon. Sandwiched beween the judging of the roadsters, heavy draught and saddle classes were the three heats in the 2.35 trot which was won by J. Blewett's "Rex Hal" driven by Sutherland. The result of the was as follows:

Hal, Blewett 1 1 1
Todd, C. Fife 3 2 2
Wingar, W. Elmhirst 2 3 3
D, Ward 4 4 4

The novelty race was won by Dunford with G. Harrison, and, and E. Dunsford third.

Lakefield's brass band, looking neat in their blue uniforms, played throughout the afternoon, and acquitted themselves exceedingly well considering their limitations. Several transcriptons and medleys were performed with commendable tone balance, and the rest of their program was light and snappy, attuned to the occasion and also to the weather.

The work of the school children also deserves special mention in the uniform excellence of their penmanship and drawings, and in that same department were hung a number of sketches of local men, done in black and white, by Mrs. Archibald Lampman. They were striking likenesses of Dr. J. R. Fraser W. J. Charlton, W. H. Stabler, W. H. Casement, H. G. Fitzgerald and J. C. Strickland.

In the exhibits building was a fine display of fruits, in fact there were more varieties of apples than the prize list called for, but the directors opened up new classes to accomodate and encourage the exhibitors. There also was a loaf of bread baked by MissJane Gordon, the oldest exhibitor at the Fair, to whom a special prize was awarded. Miss Gordon is credited with ninety-five summers and retains a lively interest in the community enterprise.

Of course, there was a midway, the usual array of booths marking off catch-penny games ,refreshment stands and amusements. The games were all fair to the public and not like some of sheer gambling stunts that have been permitted at some places around the circuit upon a doubtful understanding that they were sanctioned by the government.

NEW LIBRARY FOR BETHANY PEOPLE

Women's Institute Confers Regarding Street Lights and Fence.

BETHANY, Oct. 1.—A special meeting of the Women's Institute was called to meet in the Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon. After the opening ode was sung, followed by prayer, the minutes of last meeting read by the secretary, were approved and signed by the president. It was decided to discontinue sale of ice cream for this season; several important items of business were then discussed regarding the street lamps and the fench which is being erected. The secretary reported having received another travelling library, which will be at the disposal of the public. Those desiring books may be able to get them each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon at A. H. Monk's harness shop, where the library will be during the winter months. This is the third travelling library the Women's Institute have had; the other two have been greatly appreciated. The library is composed of fiction, history and travel; zoological and biographical book for juveniles, and books upon health and food values, etc. A great deal of interesting reading is contained in these volumes. The rules for borrowing are very simple and easily followed by those anxious to receive good reading matter.

The Government Board of Education in Greece has called upon women school teachers to dress modestly themselves, and to use their influence with a view to checking the growing tendency among women and girls to adopt short skirts and low-neck dresses.

COLBORNE FAIR BROKE RECORDS FOR ATTENDANCE AND EXHIBITS

Produce Shown Was of Excellent Size and Quality.

MIDWAY GOOD.

Races Were All Well Contested and Fast Time Was Made.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

COLBORNE, Oct. 1. — The directors of the Colborne Fair which was held yesterday, had many novel features for the entertainment of the public, and not the least of these was an animal now almost extinct for all that is ever seen of it in public, a genuine trotting horse that goes without any rigging but the essential harness, and when it leaves its feet gallops in a natural gait. It is not so long ago that a sidewheeler was a novelty on a race track but since men have invented hobbles to develop artificial pacers the tables have been reversed.

Fred Medium, owned by Herrington of Picton, was the name of the trotter entered in the classified race, and he gave Dick Elmhirst's Polly Stout two of the hardest beats of her long turf career. The other entries in this race were Roy Mack, owned by S. Watson of Cobourg, and Viola Belle, the property of R. Turley, of Frankford.

Polly Stout won the first and second heats, and then Fred Medium, after trailing the field, came from behind, and finished in the lead in the third and fourth. The Elmhirst mare and the Picton trotter started alone in the fifth to break the tie, the former winning in one of the closest contests ever run on the Colborne track, on which the best horses in the district have performed.

The Other Races.

The 2.50 and the 2.30 races were won in straight heats, the following being the summary:

Classified Race
Polly Stout, Elmhirst, Keene....11321
Fred Medium, Herrington, Picton 44112
Roy Mack, Watson, Cobourg....2223x
Viola Belle, Turley, Frankford.3344x
Best time, 2.21¼.

2.50 Race:
Babe Direct, Elmhirst, Laing.....111
Bertha Todd, McNaughton, Tweed 222
Luella Brooks, Vasseau, Trenton.333
Jeanette Taylor, Ament, Colborne 4dr
Nellie Patch, McMillan, Campbellcroft 5dr
Best time, 2.29¼.

2.30 Race:
Belle Mahone, Dr. Johnston, Port Hope 111
Thor Patch, McMillan, Campbellcroft 322
Lillian Patch, Watson, Cobourg 233
Cy Mack, Garrison, Frankford....444
Best time, 2.22 1-4.

Well Conducted Fair.

The directors of the Fair, of whom Bruce Rutherford is president. W. A. Seed, secretary, and F. M. Brintnell, treasurer, scored again, as the splendid attendance was the proof. It is no exaggeration to say that the gate receipts were the largest on record and that a good showing was made in every department. The midway was one of the best attractions, with all its attendant side shows of animal and vegetable freaks, fortune tellers and refreshment booths. The display of apples was little short of marvelous, some of the Alexandra especially being of enormous size for that class of fruits. Roots and all kinds of vegetables, too, were of excellent quality. The Fair directors own a good stand of buildings, have an excellent race track and possess the untiring energy, without which no township fair can be successfully conducted year after year.

Successful Exhibition.

Among the leading prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill, of Wooler, who have made the circuit of all the fairs in the district, winning honors wherever they appeared. Almost everything, with the exception of apples and potatoes, which is produced on a modern farm, is represented in these exhibits.

They have the prize cabbage of Central Ontario so far shown this year, a cabbage that weighs 14 pounds, 10 pounds less than the one that was produced in a Campbellford garden and made that town famous a year ago.

The Terill farm, which won first prize for the best appointed farm in Ontario, and second some time later when Quebec also competed, produced this year the following list of prize winning grains and vegetables: First and second for fall wheat, red; first for barley, first for oats, first for both large and small peas, first for buckwheat and rye, second for red clover, alsike and timothy seed, first for white and also for colored beans, first for a collection of 55 varities of garden seeds; second for yellow corn, second for red and first for white and yellow onions, first and special for best head of cabbage and second for the best water melon.

Prize Percherons.

W. J. Cowan, of Codrington, had 13 of his Percheron horses in the ring and every one of these entries was awarded a prize. Mr. Cowan's string also carried off all the specials offered in thts class.

The Race Officials.

The officials in the speeding contests were: A. L. Philips of Colborne, starter, Dr. D. R. Benson, of Belleville, D. A. Owen and J. Nelson Stone, of Campbellford, judges; James Thomas, of Colborne, timer, and Walter Cowie, of Colborne, clerk of the course.

School Children Parade.

The Frankford band, 25 strong, furnished the music and headed a parade of the pupils of the Public school, from the down town district to the grounds, a large number of citizens, including the Village Council, following in autos.

CAMPBELLFORD FAIR TO OPEN ON FRIDAY

Good Midway and Other Attractions Have Been Secured.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 1.—The Maple Leaf Shows, the Midway which proved such a popular attraction at Colborne yesterday, will be at the Campbellford Fair on Friday. There will be a Ferris wheel, a merry-go-round, and all the other features that never fail to appeal to the younger generations. The directors have completed all arrangements and nothing short of unfavorable weather will prevent this from being the record Fair ever put on by the society.

One of the features of the programme will be a 100-yard foot race between Ward, the Peterboro sprinter, and a Campbellford man.

Entries are coming in fast and every department will be complete.

LACK OF STORAGE CAUSE CROP LOSS

Several Fields Ruined by Rain When Threshers Are Delayed.

RAIN RETARDS WHEAT.

CAVAN, Oct. 1.—Harvest was only completed the latter part of last week in this vicinity. There were several fields of oats, some alfalfa and peas, which, owing to lack of barn room and delay in getting threshers, had to remain out. The heavy rains did great damage to these crops.

The peas sprouted, also the oats and much of the alfalfa is not fit for anything but bedding or to be used as fertilizer.

The corn is cut and stooked. It is an extra good crop.

The rains retarded fall wheat sowing. A few have just finished, while others have wheat up.

There is a great deal of wheat being sown this year.

Corn is almost all cut and stooked. It is an extra good crop.

The rains retarded fall wheat sowing. A few have just finished, while others have wheat up.

Fall ploughing is progressing. The soil is in good shape for ploughing now.

The showers have caused a good growth of clover, etc., in the pasture fields, and this is keeping up the flow of milk.

Trucks are around gathering up the wheat which is for sale. Some farmers are selling outright, while others are just storing it in the elevator or keeping it in their own graineries. Mr. Arthur Jamieson sold his last week. The price received was one dollar and eighteen cents a bushel.

The frost made a complete finish of the pumpkin and cucumber vines, tomatoes, flowers, etc.

More hogs were shipped this week from Cavan Station than for some time.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS MAGEE

OMEMEE, Oct. 1.—The death occurred suddenly on Wednesday morning, at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, of a well known and respected resident of Omemee in the person of Mr. Thomas Magee. Deceased had suffered an attack of pneumonia about two months ago and while he had recovered partially, he had not regained his former health. An X-ray examination was made and fluid on the lung was disclosed. An operation was performed on Wednesday morning, but the constitution was too weak and the deceased passed out before he rallied from the anaesthetic.

He was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Loyal Orange order.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his sorrowing wife and one sister, Mrs. W. McConnell; also three brothers, James of Omemee, George of Emily, and David of Gull Lake, Sask.

The funeral will be held from his late residence in Omemee, on Friday afternoon.

THOMAS RUTHERFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 1.—The funeral of the late Thomas Rutherford was held Wednesday afternoon from the family residence on Ranny Street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, the casket containing the remains being completely covered with the floral tributes of relatives and friends of the deceased. Rev. James Grier, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, conducted the religious service at the home and at the grave.

The pall-bearers, all near relatives of the deceased, were: Jabez, Robert and Archie McCulloch, Bert Stephens, W. H. and Fred. Rutherford.

ALNWICK ROADS TO BE INSURED

Policy Taken Out With Company to Protect Township.

ACCOUNTS PASSED

ROSENEATH, Oct. 1.—The Alnwick Township Council held its regular meeting in the Town Hall, Roseneath, on Saturday, with the Reeve in the chair and all members present.

Communications were read. The first was from George Greer, Esq., county road superintendent, notifying the council that the road leading from Roseneath to Robins' Landing and the one from Alderville Post Office south to the boundary line had been taken off by the county highway and would now be under township control. A second communication from W. H. Smith, Esq., agricultural representative, answering the enquiry why Roseneath school of two rooms was allowed to show under one entry at the school fair. Mr. Smith thought that they should be separated, but nothing as yet had been done. These were received and filed.

For a number of years ratepayers of the township have been able to pay their taxes at the Union Bank, Roseneath, as well as to the collector, where they had their bills receipted. This was done free of charge, but now that this bank has been assumed by the Royal Bank they ask that they be allowed the sum of $10 for this work. The matter came up before the Council on Saturday, and received much discussion. The council thought that for this year, the only thing to do was to have the taxes paid to the collector, as he was the man paid for the work, but after the council had unanimously agreed to this, an offer was received from the collector by which he agreed to pay one-half the $10, providing the council paid the other half and let the taxes be paid at the bank as in the past. The council thought the matter over and in view of the convenience to the ratepayers, his offer was accepted.

To Insure Roads.

Mr. Bain, representing The Globe Indemnity Co. of Canada, addressed the council at some length, on insuring their highways. Owing to the increase of traffic upon the highways, brought about by the large number of cars and tourist traffic, Mr. Bain said the council could not take a chance in having the municipality sunk deeply in debt should a serious accident happen where the Township would be held responsible. He said that every township was in reality issuing an insurance policy to every person who used the roads, and yet they had no protection themselves, for should an accident happen through any fault of the road, the Township would find itself responsible and would have to pay for all the damage done.

For a premium of $100 the company he represented was prepared to assume all the Township's responsibility in case of accident on its highways up to the sum of eleven thousand dollars on eac hand every accident, for the term of one year.

As this was something entirely new to the members of the council, it required some thought, and the members were divided at the end of their deliberation. Finally a resolution, moved by Councillor Parker and seconded by Reeve Mounsey to accept a policy with this company was laid on the table. Councillors Brown and Timlin both opposed the measure. Councillor Timblin's main objection was that the rates had already been struck for the year, but Councillor Brawn said they hadn't had any accidents in the past and perhaps wouldn't have any in the future, and he thought it was just throwing money away. Councillor Braithwaite at first appeared very undecided what stand to take, but finally voted with Parker and Mounsey and the resolution was carried.

The Reeve was authorized to sign orders on the treasurer for the following amount:

Walter H. Smith, school fair grant, $20 Robert Linton, gravel, $12.70; P. Comego, gravel, $1; A. Comego, gravel, $5.50; Municipal World, supplies, 35 cents; M. Davey insurance on hall $15; F. J. Slade, plank and sales tax, $20.48.

cent. of the platform it was elected on."

"Have you got five cents more in your pockets now than you had before this Government started in to reduce the tariff?" he asked. It was all very well for Hon. Vincent Massey to praise the Government's action as regards sales tax on the raw material for implements, but the question which must be answered was "Are any of the implements the farmers use any cheaper than they were four years ago?" He said the farmer might be getting implements cheaper because the sales tax had been taken off most of the materials that go into implements. The country had lost the revenue from that sales tax but the farmer was not getting his implements any cheaper. All that had been accomplished, he said, was that the business of making the malleables and the castings had been given to the United States.

The steel industry had diminished fifty per cent. since 1920, because of the uncertainty created by an unstable tariff policy.

Touching on the British preference, Mr. Meighen said of the twelve million dollar increase in woollen and textile imports to Canada last year, a large portion really came from Germany and Belgium instead of from Britain. Meantime Canadian homes were boarded up, he said, farmers' sons whose bent was to other industry, were going to the United States, and a big part of Canada was "helping Uncle Sam to pay his taxes" as a result of the enforcement of only ten per cent. of the "blessed Progressive policy" of 1921.

Canada's debt could not be paid by taxes from agriculture alone. Unless industry was placed on a prosperous basis, Canada would become a "pastoral nation struggling helplessly alongside her more prosperous neighbors." He said that factories throughout the country were closing down and Canada was drifting to bankruptcy.

"Are you proud of the installment you got of Progressive policy?" he asked. "It was to get this that Mr. Leader was elected. If you want this sort of thing continued over the whole line of Canadian industry, just vote for a continuation of the last four years of drift, for this manifest suicide of national life."

COMMUNISTS REJECTED.

The overwhelming vote of the British Parliamentary Labour party against either affiliation with the Communists or the admission of individual Communists as members, indicates that the revolutionary element has not made as much headway as many people have feared.

The Communist doctrine that the workers of Britain should prepare for victory by a civil war was condemned by Ramsay MacDonald as an impossible thesis for the Labour party to adopt, and he politely informed the Communists that the proper thing for them to do was to form their own party.

The vote in favour of the Executive Committee's resolution opposing the entry of Communists was eloquent of the fact that the bulk of British labour is strongly opposed to the revolutionists, the figures reading 2,954,000 to 321,000, or about 9 to 1.

THE YOUNG VOTERS.

In inviting young men to hear the issues of the campaign and the problems confronting Canada at the present time discussed, the Liberal party in this riding is following out a policy that in the general interest might be adopted by the Conservative forces as well.

Anything that will get the young men and women, the voters who have just come of age, interested in national affairs appeals to the Examiner as good business for Canada.

There is not enough of it done—and apparently the young people themselves are doing little to educate themselves along political lines.

The sporting page and the comic strip engage their attention when they read a newspaper; the political news receives scant attention.

Yet they are voters with the privilege of helping to select the Government of this country, and they should endeavour to prepare themselves in order to be able to vote with an understanding of what are the issues and policies to be determined.

LESS EXPENDITURE—NOT MORE TAXES.

Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, declares that one of the chief problems of Governments today is to find new sources of revenue.

That is rather a discouraging statement.

The chief problem, as the taxpayers see it, should be to find ways of cutting down expenditure.

Unfortunately, it seems difficult to get Governments to look upon it in that way.

It is so much easier to increase the revenue and let the spending increase accordingly that they refuse to face the admittedly difficult task of drastically trimming expenditure and thus facilitating tax reduction.

Our neighbors in the United States apparently are succeeding in materially reducing their expenditure and consequently, of course, in scaling down their taxation.

The people of Ontario would much rather hear the Provincial Treasurer declare that he has hopes of being able to slash the outpaying of his Government than to have him intimate that new methods of taxation may be expected before long.

New ways of spending less money rather than fresh sources of taxation is what the financial condition of the Province calls for at the present time.

THE SCOUT MOVEMENT.

It is probably impossible to overestimate the importance of the Boy Scout and the Girl Scout movements in this country today. In an efficient way they are supplying to our national life and character elements that are needed vitally.

They give to thousands of boys and girls impressive lessons in the twin virtues of personal efficiency and submission to organized discipline. They give to thousands of boys and girls in our cities their only contact with and conquest over the elemental forces of outdor nature.

Of course, this builds up a vast, deep and broad reserve upon which national defense may draw in time of need. National defense is all too often neglected by those at Washington who should have it closely at heart.

But just as important as this, which might be called the emergency value of Boy Scout and Girl Scout work, is another value. This work adds tremendously to the beauty and the efficiency of our every-day city lives.

Boys and girls under conditions of modern mechanical comfort in our cities are, like all too many of the rest of us, too prone to rely exclusively on the pleasant warmth of indoors in winter or the victious cooling of an electric fan or an ice cream soda in summer. Some older boys and girls take refuge in golf. But they would not do so unless golf were a picturesquely organized and disciplined GAME.

It is as a GAME, picturesquely organized and disciplined, that the Scout movements appeal to youngsters of both sexes. And as a result we have tanned and healthy children in the most citified of tenements and apartment houses. We have children obedient, kind and courteous under conditions in which there is all too little opportunity for the teaching of these virtues, either in school or home.

And if the need ever comes we will have potential soldiers, nurses and ambulance drivers, used to take care of themselves physically when all the props of civilization are cut away from them.

More important still, we will have potential citizens trained to take care of themselves morally and spiritually as well when the known lines in which they live are shattered and the world cast upon the strange resources and disciplines of war.

The American Legion has decided to back both the Boy Scout and the Girl Scout movement. It could perform no finer patriotic service, for the uses of peace or the uses of war.—New York American.

BACK-TO-LAND.

Ex-Premier Lloyd George has come out for a scheme of land nationalization for Great Britain. The project has taken the country by surprise and is viewed abroad, to a considerable degree, as merely a political dodge to bring kudos to its author. The subject is no new thing with the Liberal leader, however; he has always been interested in land reform and has on former occasions made similar proposals regarded as too revolutionary for serious consideration. Under existing conditions in the Old Country, with enormous areas of potentially valuable land held out of use, and with over a million unemployed workers, what was at one time considered outside the pale of practical politics may today be viewed in an entirely different light. The cry of confiscation and socialism is heard in connection with the proposal; but confiscation is not in the ex-Premier's mind, though, no doubt, his suggestion must, from a certain viewpoint, be regarded as socialistic. The Government would assume control of the land, and pay the owners what it is worth at present prices. The money would not be paid in a lump sum, but by installments spread over a term of years.

From the sentimental point of view, Mr. Lloyd George's project is indeed startlingly revolutionary. The "stately homes of England"—the British people must be in sore straits before they could bring themselves to lay violent hands on these. But necessity has no law and sentiment cannot stand in the way of finding a remedy for existing economic ills. It is pointed out that Britain is compelled to spend something like two billion dollars a year on food alone, the greater part of which money goes abroad. By developing the agricultural resources of the country, many birds would be killed with one stone. Employment would be found for idle hands; a desirable movement of population from the cities to the country would be promoted and the nation be rendered much more independent in the vital matter of food supplies. The accomplishment of any one of these objects would be an important gain, but when all are achieved at one stroke, it will be seen that there is much to attract the popular mind in Mr. Lloyd George's scheme.

Conditions which were suitable to Great Britain in the good old days of Merrie England are not even tolerable in the crowded state of the country today. It is not surprising that talk of reorganization should be heard, and it may be that the big landowners themselves would not raise the strenuous objections with which they met similar proposals in the past. For many of even the wealthiest among the landed aristocracy, their estates are a crushing burden, and a number have already done voluntarily what Mr. Lloyd George suggests they should be made to do by compulsion.—Hamilton Spectator.

HOBBIES.

This is the season when one begins to think about the long winter evenings ahead and to plan for indoor amusement. The young people of Canada are exceptionally fortunate in living in a country with a varied climate. Sometimes we hear people grumbling about the winter, and yearning for southern climes, where it is mild all the year round with no frost or snow. It sounds all right, but how many healthy Canadian boys and girls would really prefer to live in such places, if it came down to an actual choice? Who would want to give up the sports and pastimes of our bracing Canadian winter for the monotonous and enervating pleasures of continual summer? It is the change and variety of the four seasons in this favored country of ours which make each one of them so thoroughly enjoyable in its own way. We have our beautiful spring, our glorious summer, our serene autumn and exhilarating winter. It is hard to say which is the best, for all are so very good.

It is more particularly about indoor recreation we desire to speak on this occasion. During the week which ends today occurred the autumnal equinox, when day and night were of equal length; from now on every night will get longer and every day shorter. What is to be done with these lengthening hours, when it is so inviting withindoors? For those unfortunate boys and girls who have no hobby, the hours will drag heavily; for those who have some spekcial amusement in which they delight, they will pass very plessantly away. Those of a studious disposition will find the season congenial for reading and studying, and every boy and girl must, to some extent, employ part of the time with books. But there will remain a certain amount of leisure over, which could be agreeably and profitably made use of. This time is one's very own, to do with just according to one's heart's desire. Each one of us has something which we can do specially well, and which we like doing. The satisfaction which comes of doing something useful is of itself well worth striving for, but when we are working at our favorite hobby, that satisfaction is doubled. There is no need to suggest to boys and girls what they should take up as a hobby. The choice is large for both sexes. For girls, there is needlework of all kinds, knitting, painting, music, art work, cooking and many other congenial occupations. For boys, there is fretwork, carpentering, mechanical construction of various sorts, radio, art, or whatever the inclination may suggest. Choose the particular thing which most appeals; take a joy in it; do not look upon it as a task, but as a relaxation. The secret of success in any undertaking is to do it "con amore," as the Italians put it—that is to say, "with love." What one loves to do is bound to be done well and to bring keen pleasure to the doer. Have a hobby, then, and work at it for the mere joy of working. Happy the boy or girl who has found a hobby; the young person—and the old person, too, for that matter—having such a resource will never find time to hang heavily. The indulging of hobbies brings no regrets—which cannot, unfortunately, be said of all forms of amusement.—Hamilton Spectator in an editorial for young people.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

ON PROHIBITION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The Federal Council of Prohibition is a small body composed of the heads of all the prohibition associations of Canada, including the S. A.. This Council exists purely for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear on Parliament at Ottawa. In this election it has already given notice of its intention to swing the prohibitionist vote to candidates who answer their demands satisfactorily. I am writing this letter to ask prohibitionists, or any one of them, to answer these few questions:

1. Who but God makes all the materials which go to produce alcoholic liquors?

2. Who but God through his natural agencies, which are entirely beyond the power of man, produces that fermentation when His materials are assembled, which alone makes alcoholic liquor?

3. Is it not a denial of God in Nature when prohibitionists rebuke the makers, the making and the product of alcohol? Or is it a rebuke of God for doing His part in nature?

4. Are prohibitionists aware that while they may be doing; some apparent good, they are doing immeasurably greater harm? They may lessen the production and consumption of alcohol, but are they not teaching the young that God is either either a myth or a bootlegger? I assure them that they are undoing the whole work of Christianity, and are doing the work of the very Devil himself. Who can deny it?

J. H. BURNHAM.

FROM MR. LILLICRAP

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I have sent the following letter to Hon. G. N. Gordon:

You no doubt have read a letter from the writer in The Examiner, under date the 18th inst., referring to the Government's action in building a new lock at Young's Point. In that letter, I gave my reason for objecting to any large expenditure for new work on the Trent Canal at this time, and when this country is in dire need of economy in every branch of the public service. The writer has first hand knowledge of conditions at Young's Point Lock and has known this lock to be in worse condition than at the present time, and when repaired by the Ontario Government in a month or six weeks, notwithstanding the fact that they had to go down to the foundation and build up all that portion of the canal or lock above the gates on the south side. That was about 46 years ago, and for a very small sum these locks can now be made safe and provide for all requirements for another 46 years. All that should now be done is to keep the canal in repair, and when the finances of the country will permit, complete the western or Georgian Bay end. I trust you will at once advise your Government to cancel this proposed but very unnecessary expenditure. As I deem it in the public interest, I am taking the liberty of sending a copy of this letter to The Examiner for publication.

I am, yours respectfully,
J. F. LILLICRAP.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. —(Canadian Press). — Notwithstanding a brisk advance at one time to-day, the wheat market later executed a right about face. Reports which were current early that half of the Argentine wheat crop is poor were afterward denied. Meanwhile, month-end settlements gave the price of the September delivery of wheat an extreme range to-day of 8 cents a bushel. Wheat closed nervous, 1-2 to 1 3-8c net lower, December $1.37 3-4 to $1.38 and May $1.40 5-8 to $1.40 7-8, corn 3-4 to 5 3-4 cents off oats at 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance and provisions 10 to 80 cents down.

Unfavorable weather northwest likely to delay the crop movement tended to lift wheat prices at the start, but much more notice was taken of advices from Buenos Aires hat officials of railroads traversing Cordoba and Santa Fe provinces in Argentina said Argentine crop prospects were very poor despite recent rains. Assertions, too, that demand from millers was more or less responsible for sudden bulge of 6 cents a bushel in the September wheat price here counted also as a stimulating factor.

Active selling developed on the upward swing of wheat prices, however, and buying became of less energy. This was especially the case after assurances were received that earlier reports about the Argentine situation were misleading, and that the South American crop is in excellent condition. Bearish sentiment was also engendered by assertions that export business from Canada and the United States to-day was smaller than for a long while. Increased estimates of probable Russian shipments were likewise depressing.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct., 1. — (Canadian Press). — No change is noted in yesterdays report's from any of the principal Canadian centres. All markets remain firm under recent advances resulting principally from short receipts.

Ontario country points paying extras 37 to 40, firsts 33 to 36, seconds 23 to 25.

Montreal firm and unchanged. Jobbing fresh extras 50, firsts 44, storage extras 45, firsts 40, seconds 34.

Winnipeg jobbing fresh extras 41, firsts 37, seconds 31.

Edmonton egg market is firm with jobbing fresh extras 40, firsts 35.

CANADIAN GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct., —(Canadian Press). — The demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was again very dull. Trading in cahs grain on spot was also slow and the market on the whole was very quiet with no change in prices to note. Sales of odd cars of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats were made at 50 1-2, ..o. 3 white at 38 1-2 to 49 cents, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There were no further developments in the Spring wheat flour situation, prices being about steady at the recent declines noted. A Montreal amount of business was done in this country for export account.

A good steady business continues to be done in eggs for domestic consumption and the market in consequence was fairly active with a firm undertone. The receipts yesterday were 2,73 ocases, as compared with 3,407 for the same day last week, and 1,056 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 1,700 packages, as compared with 2,142 for the same day last week, and 2,439 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no farther developments in the condition of the trade prices being firmly maintained, but the demand for supplies was somewhat limited for both export and domestic account with the result that the market was rather quiet. In a wholesale jobbing way the movement was reported fair and prices firm at 45c per lb. for finest creamery in solid packages, and at 46c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 7,722 boxes, as against 4,346 for the same day last week, and 8,080 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade in cheese for export account was also reported rather quiet owing to the fact that there was somewhat of a lull in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies, but the undertone was firm and prices were unchanged.

OPEN LETTER NO. 11

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

When is protection not protection?

Perhaps you remember the old riddle—"When is a door not a door?" and the answer, "When it's a jar." Think of protection as a door, and there's the explanation.

[illegible] more than 18 per cent. of our annual gross production [illegible] the cost of Government—Federal, Provincial and [illegible].

My authority for that statement is supplied by the following figures, taken from [illegible] 1923 edition of the Canada Year Book, the official statistical publication issued by your Government:

Total Charges, Consolidated Fund, Dominion, 1920	$670,787,043
Total Ordinary Expenditure, all Provinces, 1920	88,250,675
Total Expenditure, 84 Cities (over 30,000), 1920	310,692,260
Total Expenditure, 183 Towns (5,000 to 30,000), 1919.	20,391,989
Total Expenditure, 281 Towns (1,000 to 5,000), 1920.	16,199,989
Grand Total Cost of Government thus shown††	$1,006,324,956
Total Value of Gross Production, Canada, 1920†††	6,352,856,119
Percentage of Gross Production spent for Government	15.8

Before accepting any percentage as final, complete figures should be compiled for at least three consecutive years, and on an average struck on that basis. The figures I have used are not in all cases the latest given in editions of the Canada Year Book, but they represent the nearest alignment for any one post-war year that I could make with the Government figures available.

Allowing for expenditures by villages and rural municipalities, which are not reported, and where over half of our total population resides, it is probably no exaggeration to compute the total cost of government at 16 per cent. of gross production.

That means that the farmer who grows 100 bushels of wheat must hand over 18 bushels of it to defray the high cost of government. The manufacturer who makes 100 automobiles must hand over 18 of them for the same purpose. That is what both the farmer and the manufacturer are doing today, though neither of them may realize it because so much of what he is compelled to contribute is paid through taxes levied indirectly.

What then are we to do in the case of the foreign farmer, or the foreign manufacturer, who wants to sell in this market? He pays taxes in his own country, of course, but that doesn't help us in Canada to bear the cost of our own government. Surely we're not going to give him privileges, in our own market, that we don't enjoy ourselves! If we say to him that for the right to enter this market he must pay a duty of 18 per cent., we are only putting him on a basis of free trade with our own producers.

Protection, real protection, is afforded only by duties higher than 18 per cent. Anything less than 18 per cent. is equivalent to bonusing the foreigner to step in and take our domestic trade away from us.

So I repeat the question—When is protection, so-called, not protection? There's a pretty sensible answer to it, isn't there?

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

USELESS EXPOSURE OF BODY IS HARMFUL.

Changeable weather breeds illness. Why? Is it because more germs are abroad to attack the body in greater force? Not at all.

The body is extremely sensitive to its environment. It does not thrive if it is alternately chilled and roasted. It resents the discomfort of wet, clammy feet. Damp shoulders and knees make you feel mean, but more than that—they produce unpleasant physical disturbances.

To sit around a room with chattering teeth and shivers running up your back is "good" for the doctor but bad for you.

To face a gale of wind and rain and to walk miles through it, to the exhaustion of your strength and spirits, is preparing the way for a spell of sickness.

I don't ask you to be a mollycoddle and to be scared to death if you get your feet wet. That is all foolishness. With proper care after a good wetting, there will be a pleasant reaction following the brisk rub. In that event the experience has done you good, because it has stimulated your circulation.

I assure you, however, that undue exposure and neglect to protect the body against extremes of temperature are fruitful causes for illness.

Nobody can escape germs. We are constantly in contact with them. The lining membrane of the nose is sprinkled with them all the time. Soiled hands and neglected fingernails carry loads of them.

But we need not worry about germs, provided the resistance of the body is maintained as it should be. Burglars are always about, but we have no fear of them so long as our locks and window fastenings are secure.

What we call "bodily resistance" may be compared to the devices which keep our houses safe. So long as the resistance to disease is maintained there will be no trouble from germs.

This power depends on what we know as health. Good circulation, deep breathing, proper skin and kidney action, easy digestion, speedy waste disposal, these are functions which must not be impaired. So long as they proceed as they should we will have health.

Wrong living, abuse of the body, exposure to the elements without rig t treatment afterwards—anything inwhich makes you miserably uncomfortable—will lower your resistance. This means that the locks are broken and the way is clear for admission of germs to the body.

Be sensible and care for yourself. It lies in your hands to be reasonably safe against disease. Take no chances because no matter how husky you may be you are not proof against the watchful causes of illness. There is no truer saying than: "Death loves a shining mark!"

ELDERS INDUCTED IN UNITED CHURCH

Service Depicted Duties of Elders in the First Church.

CAVAN, Sept. 30.—Next Sunday, October 4, will be anniversary services at Cavan United Church. The Rev. W. R. Archer will preach morning and evening. The trustees are asking for a thankoffering of $175 to be placed upon the plates that day. The choir will contribute special music.

Fairmount anniversary will be the following Sunday, October 11.

The Rev. J. E. Todd, George Street Church, Peterboro', will preach at the morning service and the Rev. Mr. Gordon, St. Andrew's Church, will preach in the evening.

Cavan Sunday School session will be withdrawn next Sunday on account of the anniversary.

On Sunday evening the Rev. Mr. McConnachie, Springville, preached at Cavan Church. The pastor, Rev. J. O. Totten, was present and conducted the service.

The service was a special one on account of the induction and ordination of R. S. Staples, D. J. Hunter, F. M Staples and R. Matchett as elders of the United Church, Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson, Millbrook, assisted the choir with the music, contributing two beautiful duets. Miss Clarry, Millbrook, accompanied them on the organ.

Mr. McConnachie chose as his text, Matthew 18 : 20: "Where two or three are gathered together in My name there am I in the midst of them." He said this was the simplest and most beautiful conception of the Church of Christ. The presence of Christ Himself constitutes the Church. Without that presence there is no church. "Behold I stand at the door and knock," says Jesus. This was written first of all to a church. In the beginning the church was formed of the ones and twos who were converted, and met in His name from house to house. Even such a church had to exercise discipline. There were rules for the conduct of its members. It is interesting to know that while in its simplicity there was disciplining of the erring brother as shown in the lesson read, Matthew 18.

No external organization constitutes a church but rather the presence of Christ. The bond of union in every united church is the presence of the Master. When the church becomes worldly then Christ is left out. The early church grew. The missionary movement was a result of growth. The church must be organized to accomplish its work. It could not remain in a state of simplicity: it must be officered. Christ did not teach any form of church government. He had little to say in His teachings about the church. The great master phrase of Jesus was: "The Kingdom." The "Kingdom of God" and the Kingdon of Heaven. It includes all churches. He did not ignore it or make light of it. He was loyal to the church of his day; but laid down no explicit directions as to the form of church to be organized after He had gone to His Father. The disciples were the first officers of His church; mighty men of God especially set apart to teach the truths from the ancient Scriptures. They had no successors. Their offices died with them, but, if we are actuated by the same spirit, we may be Apostolic Successors, spiritually. Apostles brought the order of Deacon into being, to relieve the apostles of certain forms of labour, particularly for the care of the poor. They were ordained by the laying on of hands, signifying the bestowing of spiritual blessing.

Steven was a deacon, also a great preacher of the Cross of Christ; also Elder is an office of the early church. Timothy was ordained by Paul to be an Elder of the Church. He was a young man who was mature in his knowledge of Divine things. The preacher may be regarded as a preaching elder. Some simple form of church government is needed still, so that all things may be done decently and in order in the House of God.

A one-man ministry is a grotesque absurdity. No one man can carry on the business of the church. All must share the responsibility. We must renew the good things of other days. More enthusiasm is needed in church work.

The United Church has wisely ordained that there shall be a board of elders to look after the spiritual needs. The minister is chairman of this board; also a board of stewards to look after the temporal affairs. Godly men are needed for both.

Mr. McConnachie then read the duties of the elders and they were inducted.

The fact was emphasized that not in their own strength could they perform their duties, but that "We can do all things through Christ, who strengthens us."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2.

Adverse planetary forces continue to hold sway both by lunar and mutual aspect, putting the fortunes in jeopardy as well as the positions of those in the employment of others. A menace of treachery and fraud as well as subtle attack is read from strong Neptune figures; and Uranus, also strong in solar aspect, hints of the abrupt and the unexpected. Mars lends to the disruptive sway, though operating without any pretence of subtlety. Avoid quarrels and defer new undertakings.

Those whose birthday it is are under an inimical rule for the year, with trouble precipitated by quarrels and impulsive acts as well as by the operation of subtle and fraudulent forces. The money is jeopardized as well as employment. Shun new undertakings. A child born on this day will be quick in mind and temper, clever but rash and improvident in money matters. Early discipline and training are recommended to overcome congenital defects of disposition and character.

A little girl, who comes to my cabin, to read Nature Lore almost as fast as I can prepare it, came in after I had told about throwing up my hands in despair, when my wild friends destroyed all my September Nature lore notes. Her name is Ruth.

Ruth read in great glee, all about the misconduct of that porcupine and Mickey the crow, then looked at me in a very sorrowful manner, shook her head sadly and said, "Oh, Mr. Nature-man, you silly silly man, don't you know better than to lose your temper over a funny crow?" Then again, "Did you give the very last piece of marshmallow to the porcupine?"

"Well, Ruth, my dear little critic," said I, rather sadly, "you are like some of the Big-wigs of literature, you understand words, but overinstruction has destroyed your understanding of life. If I give you a marshmallow, will you listen to my way of thinking?"

"What do you mean?" answered Ruth, much mystified.

"Well, listen then, and I will tell you: He who shuts the door on despair, and bangs it good, and goes into the woods to do the w[illegible] all over again, has not lost his tem[illegible] he has lost his notes!"

All this [illegible] Dutch to Ruth, so we were to the [illegible]age and toasted marshmallows, the[illegible]nt to the beach, where we traced the [illegible]nk tracks, much to the delight of Ru[illegible]or she suddenly turned to me with [illegible]ppy cry, "Now you won't need to [illegible]e about your old silly notes, will you[illegible]ou can just tell about you and me a[illegible]e mink."

Oh, dear little Ruth, how I wish I were you, so frank with the truth, and with nothing to do! But off I must go, to the woods, at all cost. I still have that crow, but my Nature Lore's lost.

Good fortune sometimes waits in the woods for someone to find it. It was so in this case, but, when I did not go to the woods soon enough, old Dame Nature sent the wild things to wreck my cabin and force me to go. What I saw will appear to-morrow.

When I told Ruth about my good luck in the woods, her eyes twinkled and she shamed me with this: "It's a good thing you lost your Nature Lore notes, isn't it?" Maybe she is right.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

"THE ORIGINATOR OF THE DEPARTMENT STORE."

An epoch-making event took place one night in 1878 when John Wanamaker turned a switch and flooded his big Philadelphia store with light. It was the first store ever lighted by electricity.

But that was a far cry from the days when the lad had to hustle to help earn his own living. The family originally came from Germany about the time William Penn founded the State of Pennsylvania. Nelson Wanamaker was a brick maker, extremely poor, and John, born in 1838, had no advantages.

At fourteen he was earning $1.25 a week as errand boy. Later, as salesman in a clothing store, his unfailing courtesy, forceful personality, ambition and ability to organize marked him as a leader.

When the Y. M. C. A. was in its infancy, in 1858, he became its first salaried secretary. In after years he erected numerous Y. M. C. A. buildings in the Orient.

By rigid frugality, at the age of twenty-three, Wanamaker had saved $1,900. He then came to two momentous conclusions. One was to marry the sister of his friend, Nathan Brown, and the other was to go into business with his friend. When he decided to do a thing it was as good as done. So the young firm of Wanamaker & Brown opened its doors on April 8, only twenty-four hours before Beauregard, the Confederate General, fired on Fort Sumter.

Unable to enlist on account of his lungs Wanamaker helped to organize the Christian Commission, which, with the Sanitary Commission, aided the sick and wounded on both sides until the close of the war.

His first store was on the site where once stood the historic house which had, in turn, been occupied by Washington, Robert Morris and Benedict Arnold. The business prospered and within ten years it had outgrown its surroundings. Wanamaker then bought the old freight station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Thirteenth and Market, and May 6, 1876, marked the opening of both the Centennial Exposition and his big new store, called the "Grand Depot." Eventually the business absorbed the entire block and a twelve-story granite structure supplanted the "Grand Depot," which became the most famous store in America. On the seventh floor was one of the finest private art galleries in the United States.

In 1896, Wanamaker purchased the A. T. Stewart store in New York and a year later erected a fourteen-story building. Its opening was attended with much eclat and ceremony. Wanamaker was a pathfinder in commercial cities, inaugurating the one-price system, profit-sharing, shorter hours, Saturday closing and the pension fund. The business, with all its ramifications, employs about 65,000 people. Besides the Philadelphia and New York stores, Wanamaker owned much valuable real estate. He was organizer and director of the Merchants Bank and a director of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway.

He took an active interest in politics and was Postmaster-General of the United States in the Cabinet of President Harrison. As a part of his contribution in the World War he sent two relief ships to Belgium in 1914.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE PEOPLE DWELL ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

Darjeeling, in India, not many miles from famous Mount Everest, is a city in the clouds. One may go to this elevated place of residence either by water or on a funny little railway train, but no matter what means of transportation is chosen the tourist must go round and round the mountain side before reaching his destination.

Landing at the station the traveler enters a clumsy rickshaw that is drawn by four coolies and is hauled up the steep roadway to the terraces above.

A semi-circle of red-roofed houses, against a background of snow-covered mountains, is what the visitor sees when he first looks out over the landscape.

The main street of Darjeeling begins at the Mount Everest Hotel and ends at the plaza commonly known as "The Four Roads." In the square a band is playing, more or less dolefully, and beggars offer their wares along the highways, and women and children with baskets of gorgeous flowers add a note of color to the bizarre spectacle.

Sunday morning is the best time to visit the bazaar, which is situated in the center of the town. Here one may hear the jargon of a dozen different kinds of people. Shrewd members of the brown and yellow races vie with each other in swindling the visitors.

Frightful-looking individuals, clad in rags, and carrying villainous-looking knives, offer fowls and vegetables for sale. The Nepalese men and women sit under their thatch awnings and sell grain from trays.

Everything, from food to antiques, is spread upon the ground or heaped in stalls, while the super-salesmen stand by and reap the golden harvest from good-natured Americans or tourists from other lands. Turning from this tawdry scene, the visitor invariably goes back to the beauty, the grandeur and the wonder of the mountains in the near distance—the land of "eternal snows" just beyond "The Place of the Thunderbolt," the city among the clouds.

BURNBRAE HEARS FIRST THUNDER OF ELECTION GUNS

Fred Slade, Liberal Candidate, Elaborates on Tariff and Railways.

W. HUYCKE THERE.

Supports Immigration Policy Advanced By Hon. G. N. Gordon.

BURNBRAE, Sept. 30. — The first guns were fired in the local election campaign on Monday evening when a meeting was held in the hall, Menie, in the interests of Mr. Fred Slade, Liberal candidate, in the coming Federal election. Mr. W. A. Milne was appointed chairman and called on Mr. Slade for the first address of the evening. He dealt with the two main issues of the day, the tariff and the railway situation. Mr. Slade, who is intimately connected with the farm, thought that the tariff question was of interest to the farmer, who should prefer a moderate tariff to the high tariff advocated by Mr. Meighen.

While the Canadian National Railway showed deficits, this system was taken over by a previous administration. Railroads must be built to carry civilization nearer to the settler in the new lands. The speaker also dealt with the dairying and bacon industry. The present administration had adopted grading of products in these lines and good results were seen in the increased value of Canadian products on the British market.

In conclusion Mr. Slade stated that one often hears that voters should support the Meighen policy of high tariff to help our manufacturers. The Massey-Harris Co. are satisfied under the King government and he thought that others should be.

Wilfrid Huycke of Peterborough, was the next speaker. He reviewed at some length the tariff and railway problems and also spoke in favour of the King government's immigration policy, advocated by Hon. G. N. Gordon of Peterboro, which is one of selective immigration, picking those trained in agricultural pursuits from north-western Europe.

Mr. Sam Clarke, the veteran Liberal M.P.P. for West Northumberland, was the last speaker. He entertained the audience with a witty address in his easy conversational style, shunning intense politics as much as possible. He thought that the big industries having been fed by a high tariff since 1878 should be able to stand alone by this time. He could not see how a farmer could vote for a policy containing the high tariff clause.

The chairman in a few closing remarks, stated that he hoped all would be out on election day and use their vote to help elect Mr. Slade.

STREET NAMES

ALBERT STREET.

Albert Street is named after Albert Edward, better known to the world as King Edward VII. of Great Britain and the British Dominions, who was born at Buckingham Palace in 1841.

After a comprehensive education under private tutors, and at the Universities of Edinburgh, Oxford and Cambridge, he travelled in the United States and Canada in 1860, visiting Peterboro on September 13 of that year.

From his marriage, in 1863, to Princess Alexandra, eldest daughter of Christian IX. of Denmark, were born three daughters and two sons, the second son now occupying the Throne as George V. During his long period as Prince of Wales, he bore much of the burden of court ceremony and public function and lessened the pressure of responsibility on the Queen. On January 22, 1901, he succeeded Queen Victoria on the Throne. Preparations on a scale of great magnificence were made for his coronation to be held on June 26, 1902, but a severe illness, necessitating a surgical operation, caused a postponement to August 9, when he was solemnly crowned at Westminster Abbey. The chief events of his reign were the closing of the South African War and consequent annexation of the Transvaal and Orange River Republics to the British Empire; the alliance between Britain and Japan in 1905; the fostering of the "Entente Cordiale" with France and the naval and commercial rivalry that sprang up between Britain and Germany. In 1906, the Liberals succeeded to power after nearly twenty years of Conservative rule. Under the new administration, the principle of old-age pensions was adopted, a vigorous and riotous contest for woman suffrage arose and the opposition of the House of Lords to the financial and other measures of the Government led to serious threats of abolishing or greatly curbing the power of the Upper House. Through all these dissensions and changes, the King showed great discretion and won the reputation of being a wise and tactful monarch. His astute policy in foreign affairs aided in bringing about a number of important understandings and agreements with the powers of the world, and he came to be looked upon as the safety valve of European politics and the mentor of European monarchs. The dissensions between Lords and Commons weighed much on his mind, and while anxiously following the course of events, he suddenly sickened and died on May 6, 1910.

WINTER PROTECTION.

The covering of plants with different materials for the winter is for protection either from thawing and freezing, which causes heaving from the soil, or protection from the sun which causes the plants to start growth which is frozen again when the sun sets. This alternate freezing and thawing of the tissue is the cause of much injury of all kinds.

Apply the winter mulch when the ground is frozen a little in order to prevent a premature start in the spring due to a slight heaving through fermentation or late root action and top growth in the fall.

Straw or leaves are excellent for covering any perennials, biennials, etc., but, as they mostly mat readily, they are better placed over evergreen boughs which keep them more open. From this standpoint oak leaves are the best. Do not put the covering on too thick, or you will cause a premature start in spring. Their situation will be a deciding factor. On a southern exposure, where the sunshine will cause frequent thawing and subsequent freezing, the need as compared to a shady or northern exposure where the surface remains constantly frozen, may be relatively greater.

The drying winds of winter do much damage, and to prevent this a windbreak will provide necessary shelter. If not protected there is liable to be loss of water by evaporation from the twigs, and as the roots are frozen and cannot supply the moisture the plant will die. Temporary fences of boards, cornstalks or similar material will answer well, placed so as to break the full sweep of the wind. Either deciduous or evergreen trees of columnar type are susceptable to breaking by wind or snow, and it is wise to tie them up for the winter.

Perennials: Use only a loose textured material and avoid anything that will mat down on those with persistent leaves as Hollyhocks, Violas, Foxgloves or Sweet William. It is wise to mark with stakes small plants and those that start late to avoid damaging them in spring digging operations.

Protecting Roses: All roses need protection in our cold climate. There are numerous methods. One is to lay the branches down carefully, weight them with bricks or stones and cover to a depth of six to eight inches with soil.

Another method is to cover with leaves to about a foot in depth. Boxes without covers laid upside down over the leaves and all will keep out the moisture and make a much more satisfactory job of the protecting. Where climbing roses are grown against a wall, heavy building paper, or better still, boards placed at the angle of a roof over the covering leaves will prove satisfactory. With this protection from moisture the rose will come through the winter in much better shape.

General Protection: Fall planted subjects, particularly perennials, should be well protected the first winter with a mulch of strawey manure or hardwood leaves. This is especially necessary on heavy soils and plenty of straw is essential. Avoid fresh manures free from straw which will burn the plants or those that will compact and cause fermentation and decay due to lack of air. Wire netting, boards, or branches may be used to hold leaves from blowing away when used as a covering. Should the fall be dry, most plants except some perennials will be benefitted by a thorough watering before freezing weather. Stopping the cultivation of shrubs as soon as danger from weeds producing seeds is past will aid in ripening the wood and discourage late growth.

ELEMENTS WIN ELECTION.

Government Finds By-Election Result Unsatisfactory.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—Blame for the unsatisfactory result of the Medicine Hat bye-election, from the Government's point of view, is placed by Premier Herbert Greenfield and other members of the cabinet largely on the bad weather conditions and the impassable roads.

"The election was won by the elements," said Hon. Geo. Hoadley. The Premier points out that for that reason the vote cannot be taken as a real test of public opinion throughout the constituency.

B.C. COUNSEL STATES GAIN WOULD FOLLOW

Railway Companies Would Not Lose Under McKeown —Oliver Order.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—G. G. McGeer, K.C., counsel for British Columbia, maintained before the railway commission yesterday, in opposing the application for decision of the McBeown-Oliver order on Western grain rates, that under that order the railway companies would gain rather than lose. He asserted that the rate for a 640 miles haul to Vancouver was 21 cents, while on a 1280 mile haul to Fort William it was 26 cents. Without going into the point at this time, Mr. McGeer declared that the rates to Vancouver should be 18 cents instead of 21 cents.

The railway companies, Mr. McGeer argued, should be pleased with Vancouver's effort to relieve them of the long unprofitable haul from Alberta to Fort William. The Westward traffic would be more profitable to them. He contended also that removal of discrimination against Vancouver would bring to Canada business.

NO WORK. SUICIDES.

Ill Health Causes Despondency So Man Hanged Himself.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 1—(Canadian Press).—Despondent over ill health, which has kept him from employment since July, William James Gunte, 50 years of age, formerly employed at the Land Titles Office here, committed suicide by hanging himself in the basement of his home.

A note addressed to his wife was found on the kitchen table and in it he stated that he was tired of life and that she would find him hanging in the basement. He had fastened one end of the rope to the gas pipe and was suspended about half a foot from the floor when found. The police say that an inquest will not be necessary.

FRENCH COLUMNS ESTABLISH BASES OF FUTURE COUP

Krim Concentrates Forces Before Advance—May be Sandwicked.

SPANIARDS THREATEN

Are Resuming Advance to Ajdir—Captured Intervening Heights.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Three French columns, assigned the mission of straightening out the front north of Kifane, on the eastern wing, and establishing bases for a future move against Ajdir, Abd-El-Krim's capital, manoeuvering skillfully over a mountainous terrain, are reaching the objectives mapped out for them with clock-like regularity. Thus to-day's operations on this front are summarized at French Head-quarters here.

The Moroccan rebels, fighting rear-guard actions with depleted forces ,are withdrawing toward the north.

The French troops have now penetrated into a country which never before has come under French influence, and in this sector are now operating entirely in the Spanish zone of the Moroccan protectorate.

Marshall Petain, confirming the reputation for conservation and business like methods in warfare which he arned in the world war, never makes a move until preparations are thoroughly completed and every detail settled.

Abd-El-Krim, apparently realizing the relentless character of the French movement northward, has concentrated practically all his regular troops, numbering between 6,000 and 8,000, in front of the French. If the French advance north of Kifane continues the Riffian chieftain soon will find himself at close quarters between the Spaniards now threatening Ajdir from the Alhucemas Bay region and the French moving up from the south.

Spaniards Near. . . . . .

MADRID, Oct.1. — (Canadian Press).—The Spanish troops yesterday resumed their advance toward Ajdir, in the Alhusemas district and soon after noon had captured several of the heights blocking the road to the Riffian general headquarters. The Spanish casualties were relatively small, none killed but 100 wounded, among them nine officers.

The official statement relating to this operation says:

"At dawn to-day we began an advance movement for the surprise of occupying the important line of heights composing Taramara, Ruybar and Monte Palomas, which dominated our positions on Morro Nuevo peninsula and which would give us possession of all the bays and creeks on the peninsula and thus constitute a formidable support for our next advance, which must be carried out shortly.

"The Spanish troops with the cooperation of artillery and sea and air forces, fighting admirably and with great bravery ,gained all their objectives, overcoming the difficult ground and the resistance of the enemy with celerity.

"The advance was exhausting and the fighting fierce, but less sanguinary than previous battles, for our losses totalled only one hundred, many slightly wounded, among them nine officers, and no dead."

EXPORTS SHOULD GO THROUGH CAN PORTS

Opinion of St. John's Editor Who Seeks Changed Conditions.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—A. M. Belding, editor of Telegraph-Journal and Times-Star of St. John, N.B., is in the city interviewing heads of government departments and a number of business men of the city with a view to more encouragement being given as regards the use of Canada's winter ports on the Atlantic coast. Mr. Belding maintains that much more of Canada's export trade might go through St. John and Halifax than does at present. He complains that much of this trade is going through American ports. It is recognized by the people in the Maritime Provinces, says Mr. Belding that the bulk of the grain trade is bound to go through American ports, but it is considered that cheese and other packing house products could just as well be shipped through St. John or Halifax as through American ports.

COUNCIL BLOCKS BOARD'S EFFORT TO OBTAIN NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Demand For Debenture of 15,000 Ignored By Village Council.

WON'T RAISE TAX.

Proposed Levy of 13 Mills Scouted—Ask Reduction to 10.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 30.— The deadlock that has held the Council and School Board in this village in close grips since early in the summer, is still unbroken, and as a result the tax rate for the current year has not yet been officially set, although the councillors have settled among themselves what the rate is to be. The School Board first wanted a debenture issue of $15,000 to build a new school but the council refused to take action. Next the Board requested the village legislators to levy a rate of 13 mills for public school purposes, but here again they were balked by the Councillors who considered the figure too high, and asked that it be reduced to 10 mills. The Board met recently and agreed to a cut of two mills, but this is not likely to satisfy the Council, and there the matter rests until it is brought up at the regular monthly meeting of the latter body next Friday evening.

Believes in Surplus.

The trustees believe in carrying a surplus. At the beginning of the year they had a balance on hand of $2180, a sum which is still intact for anything the councillors know to the contrary, as no statement has been submitted by the Board. This surplus was raised on an assessment of 13 mills the previous year, the same as the trustees originally asked for 1925.

Some Council Figures.

The Councillors maintain it is illegal for a school board to raise more money in one levy than is actually required to meet the expenses for the current year.

The total assessed value of Hastings village is $265,000, no increase over last year, but the public school assessment for 1925 is $4000 greater than it was in 1924. The Clarendon Hotel, assessed for $6,000, has, under a change of ownership, passed from the column of the separate to the public school ratepayers, but this increase has been really reduced by $2,000 owing to the loss by fire of the Fowlds elevator which was replaced by a smaller building.

The public school rate this year will be levied on a total assessment of $179,000. This at 13 mills would yield a revenue of $2,327. The county grant is $643, Percy and Asphodel Townships pay $75 for the upkeep of the Hastings School, and with the $2,180 which was on hand at the beginning of the year, the Council figures that the trustees would have a total of $5,425 with which to carry on.

What is Required.

At present it costs $2,530 to maintain the Hastings Public School for one year. Of this amount, $1,350 is for the salary of the principal, $900 for the assistant, $130 for a janitor, and $150 for fuel. The Council cannot see why the trustees require $5,425 for the maintenance of an institution that costs $2,530. Even if the public school rate was set at 11 mills, the total income for the Board would be still $5,067, or about twice what is required according to the Council's schedule.

Economy the Watchword.

If the Trustees had a surplus at the beginning of the year the present Council, on taking office, found themselves confronted with an overdraft of $2,500. They propose to clear half of this off this year so as not to be compelled to set the tax rate too high. If the Trustees comply with the request of the Council and consent to a 10-mill levy, the tax rate this year will be 39 mills for public and 38 mills for separate school supporters, as against 42 and 38 mills in 1924.

Visiting Minister Leaves Powerful Message With Listeners.

YEARS IN ARCTIC

Gave Parallel Exemplified in the Indian Thanksgiving Customs.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 30. — St. Thomas' Church held its annual Harvest Thanksgiving service on Sunday evening, the decorations of ripened grain, with fall fruits and flowers, being most appropriate to the occasion.

Unfortunately the wet weather affected the attendance to a considerable extent, but did not lessen the spirit of thanksgiving and worship which was evidenced to a marked degree throughout the service.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen presided at the organ, and Mr. A. H. Barnes, lay reader, assisted with the prayers, relieving the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, whose health, not only his own people, but a wide circle of others in the community, will be glad to learn is so much improved that he is able to assume part of the work of the parish each Sunday.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Allen, had augmented its numbers for the occasion, Mrs. F. Waterman, of Bailieboro, taking the solo in the thanksgiving anthem, which was a special feature of the musical part of the service.

Rev. J. M. Crisall, rector of Perrytown and Gore's Landing, preached the sermon, the intense earnestness which marked his words and manner making a deep impression on the minds and hearts of the congregation.

The speaker, who spent three years as a missionary to the most northerly tribe of Indians in Canada, his work being in the Mackenzie River district within the Arctic circle, pointed out that the harvest thanksgiving is the most joyous of the year's festivities, and that the Indians in the frozen north observe it regularly.

"You wonder what these people have to be thankful for since they cannot grow vegetables or grain in that climate, but there is a wonderful growth of wild berries of all varieties, and wild flowers of great beauty, even in that latitude, and the Indians are glad to show their gratitude.

"I once visited Herschel Island, and on that mound of ice, covered with a little dirt, there was a veritable carpet of over sixty varieties of wild flowers that were a thing of joy for the eye to rest upon."

"Wrapped in ice and snow for eight months of the year, with no roads, and no railways, making travel by boat in summer, and dog train in winter, imperative, there is yet a luxuriant growth in the four short summer months because of the power of the midnight sun which shines unceasingly for six weeks."

Mr. Crisall stated that the Indians, being taught the Word of God, have learned to recognize praise to the Almighty Father as a necessary part of their religion, and always bring their presents, however small, at the annual harvest home service on the twelfth of October, gratitude being written on every line of their dark faces, and expressed in the hard grip of the handshake for their minister as they say, "I give big thanks to Almight God through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

The many aged, and almost destitute Indians in this northern tribe are given a pension by the Government, and also aided by the bales sent from the missionary societies each year. "Their church is but a log building, with no seats, and yet, at a temperature of forty below zero, that house of God is packed, the people sitting on the floor as closely as they can fit in together, for everyone goes to service there when the church bell rings. Here, you have comfortable seats and a well-warmed and well-lighted building, but where are the worshippers? May we not show our real spirit of thanksgiving by attendance at God's house on an occasion of this kind, letting it find expression in deed, and not alone in word?"

"We have thanked God with our lips—we have had a hearty service to-night—how much real thanksgiving is our Father seeing deep down in our hearts?"

"Nature is so wonderful, what can man do to oppose her power? Would to God that the power of Christ, which He gives in our daily life, were used and not runing to waste."

The speaker, in referring to the wonderful harvest of the present year, contrasted the fruitful soil here with the barren wastes of the Arctic, and the sandy soil he had seen in parts of the West, urging that we should live lives of gratitude since He to Whom we pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," has heard our petition and blessed bountifully in answer.

"This Harvest Home occasion is not a new thing—it corresponds to that most joyous time in the Jewish year, the Feast of Tabernacles. And yet, isn't it an extraordinary thing that we remember readily and long the things that hurt, and forget so easily the happy times and the good things? God has to keep saying to us, as to Israel of old, "Remember the Lord, thy God," "Beware that thou forget not."

"The Indians always bring a certain offering for the work of the mission at their annual thanksgiving service, perhaps ten or twelve muskrat skins from each family, and in addition something extra as a special gift for God. I am so glad that this year your thankoffering goes to missions for service to your fellow-men is an effective way of saying thanks, and no matter how small the gift, the Saviour can and will, use it if our hearts go with the offering. He expects, asks for, and glories in praise and service. Let us not be like the ten lepers of old who all prayed but only one praised."

"I had just stopped into the cigar store for a moment, thinking the youngster would be safe enough outside—but you can never tell. We were on the way down to meet you, Caroline—"

Caroline looked surprised, and Jim smilingly enlightened her.

"—you see, today is Bobby's birthday and we're going to have a party. Bob will be home in time for it, and I want you to come," he said with a personal inflection that Caroline did not notice in her glad interest to be able to do something for Bobby. She said enthusiastically:

"Of course, I'll canoe—and I'll bake a cake if you want me to, Jim!"

Jim and Bobby were equally delighted with this offer.

"Lordy, that will be wonderful," enthused Jim. "Bob went out very early this morning on a special call—"

Caroline's face brightened perceptibly at this intelligence, but unnoticed by Jim, who went on,

"—but I had penned a note for him before I turned in, telling him to get home as early as he could and to bring his best girl."

Caroline was about to say, "I suppose Bob will ask me as soon as he gets home," but a sudden and warning instinct that tightened around her heart like a glacial band caused the words to be stillborn, and a moment later she heard,

"Say, what do you know about that sly old rogue!" Jim was saying, in a voice that sounded small and far off to Caroline's ears. "Held out on us. And he must have known this girl for a long time, too—for they're on very familiar terms. I saw him holding her in his arms and kissing her, out on the Eagle Pass siding when I passed him the other night—"

Jim stopped short in his grinning description to Caroline to what he thought a lovers' tryst, and quick concern filled his voice as he looked into Caroline's face.

"Why, what's the matter—you've grown pale? Are you ill?"

Jim took hold of Caroline's arm, to steady her. She had closed her eyes, and was swaying a little, while the torn cards of her romance rained down about her ears.

"Just the reaction—of Bobby's danger—I guess. It's nothing," she said, in a very low, very tired voice.

CHAPTER VIII.

All that day Bob Wilson wrestled with spectres while his eyes and hands mechanically guided his great engine through the irregular pattern of a workday freight run. He had been glad that morning when the emergency call, routing him out of bed at four o'clock, made it impossible for him to meet Caroline in the accustomed way for in his as yet undeterminate and unsolidified mental state he would have been at at loss for words although he desired with all his soul to relieve her of the uncertainty and suffering that his confused, silent mood of the afternoon before had undoubtedly caused her. As long as he could remember Bob had found it difficult to give or share confidences with anyone because he was an emotional lone wolf. Today he cursed this complex—the inhibitions, the stubborn pride, that had made it impossible for him to regain his confessional mood in the bleak and discouraging moments after Spike's malevolent words before Caroline had paradoxally revealed too much, yet not enough; raised implications too sordid and black, yet not as mean as the truth!

He writhed under the knowledge that it had not been fair to leave her in a disquieted mind. He had known her kiss of love, had felt the maidenly flame of her soul revealed through the passionate touch of her lips in the abandon every good woman gives to only one man. It was up to Bob to pay a price for that innocent revelation.

Why had he not overruled Caroline's generous objections and rid his breast of its burden? Was it because his pride clung weakly to a shred of hope that perhaps the dead past would keep its decayed corpses buried, and that he might be spared forever the blood and marrow hurting ordeal of confession? Even so, Bob knew in his heart of hearts that his honest and clean love for Caroline—the purest and finest impulse that had ever influenced his life—could brook no secret veil between them. And now the dust and bones of the past had resurrected themselves, he was really left no choice.

The note from Jim which he had found pinned to his jumpers that morning would afford Bob an excuse to go penitently to Caroline and claim her company for the evening. Caroline's whole attitude had proclaimed her willingness to let the past be blotted out; perhaps it was not fair to use this lovely and virginal creature as a blotter, still —this was the ancient and honorable and eternal sacrifice of pure women. Caroline was his "best girl." Nothing else mattered—this was the miraculous truth, and to night he would let Jim, too, know it; dear, loyal, faithful Jim who would be so glad, Bob thought, for his sake. Then, Bob grimly determined that during the evening he would take the first opportunity to re-open with Caroline the matter of the past. He would spare himself not at all. He would explain candidly the whole sordid mess he had made of things, claim her trust and love to pull him through, vow his own love for her. After that, he hoped, they could pledge their troth in a brave and fearless facing of facts and surmounting of obstacles together.

Though it was past Caroline's hour for quitting when Bob arrived back in Crater City that afternoon he looked into the Depot lunchroom on an eager chance; but the place was a cold Sahara under the control of Miss Trisk and Minnie. He stopped at a Main Street store to pick up some toys he had ordered for Bobby's birthday, added a box of candy for Caroline to his purchase, and with full arms and heart hurried to Mrs. O'Leary's.

"Sure she ain't here," the Widow informed him, "but down to your own house with Jim, baking a cake for Bobby's birthday party. Jim told me that she was going to be his partner tonight at the party, and that you were going to bring your best girl."

"Why—" Bob stammered, then paused in bewilderment and stared into Mrs. O'Leary's brightly curious eyes. "I —I was going to ask Caroline myself—"

"Jim took Caroline and said you were going to bring your 'best girl'," the Widow repeated with quizzical insistence. "He told me as how you'd been keeping the secret of having a girl from him, but he saw you a-huggin' and kissin' her on the Eagle Pass siding t'other night—"

Bob's buoyant resolutions suddenly sank back into a sea of despondency; what in God's name new complication was this, when would they cease piling up? Now, if after Spike's nasty rattling of the skeleton, Caroline had gotten from Jim an innocently erroneous but nevertheless damning description of that unfortunate encounter at the siding—?

ESCAPED FROM SUBMARINE TOMB

Above are the three men who escaped from the United States submarine S-51 when she was rammed on Friday night by the City of Rome, taking her commander and 32 other men to the bottom with her. From left to right the three survivors are: Dewey Kile, engine man; Michael S. Lira, fireman; and Alfred Grier, electrician's mate. The three men rushed for the deck and reached the conning tower when the call to quarters came as the collision occurred. Just how they got out of the stricken submarine they cannot tell clearly. The above photograph was taken just after their arrival in Boston on the City of Rome.

ENGLAND MUCH INTERESTED IN DEBT PARLEYS

Progress of French Negotiations With United States is Satisfying.

ENDORSES CHURCHILL.

Felt That British Example Has Helped U. S. to Make Concessions.

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—The progress of the Washington debt negotiations is followed with keenest interest in treasury circles here, and there is a disposition to interpret the more hopeful news as an endorsement of the policy of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his deal with Finance Minister Caillaux.

The British example, it is felt, has helped the United States to make greater concessions than were thought possible, while on the other hand Churchill will be able to ask more French cash from Caillaux than $62,500,000 for the sixty-two years agreed on here, should Secretary Mellon make such a settlement as is now suggested.

SOME PORTRAITS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—A new Canadian stamp of 8 cent denomination will go into use today, following the decision reached at the recent International Postal Conference held at Stockholm, to the effect that the postage rate on letters between the countries of the Union should be reduced from 10 cents to 8 cents. The post office department is also about to issue the first of a series of Canadian historical stamps. The new issue will be three in number,—one containing the portrait of Baldwin and Lafontaine, the second containing the portrait of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, and the third containing portraits of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John MacDonald. These stamps will be intended for domestic use only, but will be valid for the payment of postage to other coutries as well.

WRONG FIGURES GIVEN.

Error of $3,000,000 in Stating Canada's Adverse Trade Balance in 1921.

The Examiner regrets an error which appeared in Hon. G. N. Gordon's manifesto to the electors yesterday. Through a typographical error the adverse trade balance of Canada in the last year of Conservative government was given as $33,000,000. According to the figures given by Hon. Mr. Gordon, taken from Canada Year Book for 1924, the balance of trade against Canada in that year was only $30,000,000.

Must Repudiate Lavergne Who Perescuted Soldiers Declares Mr. J. H. Burnham

Mr. Burnham said to The Examiner today that The Globe's charge that Mr. Meighen has been forbidden to enter Quebec by his own lieutenants—a charge that has provided the sensation of the hour—is one that must engage the serious attention of the Conservative party.

Lavergne fought against the war, not in it, and made, as Mr. Burnham well knows, Quebec a perfect hell for the returned French-Canadian soldiers who were mobbed by his orders when they returned, even when wounded. It is impossible to man. He must be repudidated."

WEDDING BELLS.

HENDRY—HALLERAN.

The wedding took place at half-past eleven o'clock yesterday morning, at "The Manse," Springville, of Mrs. Mabel Halleran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Northcott, of Bewdley, and Mr. Robert Hendry, of Peterboro. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. McConnachie. A picturesque touch was given the occasion by the fact that both bridegroom and groomsman were in full Highland regalia.

The bride wore a stylish suit of navy tricotine, black hat trimmed with sand, shoes and stockings to match and corsage bouquet of ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Mis Drucie Williamson, was in green crepe, with black hat, and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. Jack Smith of Peterboro acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a bounteous wedding breakfast was served at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hendry leaving later for a motor trip to Hamilton, Ingersoll, and other points. On their return, they will reside at 257 Rubidge street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendry received many beautiful and costly presents, including a clock from the employees of the J. J. Turner factory, and a set of china dishes from the same firm.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a substantial cheque; to the bridesmaid an onyx ring, and to the best man a watch fob.

WELLS—BAIRD.

A very pretty wedding took place at one o'clock to-day, at George street church, when the marriage was solemnized by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd, of Isabel Douglas, daughter of Mr. George Baird, 658 George street, and the late Mrs. Baird, to Mr. Norman Parker Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Wells, Grenadier Road, Toronto.

The church was beautifully decorated by Mr. Campbell Jordan with palms and ferns, tall baskets of yellow 'mums and white lilies, hydrangea and yellow and mauve asters. The guest pews were tied with white ribbons, holding sprays of asters and begonias.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. J. H. Renwick. She wore a French frock of gold-colored georgette, beaded heavily with silver, a hat of black velvet with osprey, gold brocade slippers and stockings to match, and shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of pearls. Her wrap, worn while driving to the church, was a deepiy-fringed rose-colored Spanish shawl.

The bride's sister, Miss Myra Baird, acted as bridesmaid, wearing coral georgette, embroidered and beaded in pale shades, with black velvet hat, silver brocade slippers and stockings, and bouquet of premier roses.

Mr. Reginald Pratt, of Windsor, supoprted the bridegroom. Ushers were the bride's two brothers, Alex and Jack Baird.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. J. H. Renwick, wearing brown crepe with black hat and corsage bouquet of roses, sang "So fair, so sweet, so holy."

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, where the dining room was done with pale pink roses and pink chrysanthemums, and the living room with palms, ferns, asters and other autumn flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells left later for a motor trip to Cleveland, after which they will reside in Toronto. The bride travelled in a gown of sand crepe, touched with red and black, a French hat trimmed with red and gold, bronze shoes and sand stockings. Her coat was of taupe needlepoint with dark grey squirrel collar.

CHAMBERS—EDWARDS.

A very pretty wedding took place in All Saints' Church at eight o'clock last Saturday evening, when Miss Gladys Edwards became the bride of John Chambers, 207 Stewart Street. The church, in readiness for Harvest Festival services on Sunday, was beautifully decorated with grains, fruits and flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Paterson.

The bride, who recently arrived from England, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph Gaskell, and was given in marriage by Mr. John Hodson. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Joseph Gaskell. Miss Dorothy Worboy played the Wedding March.

The bride was gowned in grey crepe with grey hat and carried a bouquet of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers will reside in the city.

MOTORMAN RETIRES.

Wm. Shea Has Been 17 Years With Street Railway.

After seventeen years' service as motorman with the Peterboro Street Railway, Wm. Shea, 211 Reid Street, has retired. Yesterday evening at 6 o'clock he brought his car to its last stop under his control, parted from his car-mate, W. Donnolly, and left a vacancy in the personnel of the system that will be hard to fill. For "Bill" Shea, as he was known among his associates, was the type of public service employee that begets and holds goodwill. Even-tempered, friendly, considerate and quiet-mannered, he has made friends for himself and the railway in all parts of the city, for the crews are changed periodically from one line to another. And wherever he has been runnirng his car, Mr. Shea will be missed by those whom he has come to know in all the years of his service.

INDIAN SUMMER LOVE

By Juanita Hamel

Drifting down the lake of untroubled waters, with the September moon as their beacon-light! What more kindly pilot to steer their love craft safely and smoothly toward the sea of happiness.

With summer and its vacation joys a beautiful hazy dream, our Lady of the Lake and her gallant oarsman face each other and the puzzling problem of whether to seek in each other the inspiration for that beauty which is a joy forever."

Then by gleaming light of glorious moon their thoughts are deflected. Is she thinking — this fair lady of the rebellious curls and the wind-swept lashes: "Does he really care? Or am I one of many—to be flattered and forgotten?' And the cavalier of her fancy—he of the furrowed brow and deep gray eyes—is he wondering?

And the Indian Moon—that co-conspirator with Cupid—smiles. For he knows.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BOBBY HAS A CHAT WITH MR. DESMAN.

Bobby scooted around the bushes that bordered the stream until he caught a good look at the little fellow swimming a little way from shore.

"Well, if that isn't a muskrat I'll——" he mused, when a soft laugh interrupted him and a tiny hand touched his arm.

"Wait a second, wait a second," laughed the little elfin. "I'm quite sure you don't know who that is. Anyway, if he knew who you were he wouldn't be swimming away."

"Oh, Happy Giggles!" Bobby exclaimed, shaking the wee elfin's hand. "If it isn't Billy Beaver or Johnny Muskratt, who is it? I've been watching him a long time and I can't get close enough to tell."

Happy Giggles laughed merrily and blew upon the tiny whistle at his side. Quick as a wink the little swimmer glanced back of him, and seeing the elfin and Bobby turned around and swam to the bank as fast as he could.

"Good thing you whistled for me," he laughed, as he scrambled upon the bank and shook the water from his reddish-brown furry suit. "I just saw the boy and thought he was after my fur, so I swam the other way."

"You see, Bobby, Buddy Desman is hunted for his fur, so when he sees anyone looking his way he ducks," laughed the elfin.

"I don't believe I have ever seen the little animal all in, from his queer-looking tail to his funny little movable trunk.

"Then just have a good look," laughed Buddy Desman. "I don't mind it in the least as long as I know the glances are friendly," and he turned around and around so Bobby could get a good look at him. "You know under this waterproof coat of reddish brown fur is a lovely why folks value my fur. That is why folks value my fur. My flesh is not good for eating because they don't like the musty odor."

"Do You Live Under Water?"

He used his movable trunk much like an elephant would use his, and Bobby thought it so funny he just had to laugh. His feet were webbed like a duck's and his tail was narrow where it joined on to his body, rounding out until almost to the middle, then flattened out to the end.

"My cousins, Billy Beaver and Mr. Muskrat, used their tails as rudders, but I use mine as an oar," chuckled Buddy Desman. "And, believe me, any of them will have to hustle to keep up with me in a swimming race. Yes, and I guess I can dive better than any of them, too."

"Do you live around here, Mr. Desman?" asked Bobby. But before Buddy Desman could answer, Bobby's mamma called him to dinner. "Dear me, I'd love to see your house. Do you live under the water?"

"My entrance ways are under the water," replied Buddy Desman, "but my home is a burrow in the river bank. I'll tell you, Happy Giggles, bring Bobby over to see me sometime. I know Mother Desman would love to know him. Better run home now or your mamma may worry about you." And bidding Bobby good-night, Buddy Desman dived into the river and was soon out of sight.

"Surely I'll take you to call on the Desman family sometime," Happy Giggles promised. Bobby thanked him and ran home as fast as he could go.

SHE CHATS ABOUT AN AFTERNOON WRAP FOR EARLY FALL.

Haidee burst into the room as Gaby and I were bending over some new designs Monsieur had just brought back from abroad. "Girls!" she said, "I've found it! The absolutely perfect wrap for crisp Fall days."

"Oh, you haven't!" I said. "Madame will fairly cry with joy because she has had two customers just lately who have been looking for the very thing to wear before it's time to snow and all the fur that one can wear." Haidee smiled her own foreign little smile as she drew it from its tissue paper wrappings.

"Did you ever see such a glorious deep shade of green?" she queried, as she drew it around herself. "It's so deep it just misses being black in some lights and yet it has color enough to delight the most gay in taste. I hunted through dozens of silk houses before I found it because I knew Monsieur had said it would be the newest of all the Fall shades."

"And the lining," said Gaby. "Who would expect black and white in those futuristic swirls One would almost think someone had taken a black paint brush and painted on the white just for fun."

I walked around to get another view. "Cape all the way around the back," I murmured to myself, "and 'stepped just in front of the underarm seams. And who do you suppose [illegible] such a smart stand-

Garters

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(United Press).—It's a hard life for the flappers these days. What with skidding socks and knee-length hems and knees that have a way of materializing at the wrong moments. Those who roll the full-length ones down below the knee have an awful time keeping the roll small and snappy. And those who wear the half hose find that the garter makes the flesh bulge out in a most ridiculous manner. Along Fifth Avenue they stop and back up against the doorways as they give their stockings an extra tug or two but on the side streets they just walk along and give them a yank when they need it. There's not much paper money deposited in the rolled sock because one can never tell when one is going to get the 'sock-drops' and loose one's bankroll.

Garters cost anything from ten cents to ten dollars. "Its the rubber that counts—not the dollhead!" we overheard a youngster telling a clerk in the five-an-ten-cent store. But alas, not all of her sisters agree with her for those who are forever rolling 'em seem to have the prettiest garter rimmings. Monograms of real silver or of rhinestones are frequent trims. Little dangling bags of sachet are another. Bows, frills of lace, silk flowers, lover's knots, etc., are among the usual front adornments. We have not heard of the garters trimmed in silver bells recently, however. For a while the streets were noisy with them.

Among the newest of the new are metallic garters which are designed to carry out the vogue for gold and silver effects for Fall. Metal ribbon shirred over elastic banding is used for these. There are several ways of trimming them. One pair has pearl beads forming a medallion with a fringe of tiny pearls falling in front. Another has a buckle of cut steel on silver metal ribbon.

Still another pair of gold ribbon has appliques of pastel ribbon flowers extending all the way about.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl, in my teens. I have only seen a certain young man three times and yet he says he loves me.

Is it possible that a man can love a girl only having seen her three times? BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: That question is one difficult to answer, Miss Brown Eyes, because not all of us respond in the same fashion to the personal emotion known as love. However, it seems, just now rather unimportant for you to answer that question. If you are interested in this young man, if you enjoy his company and consider his friendship worth while, accept his invitations and learn to know him better. After you have known him for several months you, yourself will learn whether or not his love for you is sincere.

CAIRNS PITCHES PONIES TO FINE VICTORY OVER MUCH-HERALDED OSLERS, LAST YEAR CHAMPIONS

Central Ontario League Title Holders Eliminate Hamilton Machine From O.B.A.A. Race.

OSLERS LACK PUNCH

Losers Could Get Men on Sacks, But Attack Failed When Hits Would Have Meant Runs.

(By F. D. C.)

OSHAWA, Sept. 30.—The Kingston Ponies, the Central Ontario League entry in the Ontario Senior baseball sweepstakes eliminated the Oslers of Toronto from the race before 3,500 fans here to-day by beating the Ontario champions 3 runs to 1, in the third game of their semi-final series.

The cool steady pitching of Bruce Cairns, the Ponies' southpaw ace, backed up by fine support on the part of his teammates turned the trick for Kingston.

The powerful Osler machine was as impotent at the hands of Cairns as were the Petes in the first game of the Central Ontario playoffs.

The fact that fourteen of Freddie Hamilton's men were left stranded on the bases tells its own story.

The Oslers got runners on the paths in all but one innings threatened continuously, but never could drive home their attack so effectively and courageously did Cairns work when the Toronto crew became dangerous.

So confident were the losers that before the end of the game they would crash through Cairns' delivery for a flock of runs that they disdained to use the sacrifice even when the strategy of the game called for it but frame after frame passed and the big inning they were anticipating never arrived.

The Ponies and Cairns in particular deserve every credit for their steadiness under fire and their splendid defence against Oslers' much-heralded batters. Cairns spiked the Toronto wrecking crew completely. Tommy Burt and Clare Hoose got hitless and Joe Breen getting but one scratch single in five trips to the plate. The Pony outfield rose to great heights today, roaming over acres of ground to pull in long drives from Osler bats, eleven put outs being registered by Teepel, Cherry and Scott. All three included spectacular grabs among their killings.

Spring Gave His Best.

Opposed to Cairns was Joe Spring, Oslers' veteran right hander, who had tasted defeat for the first time this season at the hands of the Ponies in Kingston last Friday, and who was destined to go down again before the prowess of his youthful adversary.

Give justice where it is due; Spring passed out with his colours flying.

Mixing his drop with plenty of zip on his fast ball Spring allowed only seven hits, turned back the Ponies in order in five of the eight frames they faced him and did not issue a charity as against Cairns' record of eight hits and five free tickets. But Joe Daley's gang bunched four of their hits and the Oslers all of their three errors in one frame—the fourth—and the mixture netted Kingston three runs and the ball game.

In addition to Spring's pitching, Joe Breen's fielding stood out for the Oslers. Breen's great pick ups and bullet-like throws were a feature and he was easily the pick of the losing machine. Oslers were at full strength, Dodds being back in the line up after being absent for the first two games, so that the Hamilton-Hughes-Spring aggregation have no alibis.

True, the Ponies were lucky in several of their runs, but then Oslers were even more lucky to have scored at all for Umpire Hogan called a bad one at third that gave the losers their only tally. Outside of this decision the umpiring left nothing to be desired.

Oslers were backed by a big following from Toronto. Not many Kingston fans made the long trip but the Oshawa enthusiasts and the quotas from Peterboro, Belleville and other district points rooted vigorously for the Ponies and the winners were nearly pounded to pieces by Central Ontario League celebrities after the game. It was a League triumph over the Toronto representatives and everybody in the East rejoiced.

Threaten Early.

Oslers threatened in the first inning when Fleming walked and after Hughes had flied out to Teepel, Egan slashed a single through Purvis. Burt, however gave Teepel a fly and Cairns made a fast play on Breen's slow tap, to retire the side.

In the third the Toronto crew got their only run. Spring drew a pass. Fleming hit a roller to Halbert for what should have been a double play, but the short stop fumbled. Hughes bunted and Cairns tossed the ball to Batstone, apparently clear two feet ahead of Spring, but Umps Hogan called the runner safe. The play filled the bases. Egan hit weakly to Cairns, who forced Spring at the plate. Burt raised a long high fly to deep centre which Cherry grabbed, falling as he did so. Fleming easily scored after the catch and Hughes ran to third. Cherry was hurt but resumed after several minutes delay. With Breen up Oslers looked for more runs but Cherry was waiting for the short-stop's hard hit liner to centre.

The Big Inning.

The Ponies did not move a wheel until the fourth, going out in order in the first three sessions. Herbie Teepel started the downfall of Oslers by spanking a double over Burt's head in left. Halbert slashed a roller at Fleming which got away from the Osler second sacker and "Teep" carried the tieing run across Halbert going to third when Dodd's threw over Hoose's head, trying to head off Teepel at the plate. Batstone flied to Dodds. Somerville hit to Hughes who shot the ball home to nip Halbert. Hoose, however, dropped the Spalding in tagging the runner and the Ponies were in front. Cherry lined to Burt. Purvis then singled over Breen's head and Scott beat out a slow tap to Breen, filling the bases. Egan overran Arniel's little roller down the third base line giving the Kingston catcher a hit and Somerville was home with Run No. 3. Cairns ended the exciting session by forcing Arniel at second, Breen to Fleming.

Plenty of Chances.

There was no further scoring. Oslers had a good chance in the fifth when, with one out, Hughes singled to centre and Egan to right and the runners moved up on a passed ball. With Burt and Breen coming up Oslers had visions of a quickly tied score but Burt hit to Batstone, who threw Hughes out at the plate, and Breen could produce nothing better than a feeble roller to Somerville.

Bad base running threw away a Kingston chance in the same frame. With one down Halbert singled over second and Batstone past first, Halbert going to third. When Batstone tried to steal second, Hoose's throw to Breen turned him back to first and Halbert was caught between third and home when he tried to go in. Batstone reached second during the play on Halbert but was stranded when Somerville rolled to Fleming.

Oslers started a rally in the sixth with two hands down. Buchanan singled to right and went to second on Teepel's low throw, trying to nail him at first. Spring walked but Fleming's fly was easy for Cherry.

Cherry, first up for Kingston in the sixth, singled past third but the next three were easy and the Ponies went out in order for the balance of the game.

Not so with Oslers.

They returned to the attack in the seventh, Hughes opening with a single to right. Egan flied to Teepel and Burt hit to Cairns, who forced Hughes at second. Breen, however, singled through Somerville and Dodds was hit, filling the bases. Hoose, former Leaside catcher, tapped to Halbert for a fierce play on Dodds at second.

The Last Stand.

In the eighth they threatened again, Buchanan first up being safe on Somerville's error and Spring walking for the third time. Cairns showed his stuff in the pinch by striking out Fleming. Scott made the rescue with a fine catch of Hughes' long foul fly and Arniel's roller was fielded by Somerville.

The ninth was soon over. Cairns made a great stop of Burt's smash to the box, Somerville threw out Breen. Dodd's singled to left but Hoose's high fly to Cherry was nicely judged and caught. Scott and the Central Ontario League had triumphed over the Toronto winners.

PIRATE HURLERS HAVE THE EDGE IN WORLD SERIES

Pittsburgh Can Hit Speed Pitching as Handed by Johnson.

COULD HIT VANCE

Zackary May Baffle Them With Slow Delivery—Coveleskie Troublesome.

By WILLIAM H. BECKER

"A team is no better than its pitchers," is an old and true saying. If the twirlers are not effective the club will get nowhere. If some of the unsuccessful clubs of the National and American leagues had hurlers who could last nine innings the present champions would have had a much more difficult time winning the pennant.

Washington's staff is composed of Covelskie, Walter Johnson, Dutch Reuther, Ferguson, Tom Zachary, Fred Marberry, Russell and Ballou. Except for three relief flingers every one in the list is rapidly drawing near or is past 30 years of age. Johnson and Covelskie are the oldest of the group but they have been twirling as good ball or better than the others. The latter especially has been a mountain of strength to his team. Cleveland asked waivers on him, thinking he was through. Instead of being ready for the discard, he proved that his right arm still has some of its old fire left.

The Pirate staff consists of Aldridge, Meadows, Kremer, Morrison, Yde, Adams, Oldham and Sheehan. These men are not exactly young, either. Aldridge, Kremer, Meadows, Babe Adams and Oldham have reached the 30-year mark. But, like the American leaguers, they have accomplished most of the work this season.

Comparison of Hurlers.

Comparing twirlers is difficult. Perhaps the best way to reach any conclusion as to the merits of each one is to see just what damage he may do against the opposing line-up in the coming world's series. Everybody knows that Walter Johnson depends a whole lot upon his fast ball. Well, the Pirates have been known to slug fast pitching. They made life miserable for Dazzy Vance, the National league speed king, each time he ascended the mound, and Vance is faster than Johnson. It is likely, then, that Johnson will experience as much trouble against the Buccaneers as he had against the Giants last year. Reuther is a southpaw and one of those fast-ball pitchers. Leaders have not made much headway against the Pirates, especially Reuther's type. Nehf and Ryan of the Giants, Walter Mails of the Cubs, Jones and Cooper of the Braves, Cooney of the Braves all had Waterloos in games with the Pirates. There are too many heavy hitters on that team for any one of the Giants, Wright, Carey, Moore, Kelly, Meusel, Bentler, Barnhart, McInnis, Jones and Cooper

GLENNA COLLETT BEATS CANADIAN GOLF CHAMPION

But Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser Reaches Semi-Finals.

DEFEATED MISS WALL

Miss Collette Scored One Under Par for 18 Holes.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—While Miss Glenna Collet, of Providence, was eliminating the Canadian champion, Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto from the women's national tournament here yesterday by the narrow margin of one up, Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, attained the semi-finals by her defeat of Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., 2 and 1.

A startling upset yesterday was the elimination of Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, last year's champion, who succumbed in a terrific storm of wind and rain to Mrs. F. C. Letts, of Chicago, 4 and 3.

The most spectacular match to reach the home green was the international Mackenzie - Collett affair. The former United States champion won the struggle by scoring one under par for 18 holes. The Rhode Island girl was out in 37, only two above men's par, but gained a lead of only one up, as the Canadian premier totalled 39, including two birdies. Miss Collett got only one birdie on this nine, but she captured an eagle 3 on the 340-yard eight, one of the most difficult on the links.

Miss Mackenzie evened affairs by shooting an eagle 3 on the 400-yard 11th, and won the next two holes in pars to be two up. Then the rain storm broke. Miss Collett snared a birdie on the 406-yard 14th and a par 5 on the 487-yard 15th to square the match. She also won the short 16th with a par, and by halving the last two holes in five got the victory. Miss Collett had come home in 43, two above par, for an 84, while her opponent took 44 for an 83. The other match was that in which Mrs. Fraser defeated Miss Wall by scoring five birdies, three of them during the storm. Miss Wall also bagged five holes in one under par and gave the Canadian a good battle all the way. Mrs. Fraser, who held the national title for five years in succession, owed her victory more to two short putts missed by the Wisconsin champion than to the birdies. They halved the first hole with birdie 4's, and after exchanging the next two, Miss Wall went one down by missing a two-footer for a half. She missed another short one on the sixth to be two down, and from there the contest was on even terms.

Mrs. Fraser, by this victody, won the right to meet Mary Browne, of Los Angeles, who by scoring only one above par on each nine yesterday, eliminated Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn, of Chicago, one up.

Miss Collett, who owed her victory to her ability to jump a stymie on the short 16th, will meet to-day Fritzie Stifel, of Wheeling, W. Va., who won by one up because her opponent, Virginia Wilson, of Chicago, did not negotiate a stymie on the 18th.

SIGNED FOR FIGHT; NOW GET SANCTION

Will Officials Call It Boxing Contest or Brutal Prize Fight?

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 1 — Now that Dempsey and Wills have signed for a ten-round contest in Michigan City next year, the construction of the Indiana boxing law by state officials becomes the paramount question.

The state law permits boxing contests, while it prohibits prize fights. It fails, however, to give a specific definition of either, and in the past such definition has been left to the state attorney-general.

The no-decision contest between Dempsey and Bill Brennan, scheduled for Michigan City about three years ago, was cancelled after Warren T. McCray, then governor, threatened prosecution. The state attorney-general ruled that the contest would resolve itself into a prize fight, if, in the opinion of state agents at the ringside, it assumed a brutal aspect.

On the other hand the bout at Michigan City between Tommy Gibbons and Georges Carpentier was witnessed by a number of state officials, and no effort made to intervene.

Whether Governor Ed. Jackson will take a liberal interpretation of the law is to be determined.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The golfer who lets his head move to the right as he takes the club back—moving it this way while he is doing his best to hold it still — accumulates a feeling of extreme discomfort near the top of his back swing. He knows instinctively that his swing for that shot is gone—so he lets loose at the ball as best he can. What happens in this case is that the player's sense of balance is destroyed through his head moving and that is what causes the pronounced feeling of discomfort. The centre of gravity, maintained by the head during the address, shifts to the right side during the back swing, the head acting as a sort of counter-balance. In the forward swing the centre of gravity shifts through to the left side, and then back to control by the head, at the finish of the swing — a complete balance. When the head moves in the back swing this natural scheme of things is upset and the swing is lost.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir: Regarding Mrs. Fallis' complaint of being misquoted, I might say that I stated that the number of factory failures that he had reported as two thousand (2,000) during the time of office of the present administration were not complete figures, by any means. The complete figures indicated that over nineteen thousand (19,000) more business in Canada to-day than were in existence in 1921, when the Right Honorable Mr. Arthur Meighen was in power. In addition to that, I said that the percentage of failures was less in 1924 than in 1921. I regret the error in quotation, but a great many persons heard what I said, and I have the figures from R. G. Dun's report to verify my statement.

To the last part of Mrs. Fallis' letter, in which she speaks of a perverted and distorted report in the Mail and Empire of something I was alleged to have said, I might say that the statement was not made by me.

What I did say was, that there were political liars who never took the trouble to verify their statements and who were sendi forth propaganda which was untrue and dishonest.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

FROM MR. BURNHAM

To the Editor of The Examiner:

The Honorable G. N. Gordon is reported in The Examiner as saying at Stouffville that the Quaker Oats Company, the Canadian General Electric Company, etc., do not want higher tariffs. I will bet Mr. Gordon, for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society $10.00 that these companies will express, and have expressed, no such opinion.

INVITATION TO JOIN LIBERALS GIVEN BY KING

Premier Appeals To Progressives in Speech at Moose Jaw.

DENOUNCES SENATE.

Prime Minister of Saskatchewan Also Speaks on Liberal Platform.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—"I extend a welcome to everyone in this room to get into the Liberal party. If you have more vitality than we have, make that vitality felt in the party."

In such words, Premier King again supported by the Premier of Saskatchewan, last night once more made urgent appeal that the Progressives should support his government. He spoke of Robert Forke, Progressive leader, as with Scotch determination holding aloft the flickering torch and hanging on to the last gasp, but what advantage Mr. King queried, could there be to the West in the return of a small group of Progressives? It would have to operate very differently from the way it had operated in the past, he sharply added, if it was to have any influence. "If you want the Liberal party to be more progressive," he exclaimed, "get into the party and make it so."

He declared that only the fear that the people would uprise in some way controlled the Senate in its actions. And, he repeated previous declaration that the Upper House would be reformed.

FRANZ SCHUBERT'S FAMOUS MUSIC MAKES "BLOSSOM TIME" A JOY FOREVER.

Franz Schubert, composer of "Blossom Time," a modest genius, one hundred and twenty-five years ago a poor boy, ugly, awkward, unlearned, found himself the mouthpiece of the sweetest music of all musical history. Quite unconsciously he wrote down the loveliest and most tender melodies the world has ever known. Modest, bashful, little cognizant of his own worth, Franz Schubert wrote on.

Six hundred songs, symphonies, quartettes and other works of genius he set upon paper—everything worthy to live into immortality and infinite time.

Hungry abused, little loved, he moved through life a tragic figure. And at thirty-one he died and never really knew that he was the first singer of songs.

Recently there appeared upon Broadway a musical comedy, in which Franz Schubert was the chief character and in which Schubert's most popular melodies are interwoven. A blase crowd nightly packed the Century Theatre where this enchanting operetta ran for two years, and where the people heard it and came out in love with Schubert and whistling his melodies.

"Blossom Time" has the same effect on the theatregoers of every city where this enchanting operetta is produced. It is, without exaggeration, the greatest and most successful musical comedy of our age and generation, and will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, October 3rd, matinee and evening.

The Advance Sale for "Blossom Time" is very brisk. Quite a number of orders received from Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Hastings and Norwood.

AT THE ROYAL.

"SMOULDERING FIRES" AT THE ROYAL.

Discriminating patrons who appreciate a real good story, excellently acted by a cast that have nearly all been starred at one time or another, will revel in "Smouldering Fires," which opens to-day at the Royal.

It presents a woman's vital problem in a manner that will make it the subject of conversation over the tea-cups for weeks after its local play dates.

The comedy in it is entirely logical and clean, and does not depend on any hackneyed formulae to "get across."

The cast includes Pauline Frederick, Laura La Plante, Tully Marshall, Malcolm McGregor, Wanda Hawley, etc.

TINY TOT NITE AT ROYAL.

The amateurs to-night will be little folk, and the new song hit, "I miss my swiss, my swiss miss misses me," will be introduced by Mr. Harris.

BIG BOY GUM FREE SATURDAY MATINEE.

All children attending the matinee Saturday will receive free a package of Big Boy Gum.

NEW BUCK JONES PICTURE IS RIOT OF ACTION AND THRILLS

William Fox Star Performs Hazardous Deeds in "Hearts and Spurs," Based on Jackson Gregory's Thrilling Novel of the West, "The Outlaw."

Buck Jones, William Fox cowboy star, who has thrilled thousands of picture fans by his deeds of daring, surpasses his previous efforts in "Hearts and Spurs," based on "The Outlaw," Jackson Gregory's realistic story of the west, which is the feature attraction at the Regent Theatre tonight.

The story is replete with adventurous moments and terrific action. In transcribing the novel to the screen, the activity of the plot has been greatly enhanced. Buck is just the kind of man you would imagine the hero to be. He is rugged, lives and breathes the great outsdoors, and conducts himself like a true Westerner.

The big Fox star's forte is performing hazardous deeds. The present story gives him ample opportunity to wade literally through perilous ventures. There are fights aplenty — hard fast rides — more fights.

Carol Lombard plays the leading role opposite Buck with good understanding and Freeman Wood, William Davidson, Jean LaMott and Robert Littlefield all give sterling performances. W. S. Van Dyke directed the picture and John Stone prepared the scenario. "Hearts and Spurs" will be featured at the Regent Theatre for three days.

AT THE CAPITOL

DEATH OF CUSTER SHOWN IN MOVIE.

Famous General's "Last Stand" Against Indians in "The Scarlet West."

It took a poet—Tennyson—to call attention to a fatal military blunder. In his poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," he relates the story of the gallant "Six Hundred" who galloped to their doom, knowing that they were riding, unnecessarily, into certain death.

And now a motion picture has brought to light another instance of a grave tactical error in military strategy, involving the famous "Last Stand" of General George Custer, when he and his entire command were annihilated by Sitting Bull's Sioux Indians.

This thrilling incident has been reproduced in "The Scarlet West," a First National picture which is at the Capitol Theatre to-day. For six months the producer, Frank J. Carroll, pored over the histories of that period in order to insure accuracy. He left nothing undone to guard against any error in staging the battle.

According to Mr. Carroll, Custer's command was wiped out because the general made the mistake of dividing his forces.

The picture shows the regiment, with Custer at its head, riding out of Fort Remington to engage the Indians, who had taken the warpath. Misled by treacherous Indian scouts as to the number of enemies he would encounter, Custer determineds to surround them. He therefore divided his force in half, sending Major Reno to execute a flanking movement and to attack the Indians in the rear.

Anticipating such a move, the Indians attacked, surrounding Custer and encircling him until he and all of his men had been slain. The massacre was complete and the Sioux had disappeared when Major Reno and his men arrived in accordance with his orders.

This is the first time that the true story of Custer's Last Stand has been shown on the screen, according to Mr. Carroll.

J. A. McKONE, Pres.

The matter in this column has been supplied by the Conservative Publicity Committee in this campaign.

IS THE MINISTER OF IMMIGRATION AND COLONIZATION A FALSE ALARM?

Has Mr. Gordon Been Keeping the Seat in the Cabinet Warm For Someone Else.

The Globe of Sept. 30th, prints the following paragraph:

"Interviewed to-day regarding the announcement by the Prime Minister to the effect that the portfolio of Immigration might be assigned to a Western Cabinet Minister after the election. Hon. G. N. Gordon said that when he accepted the portfolio of Immigration and Colonization, the arrangement between the Prime Minister and himself was that he would accept another portfolio if a satisfactory Cabinet Minister from the West could be secured to take the portfolio of Immigration."

Does this mean that all the glowing promises that Mr. Gordon has been making, as to what he would do and might not perform, were only tentative, and that he knew he would never have to implement that which he promised? That he was just making a few balls and leaving it to the incoming Minister to throw them, if he cared to do so and extricate himself from the complications afterwards. All the bright things quite in line with the thoughts of everyone who wishes to get some thing for nearly nothing, promised so volubly, are just trial heats. Leaving Mr. Gordon in the happy position, (assuming and if the government were returned of which there is precious little liklihood), that being placed in charge of the Army and Navy, so to speak, he would serenely decline to bother with such things as a beneficient farm settlement, the scrutiny of grants of lands made in a time of excessive prices, the price of pork, the getting of options on and the probable purchase of farm lands in this county, to bestow on incoming immigrants, with other benefactions, which he averred he had in prospect. Making these promises, not for himself and forgetting that he was with most lavish hand going to give away the results of toil of the men who entered in on and built up the county in the pioneer days.

From this onward, little attention should be paid to the protestations and promises of the Hon. George. The daily papers show that what is left of the King Cabinet, in public utterances are besprinkling the situation, to the country, with protestations of the strictest economy, while we have here, an accredited Minister of the Cabinet, promising to spend money like a drunken sailor, so long as the public has to foot the bill.

When the announcement came that Hon. Mr. Gordon had been elevated to Cabinet rank it really seemed too easy. That the ways must have been greased for the event, that all chances of the West claiming consideration had been suffocated. Now we have the truth. Just a make-believe Minister, keeping the seat warm for a successor.

IN MEMORIAM.

FACTS ABOUT OPTOMETRY

Every Eye Does The Best It Can

Often its best is a very poor service. Every eye tries to overcome any abnormality that may exist in it, and this attempt means some sort of discomfort as a rule. These abnormalities can be overcome by the made-to-measure lens, and in no other way. So it is very unwise for a person to continue to strain the eyes when help is so readily secured. We are here for the good of your eyes.

LAPOINTE EXPRESSES OPPOSITION TO MEIGHEN'S PLAN OF LOWERING FREIGHT RATES TO AID MARITIMES

Minister of Justice Says That Central Provinces Would Object.

SPEAKS FOR QUEBEC.

Willing to Have Equal Rates But Won't Pay For Others, He Says.

QUEBEC, October 2. Canadian Press. — Opposition to the plan propounded by the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen during the latter's tour of the Maritime provinces, when the Opposition leader announced were to be returned to power he would ensure an adjustment of freight rates that would enable "the feebler portions of Confederation" to market their goods in Canada's centres of population, and that these adjustments would be supported from the Central provinces, was voiced this evening at a public meeting in Quebec East when Hon. Ernest LaPointe Minister of Justice, opened his electoral campaign in his own constituency.

"Speaking in the name of the province of Quebec, I am opposed to this solution. "The rates should be equalized, but we will not pay for others," declared the Minister.

In Tokio 42,000 houses were partly submerged.

SETTLEMENT SENDS DOLLAR UP IN PARIS

Pessimistic View is Taken of Events in Washington.

PARIS, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press.)— The first tangible effect here of the temporary debt settlement offer in Washington was to send the dollar from 21.10 francs at the opening of the bourse to 21.30 at 1 p.m. A pessimistic view of events in Washington was manifest, in official circles where the opinion prevails that the temporary arrangement for annual payments of $30,000,000 each for the next five years had served to complicate the whole debt situation.

It was felt that the course events had taken would make it extremely difficult for parliament to accept the provisional arrangement because of the uncertainty involved and belief that the termination of the five year period would find France faced with the same or perhaps more serious problems than she is meeting now.

Cash and Dreams Fade; No Money Maker Comes

DETROIT, Oct. 2—Detective Andrew O'Day, and John Koser of Detroit planned to leave for Utica, N.Y., today to serve a warrant charging larceny by trick on Julian Baranawski, arrested in Utica, Monday.

Kroser told authorities here last March he paid $5,480 to Baranowski for a machine "that turned out one dollar bills every time you turned the crank."

After paying for the machine, Koser said, he never received delivery and gorgot the salesman's name until Baranowski was arrested in Utica.

ENGINE ROOM OF SUBMARINE S-51 FULL OF WATER

Divers Cut Exploring Hole in Hatch and Made Discovery.

WILL INVESTIGATE.

Did Not Determine if Bodies Were There—Couldn't Shut Door.

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, New London, Conn., Oct. 2. — The engine room of the Submarine S-51 is flooded with wat r, the divers who cut an exploring hole in that hatch of the compartment reported to-night.

A message received at the sub marine bas from Rear-Admiral H. H. Christy, commander of the rescue forces, said that another diver would be sent th. gh the engine room to-morrow to investigate the motor room which adjoins the engineroom.

The message from Admiral Christy read:

"Diver cut exploring hole in the engineroom hatch cover; found engine room flooded. Plan to send a diver through the engine room hatch in the morning to investigate motor room."

The divers did not determine whether any bodies were in the engine room.

Naval officers had clung stubbornly to the hope that some of the crew of the vessel that was sunk last Friday night might have found refuge and be still alive in the engine room. Tonight's discovery showed that they had been unable to slam shut the water tight door betwee that compartment and the control room when they felt S-51 crash with the Steamer City of Rome.

If the divers in their investigation find that the motor room also is filled with water the last glimmer of hope for the lives of any of the men will be gone.

Thirty-one men remain to be accounted for. Three of the crew of 36 were picked up by lifeboats at the time of the disaster and divers have taken two bodies out of the wreckage.

He was taken at once to the General Hospital. This afternoon he was still unconscious and is in a critical condition.

FRANCE WILL PAY FORTY MILLIONS FOR FIVE YEARS

Arrangement Provides a Flimsy Programme For Present Use.

NOT PERMANENT.

Will be Subject Also to Ratification by the French Government.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The frail formula of a tentative arrangement, which must be ratified by the French Government, yesterday was trust into the breach to prevent complete collapse of the Franco-United States debt funding negotiations.

Thus, one week after Finance Minister Caillaux and his associates had laid down the first French proposal for funding their Government's four billion dollar war debt, they departed for Paris, taking with them a document intended only to fill the gap sufficiently to assure continuity of negotiations—even at long range.

The arrangement proposed by the United States Debt Commission as a final move to overcome what appeared to be insurmountable difficulties would have France pay an annuity of forty million dollars a year for five years, and would enable the two Governments to continue consideration of a programme of final settlement to succeed the proposed temporary pact at its expiration. Further, it concedes that the annuity thus paid shall be in lieu of all interest on the debt during the time it shall run—or an interest charge of approximate one per cent. a year.

M. Caillaux gave United States Commissioners the hope that he believed the French Government would accept the agreement. He declined to sign it as a plenipotentiary, inasmuch as he had been entrusted by his Government, he said to sign only a final settlement and he questioned his own right to act on an arrangements of a provisional character.

"Consequently, being as you are not to interrupt the negotiations, which cannot fail to reach an agreement," M. Caillaux' last statement said, "the Minister can do no more than submit to his colleagues of the French Cabinet in Paris the propositions which you have made today, and he will do his utmost to give an answer as soon as possible."

It was after making that statement that M. Caillaux and his associates marched in single file from the meeting, and the end of the conversations between the two commissions had come. M. Caillaux was unhappy that a permanent arrangement was not reached. Secretary Mellon, too, was disappointed, but he regarded the results as a step forward, and he felt that a better understanding between the two nations had been developed.

WESTERN GRAIN PRODUCERS WILL PROFIT BY RATES

Final Day of Hearing Occupied By Western Counsel.

STRENUOUS SUPPORT.

Written Submission Asks For Immediate Rescind of Order.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Decision as to whether or not the recent order signed by Chief Commissioner H. A. McKeown, calling on the railways to put into effect similar rates on grain and flour moving westward as those now effective on these commodities moving east shall be rescinded, is now with the Railway Commission.

After three days of argument for and against the order, counsel for the various interested parties concluded last evening.

The final day of the hearing was occupied almost exclusively by counsel for the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta (S. B. Woods, K.C.) in strenuous support of the order.

"I say to this Board," asserted Mr. Woods gravely, "that there is nothing which would so alienate the West from the East as that this order be reversed at the instance of the middlemen of Montreal and Winnipeg." He stressed the importance of the order to the Western producer of grain who stood to gain materially if the crop now harvested moved under rates dictated by the Chief Commissioner's direction. He claimed that the order was regular and that the Board of Railway Commission was not barred from issuing it under the terms of the Order-in-Council, providing for a general rate investigation. If there was to be an appeal against the order, it should have been made to the Governor-in-Council for a correct interpretation of its direction in regard to the general rate investigation, he contended.

Isaac Pitblado, K.C., counsel for the Winnipeg Board of Trade, filed with the Commission the submission of the Province of Manitoba in the case. This written submission asks for the recession of the order immediately so that the whole matter at issue may be dealt with as part of the general rate investigation. It expresses regret that "the order was issued in the face of disapproval of a majority of the commissioners."

In his brief rebuttal, Eugene Lafleur, K.C., counsel for the Montreal Board of Trade, served notice that, if the order of the Chief Commissioner was sustained by the whole Board he would advise his clients to appeal the judgment to the Supreme Court or the Governor-in-Council.

Jail Sentence Ends Plan For Wedding

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—A double wedding was indefinitely postponed yesterday when Sylvester Pretner, who was to have been a bridegroom, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction by Judge Charles C. Simmons for smuggling the other bridegroom, Feliks Krezan, into this country from Canada.

Krezan, who will be deported, was a boyhood friend of Pretner in Hungary. He came here to marry a friend of Pretner's sweetheart, he told officers.

MEIGHEN TALKS HUDSON BAY LINE TO WESTERNERS

Replies to Mr. King's Promise of Completion if Supported.

CALLS IT AFRONT.

Says Government That Built the Line Will Finish It.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2. —(Canadian Press). —During his speech last night at a campaign rally for the four federal constituencies of Winnipeg, the Right Hon Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader replied to Premier King on the Hudson's Bay Railway issue which has been injected forcibly into the campaign in the West by the leaders of all three parties.

He repeated Mr. King's promises in regard to railways were an affront to the people of the West as he made their fulfillment contingent up on the return of the Government supporters in the West.

"The Government that built that line," he said, "will finish it. What we start we finish. I will take immediate steps to ascertain the cost of completion so as to give it a fair trial. As soon as the country is on its feet and can spend that money I will spend it and I will be greatly disappointed if I cannot come back to you at next election with this work done."

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 2. — (United Press). — The sanity of the trade movement in Great Britain was shown by the Labor Party conference refusal to admit Communists, former Premier Ramsay MacDonald told newspapermen to-day.

MacDonald reiterated his condemnation of the Communists, pointing out that "Socialism and Communism are two different things, Socialism attempting to gain its object by constitutional methods.

LABOR PARTY OF GREAT BRITAIN COMPOSITE ORGANIZATION THAT IS WORKING FOR SOCIAL REFORM

Orientals Buy Newspapers To Wrap Their Packages

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(United Press) — The Department of Commerce has discovered what becomes of the extra copies of newspapers that are printed.

There is a big demand for them in the Orinet. But they are not read. In China, India and the Philippines they are used as wrapping paper which comes high over there.

During the first six months of this year, it was said to-day, 26,078 tons of American newspapers were exported to far Eastern countries at a value of $651,608.

The Party and Its Leaders Are in Favour of Evolutionary Socialism.

NO REVOLUTION.

Professor Jones Tells Kiwanis of Efforts of Communists to Control Party.

Professor Jones of the Department of English History at the University of Toronto, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club to-day, and delivered a very interesting and timely address on Socialism in Great Britain. He said that interest in the Labor party has grown because of the drift in favor of extensive social reform.

Communism has had a phenomenal rise since the success of the Bolshevists in Russia in 1917, and every country now has its party. The Communist party in England has tried to force its way into the Labor party, but has been repulsed.

The Labor party in Great Britain is a composite affair, said Professor Jones. It s composed of the trade unions, the Socialist parties, the co-operative societies, and individuals belonging to no minor organization. The speaker took up the various branches in turn.

The trade unions in Great Britain have grown up since the days of the industrial revolution. The Trade Union Congress was organized in 1868, with 118,000 members, and now it has 4,328,000 members.

The Socialist party had its beginning about the middle of the 19th century, when Karl Marx, a German living in London, issued his famous book. It soon developed into an international body and the 1st Internationale was organized in 1864, and functioned until 1883, when a dispute about the admission of an anarchist caused a rupture. The 2nd Internationale was formed a few years later and existed up till the beginning of the war. Now there are two Internationales—the 3rd, which is frankly communistic, with headquarters at Moscow; and the Labor and Socialist International, with which the British Labor party is connected.

Originally the Socialists worked for revolution and a rising of the proletariat, but since so much social legislation has been obtained by the ballot, it has changed from revolutionary socialism to evolutionary socialism. The minority party has obtained power in Russia and still favors revolution with arms to obtain its desires.

Co-operative societies, said the speaker, are great bodies which have no parallel in Canada. They have over four million members and a capital of 120,000,000 pounds. The individuals who form the last branch of the Labor party are mostly men with "white collar" jobs. The resolutions of the party are usually framed to encourage a large influx of this class.

RUSSIANS TAKEN BY ANTI-REDS

Steamer Loaded With Arms Entered Harbor Captured From Reds.

CHANGE UNKNOWN.

HONG KONG, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—The anti-Red authorities at Swatow (those opposing the Red Government at Canton), have detained a Russian steamer with sixty Russians aboard and a cargo of kerosene, arms and munitions allegedly en route to Canton from Vladivostok.

The captain of the vessel was not aware that the Reds had been driven out of Swatow. The cargo was confiscated and the crew detained.

BIG CAPTURE OF FOREIGN LIQUOR

Five Men Took 56 Runners and Half Million Dollar Cargo.

BRIBE REFUSED.

BURLINGTON, N.J., Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press). — Four State troopers, one of them the holder of the Distinguished Service Medal for bravery in the World War, and another the winner of a recent $1,000 award for heroism, with a private detective, to-day captured 56 rumrunners and half a million cargo of imported liquors, six trucks, four automobiles and a barge.

The capture was made near Bridgeboro, on Rancocas Creek, in the heart of the sand dredging industry, to which the boat had been towed on the Delaware River and past Philadelphia. The prisoners were brought to Burlington Jail after their five captors had refused a $75,000 bride and had frustrated an attempt to burn the barge. The barge contained 20,000 cases of foreign liquors, including champagne, benedictine, creme de menthe, Scotch and English whiskey and French wines.

HON. G. N. GORDON IS DESTINED FOR POSTMASTER-GENERALSHIP

Says Despatch, Said to be on Good Authority, From Ottawa.

SUCCEED MURPHY

Present Incumbent of Office Has Been Made a Senator.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—In the expected event of the Liberals being returned to power in the federal elections in four weeks, Premier King will ask Hon. George N. Gordon of Peterboro, to become postmaster-general and will offer Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan the portfolio of immigration and colonization, it is reported on good authority.

Mr. Gordon recently was appointed to head the immigration department but accepted the portfolio on the understanding that he would be given another cabinet post following the election.

The postmaster-general is at present Hon. Charles Murphy, who was recently made a senator.

The inclusion of Dunning in the federal cabinet has long been desired and his assumption of the immigration portfolio would be in consonance with the general opinion that this should be held by a westerner, since the prairie provinces are so vitally affected by the work of the department.

MRS. WILSON'S NAME HEARD IN RUMORS

Is Connected With That of Dr. Ruffin, an Old Friend.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(United Press).—Friends of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Dr. Sterling Kuffin here are engaging in a bit of conjecture as to what, perchance, may be drawn from the fact that the two are now in Paris and reported to have been seen about quite a bit together.

It is recalled that Dr. Ruffin's Washington physician, has long been a friend of the late president's widow the friendship dating back to the time of her marriage to Norman Galt, when he was her physician. Dr. Ruffin was one of the few persons invited to the wedding of the president and Mrs. Galt. He served as consulting physician when the condition of the president became grave and acted in that capacity until Mr. Wilson's death early in 1924.

Social circles here recalled that before the beginning of Mrs. Galt's romance with the president rumors were insistently spread that she and Dr. Ruffin were engaged. He is 58 years of age and a bachelor.

REDS LOSE IN LABOR MEETING

Resolution Against War Participation is Thrown Out.

BACK PROTOCOL.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 2.—(United Press).—The Labor Party extremists suffered still another defeat when the anual conference rejected a radical amendment to the foreign policy resolution as submitted by the executive committee.

The resolution declaring the Geneva Proctol the only practicable basis of permanent peace and general disarmament and demanding the re-opening of Anglo-Russian negotiations, was adopted. The extremists amendment urged that in the event of war the party would not participate but would struggle valiantly to overthrow capitalism.

COLBORNE TEACHERS' CONVENTION ATTENDED BY PEDAGOGUES FROM ALL EASTERN NORTHUMBERLAND

Good Addresses Were Given on the Work of the Schools.

REPORTS READ.

Inspector Told of Improvements in Teaching Profession.

COLBORNE, Oct. 2.—The annual meeting of the Teachers' Institute of Inspectorate No. 3 Northumberland County opened in the United borne, on Thursday morning, Ocborne, on Thurssday morning, October 1.

The meeting opened with Mr. Charles S. Haig, Campbellford, acting as secretary, and Mr. A. G. Cracknell of Colborne in the chair.

The hall was very beautifully decorated for the occasion and provided ample seating capacity for the large crowd of teachers who assembled there to discuss their difficulties.

Rev. S. C. Moore of Colborne gave a very appropriate introductory address, taking his theme from the 4th Chapter Ephesians: "I therefor the prisoner of the Lord beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, for the Lord gave some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors, and some teachers.

After a short prayer, Mr. Charles S. Haig of Campbellford read the minutes of the former meeting and gave a very satisfactory financial report, showing an account of $295 to the credit of the Institute.

Inspector Mr. Robert Boyes of Campbellford was then welcomed to the platform amid the cheers of the teachers of inspectorate No. 3.

Mr. Boyes expressed his pleasure of seeing so many familiar faces of teachers who were still teaching in his inspectorate.

A few years ago, the teachers were shifting about a great deal and at the Annual Convention nearly one half of the teachers would be strangers to him but this year there were not over a dozen changes in the entire inspectorate. He also stated that the profession was improving and that it was his desire to see teachers remaining in their schools from year to year; he himself having spent his entire public and high school teaching career in two schools. After explaining two circulars regarding library grants and teaching of agriculture, a rather warm discussion arose on school attendance, a number of teachers poor attendance, especially along the front townships where boys are employed in Canning factories. A very careful explanation of "Farm Permits" was also given by Mr. Boyes.

Mr. Walker H. Smith, district representative of the Department of Agriculture, then addressed the convention, explaining to the teachers how that the pupils might be given a broader idea of their capabilities of life by giving them some practical work in agriculture.

He thanked the teachers for their hearty co-operation at the school fairs and asked for any suggestions which would aid them in their work. He also encouraged all those who did not take part in these fairs to make the start and so get the parents interested in improving their own profession of farming. During the forenoon session a report of the Ontario Educational Association convention held in Toronto was given by the president, Mr. A. G. Cracknell, of Colborne.

At the opening of the afternoon session, Mr. F. M. Brintnell, a member of Colborne school board, gave the teachers a very hearty welcome to the town of Colborne, which is a very picturesque little town with its beautiful wide streets and fine dwellings situated in the midst of an excellent fruit district.

As a member of the church board he also welcomed them to the beautiful Sunday school hall which is used for that one purpose, "Developing the mind of the boy and the girl."

WELCOME GIVEN LEGISLATORS BY U. S. SECRETARY

Mr. Kellogg Makes Formal Speech to Open Inter-Parliamentary Union.

"REMARKABLE AGE."

Speaks of Forces That Are Working For Disruption.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The chamber of the United States House of Representatives was the gathering place yesterday for four hundred parliamentarians, assembled at the invitation of President Coolidge, from the legislative bodies of 38 nations, to open the twenty-third conference of Inter Parliamentary Union.

Debate and studies covering a wide range of vital work problems will occupy the distinguished assembly during six days of its session here.

The gathering, incidentally, makes history for the House of Representatives chamber since it marks its frist formally authorized use for any assembly other than that of the elected legislators of the nation. Extending the welcome of the United States Government to the assembled delegates, Secretary of State Kellogg declared in an address at the opening session yesterday that the presence in the United States capital of so many representatives of self governing nations "shows that in this remarkable age attention of the world is centered upon the study of self government", Mr. Kellogg said that forces were at work for the disintegration of orderly progressive government and for the establishment of class rule, which "may well give us serious thought."

'I am not an alarmist and I have absolute confidence in the intelligence and patriotism of the people of all those nations who have reacted and maintained the marvelous institutions of the twentieth century, but I cannot be blind to the forces which are working in many of the self governing countries for the disruption of really representative governments and the establishment of class tryanny."

CLAIMS TARIFF WAS TO BLAME

Sir Charles Gordon Drawn Into Election Campaign in Stanstead.

TEXTILE HEAD.

MAGOG, Que., Oct. 2.—Announcement that Sir Charles Gordon, Montreal financier and head of the Dominion Textile Company, has left the Liberal party because of the tariff policy of the government of Premier King was made here by John T. Hackett, in accepting the Conservative nomination for Stanstead.

Mr. Hackett read a letter from F. G. Daniels, general manager of the Dominion Textile Company, which has mills here. Mr. Daniels said in his letter:

"Much capital was made in the county of Stanstead in the last election, because Sir Charles Gordon signed the nomination papers of Sir Lomer Gouin. Unquestionably at that time Sir Charles Gordon felt that Sir Lomer, with the help of his followers from the province of Quebec, would be in a position to safeguard the agricultural and industrial interests in the province. During the last four years we have seen how far from the true situation this proved to be."

Mr. Daniels quoted figures to show that the amount of wages paid the company's employees in Magog in 1924 was only 60 per cent. of that in 1921.

Mr. Hackett said Mr. Daniels' letter made it clear that when Sir Charles Gordon and his friends found that promises of protection had not been fulfilled, he had left the Liberal party, even as Sir Lomer had left it before, as far as Premier King spoke for the Liberal party.

"You are being told in Mr. Daniels 'letter," said Mr. Hackett, "that if you want prosperity in this town and in Canada, a change of regime is necessary."

WET WEATHER HARMS CROPS

Seed Alfalfa Left in the Field Loses Most of Grains.

SPRING CHICKS LAY.

CAVAN, Oct. 2.—Mr. Joseph Staples had a fine field of alfalfa which he was leaving for seed. It promised a wonderful yield. Just when it was being cured the wet spell came and as it had to be turned and re-turned, he lost most of the seed, only having seven bags.

F. M. Staples, R. Matchett and F. Fallis were among those who lost part of their second cutting of alfalfa, for the same reason—wet weather.

Mrs Jas. Paul, eighth line, has a fine flock of White Leghorns, hatched in March. Some of the pullets are already laying.
